

Never Say 498

Unexpectedly, this newcomer had dug up quite a bit of dirt, causing the shareholders to drop their gaze in shame.

Every individual in that room had their own agendas and personal flaws. No one had expected Hannah to air all their dirty laundry today.

Bainbridge stared at Hannah, astonished that she could reveal so much on her first day at the company.

So much was exposed that even Jalen was left in the dark. He gazed at Hannah, his eyes aflame, his thoughts unreadable.

Seeing his secrets unveiled by Hannah, Dexter reacted with heated embarrassment.

“Even if you discover these, so what? Those defective goods are the very reason the White Group made a wrong call this time! Unless we address these defective goods, the White Group will bleed money daily! This, right here, is the real problem!”

He shot a disdainful glare at Hannah.

“Don’t divert attention. ALL these things we did are inconsequential. The main concern is this!”

“It doesn’t matter.”

Hannah grinned, a clear taunt in her gaze.

“I’ll handle this situation. If we can’t secure partners, I’ll personally offset the damages.”

Dexter believed Hannah was just showing off.

“You’re talking about a project valued at hundreds of millions, and you claim you’ll cover the cost? Just because you own 25% doesn’t mean you can show off here!”

“It doesn’t matter if I’m showing off. I’ll shoulder the White Group’s predicament. If anyone raises this later, they can’t blame me for my stern actions.

Hannah rose, casting a scornful look around.

“Would you all even be here, misusing funds, without my grandfather? I’ve spoken to an attorney. None of you will get off easily.”

As Hannah exited the conference room, turmoil erupted within.

“Is she threatening us? Jalen, your grandfather, even in his time, always treated us with respect! She’s nothing but a newcomer...”

Jalen, ignoring them, immediately pursued Hannah.

“Hannah!”

He reached her.

“Hannah, I’ll address the defective equipment issue.

You need not put on a brave front. I share this blunder too.”

Hannah paused, looked at Jalen, and sighed, “A company leader needs a strong mindset. How can you lead if you waver? In due time, I’ll negotiate a deal. If it falls through, a few hundred million is manageable for me.”
