Never Late, Never Away Chapter 2079 - 2080

Never Late, Never Away Chapter 2079

Upon hearing Jaden's name, Joan searched her mind for a moment before she finally recalled him. Since he once helped me, I naturally can't decline. And this is his sister, so it's probably fine.

"Sure. Why don't you send me the location? I'll go over right away."

The two of them then exchanged some pleasantries before hanging up the phone. Noelle stood rooted to the spot, a chill emanating from her.

I just want to see what exactly is so good about Joan Watts that Caiden has been thinking about her night and day all these years!

"I'll be going out for a while, Ms. Young!" In the living room, Joan pivoted and headed out after saying that.

When Delilah heard that, her guard abruptly went up.

"Where are you going, Joan? It's not quite safe out there nowadays, so try to stay home as much as possible."

"It's okay, so don't worry, Ms. Young. Gabriella has gone abroad, purportedly to handle some business matters. Thus, she won't be back for the time being," Joan replied with a soft chuckle.

Delilah merely knew that Gabriella had gone abroad recently, but she had no idea why she did so. In that case, we can really enjoy peaceful days henceforth.

"Alright, then. Have a good time out there, but remember to stay safe." She then turned around and went back to the kitchen.

She knew that Joan had been cooped up in the house for a long while, so it was indeed time for her to go out for some air.

Ah, it's been such a long time since I've been out in the open! Joan raised her head to the sky with her eyes closed as she breathed in the fresh air.

The air in the village is the best! Excitement imbued her.

She didn't drive, planning to walk to the entrance of the village and hail a cab instead.

As she gazed at the flowers and plants around her while walking, she found it all endearing.

The flowers in Ms. Young's garden are probably doing well, no? Subsequently, she righted a clump of grass that had been trampled by the roadside.

Meanwhile, Noelle sat in a corner in a café as she waited for someone with a stack of documents in her hands.

Indeed, it was information about Joan in the recent years.

Hah! This woman is really something else. She actually stole her best friend's husband! At that, Noelle's eyes glinted with a vicious gleam. Since she already has a husband, why is she still pestering Caiden? Or is it merely one-sided on Caiden's part? No, I should be too reckless in this matter. It's better to get to the bottom of it first.

All of a sudden, an elegantly dressed woman pushed open the door and walked in. Well, she must be Joan Watts, yes? Sure enough, she's outstanding and stunningly beautiful with a superb figure to boot. It seems that her personality is nice, too. Also, her countenance merely manifests the beauty of time without any flaws.

"Hello! Over here!" Noelle swiftly waved a hand at Joan.

When Joan spotted her in the corner, she instantly hurried over.

"Sorry to have kept you waiting," Joan apologized.

In truth, she wasn't late. Rather, it was Noelle who was early.

"Nice to meet you. I'm Noelle Ford, Jaden's sister. I've heard all about you," she declared, cutting right to the chase.

“Nice to meet you. I’m Joan Watts,” Joan answered with a smile.

She doesn’t look as though she’s a cunning person, but I just don’t understand why she asked me out.

“Is something the matter that you asked me out today, Ms. Ford?” she asked without beating around the bush.

She didn’t think that Noelle merely asked her out for a cup of coffee. If that were truly the case, then it would be really dishonest of her.

“Well, I’m going to get right to the point, then. Jaden, Caiden, and I grew up together, so our relationship is very close. Thus...” At that, Noelle paused for a moment and took a sip of tea while stealing a glance at the woman sitting across from her.

Hmm? This is strange. Why is there no reaction from her? Shouldn’t she be jealous when I mentioned the three of us growing up together? But why don’t I see a single hint of chagrin in her eyes? Contrarily, there’s a wealth of calmness and curiosity.

However, Joan merely smiled as she waited for her to finish her utterance.

“Thus, I like Caiden. Although he has always regarded me as a sister, I’ve been regarding him as a man.” Noelle was extremely blunt in her words.

All at once, puzzlement swamped Joan. What has she liking Caiden has to do with me? If she likes him, she should just pursue him! Or could it be that she asked me out to give her some suggestions? Well, I really hope not. At that thought, she nervously took a sip of coffee.

Hah! She’s finally nervous! Joan Watts, you’re scared at long last, huh?

“Um... How would you like me to help you, Ms. Ford?” Joan questioned out of the blue.

Huh? Noelle was momentarily taken aback at her question. What on earth is going on here? I'm here to declare war, okay?

"No, I mean... Don't you have anything to say about that?"

Joan couldn't quite get her meaning, so she looked at her dubiously with a hint of curiosity in her eyes.

"I mean, don't you have an opinion about that?" Noelle pressed further.

Hmm? This is really weird. How is it my business whether they date? Why are young people nowadays making relationships so complicated?

"What kind of reaction are you anticipating from me?" Joan asked in a murmur, for she truly couldn't figure out the thought processes of the girl before her.

"Aren't you angry?" Noelle urged.

"I'm already married, Ms. Ford. I have a husband and a child, so I naturally don't pay much attention to other people's love lives. Besides, Caiden and I are merely schoolmates. I'm very grateful to him for having saved me, so I'll definitely help him to the best of my ability if he ever requires my help. As for his love life, I don't think I should interfere in that. What do you think, Ms. Ford?"

From what she said, she doesn't seem to have much interest in Caiden. That's great! I'm more than happy about that!

Noelle inwardly rejoiced, feeling very much relieved.

"I agree. Um... I mainly asked you out today to make your acquaintance..." she murmured awkwardly.

In all honestly, Joan had already guessed her motive when she mentioned that the three of them grew up together. But I just don't understand why she would say all that to me when I'm a married woman, thus I can't possibly have any romantic entanglements with Caiden.

"Sure. I'm glad to make your acquaintance," Joan replied smilingly for courtesy's sake.

Ah well, never mind. I'll just keep my questions to myself. Anyway, everyone knows that I'm married, so there's no need for me to explain anything.

That was the sum of their conversation, and they both returned home respectively.

"Did you go out earlier?" Joan saw Larry the moment she stepped into the house.

"Yup. I went to meet someone," she replied softly.

Hmm... Who did she meet? Could it be that junior of hers? Sitting on the sofa, Larry's brows were creased deeply and his expression dour.

"It was Jaden's sister, not that junior of mine," Joan hastily explained.

Hearing that, Larry instantly burst into laughter. But why did Jaden Ford's sister seek her out?

Ever since Caiden and Jaden saved Joan and Nancy, he had scrutinized all the information on them both, so he was extremely familiar with their backgrounds.

Jaden's Ford's sister is bold and feisty, while Joan is gentler in nature. So, why would the two of them get together?

"Were you acquainted with her previously?" He eyed the woman in front of him skeptically.

"Nope. I just got acquainted with her today. She suddenly rang me up and said she wanted to consult me about something. Seeing as she's Jaden's sister, I went over. It turned out that she's rather adorable." Joan snuggled in his arms.

"Why did you she ask you out?"

"She said she likes Caiden. I have no idea why she suddenly told me all that since it doesn't seem to have anything to do with me. What could I have said when dating is a personal matter between them? Speaking of that, it was truly bizarre." Joan hugged the person in front of her tightly in a bid to steal some warmth from him.

Goodness, she's really dense! Why can't she tell that Caiden Owens has feelings for her? Noelle Ford must have sought her out this time to declare war but swallowed the words she had prepared beforehand upon realizing that she doesn't have any interest in Caiden Owens.

Well, well... Caiden Owens is a complication. Since Noelle Ford did that, it's proof enough that he intends to pester Joan. In that case, I've got to be careful.

"Mom, why isn't Grandma home yet when it's already so late?" Lucius suddenly ran out of his room.
