Chapter 481

Thomas: Mr. Wickam, there is a new development with the voice recording. We found a match for a part of it, but the other parts are untraceable.

Vincent frowned.

"Are they only able to match a part of it? Why do I feel the matched part is not the main point?"

After he said that, Thomas sent the voice recording.

Gareth played it straight away.

Soon, Linda and her mother's voice was heard.

However, what Gareth heard was their scheme to soften Gareth's heart. He already knew Linda's relapse was fake.

The most important part of the voice recording was missing.

"Hah!" Vincent could not help but laugh.

"Why do I feel Thomas is playing with you..."

Gareth's expression turned cold.

"That's enough! You should focus on getting married first. After you are married, you need to find ways to make Gareth fall completely in love with you!"

In other words, it was a matter of the marital bed.

Linda took a deep breath and did not know what else to say.

All she could feel was panic.

On the other hand, Rose did not wish to talk about this anymore and said coldly, "We have already destroyed the evidence. There is no point in thinking about it. What you have to do is keep denying and feigning innocence. Don't show any guilt no matter what!"

Linda did not say anything.

Elisa's eyes flashed as she considered.

In the end, she told them briefly what had happened in the recent few days.

Rachel broke out in laughter.

"Hahaha! That trash! You were right to expose her! Those two scumbags are made for each other!"

Sheena frowned.

"Although this is counted as revenge, but...does this mean Gareth won't marry Linda anymore? He keeps bothering you nowadays. If he finds out what kind of person Linda is, will he bother you even more..."

Chapter 484

Elisa received a message from a maid in Benett Residence as soon as she woke up.

The maid was her spy. She was only an ordinary maid and could not get close to Linda and her family.

'Thus, they would not be on guard against her. Yet even an ordinary maid like her was useful at times. The maid was called Martha. She had worked in Benett Residence for around five years.

As she was not one of Elisa's father's trusted staff, Linda and her family did not kick her out.

However, they did not know Martha was favored by Elisa.

Thus, Martha was secretly loyal to Elisa and would observe minor matters for her.

However, things were different today.

Something major had happened.

Everyone in the house knew about it.

—Martha: Ms. Benett, Mrs. Benett chased out her assistant just now. She was furious and questioned her assistant, asking how she could do what she did. In the end, Mrs. Benett ignored the assistant's claim of being framed and kicked her out of the house. Elisa pursed her lips.

—Elisa: Thank you, Martha. I still need you to observe and report any situation to me.

—Martha: Sure, I will. Don't worry, Ms. Benett. I will keep a close watch on them.

Linda was panicking and did not know what to do.

But Gareth had not spoken a word about the matter.

Thus, she had to be careful not to reveal something was wrong. She said with a smile, "I'm here to discuss the company's collaboration project. Liz's friend is now in the hospital, so she does not have much energy to deal with this. That's why my father wishes to negotiate with you again. He asked if you were willing to let someone else take Elisa's place. After all, many people are more experienced than her."

If Elisa were here, she would be impressed with Linda for trying to stir up trouble even in this situation.

The moment Linda said Elisa's friend was hospitalized, Gareth's expression darkened considerably.

Linda's eyes flashed. She suddenly had a plan.

Thus, before Gareth could say anything, she persuaded, "I understand...Garry. You appreciate Elisa's talent. She surprised many people with her plan. But, ...Sometimes, being able to draft a plan does not mean he or she can carry it out well. George B. McClellan is a good example of this."

She was talking about a Civil War general who was good at planning but failed in actual battle.

In Linda's view, Elisa was comparable to George B.

McClellan.

Even if she had to admit Elisa was talented, she would never accept that Elisa would be able to carry out the project well.

He paused for a moment before answering the call.

"What is it?"

His tone remained cold as ice.

The caller was stunned for a moment before scolding, "You brat. How dare you talk to me with such an attitude?"

Gareth pursed his lips. He did not say anything but waited for the caller to get to the point.

After a brief pause, the caller finally said, "I've sent out all the invitations.

There is only half a month left until your engagement ceremony.

During this time, you should go out with her more often.

After the engagement ceremony, you should bring her on a holiday for a month"

Gareth's expression darkened immediately.

"You want me to abandon work for one month to go on a holiday with her? How did you come up with this idea?"

Elisa was stunned for a moment before calling out excitedly, "Carle, you're finally awake!"

Carle's hand was weak.He could only grab Elisa's hand briefly before letting go tiredly.

However, his eyes were wide with panic.He said with difficulty, "No...Don't...Go' Elisa explained immediately, "I'm not leaving.I just want to call a doctor!"

Carle heard her assurance and finally breathed a sigh of relief.

"Sure..."

Elisa pressed the bell at the head of the bed.

Soon, two doctors rushed into the room.

They were surprised and shocked to find Carle awake.

"I didn't expect Mr.Carle to wake up so soon!"

Carle's face was a little pale.He did not speak but smiled slightly.

The two doctors immediately gave him a full checkup.

Elisa's eyelashes fluttered. She mumbled in regret, "How would I possibly provoke him? Sheen, he's my friend too."

Stunned, Sheena nodded and said nothing else.

Thereafter, the medical staff moved Carle to a normal VIP ward.

Meanwhile, Elisa called Edward to inform him that Carle had regained consciousness.

After composing themselves, Elisa and the others entered the ward.

Due to Carle's health condition, his meal and treatment were specially arranged by medical staff, so the friends didn't have to worry.

Then, the nurses left the ward, leaving four of them there.

Elisa took a deep breath and hummed, "This is not a dream.I did say that."

With that, she lowered her head to avoid Carle's fervent gaze.

Both Rachel and Sheena were a bundle of nerves - they knew Elisa responded in such a way because she didn't dare to face him.

However, Carle did not think much about the situation and grinned even brighter, thinking that Elisa was merely shy.

Nonetheless, he tried to suppress the passion in his gaze because he didn't want Elisa to feel overwhelmed.

Sheena couldn't take her eyes off Carle.

However, noticing that Carle's gaze was constantly fixed on Elisa, she inhaled and uttered thoughtfully, "Since you've regained consciousness, we shall not disturb the two of you.Have a good chat.Rachel and I will go and rest next door.We need a break, too, after looking after you for so many days"

"Elisa, Elisa slowly lifted her head to meet Carle's loving gaze.

"Elisa, actually, I know you only said those words to awaken me. You won't tell me the truth until I fully recover, will you?"

Elisa's heart jolted.

Perceiving Carle's eyes that were fixed on her, she regained her senses and frowned.

"You think I'm lying to you?"

Startled, Carle was at a loss for words.

Elisa sighed inwardly.
