

Night Stand 73

Falling in Love With A One-Night Stand

Chapter 73

After asking a maid for the scald ointment, Anna went upstairs and knocked on the door of the cloakroom.

"Come in." Wayne had changed his clothes. And the pajamas that he wore just now were casually thrown on the floor.

"Are you okay? I've brought you the scald ointment," Anna said, standing at the door. Wayne nodded and said, "Thank you." "You're welcome. You may apply it now. I'll go out first." "Okay."

After putting down the scald ointment, Anna turned around and walked out of the cloakroom. After taking a few steps, she suddenly remembered something.

She turned back, pushed the door open directly, and said, "Remember to..." Before she could finish her words, she froze when she saw what Wayne was doing.

Wayne, who was taking off his pants, didn't expect that she would suddenly come back and he was taken aback. His hands shook, and the belt slipped from his hands. The next moment, his trousers dropped, revealing his long and strong legs.

Anna covered her eyes, turned her back to him, and said in embarrassment, "Why are you taking off your pants?"

Wayne was also embarrassed. He said, "How can I apply the ointment if I don't take off my pants? I didn't know you would come back all of a sudden. Why didn't you knock at the door before coming in?"

Anna retorted with her face flushed, "I came back to tell you how to use the scald ointment. How would I know that you were taking off your pants?"

Seeing her so flustered, Wayne suddenly found it funny. He casually covered his legs with a towel, sat down, and said, "Well? Then please tell me how to use it."

With her back to him, Anna asked, "Have you put on your pants?" Wayne looked down at the towel on his thighs and said seriously, "Yes."

"Really?" Anna frowned and turned around carefully. When she saw Wayne sitting on the sofa with his legs covered with a white towel, her face turned red again. She immediately turned around and said, "Didn't you say you've put on your pants?"

"Did you see anything that you shouldn't see?" Wayne asked. "No. I didn't see anything." Anna said quickly

"Then why did you turn your back to me?" Wayne asked. "Hurry up. I have something else to do later. Aren't you going to apply the scald ointment for me?"

You apply it yourself," Anna stammered, suddenly regretting coming to see
