

No Chance 261

Chapter 261 Was She Worthy?

As the two of them were in silence, the car stopped at Wickam Manor.

Gareth ignored Elisa and got out of the car.

Elisa wrinkled her brows. She opened the door of the passenger's seat. She didn't know that her lips were red and puffy at the time.

As for Gareth...

There were marks on one side of his face. Although it wasn't very obvious, it could still be seen.

The two of them walked into Wickam Manor, one in front of the other.

Seeing the two of them looking like that, the butler could somehow feel that...

Mr. Wickam had kissed Ms. Benett forcefully and... he was hit.

But...

Thinking about it, he thought that something was wrong. Mr. Wickam didn't have any feelings toward Ms. Benett for the past three years. How would he have feelings toward her after they got a divorce?

Gareth's eyes flashed a little. This time, he actually agreed with what Grandma said.

"It's a sin.... does she know that breaking you and Elisa up is the most foolish thing she has done! You and Elisa are the perfect couple!" Old Madam Wickam grieved and lamented, feeling particularly regretful.

Gareth's eyes were a little alarmed, but in the next moment, he supported her arm. "Grandma, let's go down."

Old Madam Wickam shook her head, frustrated. "Put some medicine on your face later. You can't leave your face swollen."

"Mm, I will."

Old Madam Wickam nodded and went down the stairs with Gareth.

Seeing Elisa standing awkwardly in the living room, Julia said at once, "Girlie, why are you just standing there? Come here and sit down! Why didn't you come up to look for Grandma just now?"

Elisa's eyes flashed a little. She smiled as she said, "I saw that Gareth was going to look for you, so I didn't go up."

Elisa's eyes flashed. That kind of made sense.

Gareth didn't say anything. He nodded to the butler, who immediately waved at the servants. They quickly pushed in a few racks of clothes.

All sorts of clothes were hung on the rack. They were all custom-made according to Elisa's measurements, and they were of good quality. From the looks of it, it had been picked out carefully.

But Elisa knew that Gareth must have issued orders and got experts to do it.

Julia was extremely happy when she saw it. "Good! It looks great! You brat, you finally did something to make your grandmother happy!"

Gareth pursed his lips. He didn't say a word.

"If you don't deal with it now, it doesn't mean that you won't get married in the future. Gareth, missing out on Liz is the biggest mistake in your life. I've done everything I can. I won't pair the two of you together again in the future. I don't want to completely lose my granddaughter because of you."

Gareth's pupils shrank a little, and his face darkened.

Elisa suddenly felt her heart relax. The corner of her lips slowly curved upwards. "Thank you, Grandma."

Julia's heart was pierced with pain. Liz thanked her... To put it bluntly, Elisa said thank you because she felt relaxed.

Sigh...

This granddaughter-in-law...

If she was gone just like that, my heart would be in pain!

Julia held on tightly to Elisa's hand. "Don't worry, Elisa. No matter when and where, Grandma will protect you. Grandma will clear things up for you!"

Elisa smiled and nodded. "I'll help you back up."

"It's alright. I can head up myself. That's right, Mr. Jones. Since you're sending Elisa back, let her take the clothes back."

Mr. Jones answered in a rush, "Yes, Ma'am."

A trace of a smile flickered across Elisa's eyes. Grandma was really listening to her. Otherwise, Grandma would have asked Gareth to send her back.

Gareth's face darkened a little and, in the end, he said calmly, "I'll be leaving."

Julia looked at her grandson resentfully. She didn't say anything but snorted coldly while she watched him leave.

As for Elisa, she left with the people that Mr. Jones had arranged for her.

She secretly heaved a sigh of relief. Although she was disappointed with what the Wickam family had done, she couldn't take revenge because of Grandma. It would only make things worse. She knew that Grandma and Grandpa couldn't trend on Twitter at a time like this. As long as they didn't go too far, she would.... give up this time.

On the way, she kept thinking about it. When she arrived home, her clothes were brought upstairs before the people left.

Will looked at the replies with amusement. It was the first time he realized that he had such a childish side.

The next moment, he sent a message to Elisa.

—Will: 'I'm sorry, it's done.'

Elisa's face turned black instantly. She made a call to Will.

He answered the call promptly. "Good morning, my princess."

The man's voice was magnetic and gentle. The affection in his voice was clear. Elisa furrowed her brows. "Will Darcey, when can you let me go!"

Will couldn't help but chuckle. She was finally willing to call him by his full name.

She would always call him 'Mr. Darcey' and he would get bothered by it.

With an expression of endearment, he said in a gentle voice, "If you marry me, I'll treat you as a princess for the rest of my life. You're the apple of my eye. Otherwise..."

But she didn't want to see it here either.

At this point, Elisa had already walked in.

As for the higher management of Darcey Group, those who were supposed to be a part of the meeting had prepared for it for a few months, but it was just canceled by Mr. Darcey.

And he just said that the rescheduled time was to be confirmed.

Many of them felt stood up. But because it was Mr. Darcey, no one dared to question his abilities. Each of them thought that he had something of more importance, so they were understanding about it.

But many of the managers couldn't help but discuss it.

-Mr. Clarke: 'Does Mr. Darcey have something important on today? Can the meeting still happen today?'

-Mr. Saunders: 'I can't say. Mr. Darcey has always been a punctual person. I'm afraid it might have coincided with something important that he made an exception for.'

Those who had been discussing why Will had suddenly canceled the meeting quickly heard about the news and were upset by it.

The managers were in an office and had been in the midst of a discussion, but now... it became a discussion about Elisa and Will.

"It's her again!" Mr. Clarke's face sank at that moment. "This woman has changed Mr. Darcey's mind over and over again. She's a variable. What should we do if this woman wrecks Darcey Group after some time?!"

Ms. Francis was also looking upset. Deep unhappiness flashed across her cold face. "It's obvious that this woman is chasing after Mr. Darcey. If she gets her own way, this affects Darcey Group! Mr. Darcey wants a woman that Gareth didn't want? Does this look good?"

"No! We must stop her from enticing Mr. Darcey!" Mr. Clarke's voice was dull.

Mr. Duncan wrinkled his brows. "Although that's true, do you dare to take charge? If it wasn't for Iris the last time, Darcey Group couldn't have won the case. With Vincent around, who else can shake things up?"

She had forgotten by then. She watched the scene before her with an alarmed expression as she stood as a hindrance in the doorway. At the same time, the hand that she had previously raised was still stuck in its original posture. It hadn't moved.

The rate of her breathing might have been a little loud. Elisa slowly turned, and Will followed her gaze and looked over.

Ms. Dunn's expression changed. She said at once in a panicked tone, "I'm sorry, Mr. Darcey. I didn't mean to eavesdrop. I... I have some things to report to you."

Will was feeling very good that day. He said indifferently, "You can head back for now."

Ms. Dunn was a little surprised. Even though Mr. Darcey looked slightly indisposed, he was a person who was clear on rewards and penalizations. Take what she did for example. If it was previously, she would have been penalized a lot.

But now, Mr. Darcey let her go so easily?

After all, Mr. Darcey was the type of person who wouldn't hold grudges against people if he didn't settle matters with them immediately.

Ms. Dunn said her thanks in a hurry, "Yes, Mr. Darcey!"

Elisa's brows wrinkled slightly. She turned to look at the man.

Will sized her up. "Elisa, sometimes, you don't have to take on everything alone. If there's anything that will worry them, feel free to let me know. I'm your most faithful supporter."

His voice was solemn and honest. The light in her eyes dulled a little. The man slowly approached her and said in a gentle voice, "Otherwise, if my bankroller is having problems, who will provide for me in the future?"

Elisa's brows jumped ferociously once more. This man was really dangerous!

She pulled her hands back in a hurry and left in a rush as she said, "Bye."

It was just one word. Nothing more.

Will didn't chase after her. He chuckled and slowly walked to his office desk. Seeing the ATM card on his desk, he picked up his cell phone.
