after reading another Tweet, "Oh my gosh! They've given an official statement!!" She then walked over and passed the phone to Elisa. "Look! The Tabor family is moving here!" Elisa was doubtful, "Why would they suddenly move here? Weren't they doing well over there?" "They will keep the company in Southdale as a branch, and the branch company in Bayswe will become the main headquarters. Most of their shareholders and executives will be coming over. Why would they do something like this? Why would they suddenly change their main headquarters? This isn't their demographic." Rachel questioned. "Even a starved camel is bigger than a horse. What's more, they are not camels; they're dragons." Elisa passed the phone back to Rachel and went back to arranging things for dinner. "There's more than one dragon here. Can they really get a piece of the action here? They were ruling over Southdale, but here..." "This has nothing to do with us. Let's not bother with it. Come, let's finish with the preparations." ...Elisa's doorbell chimed at five forty-five. Rachel saw Sean through the CCTV and shouted in surprise, "He's here! Mr. Jordan is here, Elisa!" "Well, open the door," Elisa said as the tips of her mouth lifted up. "Right." She pressed the button twice and said with anticipation, "Oh my goodness! I can't believe I'm finally going to meet Mr. Jordan! Not only is he not late, but he came fifteen minutes early." "Since you like him so much, you should know that he is an early bird." Elisa said with a smile. Rachel giggled, "I forgot." The two of them waited by the door. Rachel was peeking through the peephole and immediately opened the door when she saw the elevator door open and Sean walking out. Sean was startled by the two girls waiting for him by the door. He was holding a fruit basket. He turned to Elisa and said, "What are you doing waiting for me out here?"

once the police check their bank accounts and find the inconsistencies in their statements, they will be able to find the culprit behind all this." "Yeah, I'm sure the police will be able to get to the bottom of it. Uncle, since you're coming to pay me a visit tonight, we can't consider it part of the five meals you owe me, right?" Elisa said and then changed the subject with a smile. Sean had promised Elisa five meals. Sean was stunned into laughter, "You little brat. What schemes are you planning again?" Elisa huffed and said, "I'm not! I genuinely like you, so I don't want you to break ties with me after these five meals." "You're being so kind with your words. I know your true purpose is to get me to agree to the collaboration." Sean scoffed. Rachel stood at the side with her mouth slightly agape. She couldn't contain her shock. I can see they are really close, just like a niece and her uncle. "Then, I'll take it as you agreeing." Elisa teased and said, "Uncle Sean, try the dishes before they get cold." Elisa had hired a top chef to make the dishes, but Sean wasn't one to be impressed by these things. He picked up his cutlery and then spoke softly to Elisa, "I've thought about what you said about the collaboration, but I still need reassurance on two fronts. I will agree to it if you can convince me." The shock in Rachel's eyes intensified! She was no longer interested in the dishes on the table. D*mn Elisa! She's such a girl boss! She's already finished four difficult projects, and now, she's convinced Uncle Sean. What kind of skills does she have! "Go ahead." Elisa said with a grin. She was confident she would win after their last discussion. Her confidence only grew after hearing his answer. Sean picked put to heart." Sean raised a brow and waited for her to continue silently. "Benett Corporation deals with wood and is prospering in all aspects. From the data I have, no corporation can say they have the same revenue as us. But ignoring that, Benett Corporation also deals with many other things that are still being developed. I can say for sure that the project I showed you is unique, and no one else would even think about it." Sean raised his eyes, and the lines on his forehead deepened significantly. "You might think you're prioritizing your family and peace by letting go of your wishes, but one lie would bring a travesty to the family. Who will be willing to take on such a challenge?" Elisa smiled, but Rachel was jittery to the side. "As for this project you've devised, it only benefits the rich. But think about it, how many of those people can actually afford to pick up this challenge? Who will do it? Once it becomes open to the public, their family will break apart, and you'll be the instigator." Rachel was sweating bullets from her forehead. Sean's questions were becoming increasingly invasive; this was just his first point. How said unhappily, "Nicole is interested in you and has been for a while. Must I spell it out for you?" Gareth's face darkened, and he looked at Darren frostily, "You don't need to worry about my marital status. We can play with the Benetts, but the Tabor family is on a different scale. I don't think you can deal with the repercussions." "You...! You brat! I'm doing this for you! Nicole is a great girl; she excels in everything she does. They don't lose to us in prestige as well. Where else would you find such an outstanding woman? Most importantly, she likes you!" Gareth grew more annoyed. "I will not have any relationship with her. Let's stop it here, Grandfather. Do not meddle in my personal life anymore." "Gareth Wickam...!" "I have other things to do. Don't call me over if there is nothing urgent next time." Gareth interrupted Darren while straightening his tie. He left right after that. "Gareth! Stand right there!" Darren pushed himself up, but Gareth was done with him and walked out. "D*mn! Sh*t! Everything's gone to sh*ts!" Darren swore angrily, his face as red as a tomato. Julia came down from upstairs to see Gareth had left. She heard Darren's swears and went over angrily to give him a kick! Darren did not hide away as he feared she would fall. "What was that for? It's not enough that b*stard pissed me off; are you trying to piss me off too?!" "What do you mean he pissed you off? You're the problem! I was only in the bathroom for a while, yet you were able to chase away my obedient grandson!" "I was doing it for him! He doesn't even know how hard I'm trying! How is it that his temper grows with him? And he's gotten even more stubborn!" Darren huffed angrily. "He got that from you!" She suddenly thought about how the two had chased Elisa away and did not want to protect Gareth any more. "Can you not be angry with me?" Darren was so angry his breaths were getting heavier. Julia scrunched thing like that for?" Julia chuckled at him. "What else if not to tease you? That Tammy wasn't just a normal girl. Wasn't her family comparable to Nicole's? But you fought with your family, insisting on choosing me." He became silent. He thought that she was trying to get even with him over that matter, but he forgot that there was a reason she would bring up the incident. He stayed silent for a while before blurting out, "That's different!" She smiled. "How is it any different?" "That's because I've met you. I had you, but who does he have? I used to think that anyone would do it until I met you. He must be thinking the same thing as I was." "Why would he refuse you if anyone will do?" "That's because he doesn't know! He probably thinks that Nicole wouldn't cut it!" He retorted. "That's enough! You know something's wrong in this child's situation, yet you're still pig-headed. Can you stop meddling in his matters?" "But

I'm doing it for..." Julia snorted. "What? To put it nicely, you're doing it for the bigger picture. But, in honesty, you're only doing it for the benefits and the money! That's why you want to sell him out with this marriage. Then why didn't you marry for convenience? Besides, our family is filthy rich. How much more do you want?" He was speechless. He couldn't reply to his wife's reasoning. But he was still reluctant. They had been together for years. There was no way Julia wouldn't know what he was thinking. She spoke up. "You're not allowed ahead. He pursed his lips. The veins on the back of his hand pulsed. It was better not to mention the heartless woman. Otherwise, he would want to strangle her to death. "Alright then. Drive carefully. I won't disturb you anymore." Julia couldn't figure out what he was thinking. She ended the call. He continued driving with his lips pursed. The dark expression on his face was intimidating.... As the time passed, Rachel felt that her brain was overwhelmed with a series of terminologies and cases. The heated debate between the two was incredulous. It wasn't just a regular occurrence for the two best speakers to go head-to-head. As a result... The debate had been going on nonstop. Yet Rachel was overjoyed! Ecstatic! Exhilarated! Because! She may not understand what was happening, but that doesn't mean she couldn't see who was winning! The man was at a loss for words more frequently. He was even wordless this time around. The air was still. Rachel munched on her food silently. She raised her head and peeked at Sean from time to time. Elisa sipped on her water and smiled. "Uncle Sean, that's about it. I believe we can succeed if we work together." Sean's expression was solemn. Visibly moved by her words, he seemed to be contemplating what would happen if they carried out the plan. Deep in thought, he took a few bites of the food and finally broke the silence after a while. "I think we can work together on this." Rachel's eyes widened. Although she felt that the collaboration was in their grasp and was exhilarated earlier, hearing a solid approval made her want to jump for joy for Elisa. After all, all of Elisa's joint projects were tough nuts to crack. If it were anyone else, they would have trouble completing even only one. Yet Elisa succeeded in all five projects! It was truly a miracle! No... This is no miracle. People might think it's a miracle if it's only one or two projects. But five in a row! All of them are tough to complete. This can't be just a miracle! Elisa grinned. "Then our company looks forward to working with your company, uncle!" "No, no." Sean's expression was determined. Elisa was puzzled. "Huh?" "Not the companies. This is only between the two of us." He smiled. Elisa blinked a few times and immediately understood his words. Rachel, however, was confused. What does that mean? Are they both going to leave their companies and work together privately? But that's impossible for Elisa... Although Elisa wouldn't be fired over losing one project, she refused to allow Benett Corporation any space to find fault with her. She must complete all of her work. This collaboration with Sean, in particular, was important to her. Elisa smiled and said softly, "I need to put in an application for this with my company first." He nodded. "Not a problem." She beamed and raised her cup. "Uncle Sean, I'll toast for up tonight, she can wake up tomorrow. What she needs now is rest... There are too many people, and it will affect her recovery. At this time, she should be able to wake up." Rose stared at her child lying on the bed, "Forget it. Get out, all of you." The doctor gestured for his colleagues to give the Benett's some privacy. Soon enough, only the three of them remained in the ward. Rose held onto Linda's hand, "Dear girl, I know you're hurting, but you have to wake up for us. Do you really want to give up after all we've sacrificed? Wake up." The mother whispered, "I will

to help. It was Linda's parents who admitted her to the hospital. To make it worst, he left Linda the moment he saw people approach." Elisa and Rachel exchanged glances. Suspicion grew on Rachel, "No way...why do I always feel that this is a rumor? Didn't it say that Linda was Gareth's lifesaver? But Gareth didn't return the favor? That doesn't seem like him. Besides, this will ruin his public reputation." "I'm not sure either... But I feel there is a storm coming for the two of them. The engagement is right around the corner, and this could be an omen for their downfall." Rachel laughed, "It would be perfect if the engagement actually got called off. I can imagine it! Linda crying like a kid." The woman sneered, "I hope to witness Linda's altercation with the whole network! I just can't wait to make it

We'll be the happiest couple in the world," Gareth said when he was awake. She was almost happy to be awake. But reality sunk in. How cruel! Cruel! "Linda, you finally woke up!" Linda was roused by the frazzled, worried voice. It turned out to be her parents, who were seated next to her bed. When she quickly turned to look around, she saw that there were just the three of them in the ward. Linda's complexion abruptly became pallid. Her mouth's pleasant smile vanished. The pair got increasingly concerned when they noticed her change. Rose immediately rang the bell beside the bed, "Hurry up! Where's the nurse?!" Linda developed a headache, "Mom, stop pressing." Rose paused, "Linda, you're..." Linda turned her head to look at Rose. Her eyes couldn't hide her anticipation: "Mom, where did Gareth run off to? Just now...he has been by my side, right?" Norman Bennett and Rose's expressions grew grave. Disappointment flooded over Linda. Her voice trembled, "It was... a dream?" Rose was afraid that Linda would be overly feel weak even after being asleep for the last few days. It feels like weeks, and I swore I heard Garry call onto me." Rose smiled, "Well, he has been with you this whole time." "Mom, I have nothing else to do. I'm leaving the hospital, and I'm going to find Garry." As she spoke, Linda lifted the quilt and was about to get up. The expressions of the couple changed. Her father tried to stop, "You can't go! You just caused him to feel guilty. Does he still have compassion? You are staying in the hospital. Stay here until the engagement!" "Isn't it in three days?" Linda was a little flustered, feeling that something was wrong. Her father and mother didn't dare to tell her the truth. Rose smiled and held her hand, "Girl, you just listen to your father. Don't we know what's best for you?" Linda pursed her lips but refrained from answering. Although she knew this, she still felt...unconvinced. I need to see Gareth now! Seeing her reaction, Rose replied, "Linda, things are different now. The man is not easy to feel remorse. He has developed doubts, so let's not bother him now. All right?" Linda frowned and closed her eyes. "Mom, I'm hungry." "Oh yes! Hurry! Get some hot porridge!" Norman hurried with the food. Linda looked at her parents, "Mom, does Garry...regret it?" Rose frowned, "Could it be your coma messed up your head? You've been together this long! Silly girl! Don't fill your head with worries!" Linda pursed her lips and stopped talking. Her heart is telling her otherwise...She was getting more anxious. But...They didn't know. On the official account of the Wickam family... They've... posted the news. The marriage contract was officially terminated. However, Gareth was covering costs and compensation. When Elisa found out about this, she was taking a shower
