Chapter 381 Making Him Regret His Actions

All Elisa could see from where she was, was Gareth's side profile. He still had his cool face on, but yet today, he had given so many people a sense of security and peace. If it wasn't for him today, everyone on this plane would have lost their lives. They did not know what the actual situation was and why they were suddenly attacked by three green helicopters, but they had reported it to the government. Rather, this person in front of her was not fazed by the danger and had saved a whole plane of people, and then returned to his seat indifferently. She had never known him to be this warm-hearted.

If he wanted to save his own life, he didn't need to be so kind to everyone else. He did this to save everyone.

There was no more need for Elisa to navigate him. She slowly got up but was in no rush to leave. She knew that there would be some passengers waiting to see who it was that saved them. She waited until all the passengers had disembarked before turning to Gareth and saying, "Since we're back, I'm going to leave first."

Gareth slowly looked up, and then at her. The look in his eyes deepened.

Elisa did not know what was going through his mind, so she just turned around and walked out.

Back then, Thomas had wanted to report everything back to Gareth, but Gareth had said something that Thomas could still remember very clearly.

He had said, "There's no need to tell me that."

So, Thomas had said nothing more.

He pretended that he didn't realize Gareth's expression was darkening and said, "Shall we go, Mr. Wickam?"

Gareth said nothing, stood up, and left. Thomas followed behind hurriedly.

Chapter 383 The Sworn Enemy's Ex-Wife

After the incident, a lot of people had thought that Elisa was being deliberate and wanted Gareth to publicly save her. Some even said that their relationship was close even before the banquet. Elisa had kept her arm hooked into his. Could it be any more obvious?

What if...What if Mr. Wickam didn't want to save her?

Then wouldn't her plan be revealed immediately?

Everyone's eyes were on Elisa. They wanted to be the first to hear the news.

Elisa giggled and said softly, "I'm alright. No need to worry over me. Aren't I standing perfectly fine in front of you?"

She had a good feeling about Kira. Kira seemed like an innocent and kind individual. She enjoyed working with her, and Kira was always looking after her. She liked this about her very much.

"What is up with Mr. Darcey this time..."

"No, although Mr. Darcey is fickle, it's because of this that he won't be charmed by women. He may think that Elisa is special and is willing to waste more time and effort on her, but this doesn't mean that he would really have brain fog and agree to such a huge investment! It's hundreds of billions. What kind of idea is it?"

"That's right. I don't think Mr. Darcey is impulsive. Furthermore, there are many people who have shares in the company. With such an important matter, although Mr. Darcey has the authority to make decisions, he has to seek the approval of many to determine if the proposal is really good."

"But I saw the proposal previously, and it's not that good. I don't think it's very possible."

"Elisa amended the proposal."

Kira silently wished Elisa luck.

Elisa smiled and nodded before she followed Julie to Linda's office.

When Linda saw Elisa, she felt all the fighting cells in her body rise up. She even had half a mind to eat at Elisa's heart.

In that brief moment, Elisa could feel Linda's animosity.

But she could get out of her wheelchair because of their return. She had to think of ways to recover quickly. Would it be more convenient for her to approach Gareth like that?

Linda smiled at the two and said in a gentle voice, "You're here. How can I help you?"

Julie handed Elisa's proposal to Linda at once and said respectfully, "Ms. Benett, Ms. Elisa went to Darcey Group to discuss a partnership. They agreed but requested for Ms. Elisa to personally oversee it. She might have to leave for around four months. I don't have the authority to decide on this, so I came to report it to you."

Linda was slightly astonished. "He agreed to an investment of hundreds of millions?"

But you have to know how important this project is. Even if I turn down Darcey Group’s request, I can’t let you take charge of this project. You may leave.”

Linda’s voice was firm yet exasperated.

Julie thought that it was a shame, but Linda had decided. She couldn’t say anything and could only look at Elisa.

“Ms. Elisa, let’s go.”

Elisa glanced at Linda and smiled. “Can you make this decision for the whole company, Linda?”

Julie’s expression dulled but she cleverly chose to keep quiet.

Linda didn’t respond. She looked at Elisa as if waiting for Elisa to go on.

Everyone started to make guesses.

Elisa wasn't rushing to do anything. She continued with her work instead.

When it was almost time to get off work, Will called Elisa to ask her out for a meal, but she turned him down because Rachel was already waiting for her at home.

Elisa went home straight after work.

Rachel had the keys to her house. It seemed as though she had been waiting for a very long time. She looked at Elisa with some exasperation. "You're too conscientious. You just returned. Don't you need to rest for a day?"

Elisa told Rachel everything that had happened that day.

Rachel suddenly lit up. "Liz, you should have told me earlier. I don't know about striking back in a formal and elegant manner, but do you want to hear what I think about making a move in a ruffian-like manner? I guarantee that Linda will be unable to fight back, and you'll be famous!"

Elisa's eyes lit up. "Let me hear it."

It could be said that Rachel was an expert in this area.

She didn't have many good ideas, but she had many wicked ones.

Rachel chuckled. "Make a huge fuss! Doesn't Will want to work with you? Get him to talk to those from Benett Corporation. The most effective way is for him to strike. Can Benett Corporation let go of such an opportunity? This is a low-hanging fruit. You can just sit and wait to reap the benefits."

Chapter 389 Passed Away

Elisa sighed. "What happened with your dad this time?"

"Ah, it's so annoying. He keeps wanting me to go back, and he doesn't want me to resent him, so he keeps explaining to me. But he did such a poor job of it. My mom died because of him. I'll hate him for the rest of my life!"

Elisa's eyes flashed a little. She looked at Rachel's dark face and said calmly, "You have to face certain things sooner or later. Furthermore, maybe many things are just a misunderstanding. Since you don't believe him, why don't you think of a way to investigate what happened back then?"

Rachel gritted her teeth and said angrily, "Back then, my mom jumped off the building right in front of me. It was because he had a woman on the outside. Things like these are absolute truth. What is there to explain?"

She raised her head and looked at Elisa. "He imprisoned me at home this time so that I would forgive him and follow what he wants me to do. A marriage of convenience. Why should I listen to him? From how I see it, he is no longer my dad! Doesn't he have other children? He has a son and a daughter with his mistress. His other daughter can go for this marriage of convenience!"

As soon as Rachel said it, it was like she came to her senses and said with some frustration, "Look at me. Not restraining my own temper again. I thought that I could keep it in check if I didn't drink alcohol."

Seeing a trace of a smile in the corner of Elisa's lips, Rachel was suddenly worried about Elisa. She sighed in exasperation. "Never mind. Let's not talk about this. Let's head to Uncle James'. Bring along your proposal."

"Alright."

The two of them packed and left. They reached James' house at the time that Rachel said they would.

James had already prepared some snacks. When he saw that Elisa was with Rachel, James was astonished. "Liz?"

Elisa immediately nodded respectfully. "Hello, Uncle James."

Actually...

When her dad was chairman, she would go to the office to help her dad out, so she had come into contact with some of the higher levels.

It wasn't strange for them to know each other.
