

Night Stand 141

Falling in Love With A One-Night Stand

Chapter 141

Anna played distractedly with the two children. She glanced toward the car at the cemetery entrance every now and then, feeling apprehensive.

After a while, the door of the car finally opened. Then, Selina and Wayne got out of the car one after another. They looked calm and relaxed.

Anna was a little confused.

Selina waved toward Tammy and said, "Tammy, are you on summer vacation now? Well, how about you stay at my house for a few days?"

Tammy blinked her big eyes at Selina. She looked at Anna and Wayne separately and seemed to have an instant idea. She replied, "Sure! Selina, can I bring Matthew with me?"

Selina looked at Matthew for a moment and then felt puzzled.

She realized the boy looked somewhat similar to Anna and Tammy, even though he wasn't related to them.

Selina looked at Wayne and said, "You know, I can't decide myself. I can only bring Matthew along if I have his father's permission."

Tammy immediately looked up at Wayne and winked, saying, "Mr. Wright, you would agree, right? If you and my mommy get married, my grandaunt Selina will be Matthew's grandaunt."

Wayne smiled softly, looked at Selina, and said respectfully, "Yes, you can. Thank you, Aunt Selina."

Hearing his words, Anna got goosebumps immediately. Then, Selina got into the car with two children.

As he watched the car drive away from the cemetery, Wayne heard Anna, who was standing beside him, mutter, "Why are you calling her 'Aunt' so intimately? We haven't got married yet."

"What did you say?" Wayne asked, turning his head to her. Actually, he knew what she meant.

Anna glanced at him as she changed the subject and said, "No, nothing. By the way, you don't have to worry about Matthew. Although my aunt doesn't have children, she is a reliable woman. I promise she'll take good care of them."

They could feel the chilling evening breeze at the top of the mountain by evening.

Anna and Wayne held hands and strolled around the mountain. Noticing that Wayne seemed to know this place well, Anna couldn't help but ask, "Hey, do you come here often? You seem to know the way."

"We used to develop this area many years ago. We were going to make it into a resort area, but it was put on hold because something had happened. It became a deserted mountain after that."

Anna looked at Wayne's face and said, "You think it's a deserted mountain? If you ask me, I think it's pretty well taken care of. There are all kinds of flowers and trees here, and there is a large tree with raspberries on it. Anyway, you don't seem to have answered my question."

Wayne froze. After being silent for a moment, he let go of Anna's hand and paced forward alone. His shirt was bulging from the wind, making him look a little lonely.

Wayne said calmly, "I used to come here when I was a kid. But I haven't been here since my dad died. The reason why the program was on hold was that my dad died."

Anna knew that Wayne's father had died in a car accident. She furrowed her brow and asked, "So, your father was..."

Wayne took a deep breath and looked a little grieved. He said, "Yes, the accident happened on this mountain."

Anna felt sad. She went to him, took his hand, and said, "Oh, I'm so sorry to hear that."

"It's okay, Anna. It's been many years. Besides, I really wanted to bring you here. I have planned to restart this program recently. So, maybe, we will never see such beautiful scenery here ever again."

He took Anna's hand, brought her to his side and said, "We can stay in a hotel the next time we come here."

Anna blushed and whispered, "Why are you always thinking about that?"

Wayne suddenly took her into his arms and said, "What? What am I thinking about? God knows I wasn't thinking about anything. I just hope that every year on this day, you will not just feel the sadness of losing your mom, but something that cheers you up."

Anna's voice was a little muffled as she lay in his arms. She asked, "Like what?" "Today is the day you came into this world. If you hadn't been born, I wouldn't have met you."

"Then you would have met someone else like Ada. I guess if it weren't for me, you would have been married by now and probably

While they were talking, Selina walked in with the two children. "Hey! Mommy!"

Tammy jumped at Anna and cheered as soon as she saw her, while Matthew looked exhausted. He strolled inside, and then sat down on the couch and wrapped his arms around Anna as if he was about to fall asleep.

"Matthew doesn't usually work out, does he? We've only been running for a little while! He really is a pampered child." Selina showed a regretful expression.

Anna felt resigned. She patted Matthew's head softly and explained, "Well, actually, it's not his fault. Matthew had always been sick when he was a child. He had a fever when he was younger, so he couldn't talk anymore. He's always in poor health."

Selina put down the cup in her hand, stared at Matthew thoughtfully and asked, "He couldn't speak because of the fever? So, he never spoke?"

Anna frowned and replied, "Not really. I heard Wayne say that he has spoken twice in the year."

Selina looked at Anna with slightly more profound meaning and said, "Things may not be that simple. Wayne is the only son of the family, and a big family like the Wrights would be in trouble if they didn't have the next generation of heirs. Many people are jealous of the Wright family, you know. I'm afraid Matthew may not be able to grow up safely."

Anna looked at Selina with a stunned expression and was surprised at these words.

She had heard her grandfather say that Selina had had a child when she was young. Then, after something happened, the child was lost. Her uncle Joe was very close to his brother Bruce, but they stopped visiting each other after that incident. They didn't speak to each other until Bruce remarried later.

Anna did not understand this matter when she was a child. But she felt scared every time she thought about it later. She knew that most people would lose their minds in front of a considerable amount of money.

Selina meant to remind her that Matthew's fever at that time was probably not an accident. Also, such 'accidents' would frequently happen from then on.

Anna immediately thought of the chandelier falling down when she first met Matthew.

She peeked at Wayne and noticed that he didn’t look happy. So, she forced herself not to laugh and tried to think of something to comfort him, “Henry, I think she should be his aunt in name only. I don’t think Wayne has ever called her ‘aunt’, has he?”

Anna didn’t expect the butler to shake his head and deny it outright.

He said, “No, he still has to call her ‘aunt’. Although Natalie is an adopted daughter, she is still a family member.”

“But, ma’am, the guest room smells bad. The master said you can stay in the young master’s room and let him stay in the guest room. It’s late now; maybe it’s time for you to sleep. If you need anything, just call me.” The servant said and immediately ran away.

Anna didn’t know what to do. She knew she couldn’t chase her because the house was too big and she would probably get lost.

So, she decided to listen to Pete.

Wayne's room was as luxurious and elegant as the entire mansion, filled with expensive furniture. Once Anna entered it, she found a study with its door half-open on her left, and she saw a desk inside.

She then saw the paper and many bottles of ink on the table. She went into the study to see what kind of pens Wayne usually used.

However, she immediately burst out laughing when she saw what was on the paper. She leaned on the desk and laughed for a long time.

There were huge words on the paper, "Boring as hell."

Anna could never have imagined that Wayne, a seemingly calm and meticulous man, would write such words on paper in such a solemn and severe study.

Anna laughed for a long time before finding a few paper balls inside the trash can next to her. She then knelt down and took the paper out

One read "I'm so annoyed", another read "The weather is so horrible", and one even read "Why do I have to wake up early tomorrow".

Anna looked at Wayne's "masterpiece" seriously and laughed, not even realizing that he had come in.

"What are you laughing at?" Wayne asked as he walked toward her. "Did you write all this?" Anna even blushed because she was holding in her laughter.

Seeing his handwriting, Wayne's face turned pale. He was silent for a while, then said, "Do you enjoy going through the trash?"

"Oh, no, of course not. But I saw this beautiful work of yours, and I can't help but want to see more."

“What? It’s already eleven o’clock?”

Anna woke up that second, then immediately sat up from the bed and said, “How come you didn’t wake me up?”

This was her first visit to Wright’s old house, and she was up so late She was afraid that Peter would think she was rude if he knew about it.

*The maid came to wake up three times before, and you still kept sleeping.”

Anna retorted as she got dressed, saying, “That’s impossible! Don’t lie to me. I didn’t hear anything at all.”

“That’s because you were too tired last night, so you slept deeply” Anna blushed and muttered, “I didn’t! Don’t think too highly of yourself.”

“Really? Then why didn’t you hear what I just said to the maid?” Wayne became teasing. He turned and leaned over the edge of the table and asked slowly

“I told them that you were too tired last night So, you won’t be able to have lunch with Grandpa today” He said again

Anna looked up instantly annoyed, and said, “What? God, you’re such a jerk!”

He’s so shameless. How can he say such things calmly?! Anna thought to herself.

Wayne looked at her pretending not to understand what she said, and asked, “What’s wrong? Are you angry? So, do you still want to have lunch with Grandpa?”

Anna was too angry to say anything She got out of bed and went straight into the bathroom

When she looked at herself inside the mirror, she found that she was blushing and had many hickeys on her neck

As she pulled open the bathroom door, she angrily swore, “Wayne! Look what you’ve done! This won’t go away for days. How am I supposed to go to work?”

Wayne was sitting on a chair and flipping through a magazine. Hearing her words, he looked up at her and then tilted his head innocently “Anna, I didn’t do it on purpose. If you’re angry, you can do the same thing to me. Then we’ll be even.” He said with a shrug.

Anna gritted her teeth and was silent for a long time before saying, “Damn you!” “Fetch me my foundation, will you? It’s in my bag.” Wayne smiled and nodded, raised his eyebrows and opened her bag Anna stood in front of the bathroom mirror, looking at herself. She had buttoned the collar

Not long after, Wayne came to the bathroom door “Did you find it? Thanks “She didn’t turn her head back “What is it?” Wayne didn’t answer her but asked Anna turned around and saw a small purple gift box in his hand

Anna froze and said, “Did you find my foundation? Ah, it’s an earring Someone gave it to me. It was very expensive, so don’t drop it, okay? Put it back.”

Seeing how nervous she was, Wayne looked a little huffy He questioned, “Who gave it to you?”

“J. “Before Anna could finish her sentence, she realized that Wayne might be jealous. Then, with a sly wink, she yanked the foundation from his other hand and began applying it to her neck

"Yeah, what's wrong?" Anna asked curiously when she saw this look on Wayne's face.

After Wayne took the earring out of the jewelry box and looked at it for a while, he seemed to be sure of something. He then went into the study.

He had an old black and white photo in his hand when he came out. It looked like it was taken in the last century, and the corners were frayed.

The photo was of a young woman about eighteen or nineteen years old, who was in a beautiful dress. She looked very aloof and had a gold necklace with two emeralds, one was small while the other was large. Although the photo was a bit old, the smooth outline of the emerald could still be clearly seen.

"Who is this?" Anna asked in disbelief.

Wayne took another look at that earring, and then put down the photo and said, "This woman is my grandmother, and what she is wearing around her neck is an heirloom from her mother's family. The emeralds set on that necklace were two pieces; one was large and one was small. After World War II began, the Germans occupied my family's house. So, she sold the small one for money."

Anna looked at the earring in her hand and realized that the emerald gemstone was very similar to the one in the photo. She asked, "Is this that one?"

Wayne nodded.

Neither of them had expected that emerald to be sold abroad, and then collected by Jennifer, and later be given to Anna.

"What about the other one?" Anna asked afterward.

Wayne frowned and said, "Grandpa gave me that gemstone, and I made a necklace out of it. Unfortunately, I lost it six years ago."

Anna froze and couldn't help but clench her fists, looking slightly nervous.

Maybe he's talking about that necklace I pulled off his neck back then. Anna thought to herself.

"Hey, Anna, what's wrong?"

and said casually. "Nothing, I'm just surprised this earring is related to your

Anna was very familiar with Peace, so she knew that once she started paying attention to a grown man, it meant she would hit on him.

She always said Karl was a playboy. But when it came to how often she flirted with men, she was actually about the same as Karl.

Peace glanced at her and said, "Wow, wow, take it easy, Anna. Do you think you're his mother? Chill, I was just asking. I'm sure you can understand. After all, he's so cute. Everyone likes young and hot boys, and so do I."

"Forget it! I know you very well, and you'll lose interest in him after a while. Ah, I think Kari's been pretty good to you lately. He does whatever you want."

"Oh, please! He does whatever every woman wants." Peace immediately looked defeated as she heard Karl's name. She glanced at the kitchen, and then withdrew her gaze.

"Old habits die hard," she muttered

"What happened? Did he flirt with other women again? I thought you guys were getting along well lately."

"Not really. But even though he doesn't flirt with women, there are women who want to mess with him. I envy you sometimes, you know, because Wayne has always been a good man. Karl used to be a womanizer, and he couldn't get rid of his habit of messing with women. Actually, I can understand him. As long as I pretend that I don't give a sh*t about that, then we can get along just fine."

Looking at how Peace pretended not to care about anything, Anna felt heartbroken.

She said comfortingly, "Peace, honey, that's long gone. So, you should stop thinking about it. People always have to look forward to the future, and you can't be afraid to do so. If you take this pain alone and act as if you don't care about anything, then you will be the one who suffers. After all, you know that you can't change the past."

"After that incident, Wayne let this poor little guy live with him. Of course, he looked into this case, but he didn't find anything. We just know that the babysitter on duty that day sneaked out. She does this often because Matthew is an obedient and well-behaved child. She had snuck out before, and nothing happened. But, Matthew had a fever that day."

Karl remembered the details of the incident well. This was because he had never seen Wayne lose his temper that much since he had known him. Although Wayne always said that he didn't care about children, and that he was forced to have children by his grandfather, Matthew was his child after all. Wayne became anxious immediately after Matthew was in danger.

"How did they punish the babysitter?" Ryan asked.

"She was sacked, of course. Wayne has picked some new maids since he's been living with Matthew. Whenever he traveled, he would bring Matthew with him. But, if Wayne can't take care of him, he would let Ada do that. Ada was, of course, very cautious. After all, she was the only woman who could be around Matthew at that time. You know, a lot of women wanted to marry Wayne and be Matthew's stepmother."

Ryan said calmly. "Well, I don't think so. It was not until that incident that Ada got to be around Matthew and thus stay with Wayne. If you look at it this way, Ada benefited the most from the incident."

Karl didn't hear the implication of his words and said, "Yes, that's what I meant."

Anna immediately picked up on Ryan's implication and asked, "Are you saying that Matthew's accident might have had something to do with Ada?"

Everyone froze.

Ryan remained calm, saying, "Oh, I'm just speculating. You all know that Wayne didn't like to have women around him. But, Ada was the only woman who could be with him. He didn't care much for her, but if she could benefit from this accident, then it all makes sense."
