No Chance Of Remarriage: Get Lost Chapter 801

'Squelch!'

That was the sound of the dagger piercing through her flesh!

Gareth's pupils shrank at once, and his expression completely changed!

Thomas was also panicked!

Elisa groaned dully and immediately slapped the man away. She forced through the pain and instantly broke free from the man's dagger!

She had sensed danger just now, and the dagger avoided crucial areas. The man's blade pierced the side of her body, which was parallel to her heart. It didn't crack any of her bones.

But...

The puncture was very deep. Fresh blood was already flowing out!

Other women would have cried in pain or acted weakly in this situation.

But not Elisa. Everything was as usual, and it was as though this was a small matter to her. She wasn't asking for help at all.

Once everything was done, Elisa stood up without help, as if she wasn't in pain.

The doctors looked at her in astonishment. "Ms. Benett, you're the toughest woman I've ever met."

Elisa smiled. "Thank you."

"You're welcome. This is my job. Don't get your wound wet for a few days; change bandages daily. Don't do any physical activities, and don't eat spicy food. Have balanced meals."

Elisa nodded. "Alright."

Just like that, they walked out. As Gareth came over to pick her up, Elisa immediately said, "I'm fine. I can walk on my own."

Gareth glanced at her four-inch-tall heels and couldn't be bothered to say anything. He picked her up.

It was clear from her expression that she wasn't used to it.

She paused and said softly, "Anything is fine."

Gareth frowned. He felt slightly restless, seeing how tough she was and how she didn't rely on the people around her.

He didn't say anything and walked out before shutting the door to her room.

Thomas was in the living room and hadn't left. He was still waiting for Gareth's instructions.

Gareth's expression seemed to have turned colder. "How long are you going to try to be brave?!"

Upon hearing the fury intertwined in his voice, Elisa looked at him in slight surprise. "What's wrong with you?"

Gareth's brows instantly furrowed.

He also wanted to know what was wrong with him!

Elisa couldn't understand the reason for his behavior. She said calmly, "I can eat by myself. You may leave."

After that, Elisa sat up, and her actions were very smooth. If Gareth hadn't personally witnessed how her spotless and perfect shoulder had been mutilated, he would have doubted if Elisa had actually been injured.

She ate with ease with one hand. Gareth felt that if he stuck around, it would make him seem like he was just hanging out. He didn't say a word as he got up and left.

You're really putting on an act to seem disinterested. You're stubborn, yet you want to take care of her secretly. Do you think I'm a fool?"

At that moment, Vincent was slightly incensed because Gareth had gotten rid of Rachel. He was a little bothered because many people could take care of Elisa. Why did it have to be Rachel?

Gareth's sharp gaze fell on Vincent, and there was an intense annoyance deep in Gareth's eyes.

But Vincent wasn't afraid. He snorted coldly. "Stay the way you are! Stay single! You're not worthy of Elisa!"

After that, Vincent didn't want to speak to Gareth any longer. He turned and walked out.

He feared that he would start arguing with Gareth if he stayed on.

Gareth's expression was cold. After Vincent left, he sat quietly on the couch alone. At that moment, he lit a cigarette and puffed out rings of smoke.

When Rachel saw that Elisa had opened her eyes, Rachel smiled and said, "I knew that you would be awake by now. My timing is impeccable. Come on, babe, drink this herbal tonic and recuperate!"

Elisa tore off the blanket on her, and Rachel immediately panicked slightly. "Don't! Let me help you! You're a patient now! In any case, you should be more delicate!"

Elisa was dumbstruck.

As soon as Rachel said it, she saw Elisa sit up like a regular person.

"Are you putting on an act in front of me? Are you deliberately pretending that you aren't very hurt?" Rachel sized Elisa up.

Elisa immediately laughed in exasperation. "No."

Rachel sighed in frustration at once. "You try too hard to be brave. You should be more delicate."

"I'm not sure yet." Elisa smiled. "You should go back and rest. Don't worry. I'll be fine."

Elisa didn't tell Rachel the truth. She didn't want her good friend to worry.

Rachel sighed in frustration. "Rest well. Let me know if there are any problems. I'll come over at any time. Somehow, I feel like Gareth is unreliable!"

Elisa laughed lightly. "Alright."

Just like that, Rachel left in a reluctant and worried state.

When she returned, she saw Vincent sitting on the couch with a dark expression. She furrowed her brows and asked, "Why didn't you tell me something happened to Liz?"

Vincent's gaze swept past her indifferently. "She told me not to tell you."

"I can't tell you about it yet. You'll find out in the future. It's not time for Elisa to die yet." The girlish voice sounded good but was intertwined with frost, giving others a chill in their spines.

But Linda was disturbed by her confused and jittery feelings, so she ignored them. She gripped her cell phone tightly and asked anxiously, "Then when will she die?!"

The other party was silent for a moment and said with ease, "Soon. You won't have to wait too long."

The person hung up after that.

Linda put down her cell phone slightly apprehensively, and her brows furrowed tightly.

"Why do I feel like this person isn't very reliable? Why is she still saying this at such a time? Elisa and Gareth have an ambiguous relationship, and Will is still pursuing Elisa. Elisa's power will only grow. When that time comes, it'll be harder to deal with her. What on earth is that person waiting for? She said it won't be long, but I still feel like it will take a long time!"

Norman was slightly frustrated seeing his daughter silent. He walked to Linda and sat down next to her before pulling her into his arms. He consoled her and said, "You're the apple of my eye. How could I bear to shout at you? I couldn't control myself, and my voice was a little louder than it should have been. I was also afraid that you would say something else and others would overhear us. Don't you believe your dad?"

Norman looked at his daughter gently. There were still traces of stubble on his face. He had become slightly haggard lately. When Linda turned to look at her father, surprise flickered across her face.

In the past, her dad had always dressed neatly. Even if he had a slightly plump figure, in any case, he had a dignified appearance. But now... Why does he have eye bags?

He's still working. Why is there stubble on his face?

At that moment, Linda evidently noticed that something was wrong. She looked at him with tightly wrinkled brows. "Dad, is there something wrong at work?"

Linda wasn't fussing about it anymore. Company affairs were more important.

Right now, she didn't know anything. Perhaps she could find some answers when she went to the office!

The night slowly darkened.

But some people weren't sleeping.

Gareth was in the bedroom. He had just showered, and his face was still dark. His rage toward Elisa had yet to subside.

His cell phone rang. There wasn't a name saved to the number.

Gareth had the same habit as Elisa. They didn't record anybody's numbers because they both had photographic memories.

This number belonged to Thomas. Gareth answered the call.

"Mr. Wickam, I've gotten people to investigate. Those assailants are hiding well. There isn't much of a trail yet."
