No Chance of Remarriage: Get Lost

Chapter 1081

It is hard to determine...

The uncertainty of the situation didn't feel right.

Gareth wasn't someone demanding, and everything seemed to run smoothly.

But... only he knew deep down that he felt relieved.

Grandma's condition had improved, and he had more time to complete his remaining tasks.

Whether he was cured fully wasn't within his scope of worries. A little more time was all he hoped for.

He was satisfied with the outcome.

"So... how much time is needed? When can the next procedure begin?!" Vincent voiced his concerns.

But this time, he was looking at his friend.

He had also accepted the current situation and waited for Elisa's response.

"One week," Elisa briefly answered him.

Vincent responded immediately. "One week? We can wait! We can afford to wait!"

Jeremy was thrilled about the news. After taking a deep breath, he shared his predictions. "It's possible! Absolutely possible!"

Vincent felt instantly energized and walked toward Jeremy. "Is it real? It's going to work, isn't it?"

"Yes!! Definitely!! Mystic... "

Nothing is impossible for Mystic Orchid!!

But... he didn't spurt out the truth about Elisa's identity. As soon as the word 'Mystic' came out, he suddenly became silent. It wasn't the best place to share the secret about Mystic Orchid, especially when many outsiders were around the hospital. It wouldn't be ideal to have someone outside know about this secret.

Mystic Orchid liked to keep a low profile. Elisa was someone who preferred to do things under the radar.

She wouldn't have to expose her secret if not for the number of things she had to do recently.

Or else...

No one would've known who was behind all these.

"What?" Vincent didn't understand what he was saying and turned to look at Jeremy suspiciously.

Jeremy didn't bother. Instead, he looked at Gareth and asked, "So... what are you planning to do after this? Will you wait for a week, or will you immediately..."

Gareth pursed his lips together. "Let me know the details."

Chapter 1082

Vincent was stunned. "Grandma has what type of..."

Cancer.

He didn't know how to say the last word.

In the end, Elisa glanced at him and softly said, "Lung."

Lung!

Isn't that the one that advances the fastest?

He opened his mouth, but he didn't know what to say. He came to the hospital without a clue of what was happening. After the events happening here, he felt even more confused and bewildered about everything.

"Then... after this..." Vincent could only say a few words and lost his train of thought.

Gareth looked at Elisa and asked her seriously, "To be honest, you are confident in the treatment, right?"

Elisa was in deep thought before she could reply. "Eighty-five percent."

Jeremy was happy to hear her answer!

"Based on your standards, eighty-five percent is equivalent to two hundred percent!"

He said this based on Mystic Orchid's ability rather than his admiration for Mystic Orchid.

Eighty-five percent truly is equivalent to two hundred percent.

Listening to Jeremy's words, Gareth immediately said, "Then let's begin tomorrow. Have a good rest today."

Elisa didn't leave right away. Instead, she replied, "We still have to keep track of your condition. One hour later, we'll run another round of examinations."

Gareth lowered his head without saying a word.

Vincent breathed in profoundly and stood in front of a few of them. He couldn't resist it anymore. "It's time for all of you to tell me what is happening! I'm about to die of frustration!"

Jeremy glanced at Vincent before focusing on Elisa, "You..."

"Do as you wish. Have a chat. I'll be going to the washroom." Elisa got up and left right after saying this.

Vincent's gaze followed Elisa as she slowly left. After that, he closed the door and immediately shot a look at Jeremy. "You tell me!"

Thomas was all ears as he sat at the corner.

Even though he followed through with most of the examination procedures today and got exposed to much information, he still struggled to link all the information together. He couldn't figure out everything that was happening here.

Hence, he was as curious as Vincent to hear about the truth.

While the two of them were staring at Jeremy, he finally opened his mouth. "Do you know what Elisa's secret is?"

Chapter 1083

Even the one who was always steady couldn't keep his calm.

As for Vincent, he was still in shock.

"What the h*ll!!! Who is she? F*ck!!!" Vincent kept on cussing.

How did he not realize that the person that just walked past him was the Mystic Orchid?!

F*ck!!!

"How did this happen... When did you all find out that Elisa is Mystic Orchid?"

Jeremy explained the truth to him. "She was the one who discovered Gareth's grandmother's illness. She revealed her identity to save her."

Vincent nodded. "I see."

But he scratched his head after a while and said, "I'm f*cking upset! Is she human? Iris, Wisteria, Black-Eyed Susan, Mystic Orchid! Does she have multiple personalities? Is she a thousand-year mystical creature? Or else, how did she accomplish so many things in twenty years? Not even the greatest person who ever lived could possess such talents!"

No one could refute his words. Thomas also nodded his head unconsciously. But he noticed it didn't seem right and returned to his normal state immediately.

After pausing for a while, Vincent looked at Gareth and said sarcastically, "Then again, she is now becoming more and more impressive, so back then when you were together... was it her who wasn't compatible with you, or were you... the one not compatible with her?"

As soon as he said this, Gareth suddenly lifted his gaze and glared at Vincent fiercely.

But Vincent wasn't offended and didn't hesitate to laugh hysterically at him. "If I knew she was such a bad*ss, I would've pursued her myself! If I had such a competent wife, I wouldn't have to worry about a thing in the future!"

Jeremy couldn't help but chuckle.

Thomas was also grinning as he peeked at his company's chairman.

Gareth glanced at Vincent coldly before looking away to ignore his nonsense.

"So just now, you were...."

"She was initially involved in this area of research, and this is the final obstacle. It had failed seventeen times, but for Elisa, the seventeenth time was the end of past failures. It will succeed this time."

"F*ck! It's Godsent!" Vincent grabbed his hair again. He was happy, but he also felt... miserable!!

Elisa was younger than him, but she was competent in various areas! Even his respected lawyer had been defeated by her. He couldn't accept this!

Chapter 1084

The corners of Elisa's mouth twitched, but she didn't say anything. She walked to her chair and sat down before taking out her cell phone to continue scrolling Twitter.

Time passed slowly.

Jeremy didn't continue talking about it because Elisa had returned.

Vincent couldn't control himself and occasionally called Elisa a freak before keeping quiet.

Soon, it came to the time Elisa had said. Everyone was busy examining him.

They realized that the numbers were more ideal than the previous results, and Elisa could finally breathe a sigh of relief. She looked at Jeremy. "So... I'll leave Grandma in your hands tomorrow?"

Vincent naturally understood what she meant, and he nodded at once. "No problem."

"I'm leaving." Elisa didn't waste time on formalities. She was also slightly tired now. She held Gareth's car keys and didn't plan on returning them.

But it was late. Gareth said, "Give me the keys."

Elisa looked at him, perplexed. She gave him the keys and said nothing when she thought he might want to drive. She didn't mind getting an Uber.

As Elisa thought about it, she took out her cell phone and opened the app, wanting to hail a ride.

When Gareth saw it, he said in a low voice, "I didn't tell you to get a ride."

Elisa looked at him, confused. She didn't say anything.

Gareth disregarded her and said indifferently, "I'll send you."

Elisa's brows furrowed slightly. "No. You don't need to get too tired in your current situation."

After all, he was in poor health.

She didn't know about his condition previously, so she hadn't made concessions for him. But now, she was slightly apprehensive.

Gareth didn't say anything and walked out beside her.

Jeremy and Vincent naturally knew what was happening and didn't intend to interrupt.

In fact, they quickly walked ahead. They knew it was the wrong time to become a third wheel.

Vincent didn't tease Gareth. After all, Vincent knew his limits. He couldn't do such a thing to ruin Gareth's life now.

Mainly because!

Once Gareth recovered, he could be with Elisa freely!

Even if he had said that Elisa was suitable and they could get married, Gareth had never admitted that he liked Elisa. It was just a trick at the time to stop Will from getting close to Elisa.

No Chance of Remarriage: Get Lost

Chapter 1085

Gareth didn't say a word as though he intended to ignore her.

Elisa frowned. It seemed like she understood. Perhaps he wants to send me home because he feels it's dangerous at night. What would happen to Grandma if I got into trouble?

Elisa's lips twitched, and she tactfully stopped asking.

On the way, the two didn't say anything. The car only stopped when they arrived at Elisa's house.

Elisa kept quiet. She turned to glance at the man before opening the door of the passenger's seat.

"Let me drive in." Before she could shut the door, the man's voice rang in her ears.

Elisa's hand froze before she could shut the car door. She looked at the man and didn't understand what he was saying for a moment.

Gareth had been facing forward, but because Elisa didn't move, he turned slowly and stared at her with a cold gaze. He repeated, "Let me drive in."

Elisa furrowed her brows. "Are you staying?"

"Didn't you want me not to get too tired?"

Elisa was dumbfounded.

Her brows tightened visibly. It was as though displeasure was intertwined deep in her eyes.

She hadn't wanted Gareth to send her home so he wouldn't tire. But now, this became an excuse for him to stay?

"It's fine. It's not convenient here, so it doesn't matter if you're tired for a while more."

Gareth's expression was calm. "I'm exhausted. This will affect my recovery and the results of the data from the experiment."

Elisa suddenly scoffed. "You're as strong as an ox. That won't happen."

After that, Elisa shut the car door and didn't give Gareth a chance to speak.

Gareth's expression darkened abruptly. He watched as the woman walked ahead without hesitation and ignored him. The veins on his forehead protruded.

Only this woman.

Only this woman!

He shut his eyes and raised his hands to rub the bridge of his nose. After a moment, he turned off the engine and opened the car door before leaving.

The car didn't have to be parked within the courtyard. Gareth didn't care if it went missing.

Elisa heard the noise and immediately turned around. Her brows instantly tightened when she saw the man walk over two steps at a time.

"I said it's not convenient here." She didn't want him to stay at all.

But Gareth ignored her and followed her. Just as Elisa was about to say something else, he suddenly grabbed one of her hands and placed her fingerprint on the door lock.

'Ding'

The door was unlocked.

No Chance of Remarriage: Get Lost

Chapter 1086

Elisa's brows instantly furrowed tightly. She had been busy experimenting and hadn't eaten anything. She was feeling slightly hungry now.

She hesitated for a moment before walking back to the kitchen.

She saw Gareth sitting on the couch in the living room, not in a rush to go to his room. She thought about it and took something out of the refrigerator.

She closed the refrigerator and started to reheat the pizza. Not long after, it was done.

Elisa took the reheated pizza out and put it on the table.

Gareth naturally went to wash his hands and walked over when he smelled the aroma.

When he saw Elisa pass him a plate, Gareth said nothing as he took it from her.

The two sat across from each other and had no intentions of speaking.

Elisa tucked a strand of hair that had fallen to the side of her face behind her ears. She took a slice of pizza and blew on it before eating.

Gareth wasn't in a hurry to eat. Instead, he looked at her.

Such a peaceful scene between them was rare.

As for Elisa... Every time they were close, it was as though he could feel her spines bristle. If he approached, they would prick him without hesitation.

Gareth pursed his lips and looked down at the pizza on his plate.

He didn't like pizza.

In the past, Elisa would always consider his tastebuds when she cooked.

But today, he didn't know if she had forgotten or if she did it out of convenience. She had utterly ignored his food preference.

Elisa saw that he wasn't eating, so she asked casually, "Aren't you hungry?"

Gareth didn't answer her. He picked up the slice of pizza.

But he had just taken a bite when astonishment flickered across his eyes.

Does reheated pizza taste like this?

Why did pizza taste awful previously? Why does this taste good?

Is this an illusion?

With such thoughts, he took a few more bites and loved it. He completely changed his mind about pizza.

He thought he didn't like pizza.

But... he loved eating the pizza that Elisa reheated for him.

He never imagined it was because he was hungry. In the past, he would rather eat nothing if faced with something he didn't like, even if he was famished. He wouldn't accept it.

But now.

No Chance of Remarriage: Get Lost

Chapter 1087

After the whole day, she was exhausted. She showered, blow-dried her hair, and lay in her bedroom.

But...

An indescribable yet complicated feeling was in her heart when she thought about Gareth being sick. Her eyes had been shut, but she suddenly opened them slowly.

How... is he like when he's tormented by his illness?

How has he endured it alone?

Grandma was so optimistic every day. Elisa guessed that when Jeremy had examined Gareth and discovered it, Gareth had chosen to hide it so no one would know. Otherwise, Grandma wouldn't have been able to take it.

Elisa even doubted if Gareth's parents knew about it.

Her brows furrowed tightly, and she pondered momentarily before finally abandoning her distracting thoughts and shutting her eyes.

The next day, Elisa woke up early because today was the day of Grandma's treatment.

Although she couldn't do anything, she was worried and wanted to take a look.

She was halfway down the stairs when she saw Gareth dressed and ready to leave.

When he heard a noise, he turned and looked at the person slowly walking down the stairs. Gareth said calmly, "You don't have to go today."

"I'd better go. Otherwise, I'll be worried." Elisa's voice was serene. She spoke as she walked down the stairs. "It's not because I don't trust Jeremy. I want to see how Grandma is because I'm afraid she'll worry or overthink. I'm afraid she'll be suspicious because she's too smart."

Gareth pursed his lips and didn't say anything. He naturally agreed with Elisa.

Soon, the two left together. They didn't eat breakfast mainly because they had eaten late last night, and there was something to do today. They didn't think about breakfast.

This time, Elisa didn't let Gareth drive. He hadn't rested well last night and had eaten so much, so Elisa decided to drive.

Even though Gareth had stomach cancer, Elisa didn't force him to eat breakfast.

On the way, the two didn't say anything. They arrived at Wickam Manor shortly.

They had just gotten out of the car when another vehicle stopped slowly. Elisa turned and looked over. She saw Jeremy get out of the car with a significant medical kit.

No Chance of Remarriage: Get Lost

Chapter 1088

Jeremy was dumbstruck.

He turned to look at the man beside him and touched the tip of his nose. Although Gareth didn't admit it, his body language was honest. Gareth must have stayed at her house and refused to leave.

If Vincent had been here, he would have walked to Gareth and given Gareth a thumbs-up behind his back.

Julia was also astounded. "Ah? The two of you...?"

Julia suddenly didn't dare finish her sentence, but her eyes were filled with endless astonishment and expectation. She stared at Elisa and waited for Elisa to finish her sentence.

Have the two of them reconciled?!

Julia couldn't entirely control the smile in the corner of her mouth. She was just waiting for Elisa to speak.

Elisa's gaze flickered slightly, and she smiled. "Grandma..."

She said nothing else as if she didn't know how to say it. This made Julia more astonished. "Have the two of you reconciled?!"

Julia knew Jeremy was Gareth's good friend, so Julia didn't care and asked directly.

Elisa's eyes flashed a little, but before she could say anything, Gareth said, "You're getting an injection today, Grandma."

"Huh?" Julia had been waiting for Elisa to reply, but Gareth suddenly changed the topic. It gave Julia a shock.

She turned to look at Gareth and said slightly disbelievingly, "I'm doing excellent. Why do I need an injection?"

"If you're excellent, why would I give you an injection?" Gareth said earnestly as if talking about something completely ordinary.

Everyone in the family knew.

Julia disliked and feared... injections!

She was afraid of injections. She would constantly lose her head when her blood had to be drawn during her weekly physical examinations, but she still cooperated. Although she was used to it... she resisted a sudden additional injection.

Elisa laughed lightly. "Are you afraid, Grandma?"

Julia immediately put on a straight face and pretended to say bravely, "How can I be afraid? It's merely an injection. I just don't want to ruin my skin. I'm so old, but I have better skin than those thirty years younger than me. Won't an injection ruin my perfection?"

A painful sensation suddenly streaked across Elisa's heart. Grandma is such a good person. Why is she inflicted with this illness?

But Elisa could only pretend to laugh and say, "That's right. Since you're not afraid, Grandma, you should cooperate and get the injection."

No Chance of Remarriage: Get Lost

Chapter 1089

Jeremy felt amused and embarrassed.

Elisa couldn't help but chuckle. "Grandma, why do you think so? Jeremy is quite steady."

Her last few words immediately made Gareth suddenly turn around and look at Elisa.

Elisa was suddenly baffled by Gareth's expression. Why did his gaze suddenly turn sharp out of the blue? And why is he staring at me? Did I say something wrong?

Julia immediately furrowed her brows in displeasure. "This fellow! And that Vincent fellow! They have deceived me multiple times and coaxed me to get injections! They say it won't hurt, but it's agonizing!"

Jeremy touched the tip of his nose and said nothing.

Gareth said calmly, "You still have to get the injection."

Jeremy nodded in agreement. "That's right. I've always been gentle, Grandma. I'll be delicate this time."

Elisa couldn't help but laugh as she said, "Get the injection, Grandma. It's for your health. If you lack nutrition, your health will start to deteriorate."

Gareth kept quiet. Elisa had a better plan this time.

Julia sighed in exasperation. "Ah, I'll do it. Of course, I know I must comply and get the injection. You're doing it for my own good and want me to live longer. How can I not do as you wish?"

After that, Julia took a deep breath. "It's just an injection! I've been getting injections all these years and toughened myself up. I was just a little resistant just now. Bring it on!"

As Julia spoke, she pulled her sleeves up, and Elisa immediately helped her. Soon, Julia's upper elbow was revealed.

"Come on!" Julia said before she turned away. She didn't dare to look at her arm.

Elisa held Julia's arm and smiled, "You're amazing, Grandma!"

In reality, she was feeling slightly complicated.

Because...

Even if many had tested the medicine, Elisa and the rest couldn't see the results. They only saw the situation at the time. The following day when Elisa and the others looked for those who had tested the medicine, they couldn't see how people around the medicine testers reacted. They could only guess that it was okay...

Actually, there were still risks.

But... they couldn't wait.

They didn't know how much it would worsen a month later. Lung cancer progressed quite fast.

No Chance of Remarriage: Get Lost

Chapter 1090

Jeremy packed up his medical tools before he walked to sit beside Gareth. It was evident he didn't intend to leave.

The three of them weren't working but with Julia so early in the morning. She looked at them, puzzled. "Don't... you need to work? Why are all of you here?"

It was mainly because the time wasn't quite right.

Elisa couldn't help but laugh gently. "Grandma, have you forgotten that it's the weekend?"

"Ah? Weekend?" Julia was slightly startled. She raised her hand to look at her cell phone. "Oh, that's right. The weekend. Look at me."

She was happy after that. "So, you're all here to keep me company?"

Elisa smiled. "Yes. Would you like that, Grandma?"

"Of course!" Julia was instantly delighted. She almost slapped her hand on her leg before she held Elisa's hand tightly. She looked at the other two with suspicion.

"Are you two... very free as well?"

These two brats. They usually have no interest in staying.

Gareth said calmly, "I don't have much to do. But it's mainly because I lost a bet."

"What bet was it?" Old Madam Wickam was skeptical.

Jeremy sat on the couch quietly with a smile, but he looked at Gareth out of the corner of his eye as if wanting to hear what excuse Gareth came up with.

Elisa was also silently looking at the man sitting across from her.

Edgar's lips twitched, and he looked at Julia while saying disinterestedly, "A normal bet. I lost, so I'm here to keep you company for a day."

Elisa and Jeremy were dumbfounded.

Julia's face suddenly darkened. "What does that brat Vincent mean by that? And you, what do you mean by that? Huh? You rascal, has it become torture to come and visit me?!"

She deliberately kept a straight face when she said the last few words.

It was reasonable for young people to work on their careers, so they naturally felt bored and uninterested in staying with Old Madam Wickam.

But she was childlike and said what was on her mind.

Elisa couldn't help but laugh. She said nothing.

Gareth raised his brows. "How would I dare to do that?"

"I don't think you would!"

Julia didn't say anything else, but she couldn't help but snort.
