the next moment she slowly raised her lips, "The engagement has been broken?" "That's right! Yes! The Wickam family said that it was all a misunderstanding before. They apologized for the inconvenience caused to everyone this time, and they also said that the cooperation with the Benett family has also been terminated, and they will pay the penalty for breach of contract. Anyway, things are right." Elisa was a little surprised, "They've withdrawn the proposal?" Rachel nodded, "That's right, I'm still digesting the news. After all... Linda is the head of the company. If the engagement is canceled, it will be a huge loss for the Wickams!" "They won't." "Huh?" Rachel looked puzzled. "Why not? In this regard, the Wickam family has publicity, and the Benett family relies on the Wickam family for connections." Elisa said calmly, "People in the Wickam family are inherently rational. They must have found a new home for them to do so, or they will not lose money even if they pay huge, liquidated damages. Besides..." Rachel anticipated a response. Elisa didn't continue. She changed the subject, "How is Rose Meek?" "Aunt Rose has been associate with the Wickams again. It's good to let them start now, so I don't have to worry about it." Rachel opened her lips. She hesitated to speak but felt that what Elisa said made sense. "Tsk, I don't know what the Benett family will do when they see this scene" Elisa smiled, "It's a pity. I'm preoccupied. Otherwise, I would have visited her to deliver the news." "Hahahaha... Isn't that right, I'll accompany you then! Maybe she will be pissed off more! But deep down, Elisa felt pity for Linda. In some way, that man and Linda, both deserved each other.... Benett's Hospital. Norman Benett and Rose didn't leave. They stayed by Linda's side the entire time. When Norman Benett's cell phone rang, he glanced at the mother and daughter. He announced bitterly, "It's about the company again, I'll answer the call first." He got up and went out of the ward. He received no response from Linda or Rose. Rose, seeing Linda remained hunched over the bed, dejected, and unable to talk, remarked hopelessly, "I'm afraid you won't be able to go for a month in your current condition, Linda. You need to change your attitude if you want to leave the hospital early." Linda teared up, "He hasn't called me yet." Rose's eyes fluttered a little bit, and she felt progressively more hopeless. To expedite the process, she had to make a call to the Wickam household. Should... Her thoughts were interrupted when Linda's ward door unexpectedly opened. Together, the mother and daughter saw that Norman Benett's face was becoming paler. Norman summoned Rose, "Come out and ask your assistant to do something for me." Rose looked puzzled, "My assistant? What are you going to do?" Despite saying as much, she nonetheless stood up, turned to face Linda, and quietly whispered, "Honey, I'll be back." Linda did not respond — she didn't have any energy at all. Rose sighed, got up, and walked outside. However, as soon as the ward door was shut, Norman immediately stepped forward. "Linda, look at the bright side. You're free." Linda was weeping at that point, "It's useless whether I cheer up or not, so why force myself? Dad, Mom, you don't need to persuade me. I know, I'm done. I've lost him." A man of great standing was to be engaged to her, but now... it's all gone. That same man now wants nothing to do with her. From a star to now a butt of some cruel joke. Linda gave up. "Ah!" Norman and Rose were shaken by her sudden outburst. Rose rushed to her side. "Linda, calm down! Mom will figure it out!" Linda's eyes froze for a moment, but the next moment her head was nestled in the crook of her arms, resting on her knees. "Don't try to persuade me anymore, and... I won't believe it foolishly anymore. You always say that there is a way, but you have never succeeded once. Now that you have ended up like this, I can accept it. That's it." Linda's voice was weak. All she could do was mumble about her demise. Rose felt guilty and helpless in her heart, and she also wanted her daughter to marry Gareth... After planning for so many years, I never thought of falling short. Rose gritted her teeth, "Since they are merciless, there is no need for us to save face! I'm going to see Mrs. Wickam now!" Linda was doing a blank stare. She was hurt. Her heart was hurt. She felt that the whole world had collapsed. For so many years, she had worked so hard to accomplish one thing. She even time, she didn't make any calls to the other party at all and instead immediately rang the doorbell. When the housekeeper realized she was the one who had arrived, she informed the master right away. "Why is she this upset?" Mrs. Wickam frowned, "We have used up all of our goodwill and are prepared to pay significant liquidated damages, but they still won't let up. She is relentless." Old Madam Wickam calmly replied, "Allow her to enter. I'm afraid she may not be able to accept what was reported in the media this time." Mrs. Wickam sighed. Old Mr. Wickam commanded, "Let her in." The visitor had a miserable look on her. He just grinned at Rose and extended an invitation to her, "Please come for language, and you can change blame into an accusation, something I didn't know before! Your family deceived us first, but we decided not to make it public. You honestly believe our Wickam family is not humiliated of you either?!" Jerry Wickam withheld his tongue. The woman rubbed her temple, "This matter is done. Go home. The Wickam family have done all they could to preserve your reputation." She remained in eye contact with Rose. You... Rose responded openly and furiously, "But the more I listen to you, the more ironic this whole thing feels." She took a few steps towards Monica, "I'm aware you favor Elisa in your heart. But look at the granddaughter-in-law who is standing in front of you. She is a fraud, and a liar, just like you." However, she omitted the part that her daughter had cheated. Monica's eyes darkened. "I hope you can speak with respect. I'm trying my best to comfort you during this hard time. This has nothing to do with the current situation at hand. You are out of line!" Undertones of threat surfaced in her reply. However, Rose didn't take it seriously. "I hope your Wickam family reconsiders the new decision on this matter." She yelled, "Or I'll have you all dead!" "Dead?" The old man, who had been silent all there shortly. I'll have someone look after Linda in the meantime." "Good." He hung up the phone and rushed out.... One hour later. Bennett Group conference room. All the senior executives sat in chairs; their faces darkened. Norman clasped his hands in silence. James Markee glowered at the crowd, "We are powerless to whine or point the finger at anyone at this time. Does anyone have any good ideas? Speak now." Jessie Green frowned, "The Wickam Group obviously has a backhand for terminating the contract. Even if we seek peace, it may not be beneficial. The most pressing matter is to move swiftly and find a new alliance.” Calvin Hall replied, “However, based on the existing circumstances, only the Wickam family can provide us with the largest performance benefits. This is not at all done by the Darcey Group. The new Tabor Group doesn’t concentrate here and finds it difficult to work together. Now since the primary business is absent, we are sitting ducks.” An employee suggested, “Why not be a sole company?” Norman disagreed: “It costs a lot of money, and we don’t have enough trustworthy connections for that. If Mr. Wickam finds a backer, his partner will definitely come for our necks. We need to

dishes. Her hands were full of sod as the familiar notification pinged. “Elisa! Get your ass here!” She flung the dish towel, “Your aunt posted again!” The lady almost squealed in excitement. Elisa sprinted and grabbed her phone. Trending: Mrs. Benett’s speech. She put it on fullscreen. The video played, and there was Rose. Rose Benett: ‘Dear watchers, my name is Rose Benett. I’m the wife of Norman Benett, the president of Benett Group, and the mother of a victim, Linda Benett.’ ‘I’m here to expose our story.’ ‘A few years ago, she went into a coma to save the life of the president of the Wickam Group. The Wickams were aware of this. They were appreciative of her merit and promised to return the favor. Later, after Gareth and my niece Elisa’s relationship ended, they promised Linda engagement with their son.’ ‘At that time, my daughter was remorseful of her cousin’s situation that she disagreed with the proposal several times. Even if she liked Gareth in her heart, she didn’t want to be deemed as a homewrecker.’ ‘When there was no chance of Elisa Benett and Gareth Wickam’s relationship being repaired, they insisted on becoming engaged to my daughter. They persuaded her to say yes after trying multiple times.’ ‘In the end, they announced the dissolution of this engagement. They’ve accused our good family of all sorts of atrocities. From liars and frauds to fools. They’ve manipulated us to trust them and disposed of our family reputation for personal means.’ ‘This has gone too far, and we’re here to expose the Wickams.’ The two stared at each other after the video ended. “Look here. Rose posted a series of pictures on Linda’s medical records. They’re evidence.” Elisa raised her brow, “It’s predictable that Rose would be angry about the matter, but she is not blind-sighted. There’s more to this than just an exposé.” Rachel was struck with an epiphany. “There’s no denying her anger, but this is an act of desperation. I mean, this is related to the company.” She adjusted her apron, “Both the Benett and Wickam families are always motivated by corporal politics. This shows that the Benett Group is vulnerable now.” Rachel sounded contrite. Elisa implored, “She is up ago.” She folded the apron Rachel was wearing, “I’m going to avenge my father.” “I’ll have your back.” Us. Naturally, there are also Carle and Sheena Gilio. Elisa smiled and took her hand, “I know, you’re the best.” “Then...can we just sit back and watch the fools fight? Grab the popcorn, Liz.” She laughed, “The Wickams won’t have an ounce of cooperation with those lot. Are you going to intervene?” “No, but the cooperation of this project...” Elisa remembered about Darcey. The Wickam family put up an excellent performance, and this was only the beginning. Rachel was a little worried, “What’s wrong?” Elisa smiled and shook her head, “It’s okay. We’ll just go to the theater for a few days. By the way, I’m almost recovered now. Let’s go see Carle.” “But you...” “I have no problem taking a shower these days. What are you worried about?” “I’m afraid the Benett family will come after you...” “They have bigger fish to fry. Don’t worry, let’s go.” When Rachel realized that her condition had significantly improved and that she had a greater capacity for recuperation than others, she paused briefly before nodding. "Fine, but you can't stay with him for too long. We'll come back after a while. Let's just say I just came back from a business trip, and I'm tired." Elisa smiled, "Alright." She had been corresponding with Carle on WeChat over this time, and she had periodically sent videos. After giving a terrible excuse, she would hang up for his sake. there are plenty of opportunities for us to meet in the future. Not too long, I hope." Elisa smiled, "I took a nap during the flight. I can hold up for a bit. How do you feel now?" Elisa was already seated next to Carle when she spoke, and she
