Chapter 871 Gareth's Warning

"If I don't interfere, this company will become Benett Group soon! You've really disappointed me, Gareth. When did you start to concern yourself with her?" Darren was in a towering rage.

But Julia was overjoyed!

This was how her grandson should be! There was no one for him but Liz!

Liz was an exceptional woman, and she was also Black-Eyed Susan. Julia was blessed to have such an excellent granddaughter!

Black-Eyed Susan had quite the reputation!

At the next moment, she looked at Darren and said in a low voice, "They have their own path to forge. You should quickly step down and stop meddling in their business!"

Julia was in a great mood now!

Gareth had an indifferent expression. "Up to you."

After that, he got up and didn't look at Old Mr. Wickam as he walked out.

Julia looked at her grandson worriedly, but Gareth quickly walked out of sight. She immediately looked at Darren furiously. "If I find out that you looked for Liz, I will divorce you! I will disappear for the rest of your life!"

"Julia!" Darren roared.

But she didn't even glance at him as she walked out quickly.

Jerry looked at Gareth and said calmly, "So what do you think now? Do you really want to remarry Liz?"

"Yes," Gareth replied without any hesitation.

Jerry was surprised, "Are you sure?"

"Mm," Gareth replied succinctly.

Jerry stared at him, "Do you really love Liz, or do you simply just perceive her as wife material?"

Gareth burrowed and looked at Jerry. "Given Elisa's current plight, do you think she's ready for a relationship? So, I am her best choice if she doesn't want any emotional attachment."

"I'm not asking about her. I'm asking you," Jerry said solemnly, waiting for his response.

On the next day.

Elisa went to work as usual.

However, by now, malicious rumors had spread around the office.

Thomas intervened and curbed the spread of rumors. No one openly talked about it again, but they stealthily exchanged looks.

Especially when they saw Elisa, they would give her a dirty look.

Elisa didn’t take their aggression to heart. She minded her own business.

She must bite the bullet. In any case, she was depravedly targeted in the workplace. There was work and responsibility that had to be done. As long as Gareth believed her, nothing else mattered.

Although she had retaliated and denounced against Old Mr. Wickam that she would quit the collaboration if he didn’t like it. But the truth was, if he terminated the contract, she would weep over the hard work she had poured into the project.

This man was never shy to openly express his feelings to her, which bothered her.

She had told Will to stop pining for her, but he never listened. And she refused to repeat herself again and again.

To most people, Will was a person with high EQ. But to Will, Elisa was his soft spot. No matter how much and what he did to please her, she remained unmoved. Worse still, she would not fall for him.

But he wasn't bothered by these hiccups. He was adamant about trying harder and refused to give up on Elisa.

"Let's take a look at the proposal first," Will said as he took out the file with a smile as if nothing had happened.

"Yeah, I understand. That's why I feel bad for you. Do you really have to trouble yourself like this, Liz?"

Elisa's eyes glazed over without saying a word.

Will stared at her with his keen and earnest eyes.

Elisa had never seen Will like this, so solemn and serious. His unusual demeanor made Elisa uneasy.

But the next moment, the man uttered in his hypnotic voice again.

"I know you never like to rely on others and want to take the matter into your own hands to create a comeback and avenge your father. But this will only wear you out. Friends are supposed to help each other. Why do you push me away? Do you not trust me?"

Chapter 877 Stop Joking Around — Someone stoked the turmoil: 'Hey, don't you feel ashamed for defending Elisa? She must have hired you to alleviate her bad image on the internet. Everyone knows Gareth and Will are not on good terms, yet she's got every trick in her book to double-cross between them. Isn't her motive obvious? How ridiculous of you to defend this wicked woman.'

— The comment fired back: 'What do you mean that I'm defending her? I'm just stating the fact!'

— Subsequently, one comment pointed out: 'Yea. Your so-called 'fact' reminded me that Elisa held Will's arm, showed up at the banquet, and called for a divorce with Gareth. This proves that she was having an affair with Will despite being married to Gareth. After the divorce, she helped Will in the lawsuit, with Gareth suffering billions of losses. It was obvious that she sided with Will. Her collaboration with Wickam Group this time is nothing but a plot. Her motive is to steal Wickam Group's confidential data for her own gain.'

weighed in and favored the instigator: 'Preach it, bro! That's how Elisa succeeded in reinventing the comeback. Old Mrs. Wickam had always wanted them to reconcile. It's not a secret that she's been trying various ways to see Gareth and Elisa reconcile. Now, she will run away with Will with the stolen confidential data. Gareth is — A comment concurred: 'Exactly. Her net worth is indeterminable. As an elite lawyer and hacker, she must have made a fortune. Not to mention that she's also the daughter of the Benetts and Gareth Wickam's ex-wife. We don't even know how much she owns. She's clearly out of your league, dude.'

Mockery and speculations flooded the internet. Some netizens reckoned the trolls were paid to create controversy against Elisa. It didn't take long for the trolls to digress from the discussion to insult Elisa for being a slut.

Everyone thought Elisa was in cahoots with Will against Gareth over Wickam Group's confidential data. Now that Gareth had switched to an ancillary security system, the repercussion would be awry if he continued to let Elisa stay on. Many netizens had expressed their concerns by messaging Gareth on Twitter, asking him to be careful and stop trusting Elisa.

In any case, those celebrities who paid for media coverage had given up such a gimmick. And those who had never employed such publicity devices had become even more resigned to the idea.

Elisa hesitated for a moment but still answered the call.

However, before she could say anything, she heard his cold voice from the other side of the phone, "Why did you see him at a time like this?"

Elisa's eyes flickered. She gasped a sigh in her heart.

"It was my mistake. I will be more careful after this."

Gareth was upset. Although Elisa couldn't see his expression, she knew he must be furious now.

"Nobody believes you. Don't you think you owe me an explanation?"

"Do you not believe me?" Instead of getting riled up at the circumstance, Elisa asked calmly.

It wasn't because she was trying to convince Gareth to believe her.

Gareth looked even glummer now. He responded with a sneer, "Why should I believe you?"

The animated voice on the other end of the phone suddenly sneered. Linda burrowed, offended by its rude response. But she didn't say anything because she was well aware of the power dynamic between them.

But before she could overthink, the animated voice sneered again.

"If Gareth was an easy character. Why would I go through all these troubles?"

Linda pursed her lips and remained silent. After all, he or she was right. If it only needed an incident to instigate Gareth against Elisa, there was no need for her to go to such lengths to sow discord between them.

"So, what's next?"
