

No Chance 49

Chapter 49 It Was a Brilliant Move

Will smiled and said, "I got to go back to work. I will find an opportunity to compensate Mr. Morris in the future."

Since Will had already compensated for his actions, Mr. Morris decided to drop the whole thing. He smiled and replied, "You're welcome, Mr. Darcey. I'll leave you to it."

Will nodded and left with Elisa. The audience were still gossiping and whispering to one another. They were a little disappointed that all the main figures had left so quickly.

The audience could only get their news from the media later on.

Will and Elisa walked all the way to Will's car. Will opened the front passenger seat door for Elisa and she sat in.

After Will got in the car and closed the door, Elisa asked, "This banquet is over now. When are you going to appeal?"

"After you got your divorce certificate. I need to prepare some documents, but it won't take long."

Elisa nodded and remained silent.

I no longer need to have any

finally live

some food?" Will head, "No, thanks. I need some decisive, and calm, she was actually physically burnt wasn't easy to give up her many years of affection towards Gareth. She could feel the pain to let go of further. He quietly Elisa looked at the caller ID and picked up the phone. Before Elisa could speak, the person on the other side of the phone asked in an

the banquet started? Darn, we got into asked nervously. "Are you of the car. He was preparing to go to stomping on the accelerator. He wasn't injured too, but he was taken away by the traffic police.

"We are at a suburb now. We've already called a car to pick us up, so we might be late. How are you doing? Have you announced insisted on coming to the banquet. She knew that Rachel was okay. Elisa's mouth tilted slightly and said, "Don't rush. I've