

No Chance 189

Chapter 189 She's Nothing More Than a Clown

Linda curved her lips slightly before continuing, "As for your father who died so young, don't you think that you're the one who brought bad luck to the family, causing his death? He used to be so healthy; why would he suddenly fall ill with such a serious disease? Why did his artery get blocked suddenly? I don't remember him having heart issues back then. Don't you think that you are the reason for that?"

Elisa's chest gave a jolt as blood slithered away from her face.

It was not because she believed Linda's words; instead...

Back then, none of us knew that Uncle Norman and his family were such scheming creatures, and we trusted them. Thinking back now, it's true that Dad never had problems with his health, so why did he suddenly become so critically ill to the point that he passed before I even had the chance to see him one last time?

Nevertheless, Linda patted her shoulder with a smile. "Elisa, you are bound to have no one to rely on. Your family left you, and your husband dumped you. You are nothing but a loser. If I were you, I would definitely end my own life instead of struggling with life's hardships."

Her words sent stabs of pain in Elisa's heart.

Since I was still grieving back then, I was not in the mood to take charge of the company. Then, I signed the papers just after a few words from him. Thinking back now, this could have all been their
