No Chance Of Remarriage: Get Lost Chapter 811

Elisa came to her senses and shook her head. "No."

She thought of Linda but felt there was nothing to tell Gareth about.

Gareth and Linda had a complex relationship. Even when he knew that Linda wasn't his savior, he treated her differently at the end of the day.

Gareth's face darkened at Elisa's refusal to speak. In the end, he was just meddling. She didn't even consider using him.

Pfft...

Gareth got up and didn't say anything to her as he walked out.

He shut the door softly, but Elisa could tell he was unhappy.

She leaned against the headboard and couldn't be bothered to call after him or say anything else to him. her with anything. They were from two different worlds, and her attitude was evident. Perhaps he ...

No!

Impossible!

How can her parents sell their property out of the blue? Her dad is the chairman of Benett Corporation. How could they have fallen to such a stage with his position?

She immediately said, "Liz, you're talking nonsense again!"

Although Linda's voice was critical at that moment, her heart was suspended. She held her breath and listened with rapt attention. She didn't want to miss what Elisa said.

Elisa chuckled. "If you say so, Linda. I don't know if it's true. After all, I haven't personally verified it. I just heard rumors from others."

Gareth wasn't around that day. Elisa was at ease, and Rachel kept her company. The two laughed and chatted, and after a while, Rachel forced Elisa to sleep.

In the evening, Rachel smiled and looked at Elisa. "Babe, what do you want to eat?"

"Anything is fine." Elisa wasn't picky about food.

"Alright. I'll get you something!"

"Sorry for troubling you."

"Pfft! Why are you sorry? I'm going to remember it all! For all the times I prepared your meals, you have to repay me and make me the same number of meals in the future! You scratch my back, and I'll scratch yours, but you have to repay my kindness tenfold! I make calls to instruct other people to prepare your food, but you have to personally cook for me. It's fair, don't you think so?" Rachel said, very pleased with herself.

Elisa couldn't help but laugh. "Yes. It makes sense."

Rachel was amused since she often leeches on Elisa for meals. She said, "Alright. Let me get someone to make you some food."

Elisa was done talking to Linda.

She had said everything she needed to say and gave Linda enough information to do her research.

Linda was a smart woman; she must have figured out something by now. She would be able to find out more from tonight's argument.

Of course, she had to teach Linda a lesson. Seeing her enemy getting strung up put Elisa in a good mood.

Linda's lawless activity had drawn her to persecution by law enforcement. And it scared her witless to the point of depression. It was logical for Norman to hush up about their predicament from Linda and let her live in her own bubble. Of course, Linda wouldn't want to be lied to. So, as a loving cousin sister, she must intervene and defend Linda's interest.

Suddenly, Elisa's phone rang. She thought it was Linda, but it turned out to be Will.

She answered the call but remained silent.

Will asked, "How did the business trip go?"

"Nothing special," Elisa replied sedately.

Elisa's response, Will breathed a sigh of relief. Will assumed Elisa was doing great

Will raised his eyebrow, "Can't hold it anymore?"

Cole's expression changed slightly; he hacked a sheepish cough. His small eyes now looked as if they had shut closed.

He rubbed his nose before speaking, "Mr. Darcey, you... you know she's hurt and is worried. Why didn't you ask her directly?"

"If I asked, it would only make her feel like I'm monitoring her."

Cole was at a loss for words.

You're observing her twenty-four hours a day. Doesn't that count as monitoring?

Even if he had no ill intention but to protect her, she would still be unhappy if she discovered his action without consulting her will.

Cole held his tongue. He could only nod, "Ah... you're right."

She squeezed a word through her teeth and choked back the rest of her sentence.

Linda took a deep breath and thought to herself. Forget it. I'll hold on first and talk to them after dinner.

Norman was excited, "Really? Let me taste it."

Linda took a deep breath. She was even more upset now, "Why are you still trying to lie to me? Do you think I'm unreliable and will tell other people about it? Or is it because you think I'm incapable of helping? Either way, we're a family. I'm your only daughter. Why won't you tell me? I want to help!"

"You shouldn't hide things from me to protect me. That's not fair! You might think that's the right thing to do, but I don't! That's fraud!!"

Linda yelled at the top of her lungs, and her eyes were filled with profound sorrow.

Norman was taken aback. He sighed helplessly, "What do you want us to do so you will believe us?"

Linda shook her head and looked at them with disbelief, "I've already said so much, but you still wouldn't tell me the truth!"

Norman thought to himself, looking perturbed. Yet, he couldn't say a word to defend himself.

There was nothing that he could do to ease the situation.

"Why? Didn't we already have enough? Gareth knew it was you, Dad. Have you ever thought about the consequences?"

Today at work, she had tried to ask around for information, but to her dismay, the office was unusually empty. She couldn't find anything useful. That indicated her father didn't tell anyone about it. Otherwise, Benett Corporation would have been propelled into a state of chaos.

Norman gasped and put down his hands, speaking somewhat helplessly, "I know I messed up. But the damage has been done. Now, we can only keep our chin up and deal with any challenges as they come. Linda, Dad knows your concern. Do you really think Gareth is delaying because he is too busy to deal with us?"

Linda was taken aback. She asked Norman, "What do you mean?"

"He is not keen to take action against Benett Corporation."

Rose turned pale suddenly!

If Elisa died, then the Benett Corporation...!

Elisa beamed and said indifferently, "God knows!"

"Tsk. So greedy and gutsy. No wonder he is so fat!"

Elisa chuckled and said nothing while Rachel couldn't help guffawing, "They must be super upset now. They hate you and always wanted you dead, but now you're too important to them, and they can't do anything with you."

Rachel pieced together the causality. If they killed Elisa, then Gareth would not spare them.

Without Elisa being of service to the Wickam Group, the Benett Corporation would be extinct!

Elisa twitched her lips, "My baby is so smart."

"Of course!! Otherwise, how can I be your baby?"

Elisa couldn't help laughing, "You'd still be my baby even if you're not smart."

Gareth walked in and chanced upon Elisa's words. His expression looked cold and angry while glowering at Elisa's door.
