

Read Novel No Way Back Chapter 31-40

No Way Back Chapter 31-All the students in the cafeteria jumped in shock.

They saw a tall, middle-aged man in a suit. He still looked handsome and charming for his age.

“D*mn, who’s that? He gave me such a big shock.”

“Hang on. He looks kind of familiar...”

“Isn’t that Jack Fowler, the Emeritus Chairman of Fowler Corporation? He’s also our school’s donor!”

“D*mn it. He’s a legend in the business world. I never thought I’d see him in person. I must take a picture first!”

“Didn’t Mr. Fowler just yell for Jane Fowler? Isn’t she the biological daughter the Fowler family lost 19 years ago? But Mr. Fowler looks very angry.”

Even Lila was shocked.

“Mama mia, he almost scared me to death,” Lila said.

She quickly calmed her heart.

When Lila saw that it was Jack Fowler, her heart tightened. “Janie, isn’t that Mr. Fowler?”

Judging by Jack’s menacing look, he had not come there in peace.

Lila suddenly felt very nervous and looked at Jane.

Jane opened her m*uth and was about to say something.

At that moment, Jack followed everyone’s gaze and saw Jane.

He immediately rushed toward Jane.

All the students who were eating around Jane and Lila quickly scrambled aside.

They quietly took out their phones and waited for a good show.

When Jack saw that Jane was eating, his anger rose instantly.

“You’re eating? How could you still be in the mood to eat? I’ll make you eat!”

He was so furious that he flipped Jane’s food to the ground.

Some bits of food landed on Jane’s and Lila’s clothes.

“Oh no…”

Lila was wearing a skirt with a pair of wh*te stockings.

Some of the juices from the food splashed onto Lila’s stockings.

It was a little scalding.

Jane’s eyes turned icy cold instantly.

She slammed her hands on the table and stood up.

“Jack Fowler, have you fu*king lost your mind?”

Jack never thought that Jane would be bold. That she would dare to stand up to him and yell at him. “How, how dare you speak to me like this?” he yelled back.

“Jane Fowler, you’ve become too bold!”

Jane ignored Jack and showed Lila concern first. “Lila, are you ok?”

“I’m fine,” Lila said. “I got a little scalded.”

Instead, Lila was more worried about Jane.

Jack had indeed come for Jane without any good intentions.

“Dad!”

Just then, Dwayne walked into the cafeteria and saw what happened. He quickly went over and pulled his father back.

“Dad, calm down,” Dwayne said. “We’re on campus. Don’t create a scene here. Let’s talk somewhere…”

“How can I calm down?” Jack replied. “Peter is still lying unconscious in the school clinic, and it’s all Jane’s fault!”

Jack stared furiously at Jane.

It was as if the woman before him was not his daughter, his own flesh and blood.

Instead, she was an enemy with whom he had a deep grudge.

Jane frowned without leaving creases on her face.

Peter was lying unconscious?

Hmph.

He was really useless.

She had only insulted him a bit. Could he not take it and pass out?

2/5

22.31

Chapter 31

Jane had endured so many years of the Fowler family's physical and psychological abuse, yet she had not collapsed.

What right did Peter have to collapse?

"What? Peter Fowler is..."

Lila could not help but feel stunned too.

Didn't Jane say everything was fine?

Why did Peter faint?

"That's none of my business," Jane said. "Jack Fowler, are you insinuating that I hit Peter and knocked him unconscious?"

"You don't have the guts to hit Peter because you're afraid of being beaten to death! But Maddie said that Peter had fainted after seeing you. It was Larry who found Peter and carried him to the school clinic!" Jack shouted. "What on earth did you do to Peter that made him collapse like that? Jane Fowler, I want an answer from you," Jack said fiercely.

Jack's chest was heaving, and his handsome face had turned bright red from anger.

If eyes could kill, Jane would have probably died a million times now. "Dad..." Dwayne said. To the other students, he yelled, "All of you, stop filming! Get out!"

As a professional fighter, Dwayne was afraid that if videos of this confrontation were distributed online, it would be a great humiliation to the Fowler family's reputation.

Thus, Dwayne wanted to chase away the bystanders, delete all the videos and photos from their phones, and then try to persuade his father to stop.

Although it was a little difficult, it was a good thing that the Fowler Corporation was the school's donor. The campus security heard about the commotion and had come to control the crowd.

"Why chase them out? Are you feeling guilty?" Jane asked.

How could Jane not know what Dwayne was thinking? Did he think they could get away after creating trouble? Dream on.

Jane decided to stand up and face all of the students' phone cameras.

She said coldly, "I don't know why Peter Fowler fainted, but I will explain clearly why he came to see me.

3/5

22:31

Chapter 31

"Everyone should know that today, I broke Peter Fowler's record and successfully solved Professor Henderson's program.

"Peter Fowler came to see me about that.

"So here's the conclusion. I surpassed Peter Fowler, and he fainted because his ego was hurt."

There was an uproar.

They had expected it when they heard that Peter had fainted.

Anybody would have guessed that was the reason he had fainted.

It was simply because Peter was a proud person and had been honored as the most outstanding computer programming genius the University of Oricle had ever had.

He had held this honor for barely two years before being clearly overthrown by Jane's superiority.

On top of that, Jane was a woman with whom the Fowler family had just reunited. She was Peter's very own younger sister.

As the older brother, Peter must have felt very embarrassed.

Dwayne's face twisted very strangely.

By the time Jane had finished her speech, it was too late to clear the cafeteria.

He did not expect Jane to be so ruthless and refuse to save the Fowler family and Peter from embarrassment.

"Sht up, Jane Fowler! Peter isn't such a weak man! He's my son! I know him better than anyone!"

After Jack had calmed down a bit, he started to panic.

In the past, even if Peter were unconscious, Jack would not have been so reckless.

It was because it was Jane who had hurt Peter.

She was the biological daughter Jack had lost for 19 years.

When Jane severed ties with Jack and left the Fowler family, Jack felt very embarrassed.

4/5

22:31

Chapter 31

Since then, Jack had been very angry at Jane.

That was why when he heard that Peter was hurt by Jane, Jack could not control himself and rushed to confront Jane.

Thus, he had landed himself in such an unfavorable predicament.

"When Peter wakes up, you can ask whether what I said is true or not," Jane said. "You came charging at me without any evidence and even threw my food to the ground and scalded Lila's leg."

“Mr. Fowler, I give you three seconds to apologize now.”

The entire cafeteria was suddenly deathly quiet.

That wasn't right.

Things should not have turned out like this.

Wasn't Jack Jane's biological father?

He was also the Emeritus Chairman of Fowler Corporation.

However, Jane had spoken to Jack in such a tone and called him Mr.

Fowler instead of Dad.

This was simply wild.

Jack's eyes grew wide immediately. “Apologize? Do you want me to apologize? Jane, who do you think you are?”

Since the day Jack was born, Anna was the only person who had ever dared to speak to him in this manner.

“Mr. Fowler, don't try to act close. I have already severed all ties with the Fowler family. I'm no longer related to any of you,” Jane said.

“You hurt someone and also made baseless accusations. How dare you still question who I am?”

“So the famous Emeritus Chairman of Fowler Corporation is merely a hypocrite who bullies the weak!”

Read Novel No Way Back Chapter 32

No Way Back Chapter 32-What the heck?

What a bombshell.

That was such a huge bomb.

It was simply too exciting.

Everyone present could not help but suck in their breaths.

Before this, word about Jane being the biological daughter of the Fowler family, who had been lost for 19 years, was the hot trending news.

Everyone thought that Jane's story was like the Cinderella story.

What happened in the end?

What had they just heard?

Jane had given it up willingly.

She had severed ties with the Fowler family.

She was now no longer the Fowler family's daughter.

Had Jane lost her mind?

"Janie, I'm fine," Lila said. "You don't have to do that. I don't think Mr. Fowler did it on purpose..."

Lila looked worriedly at Jane.

Lila had not dared bring this up before because she was afraid it would touch on Jane's raw nerves and make her sad.

However, Lila had not thought that Jane would say it in front of so many people.

This was so Jane could cut off every single relationship she had with the Fowler family.

But Lila was worried.

She worried that Jane's heart would hurt.

"I must do this because he hurt you," Jane replied. "I don't care whether he did it on purpose or not. He must apologize."

Jane narrowed her eyes, exuding a dangerous aura.

The Fowler family? She was long past caring about them.

The present Jane saw her so-called family ties with the Fowler family as nothing compared to a scar on Lila's body.

Besides, Lila was dragged into Jane's business with the Fowler family because of Jane. Lila was accidentally hurt because of Jane.

Hence, Jane had to get this apology for Lila.

“You want me to apologize? In your dreams,” Jack said.

“When Peter wakes up and tells me that you did something bad to him, Jane Fowler, I will make you pay!”

Jack was threatened in front of so many people by the biological daughter he looked down on.

As a man and a father, his pride did not allow him to apologize.

If he apologized now, Jack would become the laughingstock in Stormton City’s business world.

He was extremely furious now, so he stormed out.

“Fine,” Jane said. “Jack Fowler, you will regret this.”

Jane knew very well that a sc*mbag like Jack would never swallow his pride and apologize for his mistakes.

Each member of the Fowlers was more disg*sting than the last. She felt si*k.

They hurt others and did not care about finding out the truth. Yet they sat on their high horses and pretended to be doing charity.

It was like they were telling others that it was their honor to be wronged by the Fowler family.

And no one had no right to reject it. One could only accept.

Jane’s stomach started to ache a little.

She had taken a life-threatening bullet to save such a shameless man, her father, and had her life hanging by a thread.

Jane wanted to give herself a good scolding.

How could she have been so st*pid?

“Janie, are you okay?” Lila asked.

She noticed that Jane did not look too good and quickly ran over to support her.

"I'm fine, Lila," Jane said. "Don't worry about me. I will make sure Jack Fowler apologizes. I will make sure he does right by you."

Jane clenched her fists. Her eyes were ablaze. She looked ready to go for the k*ll.

"Janie, it's okay. You don't have to. Really," Lila said. "I only wish for you to be happy and joyful. We're fine. Let's not have anything more to do with the Fowler family."

Seeing Jane like this, Lila felt a strong ache in her heart.

Lila's small injury was nothing compared to Jane's.

But Jane seemed to turn into a different person every time the Fowler family was involved.

It was like a closed wound that had been ripped open again and was bleeding fresh blood.

It was a pain that suffocated her.

Nobody could have imagined that Stormton City's top wealthy family, the Fowler family, which was the envy of everyone, was made up of such ruthless monsters.

There was no point in regretting her failure to stop Jane from returning to the Fowler family.

Lila only wanted to take Jane's hand and get as far away as possible from the Fowler family.

"Don't worry, Lila, this doesn't pain me. I'm very alert now because I saw the Fowler family's true colors a long time ago.

"This is not about getting involved with them. This is about you.

"If I dragged my best friend into this mess and cannot protect you, then I'd rather be dead."

Being able to live her life again was a god-given chance. Jane could not continue being a wimp and avoid the Fowler family. She also could not keep her head in the sand and do nothing after being bullied.

Jane needed to allow herself to bloom and flourish, to be beautiful and follow her heart, and to be free and never restrained again.

The Fowler family? They had gotten on the wrong side of Jane, and she did not care if they were destroyed.

After all, Jane was past caring about them. She also did not want to be hurt again by that so-called family.

Seeing how resolute Jane was and that nobody could change her mind, Lila decided to sh*t her m*uth.

Lila had promised that no matter what happened, she would always stick by Jane and support her.

Lila remembered her promise. It was for the past, present, and future.

Thus, Lila did not try to stop Jane again.

Her heart felt very warm and peaceful.

“Thanks, Janie,” Lila thought.

Lila thought how wonderful it was to have met Jane and become best friends.

Jack had simply walked away, leaving behind a mess.

Dwayne had no choice but to clean up after his father.

Although Dwayne was a professional fighter, his education from the Fowler family was still very much in his bones. It was the influence of being of noble blood in the rich, upper-class society.

He was very familiar with how to deal with such matters.

Plus, he was almost six feet nine inches tall and very muscular. His chest muscles were bulging, and he had an eight-pack abdomen. He was well-tanned and had a pair of eyes that seemed to be shooting fire. Those eyes were so aggressive that nobody dared to look straight into them. Even when fully clothed, one felt Dwayne’s oppressive presence.

After Dwayne had identified himself and his reason for coming, the security guards began to take Dwayne’s orders without thinking twice.

The security guards started to check all the students’ phones and deleted all related videos and photos.

What about students who refused to comply or claimed that they did not take any videos and so did not want to hand over their phones?

That was fine too.

The Fowler family was one of the University of Oricle's donors.

At the same time, they were a power not to be underestimated in Stormton City.

Anyone found to have leaked any videos would suffer a terrible death.

A lawsuit was still mild. They would get f*ced with a huge compensation bill to pay, forced to quit school, or not be able to find a job after graduation.

They would have to face the consequences by themselves.

Nobody dared to mess with the Fowler family.

They were a rich and powerful family in Stormton City.

Some of the students present were also from rich families.

Their families would find out if their child had offended the Fowler family.

When they did, their child would be sent packing and kicked out of the family immediately.

Nobody wished to have their future end like that.

Thus, all of them obediently deleted their videos and photos.

The security guards also would not speak to anyone about what happened in the cafeteria that day.

After checking all the students' phones and clearing all of them, Dwayne quickly requested that the security guards delete all the footage from the surveillance cameras.

After cleaning up the mess his father had created, Dwayne finally looked at Jane. His eyes were filled with mixed emotions.

Jane did not leave. She seemed to be doing something on her phone.

When Jane noticed Dwayne looking at her, she quickly put away her phone. and gave a cold smile.

"This is indeed the Fowlers family's way of handling things. After committing a mistake, you forced everyone to keep quiet and delete all of the evidence to prevent anybody from smearing the Fowler family's reputation and to stop any negative news from spreading.

"You are despicable!" Jane yelled.

"Well? Do you want to check my phone too?"

"No need," Dwayne said.

He had already checked all the other students' phones.

Nobody had sent any videos or photos.

There was also no mention of Jane's WeChat or phone contact details.

At the same time, Jane had not taken out her phone at all to film her confrontation with Jack.

All of the evidence had been destroyed, and the surveillance videos had been erased.

Dwayne could not help but raise his eyebrows.

If it were Dwayne in the past, he would have exploded in anger by now and forced Jane to hand over her phone for him to check.

It would have been like what happened at the Porsche 4S dealer's office. Without any evidence, he had accused Jane of being a thief. They had even ended up at the police station.

Jane, his supposed biological sister, was a blemish to Dwayne. It was because Jane threatened to affect his beloved sister Madelyn's standing in the family.

He wished to get rid of Jane as soon as possible.

But what had changed today?

Dwayne did not forcibly take Jane's phone.

It seemed like he had gotten better control over his anger.

However, that was none of Jane's concern.

Dwayne could search Jane's phone all he wanted.

Jane had already taken all precautions.

She was confident that Dwayne would not be able to find anything.

Dwayne took a very deep breath.

“What... What do you want?” Lila asked.

Lila hated Dwayne. She hated him to the core.

He was the man who had colluded with Madelyn at the Porche 4S dealer’s office and falsely accused Jane. He had hurt and embarrassed Jane.

Lila eyed Dwayne suspiciously. She even automatically thrust out her arms protectively in front of Jane.

Dwayne was so well-built that it was obvious that he was not someone to pick a fight with. Lila should have been steering clear away from him.

For Jane’s sake, Lila was willing to fight.

“I’m sorry, Jane. Dad was indeed too impulsive earlier. I hope that you’ll try to understand him. He’s simply very worried about Peter.”

Jane was dumbfounded.

Send

Read Novel No Way Back Chapter 33

No Way Back Chapter 33-Jane looked like she had seen a ghost as she stared at Dwayne.

Even Lila had a look of disbelief.

Dwayne Fowler.

The hot-tempered Dwayne Fowler who had wrongly accused Jane of being a thief. The Dwayne Fowler who had humiliated Jane in front of everyone.

Did he offer his apology to Jane today without being asked?

And he was so meek and did not lose his temper at all.

They thought that Dwayne had been replaced by someone else. Whatever it was, this was not the Dwayne Fowler they remembered.

“I know you’re very shocked,” Dwayne said. “That day, I was too hot-tempered and had falsely accused you.

"I am truly very sorry about that. I have a bad temper, but I'm not blind." Dwayne was feeling a little upset.

It was because of the way Jane was looking at him.

She looked at him as if he was a brainless, rash, and impulsive idiot.

Was she kidding him?

If Dwayne was truly such a person, how could he possibly have graduated early from the Sports University with the best results in the school's history or made a name for himself at the World Wrestling Entertainment Tournament?

He had lost his cool that day because the incident had involved Madelyn. She was Dwayne's most important and precious little sister.

"Hehe..."

Jane could not help but laugh lightly.

He did not think he was blind.

Now that was funny.

That had to be the funniest joke Jane had ever heard.

In Jane's mind, every single member of the Fowler family was rotten to the

They were not merely blind. Their hearts were rotten. They were possessed by the devil.

Otherwise, why would they be so cruel to their biological sister and core. Nothing could save them.

daughter after being separated for 19 years?

Instead, they protected and coddled their adopted daughter Madelyn since she was young. They gave her everything she wanted.

The cost was the Fowler family abusing Jane. From physical to psychological, they humiliated her viciously. They forced her to fall into depression and contemplate self-cutting. She was even on the brink of committing suicide.

"I know you can't stand me, Jane, but I don't live for what you think of me. I've apologized, and my conscience is clear," Dwayne said.

"I don't want to let down the honor that I've gained or let down my teammates who believe in me. I was wrong, so I've admitted it."

At the same time, Dwayne looked at the scald wound on Lila's leg.

"Lila, allow me to apologize on my father's behalf," Dwayne said. "Tell me how much compensation you want, and we'll settle this in private."

That was what Dwayne assumed was best for pacifying Jane and Lila.

Did they really want Jack Fowler to apologize? That was impossible.

Once Jack, the father and the Emeritus Chairman of Fowler Corporation, lost his temper, even 10 oxen would not be able to drag him back.

Even his seven sons and precious Madelyn would not be able to persuade him...

Except for Anna.

As time went by, they learned to go along with their father.

Jack Fowler was their father.

Simply on account of that relationship, he had his children completely under his control.

Moreover, Jack cared a lot about the Fowler family's reputation and had also experienced all sorts of trouble.

He seldom lost his cool like that.

This time was because his youngest son was unconscious. Because this concerned the safety of his family, together with his hatred toward Jane, Jack lost his temper.

Thus, this was the reason behind Dwayne's decision.

He decided to use money to resolve the matter.

As long as one had money and a sum was negotiated and agreed upon, everything could be settled.

Lila hesitated on what to reply.

She hated Dwayne and wished to get away from him.

Lila also did not wish to bl*w up this matter and settle it quietly.

Most importantly, Lila did not want Jane to be the target of the Fowler family again and get hurt.

Lila was grateful that Jane was willing to demand an apology from Jack on her behalf.

Lila was extremely satisfied with Jane's thoughtfulness.

However, Jane thought otherwise.

"Settle in private? No way," Jane said.

"Dwayne Fowler, who do you think you are? Who cares about your apology?"

"Tell Jack Fowler to apologize to Lila, or I will never forgive him!"

Jane flatly refused Dwayne's request.

"Why, you... Jane, I know you're angry but haven't you fussed enough?"

"You know full well that Dad will never apologize to Lila. You know what his temper is like.

"He's the Emeritus Chairman of Fowler Corporation. He's as stubborn as a mule. Once he's made up his mind, it's impossible to change it."

Dwayne did not expect Jane to be so unappreciative.

No matter how sorry he felt toward Jane, his anger had also risen.

"Well then, open your eyes and watch. I will make Jack Fowler apologize to Lila," Jane said.

"You may not have the ability, but that doesn't mean I don't. Lila, let's go."

After being interrupted like that by Jack, Jane was in no mood to continue her lunch.

She took Lila's hand, and they walked out of the cafeteria.

"Jane Fowler, you'll regret this. Do you think you'll be able to get away safely after challenging Dad?"

"Since we're siblings, let me remind you. Since you've disappeared for 19 years, you don't know Dad's temper at all.

"You're only going to get yourself all banged up and hurt very badly."

Dwayne simply regarded Jane as being young and aggressive.

Actually, he was so angry that he wanted to leave Jane alone.

But on account of his misunderstanding of Jane that day...

Dwayne decided to still give her unsolicited advice.

"Huh! Dwayne, do you really think you're my big brother? I'm sorry, but I don't see myself as your little sister. I don't see myself as part of the Fowler family either.

"It isn't the Fowler family that didn't want me. It is I who cut off all ties with the Fowler family.

"So don't give me that big brother cr*p and try to lecture me from up there. I know exactly what I should do."

Did he want to act like Jane's big brother now?

It was too late.

He had so many chances and so much time, but he had never said that to Jane before.

He had never advised Jane as her big brother on what his little sister should do.

Instead, it was Jack who was unreasonable, had not gotten his facts right, and hurt Lila along the way.

And then Dwayne suddenly jumped in as a big brother and lectured Jane to not be so impulsive to challenge Jack.

What a joke.

This was too ridicul*us.

"You, Jane, I must be blind. Why did I even think of persuading a prck like you?

"You are indeed very different from Maddie. She's so kind and mature and obedient. She will always do according to what I say. She'll fulfill all my requests perfectly.

“Someone like you shouldn’t remain in the Fowler family because you don’t deserve it. You don’t deserve to be my little sister. Maddie is enough for me.”

Dwayne had finally shown his true colors.

He was naturally short-tempered, but he had forced himself to be calm.

Once he reached his limits, he would snap and lose his cool:

All sorts of nasty and vicious words would flow out of his m*uth.

He had inherited this personality trait from Anna.

When Anna was cornered, she would do the same thing too.

They were truly mother and son.

Even Lila was shocked.

She felt her blood turn cold.

“Oh my god!” Lila thought.

She had just thought that Dwayne had changed...

And that he was really concerned for Jane.

But that was not so.

It was all an act.

It was an act to make Jane and Lila settle in private.

Lila had never met such a heartless person before.

Or perhaps, such a living thing was not fit to be a human being.

She wished that this cr*el monster would d*e soon.

After Jane heard those words, her face was without emotion as she dragged Lila out of the cafeteria.

That was Dwayne’s true colors. Those were words from his heart.

In her previous life, Jane had heard those words countless times from Dwayne.

He had cursed her endlessly, distanced himself, and chased her away. He even wished for her to d*e on the spot.

He compared her to Madelyn all the time. In the end, Madelyn always won.

Jane was like an ant that deserved to be trodden under Madelyn's foot, leaving nothing behind.

One could not change his true nature...

Like a leopard that never changed its spots.

This Dwayne was the fifth son of the Fowler family with whom Jane was familiar.

He even acted like Jane's big brother and pretended that it was for her own good.

She was so disgusted that she felt sick.

Lila remained silent the whole time as she was dragged out of school by Jane.

"Janie," Lila said.

"I didn't get to eat anything, and I'm hungry," Jane said. "Lila, let's go to the food street next door and buy something good to eat.

"We can't possibly be interrupted again by the Fowler family there, right?" Jane asked breezily.

Jane gave a little smile.

Lila felt a sting in her eyes and took a sharp breath to try to hold back her tears. She hugged Jane and said, "Janie, my heart hurts for you."

"Thank you, Lila, but my heart doesn't hurt anymore," Jane said. "Touch it. It's very hot, and it's also beating at a calm pace."

Jane took Lila's hand and placed it over her heart. Her eyes were gentle. "I never held any expectations for the Fowler family, so why would I be disappointed or hurt?"

After being born again, Jane had moved past that.

Her supposed Fowler family...

It was a gathering of devils.

It was a beautiful-looking h*ll.

“Janie, I’ll support you. You must make Jack Fowler apologize this time.

Show it to him.

“If you need my help, don’t hesitate to ask. I’ll always stand on your side.”

Lila wiped away her tears and promised with great determination.

Lila had not wanted to create any more trouble for Jane, but the Fowler family had gone overboard.

Not only did they not see Jane as part of their family, but they also did not even regard her as a human being.

Jane was also human and had feelings. Hiding beneath her strong exterior, was a heart that could get hurt, feel pain, and be ripped apart.

Lila did not dare to imagine how painful it must be to be hurt by one’s family. The mere thought of it made Lila feel suffocated.

Jane was such a strong girl that it broke Lila’s heart.

“Janie, I’m paying for today’s lunch. Go ahead and order whatever you want.”

“Since someone else is paying for me, I’ll go all out.”

Jane and Lila went to an Italian pasta restaurant they frequented.

They ordered their food.

Jane went to the restroom.

She closed the door.

She made a phone call.

She heard the lyrics, “The vast sky is my love, the flowers are blooming on the mountainside,” playing over her phone.

Her call had gotten through.

“Queen!”

Andy sounded pleasantly surprised.

“Andy, do me a favor,” Jane said.

“I want to sue someone, the Emeritus Chairman of Fowler Corporation, Jack Fowler.”

Read Novel No Way Back Chapter 34

No Way Back Chapter 34-“Oh h* And how has this person offended my dear little princess, Queen? “From the tone of your voice, he seemed to have offended you very badly.”

On the other end of the line, Andy’s face had frozen.

The person she wanted to sue was quite an important person.
Even Andy had to treat him with due diligence.

In the past, whenever Jane brought up a topic, she had always spoken in a carefree manner. It was as if she was in control of everything.

There was a solid self-confidence in her ability that had been cultivated over time.

As the Darknet’s “Queen,” there were countless hackers who were crazy about her and supported her.

It did not matter even if it were the Fowler Corporation. If Jane made them her target, she would be able to dig up enough dirt on them.

She would dig up so much that the Fowler Corporation would find itself in deep trouble.

That was all Andy knew about Jane’s sock puppet account. “Queen.”

Jane most certainly had more than that single sock puppet.

If she had any other sources of help, they could all combine and fight the Fowler Corporation.

Hehe.

Things would become very interesting to watch.

“I’ll send you the videos first,” Jane said.

“My request is simple. I want Jack Fowler to apologize personally on all major news networks.

“Or else, I’ll never give up!”

Jane sent all the surveillance footage from the cafeteria and videos and pictures taken by the students of the incident earlier to Andy.

When Jane was fiddling with her phone in the cafeteria earlier, she was actually using a hacker app that she had created to hack into all the students' phones and the surveillance room through the cafeteria's Wi-Fi. She then saved all the evidence.

"Phew..." Andy whistled. "With all this evidence, it's going to be so much easier to settle this matter," he said.

"Queen, leave this matter to me. I will do a good job."

Andy wanted to laugh.

This was as good as handing over the victory to Andy on a silver platter.

"I feel more relieved to have you, a first-class lawyer, deal with this personally.

"As for your payment, I'll transfer it to your account," Jane said. "Don't worry."

Jane smiled.

That was right.

On the surface, Andy was a well-known, first-class lawyer from Cruksia.

No matter how dire the situation was, the moment the case was in Andy's hands, he would know how to turn the tables around.

Over the years, he built a reputation for being the invincible lawyer.

He was a magician in court.

Many people were willing to pay top dollar to hire Andy to defend them. However, they could not.

Andy's schedule was filled for the following two years.

It was completely filled.

Nobody would have known that Andy had a side hustle as a broker on the Darknet.

That extra level of connections and talent were the reasons Andy's business was doing so well.

He was doing well enough to launder all of Jane's income from the Darknet with the click of his finger.

"Payment? I've got lots of money, Queen," Andy said. "I'm not helping you for money."

"Andy, I know you mean well," Jane said. "But I've received a lot of help from you already. I can't owe you anymore."

"Queen, if you want to return the favor to me, there's a simple and direct way," Andy said.

"You and I have worked together for many years and know each other's character. Why don't we meet in person and get to know each other? What do you think?"

Jane was silent.

She closed her eyes.

She had worked with Andy for years, but they had never met face-to-face before.

The reason was very simple.

It was true that they worked well together and were very close.

But what sort of place was the Darknet?

A small careless misstep could easily put her in danger.

Jane was especially cautious in the past because she firmly believed her family was still alive and was determined to find them.

The Darknet was not a place to remain for long. It was more inconceivable to build a relationship with anyone on the Darknet because that might affect her family.

However, the situation was different now.

None of that mattered now.

Jane's so-called family was now much less important than an important work partner.

"All right," Jane said. "Let's find a time to meet up and talk about the lawsuit."

Andy let out a whistle. He could not hide his smile. "That's the way to go, Queen. To be honest, when you were silent earlier, my heart was left hanging. I was afraid you'd reject me again like you always do."

"I finally understand what's most important to me," Jane said. "Thank you, Andy."

Peter slowly opened his eyes.

Madelyn and Anna were by Peter's bed the entire time. Madelyn was the first to spot her brother waking up and quickly shouted, "Daddy! Mommy! Peter is awake!"

At Madelyn's shout, many people rushed over to Peter's bed immediately.

"Peter, how are you?"

"I... Why am I here?"

Peter looked at all the people surrounding him in bewilderment.

Before him were Jack, Anna, Madelyn, Larry, and Dwayne.

Anna recounted what had happened to Peter.

After listening to his mother's explanation, Peter's memory slowly came back to him.

He could not help mocking himself.

"Peter," Madelyn cried, still sobbing. "I was so worried about you. I was so afraid something bad would happen to you. Don't ever frighten me like this again. Promise?"

Madelyn's face was streaked with tears. She held Peter's hand tightly and was biting her lips.

The way she looked was very pitiful to anyone who saw her. The look made others feel sorry for her.

"I'm sorry, Maddie," Peter said. "I promise I won't."

Fac*d with his dearest little sister's worry, Peter could only smile in return.

For some unknown reason, he tried to avert his eyes.

When Peter looked at Madelyn now, he automatically thought of Jane.

He thought of how deeply he had hurt Jane.

The tears Jane had shed... The despair of being alone... The pain that was a deathly shade of gray...

He also thought of how he had held his sisters to a double standard.

He favored Madelyn but trampled all over Jane.

Peter had an epiphany after this incident.

He realized he could no longer simply ignore Jane.

He also could not show favoritism toward Madelyn like he used to.

Peter had treated Jane cruelly and tormented her. Now that he had realized what he had done, this was destined to be a thorn.

It was a thorn in his heart.

Peter tried to ignore it.

But there were triggers.

When he encountered one of the triggers, he felt the pain.

The pain reminded Peter how he was a despicable sc*m of the earth.

How he had done disg*sting and irreparable things to his sister, who had been missing for 19 years?

Madelyn's smooth face frowned.

She felt that Peter had changed somehow.

But she could not pinpoint in what way.

Perhaps it was because he had just woken up from a coma and had not yet fully recovered.

"Peter, I know you just woke up and are still weak, but I have something to ask you," Jack said.

"What in the world did Jane do to you? How did she land you in a coma?" Jack could not resist asking.

He wanted to find something to leverage over Jane.

He swore that he would make Jane pay with her life.

Jack wanted to see if Jane would still be as haughty as she was when she talked back to him in the cafeteria.

Dwayne gave a cold snort but did not say anything.

He recalled how Jane had brushed off his kindness earlier in the cafeteria and her mocking words.

Dwayne started to get mad simply thinking about it. He was furious.

In his heart, only Madelyn was fit to be his little sister.

Madelyn could never be like Jane. Madelyn would not be so disrespectful and go against her older brother's advice and make him angry.

5/8

Chapter 34

Dwayne was waiting to see when Jane met her end. He wanted to see how she would regret ignoring his kindness.

"Jack!"

Anna looked reproachfully at her husband.

"Peter has just woken up. Why are you asking him about this matter now?"

Anna's heart was secretly starting to side with Jane.

It might have been from guilt.

After all, at Cloudnine Restaurant, Anna had said some very hurtful words to Jane.

Anna had not had the chance to apologize yet.

What if it were true that Jane had some conflict with Peter, which in turn caused him to collapse?

Anna was very sure that Jack would go after Jane.

Madelyn looked down and gripped Peter's hand tightly.

She wished to hear from Peter's mouth. She wanted him to say that it was the bitch Jane who had made him pass out.

Then, her father would be very furious and make sure that Jane got hacked to pieces.

That would help get rid of Madelyn's greatest obstacle to keeping her glory and securing her position as the Fowler family's daughter.

Peter had always hated Jane and wished for her to drop dead.

Now was the perfect chance. Madelyn was sure her brother would not pass up on the chance to get rid of Jane.

After all, Jane had just snatched Peter's honor from him. Peter had to hate Jane to the core.

Those were the thoughts running through Madelyn's mind.

"Dad, I'm fine," Peter said. "Maybe I got too so tired from writing the research paper that I passed out."

That was a totally unexpected answer.

Peter's reply was very calm.

Everyone in the room was dumbstruck.

Chapter 34

All of them sank into silence.

Peter's answer was indeed not what they had expected.

They had assumed that Peter would blame Jane for his current condition.

Yet what was his explanation?

That it was his own health problem.

"That's, that's it? Peter, you really didn't get into a fight with Janie?"

Madelyn was the first one to speak.

She refused to believe that Peter would let such a good opportunity to get rid of Jane pass.

Jane had been Peter's number one enemy.

"I didn't get into any fight with Jane," Peter said. "Maddie, don't let your imagination run wild."

Right now, Peter felt very guilty.

He felt guilty toward Jane and h*ted himself.

He was also filled with respect for Jane.

When pursuing his dream, Peter would respect any person who was better than him.

At the same time, he would burst out with a stronger will to forge ahead for his dream.

However, it was a pity.

If only Peter and Jane had not burned all their bridges.

Perhaps Peter and Jane could have become very good friends pursuing the same passion.

They could have exchanged ideas and grown together.

"Peter, while you were unconscious, Mr. Fowler heard that Jane might have something to do with it. He went to see Jane," Larry said.

"What did you say?" Peter exclaimed, cutting Larry off.

Read Novel No Way Back Chapter 35

No Way Back Chapter 35- Peter was so agitated that he coughed violently.

Larry immediately sht his m*uth.

"D*mn it!" Larry cursed himself for not being to hold his tongue. He had spoken too soon.

This had nothing to do with him, but he had butted in nonetheless.

However, only Larry would dare say something like that.

It was because he was an outsider.

Nobody from the Fowler family would have dared say that in front of Jack after knowing that he had wronged Jane.

Jack's face turned dark immediately.

What had Peter meant by that?

Had Jack wronged an innocent person?

It was as Jane had described. Jack had not gotten his facts right and even gotten physical in public, flipped over Jane's food, created a scene, and accidentally hurt Lila.

To be honest, since Jack was not that young, he had made been mistaken before.

But to be mistaken about the same person...

Not once but twice...

The first time was the online trending incident.

The second time was this incident with Peter.

This was a first for Jack.

Dwayne's eyes flittered a little.

In the end, he did not say anything.

So what if his father had been mistaken?

Dwayne knew his father's temper all too well.

All of Jack's seven sons were a chip off the old block.

Even if they had done something wrong, their pride would never allow them to look back.

"Dad, in the future, please don't bother Jane again," Peter said.

"If you do, it'll only increase our guilt toward her."

Everyone stared at Peter in surprise...

Especially Madelyn and Dwayne.

Peter had changed.

In the past, Peter would have never said a word about feeling guilty toward Jane.

"Peter, you... I saw you lying unconscious. I heard that you had met with Jane earlier and so I was worried that you..."

Jack felt very humiliated to be called out like that by his son.

Thus, he subconsciously started to find reasons to justify his actions.

"Dad, I know you worry about me," Peter said. Peter did not blame his father at all. His father had made things difficult for Jane again because of him. Peter felt even guiltier after learning that. Peter had decided to bear that burden. The entire school clinic fell into silence, which was difficult to describe. "Oh, all right. Let's drop this topic," Anna said. "Peter, are you hungry? I'll get some chicken soup for you to eat." "Thanks, M*m." Peter knew that Anna wanted to diffuse the awkward mood. Hence, he went along with her. Larry saw how complicated the situation was. He quickly made up an excuse to leave. Besides, Peter was fine. In the end, this was a family matter for the Fowler family. Larry felt very awkward being sandwiched in the middle, so it was best for him to leave. Madelyn volunteered to buy chicken soup for Peter. 216 22:36 Chapter 35 As a student at the University of Oricle, she was familiar with the area and could buy the soup faster. Dwayne was worried about Madelyn, so he went with her. Madelyn and Dwayne went together to buy chicken soup. Dwayne walked ahead of Madelyn. He did not walk alongside her. Madelyn suddenly felt a greater sense of panic. It was not only Peter. Even Dwayne seemed to have started to change. After thinking for a while, Madelyn asked in a demure voice, "Dwayne, do you think that Peter seems to have changed?" "This time, it really was Dad's mistake." Dwayne replied after a short silence. A mistake was a mistake. Dwayne was not the type who was unwilling to admit his mistakes. Of course, his dislike of Jane did not disappear because of his guilt toward her. Such a stubborn pri*k should have her head slammed hard against the wall until she bled. Then Dwayne would not be stingy with his mockery of Jane. She deserved that for not listening to her big brother's advice.

"Dwayne, do you think Janie is pitiful?"

Madelyn had tears in her eyes, and the tip of her nose had turned pink. "Janie keeps getting misunderstood. She left our family only because her heart must have turned cold. Dwayne, why don't we persuade Janie to come back?"

"There's no need to," Dwayne said. "If we went now, she would just treat us coldly and insult us."

His eyes became colder after he remembered how he had been insulted by Jane not too long ago.

Come back to the Fowler family?

If Dwayne had been asked before this incident, he might have wavered.

It was too late now.

Jane could only dream about coming back.

Jane was disobedient and like a time bomb. She would only bring disorder and chaos to the Fowler family.

She had to leave the family.

Madelyn saw Dwayne's heart very clearly. Her heart started to pump more easily.

Even though Dwayne had changed a little, he still hated Jane like before.

Now, it was Peter who was more difficult to deal with.

But it was only Peter. He could not possibly cause any trouble by himself. Madelyn had to maintain her hold over her parents and remaining brothers. As long as she did, Jane would never return to the Fowler family.

Jane and Lila parted ways.

Once Jane arrived home, she started to sort through her evidence to prepare for the lawsuit.

Andy was a very good lawyer.

Even so, Jane could not underestimate Jack as he was the Emeritus Chairman of Fowler Corporation and possessed significant clout.

It was naturally better to be prepared.

Otherwise, that old scu*bag might get away scot-free.

Jane kept busy for a full two hours before she finally stopped.

She glanced at the clock.

It was already nine at night.

“I think I have prepared enough evidence.”

Jane smiled, confident that she would win.

She thought of throwing a frozen hamburger in the oven for dinner.

B*zz... B*zz...

Jane's phone vibrated twice.

It was a message from Hugh.

Jane opened the message and read it.

Hugh's message read, “I'm sending food to you. Do you want it?”

He had also sent a picture of an unknown black, gooey mass.

At first, Jane did not want to reply.

But the picture of Hugh's unknown black food piqued her curiosity.

What the heck was that?

Was Hugh messing with her?

Jane sent a reply, “What is that?”

Hugh texted back, “People with Type Omega blood start to lose their sense of taste as they get older. This food was developed by countless scientists and food critics I consulted. It doesn't look appetizing, but it doesn't taste bad.”

Jane was taken a little aback.

She did not know about that side effect.

It was no wonder that in her past life, she always felt that food did not taste right.

After this rebirth, Jane was now 19. She had not experienced this side effect yet.

Jane pondered deeply and felt that she should plan for her future.

Jane texted, "Well then, Mr. Croft, thank you for your kindness. How should I pick it up?"

Hugh texted back, "Give me your address. I'll deliver it to you."

Jane did not send a reply.

After a while, Hugh texted again, "Is it inconvenient?"

Jane texted back, "No."

She sent Hugh her GPS location.

Jane knew Hugh well.

Hugh was a man with the ability to find out Jane's exact address very easily.

It was impossible for her to try to hide such an open piece of information

She would be fine as long as she did not drop her sock puppet identity.

Half an hour later...

Jane's doorbell rang.

She went to open the door.

She saw that Hugh had made the delivery personally.

There was no one else.

"Aren't you going to invite me in?"

Hugh was a self-assured and proud man. His voice was low and husky. He sounded very sexy.

Jane let out a small cough. "This is the home of a single woman."

"Relax," Hugh said. "I never force others to do what they're unwilling to."

Send Gift

Comment

Read Novel No Way Back Chapter 36

No Way Back Chapter 36- Hugh lowered his head. The image of Jane reflected off his deep, amber eyes.

The moment those eyes marked out a target, it felt as though they were capable of one's soul into an icy-cold vortex.

They were dangerous and sexy.

"Come on in."

Since he was doing her a favor, it was wrong of her to be rude.

What else could she say? Jane had taken an interest in the food in the picture.

Hugh had brought the food all the way here. If she refused to let him through the door, it made her seem unreasonable.

Jane was very confident about her moves.

However, she had no confidence in the likes of Hugh.

One thing was certain though, Hugh was not the sort of guy to go against her wishes and touch her.

Hugh's lips curved upward slightly as he entered Jane's residence.

The décor inside was simple and bright. Everything was clearly visible.

There was a lightly colored low-profile couch, a coffee table, lighting, and a dining furniture set.

She had everything she needed.

There was nothing extraneous in the place.

Jane's style was just like Hugh's.

Jane took the food container from Hugh and said, "Just make yourself comfortable. Erm... Have you eaten yet?"

Hugh raised his chin. He nodded and said, "Eat up while it's hot."

"Okay then. I happen to be hungry anyway since I haven't eaten anything."

Jane and Hugh were too close, so the atmosphere felt weird.

She genuinely did not know how to handle men like him who were very strong and dangerous.

It felt as though Hugh could suppress her anytime.

Jane told Hugh to look around while she brought the food containers to the kitchen.

Whatever it was, there was nothing for Hugh to steal at her place.

He was the heir to one of the most powerful families in the world, so he probably felt her place was nothing more than an ant's nest.

After opening the food containers, sure enough, it contained a strange black substance.

Jane held it up and smelled it.

Hmmm...

It seemed to smell very good.

*It was kind of like tofu. It smelled bad on the surface but tasted good inside.

It was just a pure nightmare for people who preferred fancy-looking food. However, it smelled very fragrant and whetted her appetite.

She just did not know where to start.

Jane stuck her head out from the kitchen.

Hugh was sitting on the cool-colored blue couch.

*He sat with his long slender legs crossed. His expensive glossy suit sparkled slightly in the light.

The light scattered over Hugh's excessively gorgeous face. It seemed impossible for anyone to have such a beautiful face.

His face was expressionless and slightly softer than usual. He lowered his head and seemed to be in deep thought.

His pursed lips. His sharp nose made his profile so handsome that one might lose friends for it.

With every stroke, he looked like the finest painting from the best masters.

He was six feet, three inches tall. Even though he was seated, he gave off a powerful aura.

To begin with, Hugh seemed like royalty.

was hard to come up with the right adjectives for Hugh.

At least, Jane had trouble squeezing more from her brain.

He was so elegant and dignified that he resembled a god who had lost his way.

Hugh looked in Jane's direction. He seemed to detect her looking at him. The moment she made eye contact with Hugh, her heart skipped a beat.

It felt as though Hugh had caught her red-handed secretly looking red-handed.

It felt terribly awkward.

"Where should I start eating?

"Erm... I meant the food. Should I just eat it? Or do I have to cut it first?"

"Any way you like. Despite its appearance, it's very soft and feels just like cake."

"I see. Thanks."

Jane hurriedly hid inside the kitchen.

"Why did I feel like I was caught doing something *****?"

"This is clearly my place!"

Jane shook her head.

She must have been so hungry that her mind was out of service. "Why else would I keep getting distracted?"

She picked up the fork and knife and cut a piece of black substance.

She held it up to her mouth and swallowed her saliva.

After mustering her courage, she closed her eyes and put the food into her mouth.

When the flavor exploded in her mouth, Jane hastily opened her eyes wide.

Excellent.

It was simply excellent.

Jane had never eaten such delicious food.

She could not hold herself back and wiped out all the food in a few bites.

Jane finally snapped out of her thoughts.

That was it.

“Is it all gone?”

Even though her stomach was full, the food was simply delectable.

It had won Jane’s affection, so she promptly walked up in front of Hugh.

“Mr. Croft, can you please tell me how this was made?”

“Do you want to know?”

Hugh seemed to already expect Jane’s question.

He smiled as he stood up.

His six-foot, three-inch physique left a shadow over Jane

“Erm... You can talk sitting down

As Hugh approached her, Jane had trouble breathing

Even though Hugh did not reveal the slightest ev: intentions, a man like him spelled danger regardless

Jane could even sense her blood racing

The temperature was rising.

“Is it a normal chemical reaction because both of us have Type Omegal blood and are getting close?”

As Jane pondered, Hugh’s scent had already wafted into her nose.

She had never been this close to Hugh before.

Hugh had a nice faint scent.

Jane could not put a finger on the scent.

It was a pure mystery just like Hugh.

Just by smelling his scent, Jane could sense an itch inside.

It felt as though she was a 100-year-old vampire awakening after a long slumber. She had finally found some tasty blood.

She wanted to take a bite.

“If you like it, I can bring some over every day.

“This was created using a high-tech machine. It was blended using the perfect ratio of ingredients.

“Humans can’t make this.”

Hugh’s sexy voice made Jane snap out of her thoughts.

His warm breath scattered by her ear.

Jane’s sensitive ears pricked upward like a rabbit.

“Mr. Croft, you don’t have to come so close to me when you talk. I’m not deaf, so I can hear just fine.”

Jane automatically retreated by a few steps

Damn it.

Jane had unexpectedly gone into a daze owing to Hugh’s scent

This had never happened to her before

Perhaps Hugh’s Type Omega blood had a different kind of taste It was the only plausible explanation.

It caused Jane’s Type Omega blood to react and affected her judgment.

“Is this one of the side effects of having Type Omega blood?”

“I only got closer so that I could smell your scent.

“Otherwise, I won’t be able to rest well today.

“Let’s hope both of us can have sweet dreams tonight.”

Hugh was candid about his purpose.

Jane had not signed the contract to sleep with Hugh.

Once they did, they could completely eradicate all the side effects of having Type Omega blood.

After interacting with Jane a couple of times, Hugh was finally able to sleep. at night.

Sadly, it was not enough, so he did not sleep well.

Hugh wanted to hug Jane and go to bed.

He was very attracted by Jane’s special scent.

It was the scent of someone just like him, and the blood kept calling out to him.

Hugh could not resist Jane and felt obsessed with her.

Jane probably felt the same way.

Hugh had already marked her as prey, so it was impossible for her to escape his clutches.

Jane already belonged to him.

Read Novel No Way Back Chapter 37

No Way Back Chapter 37-Jane was about to speak, but Hugh reached his hand out and placed it on Jane’s lips.

“If you want more, I have plenty more where it came from.

“Once we sign the contract, what is mine is yours.”

When Jane looked at Hugh, she was at a loss.

Her lips unknowingly turned red when Hugh touched them.

They felt a little warm.

She also sensed a burning sensation

Her lips were so soft that Hugh wanted to take a bite out of them

He wanted to sample the flavor for himself

“Mr. Croft, you promised to let me consider carefully You agreed not to force me.”

Jane bit her tongue gently to calm herself down.

“Oh yes. I nearly forgot.”

Huge smiled slightly. “As an apology, I will send you some food, regardless of rain or shine, whenever you have a craving.”

“Mr. Croft, is this what you do to hit on women? As the CEO of DY Group, don’t you have a little too much time on your hands?”

“If it’s for you, it’s worth it.”

Hugh spoke solemnly.

His intense gaze made it clear he was not joking the slightest bit.

It was so intense that it felt like a knife cutting through the sky and turning night into dawn.

“Thanks then. Mr. Croft, I’m a little tired, so I think I’m going to bed.”

Jane subtly told him to leave.

She wanted to do her utmost not to let Hugh’s scent affect her rationality. If Hugh continued hanging out here, they would be alone in the apartment. Also, this big bad wolf was able to affect Jane’s judgment with his scent.

The Type Omega blood kept raging inside Jane’s body.

Whatever it was, Jane was just a normal woman

She could not promise that something unspeakable would not happen.

“In that case, I won’t hold you up. See you, Janie.”

“You...”

“Your name sounds good. It sounds even better that way.”

She felt her heart thumping hard.

"What is going on?" she thought.

Jane's head felt giddy.

She sensed her blood flow racing clearly

Every word he uttered sounded like sweet poison popping into Jane's mouth.

It was absolutely sweet.

It sounded so sweet that Jane wanted to sleep. It was as if she was poisoned.

She did her utmost to stay awake until Hugh left her apartment.

The moment she *the door, Jane slumped onto the couch.

She used her hand to cover her face as she breathed deeply.

It took her some time before her blood finally stopped raging.

"Damn it. I did not realize people with the same type of Omega blood could react so strangely."

After clearing her mind, Jane stood up and rubbed her temples.

In the past, she only interacted with Hugh at some distance or only briefly.

It was the first time they had spent so much time together alone in a room in close proximity.

When Jane sat on the couch, it was still warm from Hugh's touch.

Hugh's sweet scent still lingered in the air, and Jane adored it.

No way.

She had to take a bath to help herself wake up.

Hugh left the apartment and got into the Maybach.

He looked at his fingers and faintly felt the sensation of Jane's lips

Hugh placed his fingers into his mouth and licked them

It was Jane's taste.

It was simply intoxicating.

Hugh experienced the same kind of side effects as Jane.

Hugh keenly sensed his blood raging.

It felt as though every cell in his system was raging

He wanted to embrace Jane and eat her whole

He was a hunter marking his prey before taking it down and dragging it back to his lair.

However, he had to be patient.

Hugh clenched his fists tightly with veins throbbing on his forehead.

A mysterious light swept through his eyes, which looked like a flower blossoming in the night.

"Mr. Croft."

The chauffeur turned the wheel in the driver's seat.

Hugh was sitting in the shadows, so it was impossible to see his face.

Otherwise, the chauffeur would have felt scared shitless.

Hugh was completely different than normal now.

"Go back."

"Yes, Mr. Croft."

When Jack woke up the next day, it was nine in the morning.

He rubbed his brow. He had not slept well.

Jane's actions the day before had kept him up.

"I wasn't in the wrong. I was just worried about my youngest son.

"If Jane had not made those mistakes and  me off, I would not have blindly maligned her!

"It's all Jane's fault. I do not understand how I could possibly give birth and raise a daughter like her. It's simply a family tragedy. If only Maddie was my biological daughter, then my life would be perfect."

As a father, Jack still had a lot of pride.

Jane wanted Jack to apologize openly. She could dream on.

It would be a complete embarrassment for Jack.

As Jack did his utmost to justify his wretched actions and convince himself everything was legitimate, a knock was heard at the door.

"Jack, are you awake?"

"Anna, I'm up. Just come on in."

For a moment, Jack thought his wife missed him

He grinned happily like a man in love.

It was public knowledge that Jack was not afraid of anyone except his wife's temper and tears.

When people called Jack an indulgent husband, Jack did not feel embarrassed. Instead, he felt proud.

Back in the day, Jack kept praying to all kinds of gods before he finally won the woman's heart.

He tossed everything aside with determination and picked this woman without hesitation.

Jack had a motto. In times of danger, he could throw aside everything. If it was really serious, he could do the same to his sons but not his wife. She was the only thing that mattered more than life to him.

He naturally loved Anna deeply. He indulged her and wanted to give her everything he could.

They were so in love that even though they were middle-aged, their love was still strong and even more passionate.

They were the envy of everyone.

Anna pushed the door open.

“Anna, give me a hug.”

“What do you mean by a hug? Something’s gone down. We just received a court summons. Jane is suing you in court.”

“What did you just say?”

The loving smile on Jack’s face froze over instantly.

For a moment, he thought he was hallucinating.

After he grabbed the court summons from Anna and took a close look at its contents, he clutched it so tightly that it nearly ripped apart.

“Damn, you Jane Fowler!”

His awful daughter had the cheek to sue her own father in court.

She was adamant about getting an apology

Jane might not have feared embarrassment, but Jack certainly did.

If the media found out about this and publicized it, everyone would learn that the biological daughter of the Fowler family wanted to sue her father.

She was clearly trying to embarrass the Fowler family and ensure he could not raise his head high in Stormton City anymore not for Jack, Jane would not exist in the world at all.

She had no right to do this.

This was no different from being an ingrate.

“Jack, look carefully. Take a close look at the lawyer Jane hired.”

“It’s the top lawyer from AD Firm, Andy. He’s personally taking Jane’s case.”

“Huh?”

Even Jack had heard about Andy before.

After going into a brief daze, he promptly opened the court summons to check it.

It was really Andy.

“When did Jane get to know Andy? How could she convince Andy to fight her case?”

Considering Andy’s fame in the industry, he probably had cases lined up for two years.

Money alone was not enough if people wanted to hire Andy. They also had to be on close terms with him.

On one occasion, the CEO of a major listed company tried to hire Andy to fight a case for 100 million dollars, but Andy said no and told the CEO to queue up just like everyone else.

At this moment, something dawned on Jack and Anna.

They realized they knew very little about their so-called biological daughter.

Or rather...

They knew nothing about her.

Read Novel No Way Back Chapter 38

No Way Back Chapter 38-Jane was at the University of Oricle.

Even though she had passed Prof. Henderson’s test and did not have to attend his class, she still had to attend classes for some subjects.

After she was done attending a required course, she wanted to have lunch with Lila.

Some students happened to pass by “Peter took leave to rest at home, so he’s not at school.

“From the looks of it, what happened yesterday is true then Peter even suddenly fainted.”

“Larry was the first one to find out and carry Peter to the school clinic Hist family came as well.”

“After all, Peter’s little sister stole his glory. He is a proud man, so I doubt he took it well.”

"Doesn't it make Jane's situation at home very awkward? She has just returned to the family and hardly knows them, but she did this to Peter

"I saw Maddie at school today. A tall muscular man brought her here I think it was her fifth brother. However, Jane was nowhere to be seen at all."

After the incident at the canteen the day before, Dwayne and the Fowler family put pressure on it and suppressed the news, so no students dared to gossip.

Jane had already severed ties with the Fowler family, but not a lot of people knew about it yet.

"Hey! Stop it! Jane is right over there!"

Someone shouted when they spotted Jane. The man promptly lowered his head and quickly left.

A look of disdain emerged in Jane's eyes. "That useless man."

She managed to surpass him only once, but he acted as though it was life. and death and kicked a huge fuss over it.

Jane could not believe her biological brother could do this to her.

In the past, Jane wanted to die. She developed depression and tried to kill herself, and he was the cause of her problems.

*She used to admire Peter a lot, but she now found him absolutely *****.*

"Enough. Janie, forget about the Fowler family Every time you get involved with them, it does not turn out well.

Can we just go? Otherwise, the limited edition hotdogs will get sold out

"You're right. Come on."

When they got to the canteen, Jane and Lila queued up to get food.

Meanwhile, a silhouette noticed Jane's presence and voluntarily walked over.

"Janie..."

It was Maddie.

Maddie looked at Jane sweetly, her eyes looking misty. She also looked graceful and beautiful. She seemed very likable.

She was wearing the latest limited edition couture and had the airs of a member of high society.

It was not easy to get a hold of limited edition couture. They were only available by reservation, and only their best clients had access to them. Naturally, it was nothing to the Fowler family.

Designer brands naturally ingratiated themselves with the Fowler family. Whenever the opportunity arose, they would offer them designer products. Maddie could get her hands on those products even without trying very hard.

The Fowler family automatically took care of Maddie's wardrobe, purses, and shoes. They ensured she had access to the latest season's fashion every year.

Jack, Anna, and each brother would give Maddie one item each.

Maddie had so many luxury products that they could fill the entire floor.

Maddie donated most of the unused past season items to charity.

As for Jane

She had a pair of decent-quality jeans, which were well-worn and faded.

from washing.

She also had new pair of  women's shoes worth a few hundred dollars.

Her coat also did not look like a designer product.

There was no room for comparison between the biological and foster daughters of the Fowler family.

Based on the cost of the clothes, Maddie surpassed Jane any day

If no one knew better, they might think Jane was the Fowler family's foster daughter.

Maddie seemed more like the biological daughter of the Fowler family. In a word, the differential treatment Jane suffered was simply appalling. The only thing Jane could compare with Maddie was her face.

Jane had a very exquisite face.

She was blessed by the maker, who had personally etched each line when he made her.

She had inherited all of Jack's and Anna's best DNA.

Jane was even better looking than any of her seven brothers.

Ever since Jane showed up, Maddie started getting worried.

Even though Jane hated her face, nothing could be changed about it. Whenever people looked at Jane, they were reminded of Jack and Anna. She also looked like a cool big sister.

Jane had moved on from her family problems and focused on herself. Now she was her cool and confident self. She was no longer the strange unapproachable woman.

Maddie was clearly one of those people who had trouble controlling her tear ducts.

The moment someone touched her, tears would flow from her eyes automatically.

She also could not compare to Jane in terms of height and aura.

She resembled a petite princess who needed protection and love.

This type of woman was good at triggering a man's desire to protect. She was able to seem vulnerable and adorable, making men want to indulge her and give her everything she wanted.

Jane and Maddie were polar opposites in every way.

People attracted to Maddie were naturally not attracted to Jane since Jane had an imposing aura.

The opposite held true. People attracted to Jane did not like sensitive vulnerable women. In a word, they did not like fragile women.

Maddie voluntarily greeted her.

Jane did not seem to hear her.

She did not even bother to cast a look at Maddie

Lila held Jane's hand without looking at Maddie either

Lila initially did not have a bad impression of Maddie.

When she found out Jane was the Fowler family's long-lost biological daughter and finally reunited with her family, Lila naturally paid attention to the family.

Maddie was a freshman in the art department at the University of Oricle. Shortly after joining the school, she caused quite a commotion.

She was pretty and adorable. She also was the Fowler family's foster daughter, whom they indulged.

Countless people fawned over her for that.

Lila also noticed Maddie.

Even if Jane returned to the family, the foster daughter would probably treat Jane well and try to get along without doing anything funny.

At the Porsche showroom, even though Maddie's words seemed innocent enough on the surface, they were intended to trigger Dwayne and speak ill of Jane.

*On the surface, she was concerned about Jane and kept asking her to come home to the Fowler family. In reality, she was putting Jane down *****.*

Jane also got accused of being a thief without any proof at all.

It quickly wore out any good impression Lila had of Maddie.

They did not have any real evidence. Otherwise, Lila would have undoubtedly torn through Maddie's façade and exposed her.

Everyone in the Fowler family was blind. They were from a powerful background and assumed they knew it all.

They grew up together, but no one caught on to Maddie's pretense all these years. It went to show that Maddie was a very accomplished actress.

The Fowler family's blind eye and double standards were simply terrible. Everyone could not help feeling nosy as they watched the scene unfold.

It was a face-off between the biological and foster daughters of the Fowler family.

Nothing was more interesting than this.

Judging from Jane's attitude...

She treated Maddie as though she were nothing but air.

From the looks of it, the biological daughter of the Fowler family did not get along with the foster daughter.

Even though they were among outsiders, Jane did not even bother to pretend to be close to Maddie.

"Janie... I get it. I know you don't like me, but I have something to say to you. Please will you listen to me and stop ignoring me?"

"If I have done something wrong, you can give it to me straight. You can even hit and scold me if you like."

"Whatever you do, Janie, please don't ignore me. You're making me scared and upset."

Read Novel No Way Back Chapter 39

No Way Back Chapter 39-Maddie looked very pitiful as she spoke to Jane.

She looked like a miserable puppy about to be abandoned from its home.

As she spoke, tears brimmed in Maddie's eyes. They looked very red. Her tears looked like they might cascade down her face at any moment. The people around them promptly fell for it and felt sorry for her "Whatever it is, the Fowler family adopted Maddie. Jane just reunited with her family, but she can't wait to drive Maddie away. Isn't she ?" "People develop relationships even with dogs, let alone humans. The Fowler family raised Maddie all of these years. Does Jane feel worried about her status in the family?"

"I think she's just doing it out of jealousy and doesn't like Maddie. She gives Maddie a hard time just because she is related to the Fowler family by blood. She just wants to drive Maddie out of the family."

"I did not expect her to be so wicked by nature. Hmph. Does it matter if she has talent? She has no character and is underhanded by nature."

Everyone started to defend Maddie and made harsh remarks about Jane. Maddie stood where she was with her head lowered biting her lip. She clenched her fists as she cried indignantly.

Her shoulders kept moving as she cried. She looked as though she had suffered great indignance.

*“Have you had enough? You * Do you have to be so ***?”*

Before Jane was able to speak, Lila could not contain herself.

She must have been blind in the past. She found it unfathomable why she could not see through Maddie’s pretense in the past.

Lila even used to think Maddie was innocent and kind by nature. Oh god.

Lila really wanted to punch her old self for ever thinking this way.

Lila must have been crazy for feeling that way about Maddie.

“L... Lila... I am really not pretending.

Maddie shook her head urgently as tears trickled down her face. Her hesitant stammering voice was bright and clear and capable of striking a chord with people, making people want to defend her.

“What do you mean no? You keep crying every time you speak. Just because men fall for your superficial acting, do you think women will do the same?

*No wonder people say you do not have any female friends. I did not believe. it at first, but now I do. No one likes *****.”*

Lila attacked Maddie without holding back.

In reality, women were far better at identifying . Maddie was genuinely very popular with men at the University of Oricle. However, she was not popular with the ladies.

*After all, women were not a fan of women who cried all the time and acted weak and vulnerable. It promptly set off women’s radars for *****.*

If anyone touched or offended her, everyone would think they were Maddie, which made them look like bad people.

Women wanted to stay as far away from Maddie as they could.

It was true some women were blind and incapable of seeing this and ended. up falling for Maddie’s lies, but most women could see through her act.

A lot of the women present agreed with Lila.

“Oh god. Doesn’t she know what generation we are in? Does she have to cry over everything?”

“Jane just does not want to talk to her. Does she have to look so hurt and miserable? Is it a big deal?”

“Just listen to her tone.  it. It’s making me nauseous. Even the evil female supporting roles in novels don’t disgust me. as much.”

“Only men get fooled by her acts. She is so  that I can smell it from here.”

The moment the women gossiped about Maddie, the men could not take it.

“We genuinely think Maddie is very pitiful. What do you mean by fooled?”

“Maddie is Jane’s little sister and trying to talk to her. Jane doesn’t give a hoot about her and even wants to drive her away. This is so wrong.”

“I’m  of listening to you girls blaming the victim. Girls can be so petty.” Everything was about to go out of control when Jane finally spoke.

“What do you want? Maddie, if you want to continue making things look bad, I really don’t mind.

“After all, I have already severed ties with the Fowler family. You are the daughter of the family. If the family embarrasses themselves, you will suffer the same fate as well.”

Jane spoke nonchalantly. She blatantly admitted that she had already severed ties with the Fowler family and had nothing to do with them.

Everyone went into complete silence.

“Huh?”

“Did we hear wrong?”

Maddie looked awkward.

She used to be very good at this, but she did not expect her usual ploys to fail with Jane.

Usually, people would try to pull Maddie away by now.

When the time came, Maddie would then cry a little more and turn to walk off sadly.

She could leave the impression that the foster daughter of the Fowler family was bullied and disregarded by the newly found biological daughter. Unexpectedly, Lila got involved. The effect of her plans got severely watered down.

“Janie, I know you’re just saying that because you’re angry. Can we talk, please? I have something important to say to you.”

Maddie continued acting flawlessly. She acted as though she wanted to approach her older sister but was ignored and helpless.

Everyone caught on to something.

Jane was deliberately trying to make Maddie upset, so she said she had severed ties with the Fowler family.

Jane could not be bothered exposing Maddie’s lies. She did not care what unknown people felt about her situation. She glanced at her watch to check the time and said nonchalantly with one hand in her pocket, “Fine. You have 10 minutes.”

“Janie, don’t go. Why are you talking to her?”

Lila pulled Jane back as she glared at Maddie.

Maddie was an evil woman. If she wanted to talk to Jane, she had to be up to no good.

Maddie shrank her neck and looked intimidated by Lila.

It looked as though Lila was a big bad  and Maddie was being pushed around by her.

“It’s okay. Lila, help me get some food, will you? You know what I like.”

Jane looked at Lila assuringly.

“Let’s go.”

“Thank you so much, Janie...”

After Jane and Maddie went to a remote place, Jane stood in front while Maddie stood behind.

Maddie secretly pressed a button while Jane was not paying attention to her.

Maddie broke the silence and said in a sad and weak tone, “Janie...”

"Maddie, stop pretending already. Are you not tired of wearing a mask and pretending every single day?"

Jane turned around and looked at Maddie coldly.

"I have already severed ties with the Fowler family. Don't you already have what you want?"

"You put everything up on social media, bribed the news editor-in-chief, and provided the photos. You made the Fowler family misunderstand me and drive me out.

"I have already given you what you want. You will always be the daughter of the Fowler family, and they hate me to the core. In the future, they will never share the inheritance with me either. Why do you have to continue provoking me?"

Maddie promptly looked flustered. Tears welled in her eyes. She shook her head and said, "Janie... you're mistaken. I don't know what you mean at all. I was not behind this at all."

"Not you? Do you think Jack doesn't know the truth? He's the Emeritus Chairman of the Fowler Corporation. He has the money and connections! He must know there's more to this. I wasn't the culprit, and the editor-in-chief was bribed. I'm sure he'll secretly investigate this. Maddie, how long do you think you can go on hiding?"

Maddie promptly felt startled and afraid inside.

Jane was spot on. She had struck Maddie's greatest worry.

She was afraid Jack would investigate the problem.

If Jane took the fall for the entire thing like an  as planned, she would not have to worry now.

Unfortunately, Jane exposed the editor-in-chief's lies, told Jack someone else was the mastermind, and proved it was not her.

If Jack genuinely continued investigating this...

"Janie, I think this is just a misunderstanding. I really didn't do it. I swear."

"I do not need anything from you. Maddie, you must know that Jack has discovered something wrong, but didn't continue investigating.

“As for the reason he stopped investigating, you know exactly why he did it. Jack found out there was a traitor in the Fowler family and it was an inside job.

“If I got driven out of the Fowler family, who stood to gain the most in the family? Jack did not spill the truth only in an attempt to save you.”

As Jane spoke, she approached Maddie confidently.

Maddie’s face looked increasingly awkward.

Jane had genuinely hit Maddie’s weaknesses.

Maddie was unable to retort.

“Janie, I know we have a deep misunderstanding between us. However, I’m sure you will know one day I’m not a bad person.

“I am here today to tell you to return to the Fowler family and apologize to our parents. They really want you back, but they could not lower themselves to say it aloud.

“After you fell out with our parents, everyone has been very upset. Our happy family is now very cold and quiet. Please, Janie. Can you come back?

“If you are willing to come back home and apologize, I promise I will pack my luggage immediately and leave home. I will stay far, far away from you and leave you in peace.”

Read Novel No Way Back Chapter 40

No Way Back Chapter 40-Maddie spoke in a very sincere tone to Jane.

She looked genuinely sincere and seemed to mean what she said.

In reality, Maddie planned to do just that.

She planned to retreat and compromise on the surface.

Considering the terms, she was confident Jane would sway and take her up on it.

After Jane returned to the Fowler family, Maddie would leave...

This was the crucial part of her plans.

Ever since she returned, she watched as Dwayne and Peter slowly got influenced by her.

Maddie knew inside that if she did not take out Jane in one fell swoop, she might make a comeback one day and bite back at her.

Maddie watched as Jane remained quiet. For a moment, she thought Jane was considering the offer seriously.

Maddie wiped the tears from her face and said in an imploring tone, "Janie, I was just a random girl from the orphanage. I was very lucky to meet the Fowler family in this life. I have spent 18 blissful years in the family, and it's enough for me. The title of the daughter of the family does not belong to me, so I am going to return it to you now. Please, come back with me."

"Oh really now..."

Jane dragged the last syllable deliberately as she spoke.

She cast a mocking look at Maddie.

"You are a good actress, but I am going to say no."

"What the? Why?"

Maddie could not help feeling dumbstruck by Jane's reaction.

"No?"

"Why did Jane say no?"

Jane would have died for an opportunity like this.

"First, I have genuinely severed ties with the Fowler family, and I meant every word I said. I am disgusted by the fact that I am related to them by blood.

"Second, Maddie, I have to admit you are very good at acting and even the Fowler family eats every word you say. However, it is useless on me. I know what you are doing, so you can save your efforts."

*Jane had to admit that Maddie was very good at acting ***.*

In a word, it was completely flawless. She was worthy of getting an Oscar for it.

Otherwise, why would the Fowler family fail to see through Maddie's pretense?

Jane was not like them.

In her past life, she paid the price with her life.

Maddie had plotted against her and threw her in the fire, and she burned to death alive.

“Your plan to compromise is very smart. If you left the Fowler family, everyone would just think I drove you away and blame me for it. The family would hate me for it and do everything they could to make up for it and bring you home.

“When the time came, I would end up with nothing. As for you, you would appear like a pitiful princess, and your knights would come after you and bring you home.”

“Janie, you are wrong about me. What do I have to do to make you believe me?”

“One more thing.”

Jane was *of seeing Maddie’s pretense and interrupted her promptly.

“I don’t care about being the daughter of the Fowler family at all.

“If you want it, you can have it.

“Enough. Your 10 minutes are up. I am leaving.”

Jane glanced at her watch and checked the time and tutted softly.

Maddie had even gone over time.

By talking to Maddie, she was unable to get what she wanted.

It also was a waste of her lunchtime.

Jane felt Maddie was not entirely ****.

She knew she could not expose the truth. Maddie knew her plot had failed now.

She gritted her teeth as she thought. Jane had unexpectedly gotten smart.

She had offered her place as the daughter of the Fowler family, but she did not fall for it.

Maddie wanted to just let Jane leave, but she happened to see familiar silhouettes.

She did not at first believe her eyes, but it was really them.

“Janie, please. I beg you...”

Maddie suddenly shouted and came toward Jane.

Jane instinctively avoided her.

However, Maddie started to cry loudly, even though she had failed to get Jane.

Maddie fell to the ground altogether.

Crack!

She had sprained her foot and was in agony.

“Maddie!”

Jack and Dwayne’s voices were heard.

They hurriedly went up beside Maddie.

“Maddie, are you okay?”

“No, I’m not. I sprained my foot...”

Jane smiled coldly as she watched her act.

Maddie was undoubtedly a natural at acting.

Everywhere she went, she had to act.

“Daddy, Dwayne, what are you doing here?”

In reality, Maddie had already seen them.

Maddie did not understand what Jack and Dwayne were doing at the University of Oricle out of the blue.

“We can talk about it some other time...”

“Jane Fowler!”

Jack stood up and glared at Jane in fury.

“How dare you *Maddie? Do we look dead to you?”

“Apologize to Maddie this instant!”

Dwayne helped Maddie up and looked at Jane with a livid expression on his face as well.

Maddie was the favorite in the Fowler family, so everyone treated her dearly.

They would kick a fuss over her even if a single hair fell from her head.

This time, they witnessed Jane pushing Maddie down with their own eyes spraining her foot.

They naturally wanted to seek justice for Maddie.

“Huh? Apologize? Jack, you can dream on.

“I really wonder how you managed to run the Fowler Corporation all this time. Do you leave all the heavy lifting and work to women?”

In comparison, Anna was a lot better at handling business than the rash. Jack.

For years, Anna was the best closer in the business world. She worked with Jack to help expand the Fowler Corporation. It eventually became a powerhouse in Stormton City and even throughout Cruksia.

After she gave birth to children, since the company was progressing steadily, Anna retreated from the front line.

Anna contributed greatly to Fowler Corporation’s current high status.

Naturally, everyone had an Achilles’ heel.

Anna had a weakness as well. Anna always spoke harshly when she threw a temper.

She was just like Dwayne.

“Jane Fowler!”

Jack finally could not bear Jane’s repeated mocking and insults.

His face turned livid as he hurled a slap at Jane.

He had to teach this annoying daughter a lesson.

“Daddy, no don’t...”

Maddie promptly pretended to be the savior. She ran up in front of her father and blocked Jane off.

Jack was not in time to stop, so the slap landed on Maddie's face instead. Pah!

The slap sounded bright and crisp.

Maddie fell to the ground from the blow. Her face instantly swelled up and turned red. His handprint could be clearly seen.

"Maddie!"

When Jack saw Maddie charging out to block the slap for Jane, he felt sorry for her. "Why did you do that?"

"Daddy, I fell accidentally on my own and sprained myself. It had nothing to do with Janie. Don't misunderstand her..."

"Janie, why don't you just go? Daddy is angry now. As for me leaving the Fowler family, we can talk about it some other time."

"What did you just say?"

Dwayne sensed something amiss and promptly asked, "Maddie, what did you say about leaving the Fowler family? What is going on?"

"Oh... no... I..."

Maddie realized she misspoke and lowered her head hesitantly.

Dwayne glared at Jane in fury.

"Jane Fowler, what did you say to Maddie?"

"If you dare to touch and hurt Maddie, I swear I will chop you up into a thousand little pieces."

"Haha!"

Jane could not resist laughing and even clapped.

A mocking smile appeared on her face.

This has been a good show. Every single one of you is . This is simply mind-blowing.

"You shouldn't run a company. Why don't you enter the entertainment industry instead? I'm sure you can get all the acting awards out there since your acting is so good. This is simply hilarious!"

Jane did not understand why she did not realize that the people from the Fowler family were great comedians.

They could open an amusement park and make everyone from the Fowler family act as clowns inside.

She was certain it would quickly become the most popular amusement park in the world.

"Jane Fowler, don't you even regret your actions the slightest by now? After all of the things you have done to hurt Maddie, she still blocked the blow and made excuses for you! Don't you feel bad about that?"

"I do not know what I have done to deserve an unfilial daughter like you! You can't compare to Maddie at all. She is kind and innocent, but you are pure evil and even want to sue your own father!"

"Will you only stop after embarrassing the Fowler family completely?"

Jack gritted his teeth in anger.