

O Summoner 741

Chapter 741 - Pendragon I

Pendragon is someone that is actually not that famous when the game started unlike the other members of his team. He only gained his fame when he clashed with a certain guild and that is Infernum. Despite him and Siegfried now being team members in the national team to represent their country, they actually have bad blood.

Siegfried does not want to admit it, but he will definitely lose if he goes face to face with Pendragon. The fact that Pendragon himself took care of the elite team of Infernum without the help of other players has earned him lots of respect.

The sword that is on Pendragon's back is the sword that she managed to snatch from the Infernum guild. It is a special sword that can only be bestowed to one player at a time. A sword that is safeguarded by the Lady of the Lake. A sword that is from another world called Camelot which is set on a medieval world where magic is despised and treated as the root of all evil.

Pendragon is just like any player that got hooked upon the game's promotional motto of 'Be who you wanna be' vibe. He is just a normal college student that has no determination in his life or something that he wants to become.

He actually started Pandemonium with the intention of finding himself. He does not know what direction in life he wants to take but he wanted to be more. He is hoping that diving to a virtual reality game will get him the answer that he desperately wants to find.

He did not immediately get the answer as he was not that great at the game in the beginning. Even swinging a sword became something difficult for him as he had not great talent for it. Still, he did not give up immediately and treated Pandemonium as a real breathing world. If he wants to find his real self, then he must also treat the world he is in now as a real world.

When he changed his mindset, it is when he got the opportunity of finding a medallion that had the carving of Y Ddraig Goch. Its literal translation in English is 'The Red Dragon'. Something that signifies strength beyond measure and immense power.

The NPC that gave him that medallion suddenly disappeared when he raised his head. He is left wondering what that item is, but it is actually the culmination of his efforts that led to him getting that. He did not give up on finding himself which also benefited him in the end as he helped other find themselves.

He stayed in a rather secluded village northwest of the central continent as that is where he got randomly transported after the tutorial. Unlike other players that immediately leave the town when they cleared the mission of the village chief, he stayed there and really learned of the locals (In other words NPCs).

The NPCs in the village are what you call not that welcoming but they will not turn you away if you strike a conversation. Still, players are impatient to explore the vast world and not really dive into it which is why Pendragon is different from the other players.

He became known by every villager in the village that even the dog that guards the village chief's house does not bark at him. He immersed himself in the ambience of the village that they feared that he will not grow if he does not go outside the village to explore the world.

He is actually one of the few players that managed to elevate their Persona to a Hero. The villager's love and affection towards him have given him something that cannot be easily given. Players did not notice this but villages in Pandemonium where they get transported after the tutorial are also very special as they have few hidden secrets.

Players are actually given the chance to either spawn randomly into a city or a village. Those that choose a village number to about 10% of the total player base but only 1% of them get something really great from those villages. The thing that gets from the villages might start weak, but they become powerful later in the game.

This is a testament to Pendragon's strength now as a player. In the end, Pendragon found himself as a person by living for others and connecting with others. In return, he got the special item in the village called The Red Dragon Medallion and a sword handle stuck to a sheath.

He thought that the sword handle and sheath is a joke, but he does not want to refuse the good will of the villagers. He accepted the gifts they have given him as they told him to embark on a journey in order to strengthen himself. They also told him that he should only come back when he finds a blade for the sword handle.

Pendragon did just that and embarked on a journey to find a blade suitable for the sword handle. He thought that he just needed to visit another town or city as the village did not have a blacksmith capable of making a heavy sword. The first blade that he attached to the sword handle disappeared overnight every time that he sheaths it.

This happened multiple times that he thought that someone is stealing the blade from him until he tipped the sheath upside down and molten metal ran down. The blade melted and did not disappear which made Pendragon think that the sheath is cursed yet he never feels the heat when he holds the sheath.

He did not want to let the villagers down and returning with the excuse that the sheath is melting the blade. He studied the sword handle and sheath given to him and found its properties after traveling to find mystics of the world that can identify the items given to him.

Overtime, his strength rose along with his level as he went to places that are not even on the official map of the world. In the end, he only found the answer from a small tribe of power mystic warriors in the southeast.

The answer that they gave him is that the blade was always there.. He has yet to see it with his own eyes.

Chapter 743 - Pendragon III

Pendragon learned that the villagers were actually from the world called Camelot and has always despised magic. They did not despise magic because of the power it can do but those that abuse it in order to hurt other people.

Pendragon himself knew that magic is not evil but only those that misuse it. The people in the village were actually knights of a kingdom in Camelot called Uther. They served the king with a burning passion until his wicked stepsister turned to dark sorcery to take over the kingdom.

They escaped accidentally using a portal to Nebulon that has been hidden by the royal family as a way to escape their world if it ever gets taken over by the dark ones. The dark ones mentioned in the tales of Camelot is none other than the dark gods as they have visited that world before but failed in conquering it.

Pendragon decided to go to Camelot and aid the family that he has gained in the main world. He used the exact same portal or rather spatial fracture that the Camelot residents used to escape from that world.

Pendragon managed to reunite with the villagers that he has grown to love but they said that he was too weak with just Caliburn. He needed a sword that he can use for the battle against Morgan Le Fay. A sword so sturdy that it will never break even with the application of magic.

It is then he met Infernum when he took the journey to find the mysterious Lady of the Lake. A being that is said to inhabit a lake in a special place that no one can easily gain entrance to. It is said that she is also an enchantress, but others call her a fallen goddess.

Fallen goddess or not, Pendragon heeded the advice that is given to him as ordinary swords do not satisfy his sword style. He needed something that can fit him perfectly and something that will never break as all the ordinary swords always break when he wields them with his mastery.

It is when Pendragon was looking for the Lady of the Lake when he encountered Infernum with Siegfried leading them. It seems that they were able to enter Camelot using another spatial fracture and is also in search for a special sword that never breaks.

When Infernum knew what Pendragon's aim they had as encountered each other often times, they told him to not go after the weapon that they are also aiming for. Infernum did not threaten Pendragon, but they did tell him that he would have no chance against them if a fight were to ensue.

Pendragon did not bother debating with them as the Lady of the Lake will only choose someone worthy to take the sword that never breaks. When Infernum noticed how determined Pendragon was in finding the sword, some of the higher officials of the guild could not take it anymore and vowed to kill him.

In the end, they were the ones who were slaughtered as one swing of Caliburn destroyed 80% of the 300 people strong army of Infernum. The remaining 20% are none other than the officials that were a bit tanky but still got immense damage.

"If you value your experience points then I must warn you to go scurry along because I need that sword." Pendragon stated as he stored the blade handle back to the sheath as the condensed heat blade has dissipated.

In the end, Infernum got beaten to a pulp while on Live and their reputation took a hit. Pendragon on the other hand became immensely famous as the person who took down a guild on his own.

Although a bit exaggerated, it is not really that wrong to say that he took down 300 people from a high-ranking guild by himself.

The Lady of the Lake witnessed the fight that happened on the shores of her lake. She admired the tenacity and heart that Pendragon exhibited but she still needed to challenge him. The Lady of the Lake or the Land Deity called Nimueh battled the player called Pendragon.

In the end, Pendragon got defeated but he exhibited what it takes to be able to wield one of the best swords in Pandemonium. The sword with the name of Excalibur. The sword that can never be broken no matter what hits it. Even a demigod blacksmith will not be able to dent the sword as it is something forged by the gods themselves.

Nimueh actually became intrigued by Pendragon that he also has one of the best swords which is the Sword of Extreme Heat Caliburn as his weapon. She became so intrigued that she decided to become the ego of the sword, Excalibur, in order to follow Pendragon on his journey but her real body is still present in the hidden lake.

It is not because she is bored that she joined Pendragon on his adventures and helping him driving away the evil enchantress called Morgan Le Fay.

"You should use more of my power Pendragon. You would be able to finish them off if you do." Nimueh telepathically stated as she saw that Caliburn's strike is not enough to finish off the Twin Blades.

"I am not going to use your power just yet and Caliburn's strike is not that powerful yet as I used it earlier in full power. It will take time before I am able to do a powerful strike once again. But simple swordplay would be enough for the both of them." Pendragon stated as the Twin Blades actually managed to survive the attack from Caliburn.

The Twin Blades looked ragged and about to get killed but they did not retreat. As they were about to attack another time and use Sword Aura. An incoming spell is hurled towards Merlin that is protecting the flag. It seems that a spell caster is hiding some place near them.

Another group has arrived and attacked everyone in the area. It is then a notification appeared that did not please Pendragon or Merlin.

Chapter 745 - Stolen Flags II

The screens focused on different players, but they only focused on those that are battling or being tailed. Although each player has a dedicated holographic screen, the audience would rather focus on the big fights than those not doing anything.

This gave those that need to set-up a great time as they could plant all the things they needed. Zahnrad placed all of his traps and even his prototype traps that have yet been tested around them. Since it is Magitech, he scanned the magical signature that all of his team members possessed so that they will not be able to trigger the traps.

Each being in Pandemonium has a unique magical signature that is attached to them which is why it is not easy to fool someone in Pandemonium. This is one of the reasons why people could easily identify bandits since every gate has a magical signature detector. Those with records of having a bounty stay far away from cities in order to not get identified.

This cutting-edge magic is actually adapted from the magic spell called Synergy. This technology is actually the result of an elf and a gnome working together. It is to say that not all elves are practicing their old ways as some want to innovate. This just goes to show that you will never really be like your family or ancestors if you do not want to be.

There is another one that audiences have neglected and is the most dangerous of them all when no one pays attention. A player with a hidden job class called Trap Expert which is a job class enhancement of the scout class.

It is a special type of job class that is great in setting up traps and triggered spells. It is a mix between a magician and a scout as the traps they use are all magic based. They are the most dangerous people in a battlefield this wide and people could easily become complacent. This Trap Expert is actually from the Philippine National team and her name is Dupe.

She is one of the reliable members of the Philippine National Team as they are only two of them. Apolaki and her are the only team members that got in because of their skills while the others are there because of recommendation or are famous streamers despite not being top tier players.

Dupe is a person with a same gift as Adrian as she could easily see all the points of the battlefield. This is the most prized talent that a Trap Expert could have as they are heavily reliant on the flow of the surroundings. The most surprising thing that she could do is the ability to create traps in the air.

Usually magic that is fixed on a surrounding needs conduit or being engraved or else the magic will dissipate. This is the reason why Adrian's Quantum Spacemines use a lot of mana despite being a low-class spell. Those magic that are placed will dissipate overtime as mana is still a type of energy and energy needs to either flow or dissipate.

Dupe's traps last for about an hour and a half before they start to dissipate which is ten times more than other mages. Her traps include a multitude of things as long as she has the mana to create them. She created Wind Blast Traps on the air to deter those flying towards their base.

She created Clutching Vine traps for those that want to attempt climbing the tree where they keep their flag. On the ground, she created pitfall traps so that those that escape through there could be ambushed. She also tagged her team members as 'Ghosts' since they must not trigger the traps that she set.

Her job class is basically a scout job class to counter other scout job classes. She did not do well in the first round because her traps are basically useless against natural disasters and the like. She is not made to deal with quick battles as she excels more on combat that required long periods of time.

She told herself that she will redeem herself because her family is watching back home since only, she could come to this event as she is not that well off like her other team members. She desperately tried to enter this contest as the ones that will represent the country will get cash incentives just by participating.

She also wants to jumpstart her streaming career as no one really watches her play much as she is not one to act cute in front of the camera. In fact, she is dressed like a street dancer with a mask that looks like it was painted with fire. Others never really expected much from her, but this map is basically like her domain.

A player from another national team walked perfectly into her pitfall trap and got sent crashing down the bottom. When he reached the bottom, the spring fall trap activated that sent him flying towards the sky where several air blast traps activated. The air blast traps killed him in the process with Dupe waiting for the flag to drop to her hands and tap it on their flag.

[Philippine National Team has earned 1 point.]

Her team actually earned the first point thanks to her ingenious positioning of traps. All her traps are perfectly placed so that it activates without delay and is unforgiving to those who are caught. This process happened for five times which made the other national teams afraid of even attempting to cross the center of the jungle.

"They are no fun at all. Then again, I guess it is time that I go out and extend my domain." Dupe muttered as she placed lots of traps in the area around their base. She also told the three to protect the base as she will need to set up traps. Thankfully, the three understood their position when they got easily wiped out in the first round.. Even they want to win this event and gain glory for their country.

Chapter 746 - Stolen Flags III

Each of the advance team or scouts for each national teams have started their assaults on the flags of other teams. The ones that had the most action is those located in the jungle area as they are the hardest to defend and is the annex for all the areas in the second event.

The area that became the most dangerous is the center of the jungle area where a great tree is located. All the players that actually tried fleeing there or wanted to get the flag of that team got greeted by different traps that can kill them as the traps triggered like a chain reaction.

Those in the same area started to fight for the flags and the battle became messy as there are those who also waited for that opportunity. They did not care if they fight to the death as the respawn timer gave them a better chance in getting the flag of the opposing team.

A national team even got wiped out and the other players learned of something important. The respawn timer of the team members is dependent on the shortest one. A normal respawn is about five minutes but that is not true for the succeeding player that died in that five-minute mark.

They learned of this as they noticed that the two players that they killed from a team respawned at the same time despite them being killed by a two-minute interval. This information became crucial for all of the players as they could use this tactic in their favor.

This is the first time that a top player would use their deaths as an advantage as they always avoided being killed. Those that have suicidal skills used them when they find out information pertaining their opponents in order to respawn faster. The national team players are literally throwing themselves into the fire.

Not all of the players do this but all of them would if they are left with no choice. There are only twenty flags, and each flag will be difficult to steal. The ones that they are fearful of are the duo of Sveto and Anastacia as the two are practically invincible when together.

Any team that they target will have their flag stolen and they will even lay waste to their opponent. The only ones they are wary about is the middle part of the jungle that earned the name of 'Sure Death Zone'.

Even though Sveto is a living tank, Anastacia would also need to be worried as she might also trigger a trap. The two wanted to get that flag but decided to not bother when they saw a tank player die in a matter of seconds. Whoever managed to calculate the trajectory of each trap and it even accounted for the weight of the player is definitely a genius.

The ones dominating the south are definitely the Japan National Team because of the deadly combination of Blade, Vayu and Mariposa. The United States National Team that they encountered are putting up a good fight against them but someone from the South Korean Team wiped them out using a sandstorm.

The two teams dropped two flags each when they died during the sandstorm. They did not even notice that a sandstorm suddenly rolled in and the next thing they knew is that they are dead. Vayu on the other hand had an idea on who it might be as he heard a familiar giggle. He knows that giggle came from one his companions.

Vayu knew that Creepysoo is also in the desert and even he is not confident if he were to battle his undead knights. The fact that Creepysoo has an undead that can control sand is already an indicator that he practically owned the desert at this point.

Vayu knows how Creepysoo could empower undead just by existing. He is also not easy to deal with because of his undead knights that are named. He does not remember if Creepysoo has an undead that used sand, but Vayu just thought that he might have raised it from the dead. He did see other necromancers having undead with them despite not having any type of monster in this map.

The fight for the flags is not just focused on other people invading the base camps of the other teams but also stealing from those that stole. The fights that broke up became the highlight of the audience as they can see the players that they look up to in an all-out brawl.

The audience also cheered as they could see interesting characters among the players as each had their own quirk. They did not expect that a Trap Expert would actually be the reason why her team is leading in points despite being from a relatively unknown background.

"Seriously, why do all the strong contenders choose the desert as their base. It is breaking my heart that we barely have any point." Cersei stated as she grumbled because she needed to defend the base from other people. She is constantly using illusion magic in order to conceal their location. If anyone in the game is the best in illusion magic, then it is Cersei.

She is also great at defending the team from attacks as her curses are strong, but she is not great when it comes to invading. She is the perfect guard but that will not take them anywhere as her other team members are not that great at getting flags.

A while later, Cersei saw a familiar figure that any player would dread as she was the former second rank player that is now in the third rank. The figure of the beautiful Valkyrie could be seen emerging from the sands which sent chills down Cersei's spine.

"Of all the players that I must encounter, it just had to be one of those monsters." Cersei stated as she could see the figure of Frey. She is notorious for being very skilled in battles against players.. She even has a class that is great against humanoids.

Chapter 747 - The Witch Versus The Valkyrie I

The figure of the beautiful Valkyrie could be seen emerging from the sands which sent chills down Cersei's spine.

"Of all the players that I must encounter, it just had to be one of those monsters." Cersei stated as she could see the figure of Frey. She is notorious for being very skilled in battles against players. She even has a class that is great against humanoids

An unexpected battle that shook the scenes emerged as two of the well-known female players are now facing each other. The Valkyrie Frey and the Witch Cersei is looking at each other in the desert. The audience focused all their attention on the two as they have never really battled against each other.

The audience believe that Cersei will lose in just ten minutes as her class is weak against frontal confrontation. It is just her bad luck that she faced with the job class that has the most gap closing skill in the game. Valkyries are experts in combat but are notoriously difficult to deal with when they are using close combat.

"You don't say that you can just turn around and forget this location, right?" Cersei stated as she gave a sexy pose to the audience watching her. Her alluring figure is definitely one of the things that garnered her attention but her true fans know what is up.

Cersei will only use sexy provocative gestures when she is serious and thinks that she has a chance at winning. Even Cersei knew this habit of hers but never really corrected it as it adds flavor to her character. She also thinks that it is possible to win against Frey because one of her team members that is a warrior is also there protecting her.

"If I play it right and get her trapped in a multitude of hexes and curses then she will eventually fall. Thank goodness that she is here alone or else I might have just let her get the flag. Heck, I might even give it to her myself and then beg her to immediately convert it to a point so that it can return back to the base." Cersei thought to herself as she already started to chant multiple curses.

Cersei is not pulling any of her punches as she immediately used the level 200 Skill that she received when she got that level. The skill that mages get when they reach level 200 is called the 'Forked Tongue' active skill. It is a skill that allows them to chant five spells at the same time as long as they have close chant times.

Cersei also got that skill but a variation of it because of her contract with a Devil God. She got the skill called 'Devil's Tongue'. It is a specialized skill for her job class that is Devil's Scion that is specialized in using hexes and curses. If the Forked Tongue skill can make one cast five spells at the same time, the Devil's Tongue skill lets the wielder cast ten hexes or spells at the same time regardless of chant or cooldown.

This is the reason why Cersei is confident of the battle against Frey as she knows that she has a fighting chance. The warrior team member that guarded Cersei looked rather nervous as he is facing the Valkyrie. The Valkyries do not have a great reputation in the battlefield if you are their enemy after all.

The Valkyries are relatively known to human society because they are a race of battle maidens that are not really completely human. In fact, Valkyries are often told to be goddesses that retained their humanity. They are also infamous for being able to foretell of those that will die in the battlefield as they will make sure of that.

"Sorry but my team needs flags at the moment. We need to recover our reputation from getting wiped in the first event. I remember that your team is one of those that ambushed us during the first event. I am just venting out my stress that is all." Frey stated as she imbued her spear with mana.

"That freaking nutjob! I told him to not antagonize the Swedish National Team as Frey is there. To think that he will be the reason for us having a difficult time here." Cersei thought to herself as the team captain of the Ukraine National Team had a grudge against one of the Swedish National Team members.

"I am just saying that you will not have it easy as you think because I will not let anyone touch this flag." Cersei stated as she knew that they would receive a point after 15 minutes.

"Let us see about that." Frey stated as she started to move like lightning, and she closed the distance between her and the warrior that is guarding Cersei.

"She is that fast without even buffing herself." Cersei thought as she is almost finished with the hexes and curses that she is casting. She is maximizing the ten hexes that she can use as the cooldown of the Devil's Tongue skill is reliant on the combined cooldown of all the spells used during that time. The next time that she can use her multicast skill will be 15 minutes.

"Debilitating Curse!"

"Weakening Curse!"

"Bleeding Hex!"

"Paralytic Hex!"

"Blinding Curse!"

"Curse of Petrification!"

"Poison Hex!"

"Drowsy Curse!"

"Confusion!"

"Delusion!"

All ten curses are applied to Frey as she suddenly became a bit sluggish. She noticed the notifications that she received are all curses and hexes. She could dispel some of them, but the others could not be easily dispelled despite her self-cleansing skill. She still had five curses applied to her despite her only Cleanse skill.

The fact that those five hexes or curse are not dispelled is due to them being high level. She actually needs to kill Cersei or stop her from applying mana to continue applying her with the curses.

"She is more troublesome than I have heard.." Frey stated as she is now thinking of a way to counter Cersei.

Chapter 748 - [Bonus ]The Witch Versus The Valkyrie II

The five hexes applied on Frey's body is making her feel sluggish and out of touch with her body movements. She already knows of Cersei as her acquaintances in Black Rose told her of a powerful witch player in the Evergreen guild that can even debilitate Boss Class monsters.

"It feels like I am fighting a female version of Eldritch but more powerful effects on curses." Frey muttered as Eldritch also uses numerous curses but not to the extent that Cersei uses them.

Eldritch focused more on instant curses that fill instantaneously lower stats for a brief period unlike Cersei's that seem like torture as the curses become more difficult to deal with more time passing by. Cersei's curses also vary in intensity and effect that they overlap perfectly.

One might think that curses and hexes can be applied on a single target as long as they are not the same, but it still falls under the rules of magic. The rule of magic that opposing elements will cancel each other out also affects the curses and hexes as they each have their attribute.

There is a reason why a person cannot be cursed with different ailments at the same time. It is the concept of something like anti-venom being created from reverse engineering the venom. Curses will cancel other curses that are the polar opposites of them. Some say that curses and blessing are just one and the same as they tend to give differing effects depending on who they are cast.

"She actually dispersed five of the curses that easily! How much more of a monster is she? Is he like Equinox that can brush off status ailments? Are Valkyries that kind of race that has immunity to status ailments or stat weakening?" Cersei thought as she immediately saw that half of the curses she applied are dispelled.

Cersei even thought that Frey might have a special body like Equinox since she knows that he can brush off curses most of the time. She did not idle as she started applying strengthening curses on her team member in order to overpower Frey while she is still weakened.

Frey noticed that the warrior she is facing started to hit heavier and become faster. If she were not affected by the curse, then she might have easily brushed him off. One thing that Frey knew is that she must target Cersei or else the curses and hexes applied to her will not be cleansed.

She knows that she must kill Cersei or stop her from channeling mana because the curses and hexes do not have a timer. The timer often indicates how long they will be affected by the curse or hex, but the screen shows that the curses and hexes are indefinite.

Frey slammed her spear on the ground and thorny vines started to sprout. The thorny vines are also had roses on them which petals scattered in the wind. The mixture of rose petals and sand fluttering in the wind is not something beautiful but it made a confusing scenery which made Cersei and her team member lose focus for just a moment.

Actually, they did not lose focus because they got distracted but due to the skill effect that Frey triggered. Frey managed to trigger the 10% chance to captivate the opponent for two seconds. It makes the opponent lose focus on their surroundings and this chance increases if her enemies are extremely focused.

Frey got released from the curses that is casted on her body as Cersei lost control for a second. The curses and hexes did not immediately get washed away as they exploded to deal miniature damage upon her. This is an effect of Cersei's Hexplosion that will damage the opponent when she cuts of the mana being channeled to keep up the curse.

The damage dealt to the enemy will be dependent on the amount of time that the hex is applied multiplied by her total spell power with an added bonus of the damage dealt by the initial hex. It is the most powerful spell effect that Cersei has in her arsenal besides her large mana pool.

"I admit that you are good, but I must return to the base. I will remember your name as you are someone who made me use this skill upon you. Valkyrie's Descent!" Frey stated as her whole body got covered in a dazzling light and something akin to the northern lights became her cape.

[The target cannot be cursed as they are in a Transcended State.]

Cersei tried to apply more hexes or curses on Frey but only the hexes worked on her. No status ailments affected Frey at the moment. Her figure enveloped in light is something akin to a goddess descending to the world.

"Devil Contract: Summon Aspect of Vepar!" Cersei shouted as she did not want to lose the flag at a critical time. They already got the point from the flag being planted. They just needed to make sure that it stays planted for another hour before the first half of the event finishes.

Cersei summoned a part of an aspect of her Devil God since she cannot bring a god into the world without sacrificing lots of bodies. Red lightning came down from the heavens and a fiery gate appeared before Cersei. The fiery gate burned bright as a figure emerged from it.

The aspect of the Devil God Vepar or a piece of him. Cersei could summon him before but the one she summoned back then had a childlike appearance and body. When she summoned the child looking Vepar, she also sacrificed a lot of health and mana to do so.

The version of Vepar that she summoned now is much different as he looks like a young adult. The sacrifice that Cersei made for this summon is 50% of her maximum mana and 30% of her health which is not a lot compared to before.

A combination of a handsome and cute young male stepped out of the fiery door. He would have been mistaken as a human if not for his pointed tail, bat wings and red sleek horns.. A real devil is summoned to the stadium which made the crowd go ballistic.

Chapter 749 - The Witch Versus The Valkyrie III

[An aspect of the Devil God Vepar has been summoned into the world.]

[All of the water element in the area will not be stable as it falls under the jurisdiction of the Devil God Vepar.]

[All the curses and hexes of those affiliated with Vepar will double their potency.]

Cersei summoned Vepar that looks like a teenage boy with aquamarine hair with features of devils. The only thing that is different from his depictions in books is that he looks humanoid in appearance. Vepar in books have always been depicted as a demonic mermaid because of his rule over water.

Vepar is also one of the Grand Dukes of Hell where the devil gods reside. The devil gods are different from the normal gods as they refused to talk with some of the gods due to their hatred towards a certain goddess of light.

Not much is known about the Devil Gods but it is said that they always form contracts with people who are evil but that is not always the case. The Devil Gods form contracts to those they find interesting and matches their personality. They also do not prohibit their contracted individuals from partaking into certain activities, but they must never worship the Goddess of Light or those affiliated with her.

Frey looked at the aspect of the devil god and knitted her brows because her weapon did not judge the literal incarnation of a devil god as evil. Her spear judged Eldritch as evil aligned which is why she knows that the passive skill is working properly.

"You should not be surprised that your precious weapon did not judge me as a wicked being. Devil Gods are not evil although some tend to be meaner compared to others. The human society has been fed with lies which has not change the perception about us." Vepar stated as if he could read the thoughts running through Frey's mind.

"It does not change anything anyway." Frey stated as she charged towards Cersei and ignored the summoned aspect of the Devil God.

Cersei could not easily move as she is still recovering from the mana and health suddenly taken from her. The warrior player in the Ukraine national team protected Cersei from Frey by suddenly blocking the latter's attack using his body.

Frey twisted her body in mid-air and slammed her spear on the male warrior's side abdomen. The male warrior got hit with such blunt force that sent him flying away which made him disappear from view. Frey's attack did not stop as she is now heading towards Cersei after arranging her flight stance a bit.

"It is not good to ignore me." Vepar stated as he suddenly materialized in front of Frey.

Vepar pulled something out of nowhere and blocked Frey's spear from reaching Cersei's face. The tip of Frey's spear is almost upon Cersei's face as it is about an inch away from piercing her skull. The weapon that stopped Frey's attacks is none other than a trident that is blood red in color with scales made of something extremely hard.

Vepar sent Frey tumbling backwards as he needed to push her away. The aspect of the Devil God noticed that the tip of the spear that Frey used is about to launch which is why he needed to redirect the attack in order to keep Cersei safe.

Cersei is Vepar's medium in this world and he will disappear if she dies. He wanted to experience the mortal plane for the fun of it, but his contracted aide is currently in battle with a Valkyrie. Even a Devil God knows that Valkyries are not an easy opponent despite the one in front of him being a fledgling.

"It seems that the area is not in our favor my cute little, Cersei. You should have summoned me in a place filled with water so that I could easily finish this task and then use my remaining time in exploring this place." Vepar stated as he is not moving five feet away from Cersei.

Frey could only knit her brows because the summoned aspect of the Devil God did not follow her when she backed off with a distance of twenty meters. She thought that she could outsmart the AI of the summoned being, but it seems to be keen on protecting the person who summoned it.

"Should I just retreat or stay and fight a battle that I have no idea of winning?" Frey thought as she needed to balance her options. She needed more flags before the time runs out. Her team is faring good enough as they managed to steal one of two flags from others but that is not enough for them to win the event.

Frey decided to push through as she is not someone that simply backs off because of the look of impossibility. If she really has a mindset of a pessimist, then she would not have chased Eldritch to the ends of the world. Be it dark god or devil god, she is not someone that backs off because she always strives for her growth. A person can only grow by moving forward after contemplating on their self.

Frey held her spear tightly and used a stance where she will use a lunging attack. The spear then glowed in an intense multitude of colored lights. Frey suddenly looked like she had wings made of this multiple-colored lights. Vepar also prepared an attack as he summoned every water source he could from the desert.

"Gungnir!" Frey shouted.

"Devil's Torrent!" Vepar stated.

Frey thrust her spear forward and the multi-colored light that she gathered became an attack that extended the reach of her spear. Vepar, on the other hand, used all the water that he could muster to create water tridents that came flying towards Frey.

The attack of the two clashed against one another and a blinding light ensued that blocked every person's vision including that of the audience.. An air of silence surrounded the stadium as they waited for the result of who really won.

Chapter 750 - The Half Time Part 1

"Gungnir!" Frey shouted.

"Devil's Torrent!" Vepar stated.

Frey thrust her spear forward and the multi-colored light that she gathered became an attack that extended the reach of her spear. Vepar, on the other hand, used all the water that he could muster to create water tridents that came flying towards Frey.

The attack of the two clashed against one another and a blinding light ensued that blocked every person's vision including that of the audience. An air of silence surrounded the stadium as they waited for the result of who really won.

The blinding light that blocked the vision of the audience made their heart tremble. They wanted the vision of the fight to return as they needed to see the conclusion of the clash between the two great beauties. They needed to see who ultimately the winner is as there is a hidden betting currently going on.

The hidden betting is centered on who is the best female and male players in Pandemonium. The betting pool for that title is even fiercer than the individual battle bets that are on-going. The bets are fierce because the fan clubs of each player are basically going to war against each other on the forums.

The developers needed a way to moderate the intense arguments of the people which is why they decided on this ranking bet. It is similar to the country bet on who will win but this is centered on individuals that are fighting in the events.

The score will be tallied depending on the performance of each candidate. The scoring will be analytical which means that no bias will be implemented that greatly ignited the passion of every fan. The voting pool for the female player is much more intense than that of the male player pool.

The light finally cleared, and everyone could see the result of the clash. They saw Frey being pierced by water tridents on her left shoulder and right thigh, but she could still stand up. The other party is not that good as a hole could be seen on Vepar's stomach. Another hole could be seen on Cersei's lower right abdomen.

"To think that a Valkyrie as young as you managed to pierce my body despite it not being weak. I will remember you, Valkyrie Frey. My dear, Cersei, you have tried your very best despite being at a disadvantage. Summon me again near water and I will surely lay waste to any who stand before you." Vepar stated as his figure suddenly turned into liquid and seeped into the sand.

Cersei stood there for a second, but she ultimately fell to the ground and became particles of light. The water tridents piercing Frey did not hold their shape and became shapeless. The water tridents became liquid and seeped back into the sand like what happened to the aspect of the Devil God Vepar.

Frey heaved a sigh of relief and retrieved the flag from the base of the Ukraine National Team. Loud cheers erupted in the stadium as they witnessed the conclusion of an epic fight between two of the hottest female players in Pandemonium.

No one even dared to mock Cersei as she did not give up despite the odds stacked against her. If someone would actually bash her, people would defend her until the bashing post is deleted. The fact that Frey is almost beaten by Cersei is definitely shocking to the world.

It just goes to show that many of the rankers do not show their best skills on streams. They are extremely shocked that Cersei could summon a devil god because they do not know that they really existed. The lore fanatics of Pandemonium started to create theories on the things that have come to light.

Frey thought to herself that she is actually lucky that the devil god is not that powerful, and they are not near water. She really thought that she would lose if she did not use one of her most powerful skills that penetrated defenses. Gungnir is not a skill that she wanted to use in the first half, but Cersei forced her to do so.

The cooldowns of their skills will not be reset when they enter the second round since, they will just be teleported back to their bases. As she is walking away, the player that she sent flying earlier tried to retrieve their team's flag, but he could not hold a candle to Frey's attacks.

Even with Frey heavily damaged, he could not land a heavy blow on her without Cersei's support. This just goes to show how heavily debuffed Frey was when Cersei applied her hexes and curses on her. She made quick work of the warrior player before returning to her team's base flag.

Cersei's other team members returned to the base when their flag became a point and also to turn the flag that they get as a point. They also needed to know what happened to the defending team and got shocked that Frey waltz by herself here in their base and the two of them could not stop her.

"It is my fault. I was not a great defender compared to Cersei." The warrior player stated as he knew that he was outmatched by Frey.

"It is not your fault because we do not have a natural disaster or the ambush of other teams to aid us. I tried my best as well and try to keep some of my cards hidden but Frey did not hold back on us. At least, she will not be able to use that deadly skill again in the second round." Cersei stated as she looked at their team's captain who is unable to speak.

"It is my fault for antagonizing her team. I am sorry in that regard. We also heard that she hit all the five teams that ganged up on her. She showed them no mercy in getting their flags." The Ukraine team leader stated.

"That is fine. It is not that bad as we only lost one point. The first half is now over anyways. Let us discuss our next tactic during lunch." Cersei stated as she is now burning with desire to win after losing.. It is a feeling that she never thought that she would have as she is not the competitive type of person.
