Chapter 571: A Familiar Face

In the garden, other than the birds, there were no other animals, but there were many insects. Kant found that he could also communicate with them and control and command them.

Kant completely blended into nature, as if he was suddenly freed from all stressful things that kept filling up his head. He clearly felt the simplicity and freedom of life.

"It's really amazing... I can actually communicate with all the animals and plants in my mind and command all the animals." Kant was a little shocked by his status. If such a status was used in the military, it was as easy as flipping one's hand to obtain information about the enemy. When necessary, he could even command the animals to become an unexpected military force to deal a blow to the enemy.

"Humans are also animals, right?" Kant looked at Harde, Newt, and Yoder, the three Swadian Royal Knights who stood beside him. They, Mande, and Dundee, the two Swadian Royal Knights, were all Kant's personal guards. If Kant had any orders, he would instruct them to do it. At this moment, Mande was sent by Kant to lead an army of extraordinary forces to support Baheshtur, the garrison general of Sargoth Fortress in conquering the East County. As for Dundee, he was sent by Kant to pass on the orders to gather the extraordinary forces in Lionheart City and the garrison troops at the four city gates.

At this moment, Kant looked at the three Swadian Royal Knights, Harde, Newt, and Yoder, who were standing beside him. However, he could not sense the thoughts and thoughts that they were passing on to him.

"Harde!" Kant suddenly shouted in his thoughts. However, Harde was clearly not like other animals who could receive his thoughts. He did not react at all. Instead, he stood beside Kant with a solemn expression, he was waiting for Kant to give him an order at any time.

"Newt! Yoder!" Kant experimented on Newt and Yoder. He discovered that the two of them could not feel the call of Kant's thoughts at all. They were just like Harde, he stood beside Kant with a solemn expression.

"Perhaps this is because humans are too complicated. Even the people from the world of "Mount and Blade", who are eternally loyal to me are far more complicated than animals and plants. They have nothing to do with simplicity." Kant naturally came to this realization, he knew that his "Nature's Favor" was ineffective against humans, or perhaps even against other intelligent races. Kant then thought of the existence of gods and demons, beastman and elves, dwarves and goblins in this world. Although they were not humans, Kant was able to determine that the special effect of "Nature's Favor" was ineffective against these races as well, just like humans.

Although the garden of the castellan mansion of Lionheart City was small, Kant had already experimented with the second new special effect of "Glory. Protection of Serenity", "Nature's Favor". At this moment, Kant understood that this special effect was usually not very useful. At most, it would allow him to blend in with nature and relax. However, when it came to war or individual battles, this special effect was like adding wings to a tiger.

In war, Kant could use this special effect to silently obtain information about the enemy. Of course, it was not without restrictions. Kant had already experimented. At this moment, the "Glory. Protection of Serenity" necklace could only support Kant's will to blend into nature within 100 kilometers. Any further and it would be beyond Kant's reach.

In an individual battle, it would even have a greater impact on Kant than in a war. He could borrow the force of nature within a radius of 100 kilometers, superimpose it onto his own force, and suppress his opponent with a powerful force. Under such circumstances, if the strength of the enemy fighting with him was on the same level as his, they would only display 70% of their usual strength, and Kant could be encouraged by such momentum and exerted 120% of his usual strength. To put it bluntly, this special effect, "Nature's Favor" went beyond the "Sequence of Protector 1- War Spirits", to Kant's particular satisfaction.

Kant was currently in the garden of the castellan mansion of Lionheart City, but he had fused with the nature within a radius of 100 kilometers. With a sudden thought, he took control of it, in the northern sky near the Lion Fort, a goshawk with a green-black wingspan of two meters that was flying freely in the sky was already under his control. A scene that didn't belong to the garden of the castellan mansion suddenly appeared in his eyes. On a bustling piece of land, there was a huge tower, at a glance, Kant knew that the majestic castle that was absolutely impregnable had appeared in the depths of his eyes. This was the vision of the goshawk, but it was directly captured by Kant.

"Eeeee... Eeeee..."

The goshawk suddenly let out two clear cries in the high sky, and then its huge wings flapped rapidly twice before it directly glided diagonally towards the sky above the Lion Fort. At this moment, Kant could clearly sense that, the deep and pure dark aura that made him slightly palpitate and yearn for it came from the Lion Fort.

The goshawk glided over the Lion Fort. With the goshawk's eyesight, it could clearly see the antelopes running on the ground even from a thousand meters above the ground. At this moment, it was only gliding at a height of 300 meters. The scene in the Lion Fort could be seen by the goshawk, although it was very small due to the height, it was unusually clear. Kant also saw it very clearly. It was like looking at a high-definition photo. The figure in the photo might look small, but if you zoomed in, you would find that even his pores could be seen clearly.

The Lion Fort was about the size of 10 kilometers in length and width, sitting north to south. Most of them were neat barracks and military buildings with different functions, as well as a huge square used for training soldiers. At the northernmost side, which was the depths of the Lion Fort, all kinds of huge buildings could be seen everywhere. In many of the buildings, some were surrounded by small squares in the center.

Kant's eyes suddenly narrowed, and the hairs on his heart rose.

In a small square of a building in the depths of the Lion Fort, a figure with dull eyes and expressionless face, naked and supported by a few people in white robes -- or rather, under the guidance of a few people, was somewhat staggering as he walked, it was like a newborn child learning to walk.

The goshawk flew past and glided towards the place where Kant felt the deep and pure dark aura.

But the dull face of the man was almost frozen in Kant's heart -- that face was exactly the same as that of the God of War, Edmund, who had been reduced to ashes!

Even in the status of merging with nature, Kant's heart was inexplicably filled with a chill.

Lord of the Oasis

Chapter 572: The Information Seen by the Goshawk

As the goshawk continued to fly south, Kant saw another scene that made him somewhat happy. Viscount Carl. Cameron was in a large square, commanding a group of infantrymen to train seriously. Lion Fort was dominated by heavy cavalry, and now Viscount Carl. Cameron was training the infantrymen to prepare for a siege. After all, cavalries were not good at siege.

This scene showed that Kant did not make the wrong move when he let Carl, and the four top counts of the Dukedom of Leo go. This Carl. Cameron had become stronger after he seized the command of the Cameron family's army, not to mention the four top nobles of the Dukedom of Leo, who were much more even more shrewd and insightful than Viscount Carl. Cameron.

The goshawk continued to fly south, and soon flew past the Lion Fort. Kant also saw what he wanted to see -- five powerful world nobles were continuously transmitting their power of rules into a black crown. After the black crown absorbed their power of rules, it emitted a dazzling pitch-black light. Kant never thought that the leader would have a pitch-black light, and it also gave him a dazzling feeling.

Moreover, Kant discovered that it was this pitch-black dazzling light that was constantly emitting a deep and pure dark aura. This aura made Kant feel a faint throb from his soul and bloodline. If it wasn't for the extraordinary necklace, "Glory. Protection of Serenity", which had leveled up and its special effect, "Serenity's protection", which had become dozens of times stronger, Kant wouldn't have been able to resist the deep and pure dark aura that this pitch-black light emitted.

"Hmph! It's really those five b*stards who are playing tricks!" Kant's eyes were filled with anger.

"Eeee... Eeeee..."

Suddenly, the goshawk controlled by Kant seemed to sense Kant's anger. It actually let out two loud cries and directly charged towards the nameless world nobles.

"This... When I control this goshawk with my mind, it still has the ability to move on its own?" Kant was extremely surprised, and immediately understood that he had used the special effect of "Nature's Favor". He could control animals, so they should be extremely close to him, voluntarily being controlled by him and not being forced. If the animals suddenly wanted to take other actions for some reason, then they could immediately get rid of Kant's control and act on their own.

Kant's eyes flashed. Such attributes should be a good thing. The goshawk suddenly attacked the five world barons. Clearly, it felt Kant's anger towards the five world barons. In the end, its attack was still aimed at Kant.

"It's actually better this way! If I really control a large number of animals to assist me in launching an attack, do I have to control their movements one by one? That's obviously not an easy task. However, if I can mobilize the animals to act on their own with just one emotion, it will undoubtedly be much simpler. The animals under my control would be much more powerful. After all, comparing to control them to attack, it would be way better for these animals attack on their will."

These thoughts flashed through Kant's mind. It was a long story, but it actually happened in an instant.

Kant would naturally not watch the goshawk die. The goshawk could be considered as his subordinate. The reason why it attacked the five world barons was to appease Kant's anger. Although it was a beast, to Kant, it could be said that it had feelings and righteousness.

Since Kant had figured out the reason why the goshawk attacked the five world barons, he naturally had a countermeasure to stop it from attacking. In just an instant, Kant had put away his anger towards the five world barons.

At the same time, Kant's thought instantly connected to the goshawk.

"Come back! Don't go!"

If it was a human's words, the goshawk would not understand Kant's words. However, an idea from his mind was just simple enough to stop it from attacking. The goshawk instantly understood Kant's idea.

The goshawk was very simple. It did not have any doubts about Kant. It did not even know what doubts were. As soon as Kant sent his thoughts to it, it immediately stopped its attack on the five world barons.

However, the goshawk had already fallen more than 200 meters down. It was only a hundred meters away from the five world nobles.

When the goshawk attacked the five world barons, it had inherited Kant's anger. Its two cries were very loud.

Coincidentally, other than Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron was expressionless and did not move. The other four world barons had been waiting for three days and three nights without moving to transmit the power of rules to the Crown of Darkness. Just as they were feeling helpless, they suddenly saw the goshawk diving down, their interest was immediately piqued.

"This goshawk is really bold. It actually dares to cry at us and even dive at us. It can't be that it's treating us as prey, right?! Why don't we each use our own methods and just rely on the application of the power of rules to see who can catch this goshawk!" At the same time, we can also display our own abilities. When we fight Baron Kant later, it'll be easier for us to cooperate. What do you think?" Baron Tyr. Isai. Maud said in surprise.

This voice was transmitted to the goshawk's ears at a height of 100 meters. At the same time, Kant also heard it. Kant originally thought that the goshawk could only be used as a pair of eyes to help him observe from his field of vision. He did not expect that the voice in the goshawk's ears could be heard by him at the same time.

After hearing Tyr. Isai. Maud's words, Kant's eyes rolled.

"It seems that they have no intention of killing the goshawk. Instead, they plan to use this goshawk as an object and demonstrate the techniques they have comprehended from the power of rules. Their goal is to deal with me later so that they can work together better? Hehe, I can take this opportunity to observe them in secret. When we fight them, we might be able to launch a targeted attack against them!" just as Kant was thinking, he heard Baron Nathaniel. Isai. Reese said, "Very good. Why don't I show them what I can do first!"

Baron Nathaniel. Isai. Reese controlled the fiery rule power of fire, which made him a little more impatient than the other four world barons.

"Watch me use the Sword of Fire to scare this bird!" Baron Nathaniel. Isaiah. Reese said as he maintained the output of the rule power of fire from his right hand towards the Crown of Darkness. At the same time, he threw out a fiery red light from his left hand. This fiery red light was the rule power of fire.

As soon as this red light broke away from Baron Nathaniel. Isai. Reese's left hand immediately transformed into a fiery red greatsword. As soon as this fiery red greatsword was formed, it shot towards the goshawk at high speed.

Lord of the Oasis

Chapter 573: The incoming sword of fire

"Eh?"

At this moment, Kant once again took control of the goshawk's body. When he saw the Sword of Fire stabbing towards the goshawk, he hurriedly controlled the goshawk to dodge to the side.

At the same time, Kant thought to himself, "This is Baron Nathaniel. Isai. Reese. I don't know how long he has been a world noble, but he actually only used the rule power of fire to transform into a Sword of Fire. This is too easy. When I became a world baron more than a year ago, I was able to use the Power of War to create weapons and defensive equipment, and even a warhorse, just like the God of War did!"

Kant easily controlled the body of the goshawk to avoid the Sword of Fire controlled by Baron Nathaniel. Isai. Reese, which was of course Baron Nathaniel. Isai. Reese deliberately controlled the speed of the Sword of Fire. Otherwise, with his strength as a world baron, the goshawk would not be able to dodge his Sword of Fire. Then, Kant controlled the body of the goshawk to make it look like it was frightened and wanted to fly higher to escape from this place.

"Good, Nathaniel, your control of the rules of fire is really skilful. You can actually directly materialize a physical sword. That's amazing. With just this move, it could make Baron Kant defenseless!" Baron Victor. Isai. Enoch saw Baron Nathaniel. Isaiah. Reese showed him the Sword of Fire and complimented him, then he immediately said, "Now it's my turn. Nathaniel, your Sword of Fire scared this goshawk so much that it didn't know what to do, in order to prevent it from flying away, I will also use a technique of the power of rules!"

"Thunder Hell!" Baron Victor. Isai. Enoch controlled the purple rule power of thunder. Now, he released the purple rule power of thunder from his left hand. The moment he threw out the purple rule power of thunder, it suddenly became huge and covered half of the sky. It turned into a cage of bolts of lightning. The goshawk controlled by Kant was directly thrown into this cage.

In the garden of the castellan mansion of Lionheart City, Kant curled his lips, he thought to himself, "Is this Baron Victor. Isai. Enoch and Baron Nathaniel. Isaiah. Reese's control of the power of rules really only at such a low level, or are they hiding their strength?"

Then, Baron Clark. Isai. Prynne once again demonstrated his poor control of the rule power of ice, followed by Tyr. Isaiah. Maud, the strongest baron in the world, demonstrated the application of the power of destruction.

They were all weapons formed from the power of rules, similar to Baron

Nathaniel. Isai. Reese's Sword of Fire.

In Kant's eyes, these techniques were very ordinary. However, the four world barons treated this as a very impressive technique and complemented each other.

"Ryan, we've all shown our skills. Now it's your turn!" Baron Nathaniel. Isaiah. Reese suddenly said, and the other three world barons immediately stopped chanting. Their eyes could not help but look at Baron Ryan. Isaiah. Cameron.

"Curse Arrow!" Baron Ryan. Isaiah. Cameron said coldly. He raised his hand and shot a gray arrow at the goshawk that was hovering in the sky, but was blocked by Thunder Hell.

Kant's pupils constricted. He could see that Baron Ryan. Isaiah. Cameron did not hold back at all. This attack of his was to kill the goshawk controlled by Kant.

"Then let's fight through the air. Let's see if you are hiding your strength or are really only at this level!" This goshawk was now regarded as Kant's subordinate. Moreover, Kant was touched by the fact that the goshawk had directly attacked the five world barons just because Kant was angry at them.

Perhaps it was due to the influence of the status of him being one with the nature, Kant, who had always been cold and resolute, did not wish for the goshawk to die.

In an instant, a complicated crimson pattern suddenly appeared in the depths of Kant's amber eyes. This crimson pattern was Kant's real name, "Isai. Lannister Tolia", it was a part of the complete pattern of the rules of war. Kant could use it to directly draw the rule power of war.

At this moment, in the depths of Kant's eyes, a complicated crimson real name surged. A large amount of the power of the rules began to gather on the body of the goshawk controlled by Kant. At the beginning, Kant felt that he could do this until he really succeeded, only then did Kant confirm that his feeling was not wrong.

At this moment, Kant's eyes flashed with excitement. The rule power relied on the large amount of gathering of the goshawk, which meant that Kant officially had an ultra-long-range attack method.

Just when Kant was happy, he suddenly felt that if he continued to gather the rule power of war on the goshawk, the goshawk would immediately explode from the rule power of war and die.

"Peak grand knight?"

Kant estimated that because the goshawk had gathered the rule power of war, its strength was now at the peak grand knight level.

"It seems that I'm happy a little too early. If I only need one goshawk to allow me to cross a hundred miles and possess the power of a extraordinary knight, then not to mention the five world barons of the Dukedom of Leo, even the 51 world barons of the entire human race would be my enemy. I would be able to fight them!" Kant slightly restrained his happiness. "To be able to cross a hundred miles and possess the power of a peak grand knight is already very good."

"At least, it's enough to deal with Baron Ryan's Curse Arrow."

As it was just a demonstration, and they were only dealing with an ordinary goshawk, the five world barons of the Dukedom of Leo did not use too much power. The power of rules they released was only equivalent to the power of a peak grand knight, it was equivalent to the rule power of war that the goshawk carried.

"Power of War -- Spirit Transformation!" Kant's real name kept floating in his eyes. He controlled the goshawk and the rule power of war from a distance of 50 kilometers.

Eeeeeee... Eeeeeee...

Eeeeeee... Eeeeeeeeee...

The goshawk suddenly chirped loudly. The dark red light on its body directly lit up. Outside its body, another goshawk like it condensed. This goshawk was dark red, and this goshawk also chirped, it formed a heavy cry with the goshawk that was enveloped by it.

This was a realm that Kant used to grasp the power of rules. He treated this realm as the third realm, which was called "Spirit Formation." It could directly use the power of rules to materialize a living creature.

Back then, the God of War, Edmund, should have also come from this realm. However, he used the power of war that was on the same level as the rule power of war.

At this moment, Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron's Curse Arrow just happened to arrive. This Curse Arrow used the same amount of power of the laws of war as Kant had used when he turned into a goshawk.

Eeeeeee...

Eeeeeee...

At this moment, the two overlapping goshawks let out a cry at the same time and directly pecked at the gray Curse Arrow with their sharp beaks.

Lord of the Oasis

Chapter 574: Application of Extraordinary Power

Following the heavy cries of the two goshawks, their dark red color energy that was wrapped outside their beaks suddenly became even deeper. At this moment, the rule power of war that formed outside of the goshawk suddenly converged towards the beak of the goshawk.

"Dang!" the collision between the Curse Arrow that was formed from the power of rules and the goshawk beak that was formed from the "Spirit Formation" made a loud sound of metal colliding. It was as if the two of them were extremely hard objects.

When the Curse Arrow was pecked by the beak of the goshawk, it immediately deflected and passed through the lightning fence of Thunder Hell, disappearing into the distance.

Then, Kant controlled the goshawk to fly toward the lightning fence of Thunder Hell. The enormous rule power of war, which was originally condensed on the beak of the goshawk, suddenly spread to the front half of the goshawk. Generally speaking, the two goshawks overlapped. Although the spirit goshawk was dark red all over, the dark red of the front half of its body was many times denser than the back half.

Eeeee~

Eeeee~

The two goshawks once again let out a heavy cry, and then crashed into the lightning fence of Thunder Hell without hesitation.

"Not good, this goshawk is strange. It actually carries Baron Kant's rule power of war!" Thunder Hell was created by Baron Victor. Isai. Enoch, it was constructed with his own power of rules. When he saw that the goshawk instantly pecked away the Curse Arrow and rammed into his Thunder Hell, he could not help but cry out in surprise.

He could not increase the strength or size of the Thunder Hell that he already had, unless he created a new, sturdier, and larger thunder hell to trap the goshawk again. However, it was obviously too late now.

Boom!

Crack!

The goshawk charged at the Thunder Hell and broke a hole out of it. The Thunder Hell broken by the goshawk directly turned into fine lightning power and dissipated.

The power of a grand knight at the peak level was not a joke. The goshawk was very fast in the 100-meter-high sky and instantly disappeared from the sight of the five world barons. They were restrained by the Crown of Darkness and could not move. Their own power of rules could only erupt from about 200 meters away from their bodies. It would be impossible for them to capture the goshawk.

Speaking of which, the goshawk was able to escape thanks to Kant's application of the rule power of war, which was much better than Baron Ryan Isai. Cameron and Baron Victor. Isai. Enoch. Of course, at least on the surface, it was so. As for whether the five world barons were hiding their strength or not, Kant did not have any concrete assurance to make a clear judgment.

Regarding the application of extraordinary power, Kant currently knew that there were three levels.

The first level was the direct application of extraordinary power. It was directly applied to one's own body, weapons and equipment, or short-distance bursts to attack the enemy. This level was called the "Universal Realm", when Kant was promoted by the system to become a world noble, he naturally knew, including the last two realms. This "Universal Realm" was so named because it was a method and realm that could be used by any extraordinary power.

The second level was the advanced application of the power of rules, which was just used by the five world nobles. It used the power of the noble to materialize or construct specific things, making the power of rules more condensed. In addition to having the attributes of the power of rules itself, it would also have the attributes of the things that would materialize -- the stabbing and slashing of the Sword of Flame, the encirclement of Thunder Hell, the shooting and killing of the Cursed Arrows, and so on. This level was called the "Materialization Realm". Only those who had stepped into the extraordinary realm and grasped the power of rules and the divine power of gods were capable to comprehend it.

The third level, which was even more advanced than the "Materialization Realm", was the "Spirit Transformation Realm" that Kant was currently in. Not only did this realm have the characteristics of the second level that directly manifested things, but it could also manifest living beings. The living beings manifested by the "Spirit Transformation Realm" had simple autonomous behavior patterns, for this reason, they could more flexibly use the extraordinary power that manifested them. This level was higher than the "Materialization Realm". Naturally, it also required one's extraordinary powers to reach the level of the power of rules or divine power.

Kant wasn't sure if there was a higher level for the use of the power of rules. He was limited to the third level. He only knew these three levels naturally. The source of these realms was probably due to the powerful function of the system. It absorbed the God of War, and then instilled the God of War's application of the power of war directly into Kant. It made Kant's application of the rule power of war seem as if it had been tempered over thousands of years, and he was extremely skilled.

In the Lion Fort, the five world nobles helplessly watched the goshawk that Kant controlled disappear into the horizon, their eyes filled with extreme shock.

"Oh my god, I can't believe my eyes. What did I see?"? Baron Kant directly injected the rule power of war into a goshawk from a very long distance. This was something only gods were capable to do. They were able to inject the divine power into the holy spirit from a distance and freely bestow them with power."

Baron Victor. Isai. Enoch looked at his Thunder Hell. Because a few lightning fences were broken by the goshawk, the entire Thunder Hell gradually collapsed into the power of lightning from the few lightning fences, he made his own judgment in shock.

At this time, Baron Tyr. Isai. Maud also spoke, his tone was a little grave. "Victor, you are only talking about one aspect. The key to that goshawk's escape is that Baron Kant used the rule power of war to reach an extremely high realm -- the Spirit Transformation Realm that is far above us. I really can't imagine how Baron Kant managed to reach such a level in just one year. Even I haven't reached this realm!"

Baron Tyr. Isai. Maud was the most powerful world baron. This also meant that he had survived the longest among the world barons. The strength of the world baron was closely related to how long they had lived. Every time they went through the month of calamity, their real names would change slightly, and the power of rules that they could use would obviously increase.

It was also because of this that the father of Ryan. Isai. Cameron, who had once been able to roam the Silver Platter Empire alone was even more powerful than Baron Tyr. Isai. Maud. But Ryan Isai. Cameron, who had inherited his father's real name, was the weakest among the world nobles.

Chapter 575: The Purity of Animals

"The realm of the application of the power of rules requires a long period of time to be trained. But look at Baron Kant, what is so special about him that he could reach such a high realm in just a year? Judging from his application of the power of rules, Baron Kant's combat will be 50% stronger than our estimation. His combat strength might even be on par with mine!" Baron Tyr. Isai. Maud continued speaking in a very serious tone.

The other world barons' expressions changed.

They thought that Baron Kant was the weakest world baron. However, according to Baron Tyr Isai, this Baron Kant was comparable to him and was stronger than the other world barons. Didn't this mean that even if Baron Kant was besieged by the five of them, he still had the power to burst out and instantly kill a world baron?

"Ryan, Baron Kant's performance is too special. I think you should give us an explanation!" Baron Clark. Isai. Prynne said. Among the five of them, he was slightly stronger than Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron, so he was most worried about the upcoming battle. At this moment, his tone was little unfriendly to Baron Ryan.

As for Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron's expression was no longer as cold as before. In his eyes, there was an extremely fanatical look. He did not pay any attention to Baron Clark. Isai. Prynne's words. Instead, he said with a hint fanaticism, "Help me capture Baron Kant alive and hand him over to me. Each of you will weigh 20 kilograms of abyssal magic iron!"

At this moment, Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron no longer held back his words like gold.

"Twenty kilograms of abyssal magic iron?" The eyes of the other four world barons were filled with greed. This greed completely suppressed their worries about Baron Kant's strength. At the same time, it also made the four world barons realize that more than half of their strength came from powerful equipment. After putting on the equipment that was specially used for battle, their strength had increased by more than 50%.

After the goshawk flew high into the sky again, Kant immediately lost control over it. At the same time, he also lost the rule power of war that gathered on its body. Then, he directly removed Nature's Favor, the special effect of "Glory, Protection of Serenity". However, what Kant did not expect was that the goshawk seemed to have sensed Kant from afar. It flew all the way south towards the castellan mansion in Lionheart City, as if it was coming to find Kant.

"This 'Nature's Favor' is indeed very powerful, but it seems to have slightly affected my judgment!" Kant walked towards the castellan mansion's main hall from the garden, as he pondered, he said, "With my personality, after that goshawk was besieged, I wouldn't go out of my way to save it. Saving it would mean that the matter of me being able to control animals from afar would be known by the five world nobles. If I want to use birds to gather intelligence like today, I'm afraid it won't be as smooth as today!"

Not long after Kant returned to the main hall of the castellan mansion, dun de coincidentally returned to report, "Lord, all of the Swadian Knights, the Sarleon Lion Knights, and the Enfath Mages are assembled.

They are currently in the square of the castellan mansion. In addition, half of the military forces of the four city gates have been mobilized. They are heading towards the north city gate of Lionheart City!"

Kant directly ordered: "Very good, set out!"

When Kant led 1,000 Swadian Royal Knights, 1,000 Sarleon Lion Knights, and 1,000 Enfath Mages along the wide North Road, many merchants retreated and stopped to watch.

Chirp...Chirp...

A loud and clear cry of the goshawk, suddenly from a hundred meters high transmitted from the air.

Kant felt that the voice was unusually familiar. He immediately looked up and saw a familiar goshawk hovering above his army. With the strength of a world baron, Kant's eyesight was quite astonishing, in addition, the goshawk was not flying at a thousand meters in the air. Therefore, Kant could clearly tell that the goshawk was staring at him with an extremely close gaze.

"What's going on?" Kant felt a little strange. After removing the "Nature's Favor" special effect, he had already forgotten about the goshawk. He never expected that the goshawk would come directly to him.

Kant didn't activate the special effect of Nature's Favor at the moment. Logically speaking, under this status, Kant wasn't close to nature at all, so he couldn't communicate with animals at all. However, Kant could vaguely feel that the goshawk above his head was constantly giving him a sense of submission, following, and becoming stronger.

He could feel it directly, but he did not use the special effect of Nature's Favor.

However, this feeling was very vague. Kant could only feel it roughly, but he could not really communicate with this goshawk.

"Nature's Favor, activate!" Fortunately, the special effect of the "Glorious Protection of Serenity" necklace did not have a cooldown time. Kant could turn it on and off at any time.

After activating it, Kant once again entered the state of merging with nature. He deliberately sensed his own will and did not notice that he was affected by this status. Even if the upcoming war would cause the lives of people to be plunged into misery and blood to flow, at this moment, Kant did not have the slightest bit of softness in his heart. His heart was still cold and resolute.

Kant looked up again and thought, "Could it be that the thing that affected my thoughts previously was not the status of merging with nature that I thought it was, but the goshawk hovering in the sky?"

At this moment, Kant activated the "Nature's Favor" special effect and communicated with this goshawk.

"Why did you come to me?" Kant immediately asked the goshawk in the sky.

Kant knew that this goshawk had the unique innocence of an animal. There was no need to beat around the bush to communicate with it. It could not understand either, so it was best to be straightforward.

"I like you. You can make me stronger. I want to follow you." the goshawk heard Kant's telepathic message and let out a happy cry in the sky. At the same time, it repeated this thoughts in its mind. It was simple and very straightforward. It did not even flash the thought of asking Kant what he meant. It wanted to follow Kant, so it came.

Kant rode on the warhorse and was at the front of the team.

At this moment, he felt that he actually liked this goshawk from the bottom of his heart. Perhaps it was because of its simplicity and innocence. Moreover, Kant had already "cooperated" with it once, so he directly sent the goshawk a consent in his mind.

The goshawk's mind emitted joy, and at the same time, it continuously transmitted a thought to Kant, "I want to become stronger, I want to become stronger, I want to become stronger!"

Chapter 576: The Activation of Nature's Favor

If it was a human was to make such a cry, Kant could have thought that the other party was expressing his desire to become stronger, a determination to strive to become stronger.

However, for this goshawk, it could not be interpreted from a human's perspective.

Kant had only transformed the goshawk's thoughts into human words, so that he could understand them. In fact, the goshawk's meaning through its will was very clear and straightforward.

It wanted to become stronger. It was not a form of determination, nor was it expressing its desire to Kant. Instead, it was clearly reminding Kant to make it stronger, just like when it had extraordinary powers.

Kant suddenly had a thought. When he had not activated the special effect of Nature's Favor, he seemed to have a faint connection with the goshawk's will. However, because he had not integrated into nature, he was unable to truly communicate as he was now, without any obstacles.

"Then, can I turn this goshawk into my eye and my extended hand without activating the effect of Nature's Favor?" Kant could not help but let his thoughts wander, he made his own deduction based on the previous situation.

"There's no harm in trying!" Kant thought, "If I succeed, I can save a lot of effort."

Kant did not intend to refuse the simple and straightforward request of the goshawk. Because he had a premonition that if he could not satisfy the goshawk's request, then the goshawk that had just submitted to him would immediately betray him. It had come for power, and it was willing to submit to Kant wholeheartedly for the sake of power, just like the holy spirit.

"Nature's Favor, deactivate!" Kant's thoughts moved, and the special effect of Nature's Favor, was turned off by him, the feeling of being integrated into nature immediately dissipated. It was like a person in water who suddenly came out of the water and returned to the air. Then, he would immediately lose the feeling of being integrated into the water around his body. This was just a metaphor. In fact, compared to Kant's status of being immersed in nature and returning to this ordinary state, the difference in feeling was still very big.

Kant's adaptability was very strong. He had already experienced this feeling once, so he quickly adapted to this most ordinary status. Then, Kant's thoughts moved. Sure enough, he could extend his thoughts to the side of the goshawk and vaguely feel the goshawk's thoughts. Because he had just communicated with the goshawk, the goshawk's will was simple and stubborn. It was like a repeater, kept repeating "I want to become stronger" to Kant over and over again. Therefore, although Kant could only vaguely sense the goshawk's will, he could understand that he was still saying "I want to become stronger".

Of course, Kant's will could travel over a hundred meters to the goshawk, but it was only limited to the goshawk. If his will deviated slightly, it would immediately be pressed around his body by a magical power, this conclusion was obtained through Kant's own experiments.

Through experiment, Kant was a little shocked. "The great power that suppressed my will is actually the world will of this World of Isai? However, it seems to be slightly different from the world will that fed me information. Although their auras are exactly the same, according to the information they revealed to me, the world will that fed me information is like an intelligent creature with its own thoughts. And the world will that suppressed my will just now seems to be just a vast rule. Although it is embodied by the world will, this world will gives me the feeling that it is full of rigor and machinery, like a program."

The level of the world will, even if it leaked out a hint of aura, made the powerful Kant felt that it was vast and grand while he himself was incomparably small. This level was really too far away from him at the moment. Kant just suppressed his doubts in the bottom of his heart and continued to do his own thing.

"The rule power of war, activate!" Similar to the vague sense of the goshawk's will, Kant felt that he could also activate the special effect of Nature's Favor, he injected the rule power of war into this unique goshawk.

With the infusion of the rule power of war, the aura of the goshawk quickly became stronger.

Very soon, the aura of the goshawk reached the level of an early-stage grand knight. The feeling that if he injected the power of the laws of war into the goshawk again, it would explode appeared in Kant's heart. This made Kant know that this level was already the limit.

Early-stage grand knight!

Its current strength was weaker than its previous strength of a peak grand knight.

Chirp chirp chirp chirp chirp...

The goshawk's cheerful voice became very loud and clear. Its speed was also much faster than before. Even if it was only an early-stage grand knight, it was still much stronger than the goshawk itself. Looking at the goshawk, it probably did not know that its current strength was much weaker than when it was in the sky above the Lion Fort.

Meanwhile, Kant could feel that he had established an invisible but real connection with the goshawk. With the establishment of this connection, Kant could clearly sense that the connection between him and the goshawk had become closer, just like how Kant had activated the special effect of Nature's Favor.

"So powerful... happy, I want to catch a tiger to eat..." Kant could easily read the will of the goshawk again. Kant could also directly control the body of the goshawk with his will. At the same time, Kant found that he could now continue to pour the rule power of war into the goshawk.

Kant once again activated the rule power of war and poured it into the body of the goshawk. Soon, the goshawk reached the limit of its strength -- the peak grand knight. However, the extraordinary power of the goshawk still belonged to Kant. These extraordinary powers increased the strength of the goshawk, but it could be taken back by Kant at any time, the goshawk was once again turned into an ordinary bird with the strength of the peak of the official knight.

"Isai Lannister Tolia!" Kant's thoughts surged as he chanted his real name in his heart. Deep red complicated patterns began to appear in the depths of Kant's eyes. At this moment, Kant was using his real name to fuse with the bloodline and was the first to understand an ability -- to change the perspective of the rules.

Chapter 577: The Troops That Continued Their Crusade

At this moment, from Kant's perspective, the world had undergone an extremely astonishing change. It was completely constructed from countless chains of rules of various colors. At the very center of the world, there was a ball of light that was emitting silver-gray light -- it was the world will called Isai.

Kant's current figure was a dark red phantom, and a section on the chain of rules of war beneath his feet was his real name. An extremely thin line extended out from this section of the rules of war named "Lannister". It directly sank into the void and connected to an unknown place.

However, Kant could clearly know that this thin line connected his real name to the goshawk. After Kant met the goshawk's request, this line began to form. After Kant raised the goshawk's power to its strongest, this line stabilized.

Waves of the power of the rules of war seemed to appear on the goshawk's body. In fact, they flowed through the thin line. At this point, the goshawk that suddenly submitted to Kant had the similar characteristics to the holy spirits of the gods except for immortality.

However, the holy spirits of the gods were all intelligent beings, but Kant's goshawk was just a simple bird. The difference was still very obvious

Kant himself did not know much about the holy spirits, but he had already understood that his goshawk was almost no different from the holy spirits. It could also bear the power of rules that was no weaker than divine power, and they could also communicate with each other through thoughts. It could also be controlled it with his mind.

Then, Kant retreated from the view of the rules, and his view returned to the North Main Road of Lionheart City. At this time, it was not far from the north gate.

Chirp chirp chirp chirp chirp...

The goshawk hovered over the army cheerfully, and its mind was full of happy emotions.

"From now on, you will be called Blitz!" Kant decided the name of the goshawk in his mind. This made the goshawk, Blitz very happy. It kept dancing in the sky.

Kant was also very happy. At this time, he did not need to activate the special effect Nature's Favor to maintain the connection with Blitz. At the same time, he could give Blitz extraordinary power.

Of course, Kant would not be so happy just because of that. Instead, the appearance of Blitz meant that Kant could even use Blitz as an example to create an air force, as long as Blitz was not a special case. This had always been Kant's shortcoming. In the demiplane that Kant had explored in the Nahrin Desert, there were some birdmen with wings, so there was an air force.

It was still a long-term plan. As soon as Kant thought of it, he immediately shared Blitz's perspective. From a hundred meters above the ground, he could see the entire Lionheart City. At this moment, besides on the North Main Road of Lionheart City, Kant was leading 3000 soldiers with extraordinary powers. On the East Main Road, West Main Road, and South Main Road, there were also troops advancing. They were the garrison troops from the east city gate, west city gate and south city gate.

Each of the three troops had 1,000 soldiers. Each army had 200 Rhodok Sergeants, 200 Swadian Sergeants, 200 Vaegir Marksmen, 200 Ravenstern Rangers, and 200 Rhodok Sharpshooters. In fact, at the north city gate, there was a similar army waiting. They were all defending the city, so there was no cavalry.

Hence, in this attack, Kant sent a total of 7,000 soldiers.

After Kant led the army to the north city gate barracks, he reorganized the army and waited for the other three city gate soldiers to arrive. At the same time, he sent Blitz out to scout. At the same time, he wanted to test if there was any distance limit to his control and connection with Blitz under the current situation. Under the special effects of Nature's Favor, Kant had a 100-kilometer distance limit to his proximity and control of animals.

One of Kant's special conveniences for his own army was that he did not need to hold a pledging conference. The troops that came from the world of "Mount and Blade" were absolutely loyal to Kant, and the blood-red cape that was slowly swaying behind his back, "Glorious, Bright Red movement" allowed Kant to not worry about the morale of his troops. Therefore, there was no need to hold a troop class meeting that was specially held to raise morale.

When the other soldiers at the three city gates arrived, Kant sent the soldiers to check that the warhorse, weapons, armor, and arrows were in good condition. He also confirmed that the soldiers brought sufficient rations, and finally arranged for the follow-up supplies, then, he led his army out of Lionheart City and headed for Lion Fort.

When Kant's army set off, the entire eastern region of Lionheart City was shaken.

The Eastern District of Lionheart City was a noble region, and the people living there were all the upper-class noble families of the Dukedom of Leo. Their estate was either on the east and west sides of Lionheart City, or on the north side of Lionheart City. As for Kant sending troops from the north side of Lionheart City, in the eyes of the noble families in the Eastern District of Lionheart City, he had only one goal, which was to finally take over the entire South County.

In the eyes of all the upper-class nobles in the South County, Baron Kant was too powerful. They were shocked and even terrified of Baron Kant's strength. Portion of his power in Lionheart City alone was enough to suppress the combined forces of all the upper-class nobles. Therefore, in the one-year Kant had stayed in Lionheart City, the upper-class noble no longer dared to be arrogant and despotic.

This was not only because they were afraid of Baron Kant's power, but also because there were many civilians in Lionheart City. These civilians looked no different from ordinary civilians, but they all belonged to Baron Kant. As long as they dared to bully those civilians, it would be like poking a hornet's nest, which would attract the strong suppression of Baron Kant's subordinates.

At that time, they were still glad that Baron Kant had such great power, but he showed no signs of plotting against the remaining half of the South County, nor did he accept any noble's allegiance. This was probably because Baron Kant felt that his power was enough to become an archduke, and he was preparing to become an archduke. When Baron Kant became the new archduke of the Dukedom of Leo, he might accept their allegiance.

After all, the benefits that Baron Kant had to give up were completely different from the nobles he had accepted before he opened the border and after.

However, now that Baron Kant had directly sent troops from the north city gate of Lionheart City, it had shattered the rumors. This made the upper-class noble families of the South County, who were still in Lionheart City, feel a little flustered. They were afraid that Baron Kant wanted to flatten the remaining South County. Their castles and manors were all there.

Lord of the Oasis

Chapter 578: Pressure On the Nobles

In particular, Baron Kant had always acted as if he did not accept any noble's allegiance, which made them even more terrified. Although the nobles of the North County were weak, they were still nobles. Their miserable fate was like a sharp sword hanging in the hearts of the upper-class nobles of South County, making them feel alert.

Even though Baron Kant had sent troops from the north city gate of Lionheart City to deal with the current Grand Duke of Leo, Cameron, in the eyes of the nobles in South County who did not know the existence of the world nobles, Grand Duke Cameron was not worth for Baron Kant to send such a powerful force. Therefore, they didn't know what kind of ambition Baron Kant had.

Baron Kant had long become the number one noble of the Dukedom of Leo in the eyes of the upper-class noble families other than five major world noble families. Many nobles had even spread rumors that made the Grand Duke Cameron voluntarily give up the position of grand duke to Baron Kant. They wanted to use this to remind Grand Duke Cameron to understand the situation clearly, they wanted to end the terror caused by Baron Kant who was about to launch a war to seize the position of grand duke.

At this moment, Baron Kant sent out his troops. He brought with him a terrifying force that could crush all the upper-class nobles in South County. All the nobles in South County were trembling under the pressure of Baron Kant. Many upper-class nobles were ready to leave the Dukedom of Leo. The smart nobles could deduce Baron Kant's behavior. Kant would definitely not let these old noble families stay in Dukedom of Leo.

There were only two paths left for them -- either die or get lost.

As for letting them fight Baron Kant at the cost of their own resources, forgot it. As long as they had noble status and power in their hands, they would be able to develop their families well when they went there. Then, why did they have to use their weak strength to fight Baron Kant's terrifying army like an egg hitting a stone?

Even if they succeeded, there wouldn't be too many benefits. After all, there were so many upper-class noble families, so the fruits of victory wouldn't be distributed too much to each noble family. If they failed, the families that had been passed down for more than 300 years would be directly exterminated.

The risk was too great, and it was completely disproportionate to the benefits. The smart upper-class noble families in the South County wouldn't allow their families to participate in such a gambit.

In Lionheart City, the nobles of the Eastern Noble District began to join forces and discuss their future paths. They discussed joining a new dukedom or kingdom together and discussed forming an alliance in advance. It saved them from being bullied by the local noble in other countries. After 300 years of development, the relationship between the upper-class nobles had long been complicated. They were like relatives, it was very simple for them to form alliance.

The upper-class noble families were very powerful. In Lionheart City alone, if they wanted to, they could gather over 10,000 elite soldiers and over 1,000 powerful grand knights. However, they did not have any intention of occupy the Lionheart City while Kant was not around.

The upper-class noble families were not very clear about how powerful Baron Kant was. However, they knew that Lionheart City was only one of Baron Kant's six big cities. The power of Lionheart City alone could crush the combined forces of these upper-class noble families. If they dared to seize Lionheart City while it was unguarded, even if they succeeded, Baron Kant might take revenge on them in the future. It would also make their noble family name disappear in the long river of history.

Kant had expected the reaction of the upper-class noble families.

However, Kant was still prepared to start a war with all the upper-class noble families in South County. Because in Kant's mind, it was impossible for the five world nobles to tolerate the upper-class noble families developing such powerful strength without any countermeasures.

Despite having such thoughts, Kant did not surround and kill these noble families and the grand knight-level forces in Lionheart City before he sent out his troops.

At this time, Baron Kant had already sent out his troops. They needed time to leave the city, return to the territory to reorganize, and leave Dukedom of Leo. They were extremely pressed for time. Therefore, the upper-class noble families in the Eastern District of Lionheart City acted unusually quickly. Under the common external pressure, they discussed, negotiated, and formed the alliance very quickly. Most of them had drawn up a general framework, and the remaining details were agreed upon when they escaped from Dukedom of Leo.

Therefore, an hour after Baron Kant's soldiers left the north city gate of Lionheart City, the upper-class noble families in Lionheart City had already agreed and signed their respective covenants. Subsequently, the East Main Road of Lionheart City, which was ten miles long and thirty meters wide, was completely packed with noble carriages, grand knights and noble soldiers under the noble families.

At the east city gate of Lionheart City, Kant's soldiers were methodically allowing the noble to leave Lionheart City. Of course, they had to pay the "exit fee" to leave the city.

The person in charge of handling this matter was naturally not the level-five troop class that guarded the city gate. Whether it was Rhodok Sergeants or Swadian Sergeants, they were not good at dealing with the noble. However, if they were to manage a huge estate on their own, they might make a lot of mistakes. However, if they were to stick to one principle and deal with the noble families, it would be the most appropriate thing to do.

Kant had sent 30 Swadian Royal Knights to the east city gate of Lionheart city to collect the "exit fees" from the noble families. There were three arched gateways at the eastern gate of Lionheart City. Each gateway was six meters wide. Ten Swadian Royal Knights were in charge of one gateway, which was more than enough.

The level five archers on the city tower and the level five infantrymen on both sides of the gateways were powerful enough to ensure that they could collect the "exit fee" before letting the noble families pass. Unless these noble families joined forces to attack the east city gate of Lionheart City. However, the noble families closest to the east city gate would never agree to such an action. After all, no matter what the final outcome was, these people at the front would definitely suffer heavy losses. They might even lose their lives as upper-class noble families.

Although they could not join forces to attack the east city gate of Lionheart City, it was difficult for them to be very "generous" and quickly pay the "exit fee". Baron Kant was really too ruthless. An "exit fee" was enough to make the upper-class noble families, who had three hundred years of heritage, feel pained.

Lord of the Oasis

Chapter 579: The Confidence of the World Nobles

The line was quite long. Therefore, after the previous noble successfully left the city, the next noble would know why the previous noble had delayed for so long at the city gate.

At this time, a noble had just left the city at the east city gate of Lionheart City, and it was the next noble's turn to pay the "exit fee".

"What did you say? The exit fee is actually 1,000 golden eagles?" A fat noble Viscount who was dressed in exquisite clothes and looked a little comical shouted angrily, "Why don't you just rob us?"

The Swadian Royal Knight who was in charge of collecting this noble's "exit fee" said with a bright smile, "Viscount Robert really knows how to joke. Robbing won't be as fast as collecting the "exit fee" of noble lords like you! Moreover, the price of this exit fee was personally set by the great and noble Lord Kant. Viscounts need to pay 1,000 golden eagles while barons need to pay 800 golden eagles. You can choose to not pay the 'exit fee'. After all, you can still return to your manor in Lionheart City and enjoy the luxurious and exquisite life of a noble lord."

After a pause, the Swadian Royal Knight explained, "Viscount Robert, the great and noble Lord Kant once said that letting you out of the city at such a time of war is a preferential treatment for your noble status. Because Lord Kant has to bear the risk for letting you out of the city. This means that there is a high possibility of a powerful noble would join Lord Kant's enemies. Therefore, the 'exit fee' must be collected!"

"A thousand golden eagles are too much! Too much! I don't have so many golden eagles with me in my current fleet!" The fat Viscount Robert had a bitter expression on his face. He wanted to bargain with the Swadian Royal Knight about the price.

"We have also considered this. Viscount Robert, if you don't have enough golden eagles with you, you can deduct it with the precious resources that contain extraordinary power. A precious resource that contains extraordinary power can offset 50 golden eagles. If you do not even have the precious resources that contain extraordinary power, you can still use the grand knights that you have to offset it. A grand knight can also offset 50 golden eagles." The Swadian Royal Knight was very patient, he carefully explained to Viscount Robert.

However, the nobles waiting at the back were impatient. At this time, how could he still allow you to dawdle at such an important moment? You were not delaying your own time. You were delaying the time of yourself and the dozens of nobles, thousands of grand knights, and tens of thousands of elite soldiers behind you!

Thus, Viscount Robert was honored to be reminded by the grand knight sent by the noble behind him. "Lord Viscount, please be decisive. There are still many noble lords waiting to leave the city!" Just like how Robert sent a grand knight to remind the noble who was dawdling in front of him, even the words were exactly the same.

Viscount Robert had a thick, wrinkled chin. He was so sad that his chin started to tremble. After hesitating for a while, Viscount Robert revealed a tired expression that looked like twenty burly men waiting on him, he gritted his teeth and said, "Fine, I'll pay the 1,000 golden eagles. Butler Salia, settle the bill for this soldier!"

There was a distance of 50 kilometers between Lionheart City and Lion Fort. Even if a mage cast a Group Acceleration Spell for the entire team, the entire team would still need to travel for three hours. Fortunately, there was a wide and flat paved road between Lionheart City and Lion Fort. Otherwise, it would take a little longer.

Two and a half hours had passed since Kant sent out his troops. In these two and a half hours, Kant's "air force members" had increased from one goshawk to three goshawks.

It seemed that other than these birds, which would be attracted by Kant's power of war to make them stronger and submit to Kant, none of the other birds would do so.

Although the other birds would be under Kant's control when Kant activated the special effect of Nature's Favor and could be strengthened by Kant's rule power of war to increase their strength, when Kant turned off the special effect of Nature's Favor, they would not fly over to show their submission to Kant. Instead, they would return to their previous status.

Kant controlled one of the goshawks and hovered above the east city gate of Lionheart City. He watched as the noble families gave out bags of golden eagles with sorrow expressions. His mood became much better.

"These golden eagles, instead of letting them hire mercenaries from other kingdoms or dukedom, why not give them to me in exchange for denar! One thousand golden eagles can be exchanged for 1.2 million denars," Kant thought happily, "As for letting these guys out of Lionheart City, I really have no choice. I can't just leave these guys in Lionheart City and treat them as a ticking time bomb! After all, it's still my guess that they will become my enemy. If they can really escape to other kingdoms or dukedom, that would be the best thing."

In the Lion Fort, on the square where the five world nobles were located, the five world nobles were still persistently sending a huge amount of power of rules to the Crown of Darkness that was surrounded by them.

At this moment, Viscount Carl. Cameron hurried to the square with a hint of nervousness, anticipation, and excitement on his face.

"Father, the latest emergency news: Baron Kant has led an army of 7,000-men troop and is approaching Lion Fort!" Viscount Carl did not avoid the other four world nobles and directly reported to Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron reported.

There were five world barons in Lion Fort at the same time, Viscount Carl. Cameron thought that Kant dared to launch an attack at this time, he was simply courting death.

Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron nodded indifferently, and then stopped sending the rule power of the curse to the Crown of Darkness. As for the specific matters of the war, he suddenly became more talkative. "Carl, you will be in charge of this war. The purpose is to delay Baron Kant's army, so that Baron Kant's army cannot interfere with the counterattack launched by the five of us! All the forces in the castle will be at your disposal. In addition, you will take my token to the demiplane and mobilize 500 grand knight-level 'Black Armored Knights' to deal with Baron Kant's attack this time!"

After saying that, Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron handed a token to Viscount Carl. Cameron. Both father and son called Kant as Baron Kant, which made Kant like a stranger to them. This left the other four world barons speechless.

Lord of the Oasis

Chapter 580: Confidence In the Domain

"Perhaps, it was their attitude towards Baron Kant that caused Baron Kant to send troops to sweep through the Dukedom of Leo without hesitation!" the four world barons could not help but guess.

After Viscount Carl. Cameron left, Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron's eyes revealed a fanatical look as he said to the four world nobles, "Prepare for battle!"

The four world nobles nodded at the same time and stopped transmitting the power of rules to the Crown of Darkness. In their opinion, this was most likely because Baron Kant could not resist the temptation of the Crown of Darkness's deep and pure dark aura. He could only retain a little bit of senses, so he could not wait to send troops to attack the Lion Fort, to snatch the Crown of Darkness. They had already sensed Baron Kant's aura once before. They could already confirm that the dark aura emitted by the Crown of Darkness was indeed effective against Baron Kant.

Viscount Carl. Cameron moved very quickly. In just half an hour, he had successfully mobilized 500 powerful "black armored knights" from the demiplane. These "black armored knights", each of them had the strength of a high-level grand knight or a peak grand knight. They were Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron's most powerful strength. In the entire demiplane, Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron only had 2,000 "black armored knights" and formed two black armored knight legions".

What was special was that the equipment and weapons on the "black armored knights" were all forged with a small amount of abyssal magic iron. Their sturdiness was a level higher than ordinary armor and weapons. Moreover, the armor that had been added with abyssal magic iron had very good magic resistance. It could reduce the power of the elemental spell by 50%. Of course, the magic power of the caster of this elemental spell could not reach the level of the power of rules.

After another ten minutes, Viscount Carl. Cameron had already arranged the army in Lion Fort.

Outside the south gate of the Lion Fort, there was a huge flat field. This field was to allow the heavy cavalries in the Lion Fort to have a good battle terrain. After all, the heavy cavalries in the entire Dukedom of Leo were famous for being powerful.

At this moment, on this huge field, Viscount Carl. Cameron had already arranged the troops and set up the formation.

A total of 5,500 heavy cavalry soldiers were sent by Viscount Carl. Cameron to the huge field outside the gate of Lion Fort. Among them, 500 black armored knights were in front of the 5,000 heavy cavalry soldiers belonging to Lion Fort. The 5,000 heavy cavalry soldiers were divided into five cavalry legions with 1,000 cavalries each. Although each cavalry legion only had one grand knight as the leader. However, each of the 1,000 cavalries were all soldiers of the official knight-level. They were an elite troop class of the level 4 heavy cavalry.

The five world nobles stood on the city tower above the Lion Fort's gate. At this moment, they could already see Baron Kant and the army behind him rapidly approaching from afar.

"Ryan, you're really willing to give it all out! Baron Kant's heavy cavalries were all at the grand knight level, and he had two knight regiments. If these soldiers of yours wanted to delay Baron Kant's army and not interfere in our battle, they would probably suffer heavy losses. These soldiers at the official knight level were nothing much. They were only the most ordinary soldiers in the fief. They could have as many as they wanted. However, those 500 black-armored knights are the true precious combat strength. If we lose them, it will take at least a year for them to recover." Baron Tyr. Isai. Maud said with a hint of pity.

He also had the black-armored knight legion. The members of the black-armored knights were all high-level grand knights or even peak grand knights. It was difficult to advance into a grand knight, but what was more valuable to the black armored knights than the grand knights themselves was their equipment. Their weapons and equipment had been added with abyssal magic iron.

Abyssal magic iron was undoubtedly an extremely valuable strategic resource. Once upon a time, Baron Tyr. Isai. Maud helped in Ryan. Isai. Cameron's hands in the month of calamity. The condition was that if he lost one hundred grand knights, Baron Ryan. Isai. Cameron had to pay him one kilogram of abyssal magic iron.

And this time, they already knew that Baron Kant's own strength could even match Baron Tyr. Isai. Maud, but the temptation of 20 kilograms of abyssal magic iron immediately made the four world's noble agree to Ryan Isai. Cameron's request to capture Baron Kant alive. This was much more difficult than killing Baron Kant.

At this time, Kant had already arrived at the wide and flat loess square outside of Lion Fort, forming a standoff with the 5,500 heavy cavalries' troop of Lion Fort. The distance between the two sides was about a kilometer, which was enough for both sides' cavalries to charge.

At this time, Kant had already subdued six goshawks. Moreover, Kant discovered a relatively bad piece of information. The extraordinary power of these six goshawks came entirely from Kant, and after Kant supplied them with the rule power of war, he discovered that the rule power of war that he could use had decreased.

Although it was only a small reduction, this incident also directly reminded Kant that everything had a price. If he really built his air force by continuously subduing the goshawks, Kant estimated that if the number of goshawks reached 300, he would not have any power left for him to use, this was a trade-off.

Chirp chirp chirp chirp...

Five goshawks flew happily in the sky, and one was still monitoring the noble families at the east city gate of Lionheart City.

Soon, Kant arranged his army on the square. It was mainly 1,000 Swadian Royal Knight and 1,000 Sarleon Lion Knights. They were arranged in a formation that was conducive to the charge.

Then, 800 Rhodok Sergeants, 800 Swadian Sergeants, 800 Rhodok Sharpshooters, 800 Vaegir Marksmen, 800 Ravenstern Rangers, and 1,000 mages of the Enfath Empire formed a dense formation. Under the situation where the enemy was full of heavy cavalries, only a dense formation could resist.

The entire army was filled with the mages' buff spells, "Sharp Metal Blade" and "Group Acceleration". This was after Kant had observed through the goshawk that the cavalry had already assembled and arranged their formation before the Lion Fort, on the wide paved road, he had ordered the mages to perform it.

Kant thought that the other party would initiate the charge of the heavy cavalries, but they did not do so. So, Kant did not hold back at all. He immediately used all his strength to increase the combat strength of his army.

"War Domain, open!"

"Holy Domain, open!"

At the same time, the battlefield was formed. The "Glorious, Bright Red Movement" on Kant's back began to dance fiercely, it also emitted a ring of bright red luster, enveloping the Kant army, which was the passive special effect of this extraordinary cape, "Bright Red Movement".
