

Night Stand 92

Chapter 92

After leaving the hotel, Anna went to Blue Castle Kindergarten in a hurry

The school was about to be over. There were many luxury cars as well as butlers and maids at the gate of the kindergarten.

When Anna forged through the crowd, she saw Eleanor who had been waiting for her at the gate for a long time.

Eleanor then quickly took her into the kindergarten. "How is Tammy now?" Anna asked anxiously

"She's better now. Fortunately, Tammy received timely treatment and didn't suffer from shock. But she was not in a good condition before, so I called you," Eleanor said,

Then the two of them rushed to the infirmary all the way.

The moment Anna saw Tammy, tears welled up in her eyes. She stood at the bedside at a loss and asked, "Tammy, are you feeling better?"

Lying on the bed, Tammy looked a little haggard and was not as lively as before. And there were bruises on her forehead. Not to let Anna worry about her, she forced a smile and said, "Mommy, I'm fine."

Hearing that, Anna held her hand gently with a lump in her throat.

She felt distressed when seeing Tammy's pitiful look but still couldn't help blaming her, "You promised me that you would be obedient and wouldn't make trouble at kindergarten. Have you forgotten that?"

Tammy felt aggrieved and said, "I didn't do anything wrong, Mommy." While they were talking, Dr. Turturro came in and asked, "Miss, are you Tammy's mother?" "Yes, I am," Anna turned around and replied to her.

Dr. Turturro was a gray-haired old woman. She was wearing a lab coat and a pair of glasses with gold wire frames, looking quite amiable.

Hearing Anna's reply, she motioned Anna to come out with her, and then Anna quickly stood up and followed her out.

"Dr. Turturro, is there anything wrong with Tammy?"
