

No Chance 75

Chapter 75 Familiar Ties

To select a mistress, one must not only evaluate her talents, but her family history as well.

A slob like Elisa Benett who is just skilled at being a full-time wife is far from ideal!

The next day, Elisa went to work in the law firm as usual. However, Jennifer's attitude towards her seemed to fare worst.

In retrospect, Elisa wasn't concerned by her presence since they didn't share the same office.

At the end of her shift, she received an unexpected call.

Elisa was down cast as soon as she recognized the caller ID.

Oh no, this number...

She hesitated for a moment, but eventually picked up the phone. "Hello, Mr. Wickam." Eliza greeted politely.

There was a pause from Jerry, followed by a weary sigh. "What is with the change of formality?" he responded.

a moment. "Is there a reason for this call?", she long as you accept me as your that caused Elisa to be teary-eyed. In the past several years of her marriage, her grandmother and father-in-law were the only lot to me...

chose to keep grab some afternoon tea? You see, I won't be here for long due to a business trip coming along. I'm afraid I won't have a stopped midway. She didn't quite understand the spontaneity to meet up all of a sudden. Is this some sort of effort to persuade her into reconciling things with back all the times her father-in-law supported her through these years. After a moment of you tell me your

"Chicago."

my driver send me there" quipped

She greeted Charli on the way out and was on the since Mr. Wickam hadn't shown up yet, traffic was probably to blame. She entered cafe was still empty, so she reserved a seat for Jerry and waited ten minutes later, Mr. Wickam just stepped off the plane and drove