they had feelings for him. Some were obsessed with his looks, some with his body, and some with his money. So he had never been serious with women. Many new women would come with just a snap of his fingers. "Don't... don't get upset. I know that you are unhappy right now. But I still think that you should tell me what happened. That way, I'll be able to help solve the misunderstanding between you two." "There is no need to solve our misunderstanding. Moreover, there has never been a misunderstanding between us." He had told her that she was not worthy. What else is there to misunderstand? He was suddenly at a loss for words. Vincent was considered a charismatic person. But... no matter how good one is, there is always someone better. And this someone better was the woman beside him. He could not even come up with any frivolous joke in her presence. There was an awkward silence in the air. Vincent stopped talking and concentrated on his driving. Elisa had no mood to talk to him either. However, his phone rang not long after they drove past two streets. It was Old Madam Wickam. Vincent turned on the loudspeaker and connected the call. "Grandma." The car was not Vincent's, so it did not connect to Vincent's phone Bluetooth. Julia's voice was heard immediately. "Vince, have you picked Elisa up yet?" Elisa pursed her lips quietly. Vincent laughed, "Yes, I've picked her up. Grandma, I'm on loudspeaker now. You can talk to her if you want to." Then answered, "Don't say that, Grandma. I'm fine. Don't worry." "Fine... I won't." Julia was obviously throwing a tantrum now. Elisa pursed her lips. She was suddenly at a loss for words. Vincent knew that the conversation could not go on anymore. He chuckled, "Grandma, don't worry. I will take care of Elisa. Nothing will happen!" Julia knew Elisa would not come back tonight either, so she relented. "Please take good care of Elisa, Vince. Thank you so much." "Don't mention it, Grandma. Don't worry. She will be fine with me." "Alright, alright. Visit me when you have the time, Elisa. I'll be waiting for you at home." The relaxed look on Elisa's face turned complicated again. She hesitated before agreeing, "Okay." They exchanged a few more words before ending the call. Vincent glanced at Elisa and sighed helplessly. "I know that you still don't like Gareth. He was indeed a jerk in the past. But he was still immature at that time! Haven't you realized how much he had changed now? Even though he still has a poor choice of words, he doesn't mean what he says most of the time." Elisa turned her head away towards the right. They had left Wickam Manor for some time and arrived at the city's busiest parts. She felt calmer as she watched cars and people passing by. Vincent continued speaking, "I know that you are unhappy now. But I still want to tell you this. I bumped into Gareth on the way just now. His car was parked at the side of the road. It seemed like he was waiting for someone. After I got into his car, I saw the gift he prepared for you on the co-drivers seat." Elisa froze. She thought hard. Gareth had indeed gone out for quite some time. It was a reasonable assumption to say that he

the Rolls Royce with Elisa in the co-drivers seat. Rachel looked at Elisa worriedly when she got out of the car. "Elisa." She did not ask any questions as Vincent was present. Elisa smiled at her, hinting that she was still all right. Then, Elisa turned to Vincent. Rachel followed after her. Vincent did not get out of the car. He knew it wouldn't be convenient for the girls to have a conversation if he were around. He winded down the car window and said calmly, like that. At that moment, many people were still paying attention to the hot search. Nicole was one of them. She had been busy all day. When she heard the maids discussing Gareth and Elisa on the hot search upon returning home, she could not help checking her Twitter. She initially thought it was just rumors or a gimmick to make them famous. But when she saw the photo of Gareth and Elisa acting so intimately, she lost it. Moreover, Gareth was the one making a move. She held her phone in her hand with her lips formed in a hard line. She did not utter a single word. Tears had already filled her eyes. Nicole's mother, Sharon Turner, had naturally heard about the rumor. She rushed to her daughter's room immediately. She saw Nicole sitting on the sofa alone hand over the family business to her. However, Gareth was the only exception to her. He was the only person who could break through her defenses and make her emotional. No one else in the world could make her sob. Sharon held her hand and took the phone away from her. "Stop reading. You know the situation better than anyone else." The toxic comment section might agitate her even more. Nicole sat stonily on the couch, not responding to her mother. Though she controlled her tears, she still felt a dull ache in her heart. No matter how much she was in denial, she saw Gareth taking the initiative to wrap his arms around Elisa as they left. Elisa was the passive one in their relationship. If Elisa also liked Gareth, Nicole felt worthy of being her opponent. However, Elisa treated him coldly. The fact that Gareth took the initiative made Nicole feel utterly defeated. This wasn't the result she had hoped to see. But what can I do now? What else can I do? I don't even have the opportunity to speak to him; he doesn't like it if I'm too forward. I could find an excuse to discuss business with him, but that will result in a formal discussion without much interaction. That is not what I want. A wave of sorrow engulfed her. She was at a loss, with annoyance and grievances building up within her. "The more I look at it, the more I think that something's off with the video. It seems he's just putting on a show," Sharon said softly, looking at her daughter. Nicole's eyelashes fluttered. Indeed, she had just seen a similar comment moments ago, and she had been convincing herself that was the case. Nevertheless, she still couldn't forget the moment he plucked roses for Elisa. After that, the roses were laid at the entrance of the office. Since the office had a wide entrance, he would have to buy more roses to fill it up. The thought of trembled. She could tell that Sharon wanted her to give up on Gareth. But... I'm unable to do that. He is such an outstanding man. Her mind was filled with images of Gareth looking handsome, decisive, and elegant. It was impossible for her to forget him, which was also devastating for her. After a moment of silence, she couldn't help asking, "Mom, what do you think they were doing?" Sharon frowned. "No one knows. Perhaps Mrs. Wickam wanted them to reconcile. When Gareth plucked roses for Elisa, Mrs. Wickam was there, wasn't she?" Nicole pursed her lips again as Sharon continued, "We were told yesterday that it was Elisa who made the company announcement, and so Mrs. Wickam forced Gareth to head over. How true is it, in your opinion?" Sharon didn't want to overanalyze the situation with Nicole for fear that Nicole might be even more obsessed with Gareth, but she didn't want to lie to her daughter either. Since Nicole wasn't dim-witted, she would eventually realize that anyway. She was merely clouded by sadness at that moment. "Even so, he will only do that willingly," Nicole said in a trembling voice, biting her lips. Sharon sighed. "Nicole Tabor." Nicole's gaze flickered. Sharon only addressed her by her full name whenever it was of grave concern. Of course, Nicole knew again. "Since we are working together, I will protect my partner! You don't have to worry about that. As for Elisa, I've never once wished her well." The sweet voice sounded sinister at that moment, but Linda overlooked that. Instead, she said in excitement, "Sure! I'll wait for your news tomorrow. It all depends on you now. I will give her a hard time as soon as I'm out!" Linda had utterly lost her cool, ignoring Rose's signals. The caller was very satisfied with her reaction. "Very well. Let's work well together. I'm sure you can handle your mother." "Of course." "Pack your things. You can get out in two hours." Linda's eyes widened with incredulity and shock. Two hours? Is she that powerful? How could she prove that she's not related to the news? Before she could ask anything, the caller hung up. Linda was deep in her thoughts when she put her phone down. She seemed to have forgotten about her anger toward Elisa. Rose's frown deepened as she looked at her. "How could you agree so abruptly? Do you know what it entails to work with her? If she's influential, we might be involved in the rest of her plan!" Linda laughed coldly. "So what? She can let us out of here in two hours, but what can you do? You make me suffer here; how much longer do you want to subject me to it?" Rose kept frowning, still disagreeing with her daughter's decision. "We can also be out after some time. There's no need to be so hasty about it." However, Linda gritted her teeth. "I don't care! I just want Elisa to go to jail right now! I don't want to see her disgusting face any longer!" Rose's face darkened. I also want Elisa to get the retributions she deserves, but it's not the right time now! If I stop Linda now, she won't tell me anything in the future; if this continues, she will be knee-deep in this mess. What should I do? Taking a deep breath, Rose told her severely, "If that's what you want, I won't stop you. However, you must tell me everything that person asks you to do. We can talk through it to see if she's lying to you. Don't do everything she did, Rachel's advice wouldn't be of use. She would need to seek therapy from a professional. That was why Rachel remained quiet in the end. After arriving at the office, people were looking at Elisa differently. Since Gareth confessed his feelings to her, no one dared to treat her as an ordinary employee. They realized the divorce was just a tiny squabble between the couple; Gareth had already regretted his decision and pursued her again. She's going to be our boss's waist made him look even more indifferent in a suit. There was a grim look on his face, and his eyes exuded coldness. His tightly pursed lips accentuated the icy vibes he had been giving. The women in the room no longer dared to look at him, each lowering her head. As soon as he entered, he looked at Elisa, who was seated right next to the main seat. She was reading the documents in front of her calmly, but he could still feel the distance between them. Gareth frowned and sat down next to her while everyone held their breaths. He was not someone to be crossed, especially at that moment. Everyone was perplexed to see that. With Ms. Benett here, he should be in a good mood. Why is he so terrifying today? The people sitting close to him felt like they were frozen in their seats. Is it because Ms. Benett rejected him? That seems plausible. Some of them looked at Elisa begrudgingly. He is such a decent person. Why didn't she accept him? Now, we have to suffer because of that. I can already imagine how we would be criticized later. If all our proposals are going to be shot down later, we have to spend the next few days rewriting them. This is tough... Since everyone had already arrived, Thomas looked at Elisa and announced, "Ms. Benett, we can start now. Can you report the latest progress in the project? Perhaps each department manager can also give an update." Elisa said calmly, "Let's start from the human resource department.”The human resource department manager froze upon hearing that.Though he was grateful that Elisa gave you promised, eh?”Elisa knew the odds were stacked against her. Gareth let her drive the project, but she didn’t realize the manager acted on his own accord. She had to take responsibility for that.Without any explanation, she nodded. “I’ve overlooked this.” Gareth’s frown deepened. He expected her to explain the situation.However, without waiting for his reply, she looked at the team from the planning department.“You shifted people around and exchanged tasks with another department, delaying our progress and reducing efficiency. You didn’t come up with the design or the plan, and now we have to call off our current plan. Now both departments have to work overtime to get back on track. Do you have any objections?”Everyone was speechless upon hearing that.What the hell? She resembles Mr. Wickam so much when she asks us to work overtime!Gareth pursed his lips quietly. He was clear
