

Chapter 27 For Whom Do Tears Flow

Albert didn't remember how he left.
All his expectation was broken by Aaron's words.
She got cancer, she had a child.....
But where was she?
For three years, all traces had been erased.
Susan, where the hell are you.....

On the streets of a foreign country, there was heavy snow, and he walked decadently.

The pain of three years late swept through him.

Grief and pain spread at the same time, and his pain was almost unbearable.

He fell into the thick snow, the night sky, and kept sprinkling snow.

It sprinkled on his face and cooled his blood.

In the cold countryside, he finally passed out in the cold wind.

.....

There was a tear in the dark.

The light came in. He saw the girl laughing.

It was Susan at the age of 17.

At this time, her parents were alive.

She was still a carefree princess.

When she saw him, she shyly sent out his suit.

"Albert, you left your suit at my house."

At that time, he took his coat with a smile and said with a straight face, "Call me brother. Who taught you to call me by my name?"

She smiled, "I'll call you Albert, and I don't want you to be my brother."

.....

Scene changes, 18-year-old Susan got drunk at her birthday party.

She hugged him and buried herself in his arms, just not letting him go.

That night, he held her all night and didn't rest.

.....

When Susan was 19 years old, Lacey appeared beside him.

At that time, Lacey followed him every day. Susan seemed unhappy, but she didn't show it clearly.

He thought it was very interesting, so he was with Lacey to see what Susan would do.

He thought she would cry or do something, but she didn't. She was extremely indifferent and didn't smile at him anymore.

At that time, he was also young and arrogant. Since she was indifferent, there was no need for him to be gentle.

Until her parents died, her family urgently needed a person to stabilize the situation.

Instead of looking for him, she went to his father and said that they had ordered a marriage since childhood, and now it was time to fulfill it.

His father agreed.

But he was angry. She ignored him for such a long time. Now that her parents had died, she needed the Albert family.

Not because she liked him, but just to take him as her family's savior.

His anger sprouted in the bottom of his heart from that moment.

He only got the marriage certificate instead of the wedding, ignored her, and she didn't respond.

He didn't go home all day, and she was indifferent about him.

When his parents criticized him and asked him to go back home, he tortured her in the name of completing the task.

Seeing her crying under him, he felt very happy.

The dream jumped to the night he mentioned divorce three years ago.

She cried that day. It was that day that she found out about the disease.....

She held his hand, she said to let him accompany her.

She had lowered her head. Why can't he turn around.....

Why on earth didn't he turn around?

Perhaps people are always so awkward that they can't jump from inertia and indifference to warmth.

He just needed time, and she punished him in this way.

Giving him such a parting to adapt to.....

The dream suddenly fell into darkness again. He was very upset and kept shouting the name of Susan.

"Wake up....."

It seemed that someone was calling him.....

Albert tried to open his eyes and saw a nurse looking at him.

Seeing him wake up, the nurse smiled, "Thank god you woke up. Sir, you have a high fever."

Albert looked out of the window indifferently, "I'm fine. Go out."

"It's a woman with a child who just sent her friend to the hospital and found you unconscious on the way. You need to thank her."

A woman with a child?

He wouldn't noticed before, but he suddenly thought of what Aaron said. Susan had a child.

Could it be Susan?

He turned to the nurse. "Where is she?"

"She's in the VIP ward on the 8th floor of our hospital. The innermost one has always been hers."

Albert nodded, "Well, thank you."

After the nurse left, he got out of bed quickly, and then took the elevator directly to the eighth floor.

For a moment, he thought he was crazy.

Any woman, he thought it would be Susan.

When he arrived at the door of the ward, he suddenly felt very nervous. Without knocking, he wanted to leave.

Now, what was the significance of these? It was better to let the assistant check Susan's whereabouts more in line with reality.

However, as soon as he turned around, the door behind him opened.

A woman hurried out with a child in her arms.

Albert was stunned and excited. He knew this woman, it was Susan's assistant Jessie.

Seeing Albert, Jessie didn't care about her prejudice against him and hurriedly stuffed the child into his arms. "Hold your son. Susan's condition is very serious. I'm going to call her attending doctor."

Albert took the child. Before he wanted to speak, Jessie ran away. At the same time, a familiar voice came from the ward.

"Jessie, bring the child to me. I want to take care of him."

Albert froze, then ecstasy spread in his heart, Susan.....

Susan.....

His hands trembled with excitement so that he opened the door twice before opening it.

Susan heard the sound of opening the door and looked up to speak, but she immediately stiffed.

"You....."

He didn't expect to see her here.

Albert looked at her with an indescribable mood. He said with a trembling voice, "Susan, long time no see."

Susan didn't say anything because she didn't expect to see him here.

She never thought she would see him again in her lifetime.

Albert walked over with the child in his arms and sat down at the edge of the bed. "Susan, I'm sorry."

Susan shook her head and reached for the child.

But Albert didn't give her the child.

He looked her in the eyes: "Susan, I love you."