

No Chance 1591

Chapter 1591 You're Going To Ask For Forgiveness?

Thomas' heart began to race as he saw Elisa's name on his caller ID.

He was contemplating coming clean with her.

Julia noticed that Thomas was frozen on the spot, his phone in his hand. "Thomas, what's wrong? Why aren't you answering?" she asked.

Thomas took a deep breath and said, "Mrs. Wickam, it's Elisa on the phone."

Thomas had been upfront with Julia about his plans since he met her at Wickam Manor.

When she realized that Elisa was the one calling, her eyes narrowed into slits, and she glared at him.

"Why are you telling me this? You two are both morons! Do you think Elisa wouldn't figure out what you're up to?"

Julia placed her hands on her chest, feeling an uneasy weight pressing down on her.

She had thought of a perfect plan to reunite them.

And this was the plan that they went with.

One just sits back and does nothing, while the other comes up with terrible ideas.

Thomas hung his head in shame, feeling guilty for his foolish plan.

At the same time, he became worried about what Julia had warned him about.

If Elisa had already figured out his plans, wouldn't he be making a fool of himself by acting like this?

'Bang! Bang!'

Julia banged her walking stick on the floor twice.

Thomas' eyes widened in surprise as he heard the noise.

Julia glared at him with a scowl. "Why haven't you answered the phone yet? Do you need her to call you again?"

Thomas shook his head. "No. Of course not."

He immediately accepted the call.

Elisa was about to give up when she heard Thomas' voice on the other end of the line.

"Ms. Bennett."

She was momentarily startled by her name being mentioned on the other end of the line, but she quickly recovered her composure.

She knitted her brows and asked, "I just finished my work. How are things going there? Should I come over, or will you pick me up?"

He had to go through with the lie he had made up, no matter what.

Thomas took a deep breath and said, "I told Mr. Wickam about the Ganoderma Caligo. He had to pay the price for not listening to you. Ms. Bennett, you should come to the hospital to help."

Thomas sighed deeply as he finished talking.

What a liar.

She didn't call him out on his lie. "Okay," she responded quickly. "Where are you right now? The hospital?"

She figured Thomas was most likely at Gareth's house.

Oh? "Ms. Elisa, I'm at the Manor Residence," he answered.

"Okay," she muttered, her lips stretching into a wide grin.

Thomas hung up the phone and relayed to Gareth what had happened.

He decided to be honest. "Mr. Wickam," he announced. "I'm going to come clean with Ms. Benett when she gets here and ask for her forgiveness."

"You're going to ask for forgiveness? Don't make things worse. Why stop there?" Julia sneered.

Thomas didn't understand what Julia was getting at. "I don't understand," he said.

If Elisa was going to be here in person, we wouldn't be able to keep the truth from her any longer.

Wouldn't it be worse if she found out the truth on her own?

Julia's eyes grew cold with indignation. "Why are you so dense? If you tell her that you were lying all the while, wouldn't you be implicating Gareth? She'll think that Gareth made you do it."

Her eyes burned with fury as she glared at Gareth.

Thomas was afraid to speak up, seeing how her temper sparked with flames.

Meanwhile, Will had Elisa at the Manor Residence within forty minutes.

No one was at the gate, but Gareth saw everything from the house's terrace.

Chapter 1592 Confident to Get Gareth and Elisa Back Together

Gareth was surprised to see Will escort Elisa to the house.

He couldn't make out what they were saying from where he was standing.

However, Gareth couldn't help but notice that Elisa's eyes were fixed on Will, and her lips curled into a warm, enticing smile.

Their arms were wrapped around each other's as if they were a loving couple.

"Would you like to join me?" Elisa asked gently as she gazed into his eyes.

Will replied with a smirk, "I'm already here. Why don't we continue?"

Elisa didn't utter a sound, as Will didn't seem to mind the idea.

They continued to stroll into the Manor Residence together, their arms linked the whole while.

Gareth's right fist clenched so tightly that his knuckles turned white.

Thomas was so stunned that he couldn't believe his eyes.

Witnessing their intimate exchange, Julia's quickly stood up from the sofa, her teeth grinding against each other as she regarded them critically.

She stared at the scene in front of her, unable to believe her eyes. Her breath caught in her throat, and her chest felt like it was being weighed down by a heavy stone.

The throbbing pain in her chest was a reminder that what she was seeing was real, not just a figment of her imagination.

Gareth made his way down the spiral wooden staircase, his eyes fixed on Elisa and Will.

His gaze landed on Elisa and Will, who were still standing at the entrance of the house.

Although he didn't say a word, his expression spoke volumes.

He cared for Elisa from the bottom of his word. Studying the both of them, he felt a wave of jealousy wash over him.

Will noticed they had an intruder looking in on them, and he pulled Elisa closer to him.

Elisa didn't expect him to do that, and she was momentarily flustered.

However, she knew she had to play along, so she kept a straight face and laid her head on Will's shoulders.

Elisa looked like a lovestruck teenager, completely head over heels for Will.

Will was determined to make the most of this opportunity to be close to Elisa.

He did it intentionally to make Gareth jealous, and it was working.

"Elisa, you and Will..."

Julia's eyebrows were slanted in disapproval, and the corners of her mouth were turned down in a tight frown.

Elisa knew her grandmother would be concerned, so she didn't wait for Julia to finish her sentence. She simply nodded her head and declared, "Grandma, we're dating."

Elisa knew that there was no turning back now.

However, if this could get Gareth and Julia off her back, she was willing to do whatever it took.

Elisa's goal was never to be tied down by love again.

Julia's forehead wrinkled in surprise, and her eyes widened in alarm. "When did this happen? You've never said anything about this before. How did this happen?"

Elisa was caught off guard by the barrage of questions.

Elisa knew that Julia was not the type to dwell on details, so she just needed to keep her cool and answer her questions in a way that would satisfy her.

"I've known Will for a long time, and we've stayed in touch all this time. We decided to be together today. Grandma, we can't keep living in the past. I shouldn't be held back from love and marriage just because of my past divorce from Gareth."

Elisa smiled confidently as she responded to Julia's concerns.

Julia was stunned by Elisa's revelation. She continued to stare at them in a catatonic stupor.

Elisa had been very clear with her answers, and there was nothing left to be said.

But Julia had been planning carefully to get Gareth and Elisa back together. She was confident that her plan would work.

Chapter 1593 A Heavy Weight on Her Chest

But now...

Julia was still skeptical. "Elisa, weren't you supposed to attend Gareth's cousin's wedding with him? Did you start dating him just so you wouldn't have to go?"

Elisa pressed her lips together tightly. She had no intention of attending the wedding.

Elisa was done with Gareth. She didn't want Grandma or Thomas to try to get them back together. She also didn't wish for Gareth to be hung up on her.

Will spoke up before she could get a word in.

Will's voice was deep and commanding. "Elisa and I are officially together. She is no longer involved with Gareth and is free to do whatever she wants. Our relationship is real—it's not just for show, as you seem to."

Will wrapped his arm around Elisa's shoulders, pulling her close as he spoke to Julia.

Elisa felt Will's grip tighten around her shoulders. She was grateful for his help.

But Will was sincere when he uttered those words to Julia.

Julia turned a deaf ear to Will's explanation.

Her eyes turned cold and hard.

"Elisa, tell me the truth. Is this real? If it is, why didn't you tell me sooner? You must think I'm a nuisance."

Her voice was tinged with sadness.

She still couldn't believe what she was hearing.

Elisa shifted about, an uncomfortable feeling erupting deep within her stomach as she heard Julia's outpour.

Even though she felt bad lying to her, she couldn't let this continue. Julia was constantly coming up with new plans to get her back with Gareth, and stopping her was becoming increasingly difficult.

Elisa shook her head incessantly, her eyes pleading with Julia to believe her. "Grandma, I never thought of you as a nuisance. We only got together this late because I went to Moranta with Gareth. We hadn't had the chance to develop deeper feelings then, but I was really moved when he continued to wait for me."

Elisa's eyes were glued to Will as she explained.

There are times when facial expressions and body language can speak volumes.

She had the right to choose who she wanted to be with.

Now that she was divorced, Elisa could choose Will or even Eden. But the problem was...

"Alright," a deep voice chimed in suddenly. "I guess I'll have to congratulate you."

Gareth was the one who spoke up.

His voice was dark and cold, each word spoken with icy precision.

A set of jet-black eyes stared into hers, devoid of any hint of feeling.

Despite her wish for Gareth to stop intervening in her affairs, his stony indifference to their lie caused Elisa's stomach to sink.

Her heartstrings tugged painfully as she felt a pang of sorrow punch through her chest.

But Gareth spoke up immediately afterward.

"My grandmother's health hasn't been well lately. I'm sure you know a lot about her now that you're her boyfriend. My grandmother is very particular about her doctors, so she has to stay at Manor Residence for a while."

"Doctor," he repeated, the word lingering in the air before fading away.

If it were in the past, Will wouldn't have understood what Gareth meant. But with the implication of Gareth's words, Will realized that Elisa was Mystic Orchid.

Chapter 1594 Professional Doctor? What Are You Talking About?

Elisa was rendered silent.

Fortunately, it was all just an act with Will.

Otherwise, it would have been a major blow to her partner.

"I don't mind her staying here for a short while. After all, she has a close relationship with Grandma Wickam, and she's a professional doctor. I'm glad that she can help Grandma Wickam recover while she's here. Elisa, what do you think?"

"Professional doctor? What are you talking about?" Julia's eyes widened in shock as she tried to make sense of what they were saying.

Her mind was racing as she tried to understand what was happening

Finally, Elisa realized Julia didn't know her secret identity as "Mystic Orchid."

Also, she had never told Julia about her secret identity before because she was too overwhelmed with everything else that was going on.

However, it wouldn't make any difference.

Gareth didn't give her a chance to explain before he said, "Grandma, Elisa is a skilled doctor. Didn't you know that?"

Julia stared at him in disbelief.

She was at a loss of words.

She had been so consumed with the thought of getting them back together that she had forgotten everything else.

Elisa was a skilled doctor! How had she not known about this?

Now, there was a more compelling reason for Elisa to stay.

"Ah! I always thought that Elisa had only picked up a few techniques from the physiotherapist to help me. The only doctor I need has been in front of me all this time. Elisa, Grandma would like for you to stay longer," Julia muttered softly, feeling guilty about not knowing about it sooner.

Julia reached out her hands to hold Elisa's, her eyes brimming with hope.

She was finally aware of the crucial information.

Elisa is a medical professional!

She must have a wealth of knowledge and experience.

If they were to get back together, it wouldn't be long before they had children. Elisa's medical expertise would be a great asset to their family.

Also, the stubborn mule!

With Elisa around, his health would improve significantly.

Gareth wouldn't have to suffer from his declining health any longer.

Elisa could tell what Julia was thinking with the way her eyes lit up immediately upon the revelation.

She called Will over to help her convince Grandma to give up on the idea of her and Gareth getting back together, but it only made things worse.

Elisa's head was pounding as she thought about the situation she was now placed in.

However, she continued to use Will as a buffer to protect herself from Grandma's unrealistic expectations.

"Grandma, I would be happy to stay and be your personal doctor if I didn't have a boyfriend. Will doesn't mind, but you know my relationship with Gareth isn't... Grandma, I think it's best if I keep my distance from him, or we'll get caught up in unwanted rumors and scandals that could damage our relationships."

Elisa smiled warmly at Julia, but her eyes were filled with determination.

Julia caught on to the fact that Elisa was determined to move on.

But she wasn't ready to give up yet. "Gareth will deal with it if it comes to that. Elisa, I really hope you can stay."

Julia's grip on Elisa's hand tightened as if she was afraid of losing her.

Elisa didn't say a word, but her gaze was fixated on Will.

The air was thick with tension, but Elisa's eyes gave away her true feelings.

Gareth caught sight of the look in Elisa's eyes and felt his heart sink.

He couldn't believe that the woman who had been so resistant to love was now smitten with Will. They were inseparable, and they seemed to be entirely in sync.

Chapter 1595 Felt Pressured by the Situation

He had never felt this connection to Elisa in the three years they had been married.

Will also noticed that Elisa gave him a silent cue to support her in persuading Grandma.

He was going to give it his all the moment he decided to join Elisa in her plan.

"Elisa, if Grandma Wickam wants you here, I'll be happy to send you. But you've been so busy with work lately. Do you think you can handle everything without straining yourself?"

Will deliberately stressed his words.

Before Elisa could respond, Julia blurted, "It would be hard on your body to keep going back and forth. Elisa, why don't you stay here? I'm sure Grandma's health would improve with you around. Please stay, Elisa. I have something important to tell you."

At her final words, Julia leaned in close to Elisa and spoke in a hushed tone.

Seeing that Julia wouldn't give up, Elisa insisted, "Grandma, I'll still have to go back and forth between my office and the Manor Residence. I can't give up my work."

Julia didn't see it as an issue. "You can work remotely. Why don't you have Thomas help you? He might be a bit of a dimwit and slow at times, but he's very skilled and dependable at his job."

Thomas chuckled softly at Julia's remark.

Thomas could hardly believe that Julia had acknowledged him in such a way.

Julia gave Thomas a gentle shove forward. Seeing this, Elisa pressed her lips together and tried to come up with a way to get out of the situation. As Elisa hesitated to answer Julia, Will spoke up softly, "Elisa, I think you should follow Grandma's wishes. I'll be here to drive you around and help you out. After all, my parents are interested in meeting you."

Will had been very gentle and considerate of Elisa the whole time. He wanted Gareth and Julia to give up hope of getting Elisa back with Gareth. However, Gareth did not say a word the entire time.

And Julia was unrelenting in her attempts to convince Elisa.

He only offered to take her here to get them off her back.

"Okay, Grandma. I won't be here for a few days. Please take your medication on time, and ask Thomas to help you if you need anything."

When she realized Elisa was determined to leave, she stopped trying to persuade her. Instead, she pulled Elisa aside and told her in hushed tones, "Elisa, come here. I need to tell you something important."

Elisa had no choice but to follow her.

She took Elisa outside. Elisa remained silent, waiting for Julia to speak first.

Julia took a moment to gather her thoughts.

After a few moments, she took a deep breath and said, "Elisa, are you really with Will now? Are you not going to consider getting back together with Gareth anymore?"

Julia continued to hold Elisa's hand as she spoke.

Elisa nodded, a solemn expression on her face as she responded, "Grandma, I still have to move on with my life. I know you want me to reconcile with Gareth, but it's not possible anymore. Grandma, I hope this is the last time you bring him up."

Julia saw how determined and firm Elisa was. As a woman, she could relate to Elisa's feelings.

But isn't it the best outcome for first loves to be reunited?

Moreover, she could tell that Gareth had finally confronted his true feelings for Elisa and wanted to revive their past romance. Wouldn't it be his biggest sorrow if he had to see her with Will?

Julia felt pressured knowing that her grandson would forever be dismayed if he never got the chance to reconcile with her.

Chapter 1596 Don't You Believe Me

Julia heaved a sigh. "What about your promise then? I've told them that you and Gareth will be there. If you don't show up... Sigh! Forget about it. I'm prepared to lose face. It's all Gareth's and my fault. If I insisted on stopping you at that time, you guys... Oh, I should stop talking about it. Elisa, we have let you down. I know I shouldn't force you to stay."

Julia's voice cracked as she spoke.

Elisa felt sorry to hear an elder speak in such a manner. However, despite feeling disturbed, she wasn't a saint and couldn't keep selflessly sacrificing for others without considering her own feelings.

She changed the topic. "Grandma, what's the urgent matter you want to tell me?"

In fact, Elisa knew Julia used it as an excuse to hold her back, while the real intention was to set Gareth and her up. Nonetheless, she didn't expose Julia.

Since Elisa asked the question, Julia was forced to make up an answer to avoid awkwardness. So, she continued hesitantly, "Elisa, I know you're occupied at work. Actually... I've been looking into the stock market recently, and the market conditions look pleasant. Can you get someone to help me?"

"Huh?" Elisa thought there was no urgent matter but didn't expect such a request from Julia. Confused, she asked, "Grandma, are you sure you want me to do it? Shouldn't Gareth be more experienced than me?"

Elisa had only taken over the business after she and Gareth divorced, and she wasn't as experienced as Gareth.

Julia nodded. "Yes, I'm sure. Because I don't intend to let Gareth know about this matter. This person can help me prove one thing. You're the only one I can trust now, Elisa. Are you willing to help me?"

Seeing Julia's sincere expression, Elisa couldn't bring herself to turn her down.

However, Julia hadn't gotten to the main point—how did she want Elisa to help her?

Elisa pressed her lips and directly asked, "Grandma, can you make it clearer? You mentioned the favorable stock market, the person, and that the person can prove something. What exactly is the thing?"

Elisa was perplexed at Julia's ambiguous statements.

The truth was Julia hadn't made proper plans and couldn't directly tell Elisa at that moment.

After hesitating briefly, Julia uttered slowly, "That person... Sigh! That person holds crucial evidence that is unfavorable to my maternal family. I can't watch them be impacted. Elisa, this relative of mine, previously had a dispute with Gareth, so I can't go to Gareth because he won't care about it. You're the only person I can turn to. Besides, his days are numbered, and he heard you're a skillful medical practitioner. So, I thought of asking you." Julia attempted to persuade Elisa for that reason.

Elisa didn't answer. Julia became nervous when she observed Elisa's expression. "Elisa, don't you believe me?"

Elisa denied it. "It's not that, Grandma. To be honest, I've been very occupied at work recently. You can ask Gareth to handle it. He's more professional than me in business matters. I can come over if you need treatment. But..."

Chapter 1597 I Dare You to Imagine the Consequences

Elisa paused briefly before saying with a complicated expression, "Grandma, the medicine can indeed restore your health, but some things might just be your own psychological pressure. Don't think too badly of others; I'm not that great either."

If Elisa's team heard this statement, they would be shocked. She was Mystic Orchid, the internationally renowned divine doctor, yet she claimed she wasn't as good as believed. She must be truly humble to make such a statement.

However, Julia was determined. "No. I knew you were reliable and capable when you treated me. Compared to Gareth, I trust you more. You said you're not good enough, but you're the best to me. Elisa, I know some things cannot be undone. I just hope that you'll still visit me often. Will you?" Julia croaked with a soft, hoarse voice.

Elisa's concern toward Julia was indubitable. She answered firmly, "Of course I will. Grandma, since you insist, please send me the information about that person. I'll find him."

Julia trusted her, so she chose to trust Julia too.

Julia nodded and hummed, "Okay."

Although she lied to Elisa, at least she managed to hold onto her. She would do all she could to bring Elisa and Gareth back together!

"Now that you have a boyfriend, I should give you some gifts. This bracelet..." Julia wanted to remove the jade bracelet she had been wearing but was stopped by Elisa. "Grandma, I've seen you wear this bracelet since Gareth and I married. You must have been wearing it for many years, so you might not be able to remove it easily. Moreover, you must have a deep connection with it after wearing it for so many years. I can't take your bracelet, so please keep it."

Julia was persistent. "You've helped me in many ways, Elisa. I feel bad if I don't repay you. Since you chose to be with Will, you should treat each other well. If you guys happen to get married, I hope you live a good life together."

However, that was not Julia's genuine wish. Regardless of whether the relationship between Elisa and Will was real, she was reluctant to see them together. She even wished for their relationship to come to an end soon!

Elisa's eyes were filled with complex emotions as she nodded. "Don't worry, Grandma. I'm not a child anymore, and it's not my first time being in a relationship. I'll cherish my relationship and, in the future, my marriage too."

Elisa was moved, thinking Julia still chose to bless her after discovering her relationship with Will, although she had always wanted to bring her and Gareth together. That was the reason she had been helping Julia all this while.

Julia felt distressed when she saw Elisa's watery eyes. She quickly averted her gaze and said, "Now that you have a boyfriend, you shouldn't stay here too long. Go back with him first. I'll call you if I need anything." Julia was afraid to face Elisa any longer because she was guilt-stricken.

Elisa nodded and listened to Julia. She knew it was inappropriate to stay any longer in the Wickam Residence.

Meanwhile...

Gareth warned Will sternly with a darkened face, "Since she accepted you, you better treat her well. If you dare to mistreat her... I dare you to imagine the consequences, Will Darcey!"

Chapter 1598 His Belonging

Gareth's eyes were cold and sharp like knives.

Will laughed. "Gareth Wickam, who are you to say these to me? You should be aware that you're her ex-husband and are not related to her anymore. Her life has nothing to do with..."

Before Will could finish his sentence, Gareth stepped forward and grabbed his collar. The next second, Will pushed him away.

Gareth snorted, "You better not let her down!" His eyes became more ferocious and hostile than before.

Seeing Gareth's stance, Will smirked as he thought nothing of Gareth. "Are you starting to be concerned about her? But alas, it's too late!"

A bloodthirsty smile crept over Gareth's lips. He tightened his grip on Will's collar as if he wanted to strangle him.

Will could clearly sense the brutality in Gareth's eyes. After all, Gareth still cares about Elisa.

A man could read other men well. At once, Will grasped Gareth's hand forcefully, but Gareth didn't let go. Instead, he resisted Will and growled, "In any case, it's not your place to say these words to me!"

Although Will had difficulty breathing, he retorted to Gareth frostily. "You're no one to say I'm not in the place to say that. You're already out of this game. Remember, from now on, you have nothing to do with Elisa."

Although this conversation wasn't within the scope of the agreement with Elisa, Will just couldn't stand Gareth's attitude. He couldn't stand Gareth's ungratefulness and how he treated Elisa hostilely in the three-year marriage.

He only began to regret it after losing Elisa; now, he was talking as if she was his belonging. Who is he to think that as long as he turns back to Elisa, she will change her mind and happily run to him?

Will's words hit the bull's eye and caused Gareth's visage to grow somber.

He clenched his fist and was about to punch Will in the face. However, Will did not dodge as he stood still and stared fixedly at Gareth with a cold and provoking expression.

If Gareth attacked him, he would not knuckle under.

Suddenly, Elisa's voice came forth. "Stop it!"

Gareth's fist, a few centimeters away from Will's face, paused mid-air when he heard Elisa's rebuke.

Elisa strode up to the two men to separate them. However, Gareth seized Will so tightly that she almost couldn't pull them apart. She only managed to do so by poking their wrists with a silver needle.

Elisa pushed Gareth to the side without sparing a glance at him and turned to Will concernedly. "Are you okay?"

She even carefully observed Will and was relieved after ensuring he was not injured.

Will was satisfied to perceive Elisa's concern, despite knowing she was merely putting up a show to deceive Gareth.

"I'm fine." Will took the opportunity to caress Elisa's head lovingly before casting a side glance at Gareth.

Chapter 1599 She Chose That Man

Gareth stood frozen. Elisa had never been this concerned toward him...

He felt he was utterly defeated.

Meanwhile, Elisa almost subconsciously felt an urge to resist Will when he caressed her head. However, she controlled herself, remembering that Gareth was present and knowing that Will was cooperating with her.

Nonetheless, the subtle coldness in her expression couldn't be concealed. "You're not a kid anymore, so please don't recklessly get into a fight."

Will nodded like a child and hummed, "Okay. I won't do this anymore."

The two completely ignored Gareth, who felt his heart wrenched when he witnessed Elisa 'lecturing' Will from behind. At that moment, he was no one but an outsider.

Elisa will no longer be related to him or cross paths with him.

With her back facing Gareth, Elisa had no idea of Gareth's complicated emotions, but Will noticed it.

A wide grin spread across his face as if he had gained victory, and his eyes were filled with provocation. He placed his hand on Elisa's shoulder and asked, "Are you done talking to Old Madam Wickam? If so, we shall go home."

Elisa nodded and answered, "Yeah. Let's go."

"Sure." Will's snobbish grin became more apparent. As he turned to leave, he cast a victorious glance at Gareth. Indeed, to Gareth, Will appeared to be the true winner because he gained Elisa's care and love.

At that thought, Gareth wore a rueful smile.

Just then, Julia's voice emerged from behind. "Can you accept Elisa being brought away just like that?"

Of course, Gareth couldn't accept it, but he had no choice. He was a loser.

Julia walked over and rolled her eyes at Gareth. "If you can't accept it, think of a way to win her back!"

She was exasperated. Back then, she repeatedly exhorted Gareth not to get a divorce, but he didn't listen to her. Now that they had divorced, he regretted it. Not only that, Elisa now chose Will over Gareth.

Only then did Gareth realize he had shot himself in the foot!

He pressed his lips and remained silent. He knew Elisa well, and she wouldn't change her mind easily once she made a choice.

Even if he acted immediately or clung to Elisa shamelessly, Elisa wouldn't waver. Even worse, it might arouse her aversion toward him.

Just like Elisa said...

Suddenly, Julia hit Gareth with her stick and jolted him out of his daze. "What are you thinking? Elisa can only marry into our family. So what if she chose Will? I don't believe she has truly fallen for him in such a short time."

Actually, Julia wasn't that sure previously, but when she saw the interaction between Elisa and Will, she was certain that they were putting on an act.

She knew Elisa well. Elisa wouldn't display intimacy in front of others.

Chapter 1600 A Severe Blow!

Meanwhile, Elisa and Will walked out and behaved like a loving couple. However, Elisa's expression immediately turned stern once they entered the car.

Will knew she was repulsed by his gestures and apologized to her. "Liz, I shouldn't have done that without asking for your permission. I'm sorry."

He did not instruct the driver to start the car but sought Elisa's forgiveness.

Although Elisa was against what he did just now, she understood why he did it.

Even though he did her a favor, she could not be happy.

"I know you wanted to help me, but Will, I hope you don't mix your feelings into this," Elisa said coldly.

Will's gesture from just now was affectionate. Moreover, she could see the tenderness in his gaze. Elisa was not a kid. She quickly saw through his ruse.

Moreover, she was astute.

Thus, she could see that while Will appeared happy, he was dejected under his act.

It was because she rejected him.

Will was confused. "Liz, you roped me into acting with you because you don't want to be with Gareth. However, I can see that you have feelings for him. Otherwise, why did you keep helping him and his family when they were in trouble? Liz, am I that terrible?"

Do I have feelings for Gareth?

No, I don't think so.

If I had feelings for Gareth, I wouldn't have kept rejecting him even though he expressed his desire for us to get married.

I don't feel anything for him.

As for Will...

Elisa shook her head. "You're not terrible, but we are only suitable to be friends. Start the car. I want to go home."

"Sure."

Will felt depressed upon hearing Elisa's answer. However, he could not say anything out of fear that he would anger her.

Therefore, he could only start the engine as Elisa requested.

The car began to move.

After traveling a short distance, a large truck suddenly appeared on the car's right and crashed into it.

They heard the driver cursing and the noise of the car braking suddenly...

Soon, loud booming noises of collision followed.

Elisa felt dizzy and found her world before her eyes. Her ears filled with ringing noises. She could not hear anything from her surroundings.
