Chapter 421 How Long Will You Keep Dragging It?

Monica could see that Rose did not wish to talk about it anymore. So she nodded and remained quiet.

Rose sighed helplessly. "Linda has been feeling down at home since she was made to quit. This girl is too easily agitated. She even called Gareth and told him everything about this matter."

Monica was stunned and said with a hint of guilt, "What happened after that? I know nothing about this."

Rose nodded with understanding. "It's normal for children to have their opinions once they are older. Monica, you don't have to feel guilty about it."

Monica sighed with frustration. Then, Rose continued, "Linda felt indignant at the time. Gareth had also comforted her and told her to get a good rest. He said a lady doesn't have to work too hard on a job. So... I would like to ask you. Does Gareth... Does he plan to marry Linda?"

"If he does, I will be stricter with Linda and teach her the proper etiquette so that she can be a good daughter-in-law. But... If he doesn't, I think it's better for Linda to return to the company."

Gareth's expression turned cold. He looked at Monica and did not say anything. But his gaze was interrogatory.

Even though Old Mr. Wickam was the company's chairman, he did not get involved in any company matters. Gareth was the one in charge.

As for Monica, she frequently met with Old Mr. Wickam to discuss some matters, such as Gareth's marriage.

That annoyed Gareth tremendously.

Monica noticed his gaze and frowned. She strode forward. "How dare you look at me like that? Look at how old you are, and yet, you don't have a child. How long are you going to keep delaying this? Linda saved your life, but you failed to appreciate and take care of her. Worst, you keep hurting her feelings. I wish I can open up your head and see what you are thinking."

Gareth furrowed his brow. "Now is not the right time to get married."

"Tell me then. When are you planning to get married?" Monica questioned furiously.

That woman is full of greed and deception! She has been scheming against me since the beginning. Who knows how many times she and her father had forced my hands? I must have hated her so much that I thought about her just now!

Gareth suppressed his emotions with all his might.

Darren looked at him coldly. "What do you mean? When are you planning to get engaged? You need to give me a specific date. Otherwise, you'll keep the Benett family waiting. How can you be so irresponsible?"

"Everyone expects you and Linda to get married, but you keep delaying the matter. Do you know how this will look for them? You may be thick-skinned, but I can't bear the humiliation! I have had a sterling reputation all my life. Don't ruin it for me! Stop behaving like a scoundrel!"

"Grandma is still unwell."

Darren snorted. "Your grandmother is unwell, but she wishes for you to remarry Elisa. Since you don't want to marry that greedy and devious woman, you can never fulfill her wish. So what can you do to make her better?"

Gareth had nothing to say.

"That's right. In this situation, you should get married if you wish to help your grandmother recover. Once you

At this moment, the employees were standing in the first-floor lobby. There was also the receptionist and a few employees passing by. All of them opened their mouths in shock.

Are they finally getting engaged?

I knew it!

It's on the tenth of next month!

Elisa will not be able to do anything now!

Darren said with a smile, "I won't stay to chat. I need to head home to get ready and send out the invitations."

The senior management member replied, "Please go ahead. Don't hesitate to let me know if you need anything."

“Haha, sure.” Darren left right after that. Many people were stunned to see him in such a good mood.

Will hesitated for a moment before saying softly, “Gareth is getting engaged next month.”

Elisa’s expression froze. Will looked at her with concern, but she suddenly laughed. “I finally understand why everyone in the office looked at me strangely.”

Her eyes flashed with mockery. She sounded as if she did not care. One could not find any trace of sadness in her.

Will smiled at her. “So, you’re not sad?”

“Why should I be sad?” Elisa seemed calm and unmoved by the news.

Furthermore, the news did not bring her any disadvantage. She could now speed up her plan. Moreover, Yara would likely contact her soon.

On the other hand, Will chuckled. “It seems you have truly let go. In that case, will you consider giving me a chance?”

Elisa started, "Mr. Darcey..."

Elisa looked at him with confusion.

Will's smile faded, and he looked at her solemnly. "Liz, I mean what I told you, but you never believe me. You are truly the only woman in my heart."

He looked at her with deep affection and devotion.

Elisa's gaze remained calm. She slowly extricated her arm and looked at him. "Will Darcey, it doesn't matter what you say. I won't believe a word. Even if what you said is true, I still won't be with you. I will never be with you in this lifetime."

Will's eyes flashed with hurt. He sighed helplessly and recovered his cheerful demeanor. Then, he smiled and said, "It seems the time is not right yet. You should head home and have an early rest."

He let her go without a fuss and seemed unaffected by her rejection. Elisa suddenly could not continue with what she wanted to say.

After pausing for a moment, she still decided to say it. "Will, don't waste your effort on me. I've already experienced a failed marriage, and I don't wish to waste any more energy on this matter. Furthermore, we are not suited to each other and are not meant to be."

After saying this, Elisa did not linger but got out of the car and left.

Elisa's expression darkened instantly.

She knew there was only one person who would do this.

Why is he here?

Elisa dashed to the door and saw that it was indeed Gareth. She took a deep breath and had no choice but to open the door.

Otherwise, he kept banging on the door and waking up the neighbors.

Gareth turned sullen as soon as he saw Elisa's cold and disdainful expression.

Once he came in, Elisa closed the door and turned to face him. "Are you crazy?"

Gareth noticed what she was up to. He immediately let go and retreated from her. Elisa saw how effective the move was and narrowed her eyes. If he dared to trap her again, she would not hesitate to kick him there.

Then, Elisa sneered. "I was at fault for blindly believing those three people in the past. My father was too kind and allowed ravenous wolves into his midst. Whenever I look at you, I would remember the stupid things I did. Gareth, I don't want to hate you. After all, I did everything of my own volition. However, it doesn't mean that I won't change my mind in the future and blame you for everything!"

"I have a voice recorder and surveillance cameras. Everything that happened here is recorded. Gareth, if you don't want Linda to see you with me, you have better leave now. Since you're getting engaged, you should take responsibility and behave as a husband should. Didn't she save your life?"

Elisa's gaze was filled with mockery.

If she didn't have to take revenge against Linda, letting Linda marry Gareth would seem like a good idea. Then, they would be enraptured by each other and stop disturbing her.

Gareth looked at her coldly. "I don't want to force you to a dead end, but if you keep disregarding your chances, don't blame me for what I'm about to do!"

Elisa sneered mockingly. "Whatever."

She knew Gareth would always side with Linda, and Linda would use Gareth's authority against Elisa in the future. Thus, it was no different from Gareth acting against her.

However, Elisa did not care anymore.

She did not wish to be bothered by him. At the same time, the mockery in her gaze became even more obvious.

Faced with her mocking glare, Gareth suddenly lost the courage to remain here. He had spoken so many cruel words to her that he had nothing to say anymore.

Thus, he stormed out of the house without another glance at her.

Elisa looked at the closed door and felt a brief sense of hesitation. What had happened just now felt like a nightmare and a hallucination.
