

Chapter 7 What Did I Do To You?

Susan deliberately cried pitifully, "Grandpa, I was so flustered and scared. I can't make wise choice in such a hurry!"

Grandpa supported himself with crutch, looking her in the eyes "Maybe you're afraid of being misunderstood by Albert? Or you want to make your identity public?"

Albert's father coughed softly, "Dad, Susan woke up just now. How could she think so much."

Albert's mother sighed and patted Susan's hand, "Take care of yourself."

Grandpa seemed very unhappy and turned away.

Albert's father sighed and followed grandpa out.

Susan bowed her head and was not talking.

These people seemed to be very kind to her, but in fact, there were few true feelings.

Including his mother. On the surface, she was very kind to her. She was for her son's benefit.

When Albert married her, they even didn't hold a wedding for them.

Though they had a lot of reasons, they couldn't conceal the truth that Albert was the most important in their eyes.

As for Susan?

She was the evidence of the Karl family's honesty.

She was the current wife of Albert Karl.

She was the owner of the company which will belong to the Karl family sooner or later.

But she was never a member of Karl family.

Susan had told the doctor not to disclose her illness to others, including these "strangers" who have a legal relationship with her.

If the Karl family knew her disease, to defend their fame, they would certainly stop Albert to divorce her.

And she could never have a chance to leave until her death.

No. It's not what she wants, especially in the dying year.

When she just learned about her illness, what she wanted most was Albert's love.

But now, what she wanted was to live for herself without concern.

After the divorce, she would travel around the world, which was what she had been longing for.

When her life ended.....

She would buy a cemetery in her hometown next to her parents' tombstone and snuggle beside her parents forever.

.....

Since she didn't intend to tell anyone about it, she left the hospital directly.

She hadn't divorced yet, but she didn't want to go home.

She drove with her assistant, trying to find a hotel to check-in.

The suitcase was still in Albert's trunk.

There were a lot of medicine in it. She didn't know if he would find it.

But he shouldn't be so bored to invade her privacy.

Thinking so, Susan was not so tangled.

They got off the car and walked to the hotel.

At this time, the people who came out of it suddenly made her freeze.

Albert held Lacey in his arms, followed by a female family doctor.

After all, she had known the Karl family since childhood. She knew those family doctors.

Albert took Lacey to the hotel and called the family doctor to check for her because he was afraid of being watched at the hospital.

But where were they going now?

Going home, or?

Seeing Susan, Lacey was sacred, shivering in Albert's arms, "Albert..."

Her reaction indirectly indicated that Susan did all this.

Albert looked at Susan, "Why are you here?"

Susan replied, "Find a place to rest."

"You called the police?"

"Yes."

"Good job."

Susan didn't answer, but Albert continued, "Since you called the police, let's go together and talk to the police."

It was because she called the police. The police asked Lacey to cooperate with the investigation, so they were going to the police station now.

The assistant stood in front of Susan. "Miss. Susan is in poor health and needs a rest. Besides, the police didn't ask Miss. Susan to go there."

Albert looked at Jessie with cold eyes, "You don't deserve to talk to me."

Susan patted Jessie on the shoulder and shook her head at her.

Then she looked at Albert, "Fine."

Seeing Albert's calm attitude towards Susan, Lacey was a little depressed immediately.

"Albert, it's apparent that she did this to me..."

Albert comforted, "Everything will be decided by the law. If she did it, you will win the bias of public opinion."

Lacey said anxiously, "Albert, if we go to the police station, then your relationship with her will be exposed. She just wants to prove that she is the right Mrs. Karl. She wants to ruin my reputation. "

Albert raised his eyebrows and looked at Lacey. Lacey lowered her head, "What's the matter?"

"You don't think much usually. How can you analyze so many things today?"

"I..."

Susan didn't want to see them here. So she turned around with his assistant and got into the car.

Sitting in the co-pilot's seat, Jessie pointed her plaster wrist at the people outside.

"Miss, do you think Lacey is strange?"

Susan looked over, "She's a little strange, but it has nothing to do with me."

"Why doesn't it matter? If there is someone behind her, then this person is likely to be bad for you."

"If there is someone behind her who doesn't dare to show up, it's probably nothing terrible. Moreover, I'll leave immediately after the divorce. Even I won't know where I would go, how could he find me out."

The assistant looked back at her, "Miss, let me go with you. I grew up in an orphanage. I have no parents and no friends. Let me take care of you."

Susan smiled, "That's not necessary..."

"But I want to go with you..."

Susan thought for a few seconds and said, "You are very capable. Stay in the company and take care of it for me."

"Now the company is operated by Albert. If you leave me here, he will kill me..."

Susan was silenced.

After a while, she slowly said, "I'll think about it then."

Jessie nodded obediently, "Okay."

Outside the window, Albert finally took Lacey into the car.

Watching his car drive out, Susan started the car and followed it.

They arrived at the police station almost at the same time.

Lacey got out of the car, still acting timidly in front of Susan.

Susan was amazed by her disguise, "Lacey, what did I do to you?"
