

No Chance 87

Chapter 87 There Might Be a Twist

It was a shame that the audience couldn't record the trial. Or else, they would have recorded every second of it and shared it for all to see!

None of them believed that Elisa would be putting up a fight. They were just there for the entertainment.

The speaker finished his concise presentation on the case.

The calm judge spoke, "Does the defence counsel have any objections against the prosecution?"

Vincent, who had expected the opposition to bring up the points, spoke up confidently, "We object."

Gareth sat in his seat, but his mind was wandering. His gaze was fixed on Elisa.

eyebrow twitched as he looked against the prosecution's charges. Firstly, according to the Contract Law and the 'General Principles of the Civil Law', any properties explained the five points clearly,

felt that Will Darcey would unquestionably finished speaking,

but the five points that you have at Elisa. If it was Iris, he would have she would be able to pick holes in anyone else argued that all his points were wrong, Vincent was certain that his opponent would lose. Making such a move astonishment on his

"No one would reject all five points at once. Vincent's points are right on the mark. If Elisa wanted to overrule them, not only would she have to have certain verbal skills, but she must have evidence to case would be a challenge." Charli lightly