Such a rush to seize the position and then rush into battle was very disadvantageous to the death god mercenary group.

The main reason was that they had too few people.

If the strength of the two armies were not too different, it was possible for them to engage in an all-out battle while at the same time fighting for control of such high ground and important positions.

However, the death god mercenary group only had over a hundred people, and they didn't have the extra manpower to participate in the battle for the high ground.

If the battle for the high ground was a little stalemate, they would be exhausted to death on these few firing positions, and it wouldn't be easy for them to retreat.

They might as well rush to destroy the positions from the start and use a bunch of grenades to launch a sneak attack, destroying these few firing positions first.

These few firepower points were very valuable, but he could not destroy himself for these few positions.

It was better not to fight such a battle.

Death God's captain gave his conclusion.

"Unless you have a way to quietly take down these firepower points, and take down all five of these positions, and before we officially launch an attack, do not let the enemy discover it..."

Yu Tian smiled and said, ('I think... that's not a big problem.")

"The possibility is not high, so... eh? You mean... there's no problem?"

The Death God Squad Leader was stunned for a moment. He wondered if he had heard wrong.

Yu Tian smiled and said, "Yes, I think it's very easy to take down their positions. "If I can quietly take down these positions and let your people take over... What are the chances of winning this Sneak Attack Tonight?"

The commander of death god hesitated, "If we can take down these few positions unscathed... then we will almost certainly win.

These five firing positions basically covered the entire small fishing village. In such good positions, as long as the first wave of attacks was fierce enough, they could completely cripple the enemy.

What happened next was much easier. It was hard to say whether the enemy could still organize an effective counterattack.

Yu Tian slapped his thigh. "Then let's do it this way. Get your men to stand guard under these five positions. Leave the rest to me. I'll call you when I'm done, and your men will quickly enter the positions..."

"Are you not joking?"

("Would I joke with you when it comes to war? "More than a hundred lives are here, and I have my own life... "Yu Tianyu patted the death God's regiment commander's shoulder earnestly. "You're fighting for me, so I can't intentionally lose the war. "Don't worry, I'm sure of it.

"If that's the case... then let's set off."

The Death God's regiment commander didn't dawdle and immediately got his soldiers to move.

Everyone got on the vehicles and headed south.

With the electronic map leading the way, this kind of march was much more convenient.

The convoy took a detour in the Gobi Desert and completely avoided the enemy's sentry range. Then, they approached the enemy's camp from another direction in the mountains.

Although they took a detour, a dozen Miles was just the time it took for a cigarette to burn.

The next step was to walk into the mountains. This was the most time-consuming thing.

There wasn't a large-scale mountain area nearby, so it wasn't too far to reach the small fishing village after passing through these mountains.

However, this didn't mean that it was too far. It meant that it would take about one to two hours to walk.

Fortunately, there was enough time now. Even if the death god mercenary group slowed down a little, they would still have enough time to reach their destination and prepare for battle.

The mercenaries got out of the car one after another. Other than leaving a few drivers to guard the car, more than a hundred people were ready to cross the mountains.

There was no need to carry heavy machine guns into the mountains, and there was no need to bring light machine guns.

The weight of these weapons was still a small matter. The main reason was that they needed to consume too much ammunition. Even a light machine gun required several people to carry bullets for it.

By eliminating this massive amount of moving work, everyone could carry a few more RPG warheads, a large number of grenades, and the bullets of the Akka rifle.

The main weapon of the death god mercenary group was also the AKKA. It was not that they could not afford more expensive guns, but in a place like this, the AKKA rifle was the most suitable weapon.

At least, the Akka rifle could be casually picked up with suitable ammunition here. The supply on the battlefield would be much easier.

After bringing their weapons and equipment, more than a hundred people quickly set off.

The way to march was still to arrange for the vanguard to scout the way ahead. This was not because they were worried that the enemy would ambush them in front, but because they were worried that the enemy would also set up sentries in this direction.

Therefore, the vanguard soldiers also needed to climb up the hill and carefully observe the situation on the surrounding hills. After making sure that it was safe, they would inform the people behind them to follow.

The main force was slightly behind. After making sure that there were no enemies around, they used a small flashlight.

The light of the small flashlight was turned to the weakest, so they could barely see the terrain. This way, they could ensure that the marching speed would not be too slow.

The straight line from here to the small fishing village by the sea was only a few kilometers. However, after entering the mountains, the marching speed of the death god mercenary group could only reach the level of a stroll at most.

Fortunately, they were all professional soldiers, so there was no problem in terms of physical fitness. The marching speed was only affected by the line of sight.

This time, the marching force walked for two hours to cover the distance of a few kilometers.

Finally, they did not see any more enemy sentry posts on the road. These pirate troops had never thought that their opponents would come through the mountains, just like how they had never thought that their opponents would have any airborne soldiers or navy.

Yu Tian stood on a certain mountain top. He could already see the enemy's firing positions.

Those firing positions could not only overlook the small fishing village, but they could also basically overlook the few small mountains on the side.

Therefore, they were not worried that people would pass through the mountains. For them, the enemies who passed through the mountains were also under their coverage.

The soldiers of the death god mercenary group gathered at the foot of the hill where Yu Tian was. There were only two hills between this place and the enemy's firing positions.

According to the previous plan, it was time for Yu Tian to show his skills.

He put on his night vision goggles and stealthily made his way to the opposite side from the foot of the mountain.

They unhurriedly followed behind Yu Tian and slowly approached the enemy's firing position.

This was a very reasonable and normal choice because the more adjacent positions there were, the greater the chance of being discovered after making a ruckus.

Starting from the middle position, the enemy positions on both sides would have a chance to discover them.

However, Yu Tian wasn't worried about making a ruckus.

He chose this order of action mainly to make it convenient for the death god mercenary group to quickly take over the position..

Chief sniper and the others followed behind Yu Tian, keeping a certain distance from each other.

Their task was very simple. They were to observe Yu Tian's actions and send messages to the team behind him in a timely manner.

In addition, they could also provide a wave of support when Yu Tian failed.

However, chief sniper felt that he would not have the chance to provide support. If Yu Tian failed, they would not be of much help and could only retreat quickly.

Yu Tian did not need them to cover his retreat because they had seen Yu Tian's movement speed. He ran faster than a wild dog. Even bullets would not be able to catch up to him.

Soon, Yu Tian and the others approached the foot of the mountain where the first firing position was.

This kind of high ground was actually not considered high. The vertical height was only about ten meters. It was about the same as a four-or five-story building.

However, the slope next to the high ground was a little long, and these hills were connected to each other. It looked like they had entered a mountain range.

There was no fire on the enemy's firing position. They did not light a fire like the pirates in the village, so the entire position was pitch black.

If it were not for the night vision goggles, it would be difficult for ordinary people to notice that they had set up positions in these places.

This was to better conceal themselves.

After all, as a firing point, they definitely couldn't let themselves become the first target of the enemy, so they definitely couldn't easily expose themselves and let the enemy discover them too early.

However, this pitch-black environment provided Yu Tian with a lot of convenience. He wore the night vision goggles and easily climbed up the hill.

The Qinggong that he had been training hard for many days finally showed its effect. Yu Tian's figure was like a ghost. Suddenly, he floated out from the night vision device of head sniper and the others and disappeared in an instant.

Head sniper and the others were completely impressed by Yu Tian's speed. However, they still did not understand what kind of method Yu Tian was planning to use and how he was going to silently take down the enemy's position.

Just his speed was not enough. After all, Yu Tian only had one person, while the enemy had more than a dozen.

Even if Yu Tian could kill one person with a single slash, it would at least take a few seconds for more than a dozen people to kill him.

This was already considered godly speed.

However, this was still not enough. As long as he made a slight movement, a few seconds was enough for the other enemies to fire their guns as a warning.

There were more than a dozen enemies, and there would always be someone who could seize this opportunity and successfully fire their guns.

Chief sniper and the others were still feeling uneasy.

Yu Tian had already lightly leaped onto the top of the mountain. Most of the people on the top of the mountain were sleeping, but there were still a few who were awake.

These few awake soldiers were smoking, and the light from a few cigarette butts was extremely eye-catching in the darkness.

Because they were behind the simple fortifications of the base, they did not have to worry about being seen by the other bases and villages.

What made Yu Tian's balls hurt was that the light from the cigarette butts actually slightly affected the image observed by the night vision device.

Sight was also very important to Yu Tian. His best flying needle required him to hit the enemy's acupuncture points.

If he did not hit the acupuncture points accurately, it would be equivalent to only causing the enemy a slight pain. It would not achieve the effect that he needed at all.

Not only would this not kill him in one shot, it would cause a counterattack and lead to the failure of the operation.

It was only the time for a cigarette. He could totally afford to wait.

It would not be too late for him to make a move when these pirates threw away their cigarette butts.

Of course, it did not take long to smoke, especially for these old smokers. When they smoked, it was as if they had been hungry for several days, burning a cigarette to the bottom in just a few mouthfuls.

Finally, one of the Pirates threw away his cigarette butt and sighed in satisfaction. Then, he suddenly said, "Why do I feel that there is someone sitting on the mound in front of me?"

The other two pirates were slightly stunned. Then, they focused their eyes and indeed, they found Yu Tian's blurry figure.

"Damn, who is it? who sneaked up to the front? Didn't boss say that you're not allowed to show your face? No matter how hot the pit is, you have to stay there obediently! Do You Hear Me? !"

The Pirates had never thought that an enemy would sneak up on them. Moreover, after the enemy sneaked up on them, it was impossible for them to just sit on the fortifications.

This was a battlefield. It was impossible for someone who was out of his mind to be sent out to be the vanguard.

The leader of this pirate squad scolded in a low voice as he stood up and moved in Yu Tian's direction.

He didn't dare to make too much noise, nor did he dare to make a fire.

This was because if their firepower formation made any noise, it was very easy for the surrounding comrades to misunderstand.

Even if these misunderstandings did not lead to a big mess, they would still be severely taught a lesson by their boss afterwards.

Therefore, this pirate leader only wanted to secretly drag that unruly underling back to the center of the firing position and quietly teach him a lesson.

Yu Tian was slightly surprised. He did not understand what the enemy was saying at all.

However, he was certain that the enemy had already discovered him.

However, judging from the tone and behavior of the enemy, it seemed that they had treated him as one of their own.

Yu Tian did not know whether to laugh or cry.

Although the enemy had misjudged the situation, they had also successfully focused their attention on Yu Tian. There were even two pirates who had been sleeping when they were woken up.

This situation seemed to be disadvantageous to Yu Tian. He now had to face more enemies at the same time.

However, Yu Tian did not care about this. What he was concerned about was that these pirates had finally thrown away the cigarette butts in their hands.

Thus, he finally took out the flying needles with ease and threw them out.

Throwing two to three flying needles at once was basically a 100% hit rate for Yu Tian.

However, with two more targets, it was not convenient for Yu Tian to take care of them at the same time.

Therefore, his first attack was to kill the two pirates who had just woken up.

This process was silent, and the two pirates who were stabbed in their vital points did not attract anyone's attention.

Then, Yu Tian threw out a second wave of flying needles and killed the two pirates who were sitting there smoking.

The two pirates who were sitting on the ground were also silent.

However, the leader, who was walking towards Yu Tian, felt that something was wrong. The two pirates were discussing and talking in low voices just now, but suddenly there was no sound. The atmosphere was a little abnormal.

Moreover, Yu Tian's reaction also made him feel that something was wrong. Yu Tian did not respond to him. He was still sitting in his original position and had not moved.

He suspected that something had happened.

He still did not think that Yu Tian was the enemy. He only thought that it was one of his men who had died here..

However, he did not fire immediately.

He was a little hesitant.

If this was just a misunderstanding and nothing had happened on the battlefield, no one had died, and there were no enemy attacks, then he would definitely be held responsible by the leader for the chaos caused by his casual firing.

He didn't dare to try anything unless it was an emergency or something that was completely confirmed.

But if it wasn't a misunderstanding, then it would be a fatal thing.

These questions flashed through the mind of the small leader quickly. They were extremely complicated, but in fact, they only gave him a short second to think.

No matter what, he felt that it was best to wake up all the underlings on the battlefield now.

If anything unusual happened, everyone could deal with it together.

If nothing unusual happened, he would call out everyone's names, and then..

That was all the little leader could think of. He had no chance to continue thinking.

Yu Tian's third attack arrived very quickly. This time, he only used a flying needle to take care of the pirate little leader.

Although the flying needle was a weapon that did not seem to pose much of a threat, as long as it pierced a vital acupoint, the effect would be much better than ordinary bullets.

The pirate leader fell to the ground weakly. However, before he hugged the ground, Yu Tian floated over again and grabbed his collar, gently placing him on the ground.

There was still no movement during this process. The rest of the pirates were still sleeping soundly.

Some of them even turned over and smacked their lips, but they did not have any intention of waking up.

They took turns to stand guard and take turns to rest. If no one woke them up, they could rest assured and continue to sleep.

Of course, Yu Tian would not disturb their sleep. He could also strengthen their sleep effects so that they did not have to wake up after sleeping.

After finishing all the work, Yu Tian did not waste any more time.

Once the operation started, he had to finish everything quickly. This was because Yu Tian did not know if there was a rule to maintain communication between these positions.

He quickly packed up his flying needles and ran to the edge of the position. He waved to snipe and the others at the foot of the mountain.

According to the previous agreement, this action meant that the matter had been completely settled.

Yu Tian, chief sniper, and the other scouts all wore night vision goggles, so there were no obstacles in communicating through this action.

Chief sniper made a gesture to indicate that he had received it. Then, he immediately made a hand gesture to the team members behind him.

The news was quickly transmitted back to the death god mercenary group. The death god leader was somewhat surprised. ('So Fast? They settled the first position so quickly?') "Our boss... It's such a pity to be a merchant.

"Act Now, first team, quickly enter the position!

According to the original plan, the death god mercenary group was divided into nve teams, preparmg to occupy tne enemy s live nrmg positions.

Then, with these five firing positions as the core, they were arranged into five defensive areas.

Each of these five teams had less than 20 people. Half of the soldiers were going to occupy the enemy's positions, while the other half were distributed around the

The first team of about 20 people received the order and immediately set off towards the predetermined location.

Except for a few leaders, the rest of their team did not have night vision goggles.

However, it did not matter. Now that there were no more enemies in the first firing position, they could continue to flash their small torches and use the weakest light to rush to the location they had set.

At this time, Yu Tian had already rushed to the second firing position.

Chief sniper and the other scouts immediately panicked. They realized that they could not keep up with Yu Tian's speed at all.

Yu Tian seemed to be flying. It only took him a few seconds to fly from the first base to the second base.

Although the distance between the two mountain peaks was only about a hundred meters in a straight line, the undulating mountain peaks and winding passages here required one to be very careful. It would take at least a few minutes to walk there stealthily.

There was nothing they could do. Chief sniper and the others could only run.

When they reached the foot of the second mountain, Yu Tian had already made a trip down the mountain.

Both sides met head-on.

Chief sniper panted and said, "What's wrong? Is it not easy to make a move on this position?"

"What's not easy to make a move on? I've already taken care of it. Get the rest of the teams to quickly come up... I'm going to the next position.

Chief sniper was stunned.

Yu Tian felt more and more that lightness skills were extremely useful. Although it seemed like he was running faster than usual, jumping higher and farther, his speed advantage on flat ground was just that. But if he used lightness skills on this kind of mountain and various complicated terrain, it was simply a godly skill.

He could completely ignore the limitations of the terrain and maintain the fastest speed of a human sprinting.

Two Hills with a straight line distance of 100 meters was really a distance of over 100 meters for him.

How long could a sprinting distance of 100 meters take?

The chief sniper hurriedly gave the order to his teammates behind him and continued to run toward the third hill.

Because he had too much equipment on him, the noise when he ran was greater. He simply threw the bullet bags, grenades, and other things on the side of the road and followed with only a sniper rifle.

Before he reached the foot of the mountain, Yu Tian came down from the third mountain.

"The third position is settled. You guys hurry up. I'll go to the next one. "

Chief sniper was stunned. He immediately began to run back and met up with his teammates who were chasing after him.

He grabbed his teammates' collars, he said in a low voice, "Go back and tell boss to pull out the entire team. We'll go straight to the position. ". Mr. Yu had already finished the third battle formation. One battle formation per minute. Soon, it would be the fourth and fifth battle formation. "Tell boss to hurry up and not waste any more time.

His teammates also noticed that Yu Tian 's speed was a little too fast.

This was equivalent to buying more time for the death god mercenary group. It gave them more time to perfect the defense of the battle formation.

This precious time could not be wasted.

He wanted to run back and report this great news to the death God mercenary group leader.

The Death God mercenary group leader was still in disbelief when he received the news.

The first team had just set off, and you guys were already done?

Was this an attack on a base? How is that less time than it takes us to get into position?

Translator: 549690339

There was not much time to hesitate on the battlefield. Every minute and every second could represent the lives of comrades.

One more minute to set up a defense would increase the chances of victory in the battle.

The commander of the death god Regiment was very clear about such a simple principle.

Although the commander of the death god Regiment did not quite believe in such a ridiculous fact, everyone was maintaining radio silence. He could not use the walkie-talkie to ask chief sniper.

Chief sniper was an old warrior. He had always been very steady. The news he sent back would definitely not be wrong. At least, he would not spout nonsense.

The commander of the death God squad absolutely believed chief sniper. He did not do as chief sniper said.

The remaining four squads followed four directions and set off towards their pre-determined targets.

The squads had only walked halfway when they ran into the scouts that were approaching them.

The following news made everyone feel relieved.

The enemy's five firing positions had all been taken down by Yu Tian. The enemies on the ground were all dead, and the weapons and ammunition on the ground were intact.

This was almost equivalent to the enemy setting up the positions, building the fortifications, and preparing the weapons and ammunition. Then, they would warmly welcome the death god mercenary group's arrival and stationing. Moreover, this stationed position was the perfect location to slaughter the enemy.

How could there be such a cheap thing in the world?

However, the mercenaries had to accept this fact after they arrived at the position. It was like a pie falling from the sky. They had just picked up the easy gains.

The resources on the position were neat and tidy. The enemies on the position were neat and tidy as well, as if they were welcoming their arrival.

The mercenaries immediately began to get busy.

Under the leadership of their squad leaders, they simply cleaned up the corpses of the enemies to reinforce the fortifications.

Then, they adjusted the heavy machine guns to a better position and pointed their muzzles at the small fishing village at the foot of the mountain.

The weapons and ammunition had to be moved to a suitable location. It was convenient to replenish them at any time, but they also had to pay attention to safety and defense. They could not be completely destroyed by a grenade or an RPG.

The soldiers had to find a suitable battle position on the mountain top. Then, according to their own needs, they had to make some simple modifications to the simple fortifications.

This kind of simple modification was similar to digging a foxhole.

The heavy machine guns were the main killing weapons in the firing positions, and the other positions were mainly made up of Akkadian rifles and RPGs.

RPGs were the most important because the death god mercenaries carried the most RPG warheads.

Next was grenades. These things couldn't hit as far as RPGs, but they were lighter in weight than RPGs and more effective in killing infantrymen. The death god mercenaries also carried a lot of them.

Their mission was to protect the firing positions.

As long as they protected the firing positions well in the early stage, it was basically equivalent to winning the battle.

There were only a few ways for the enemy to attack the firing positions. The most common, and most in line with the F * cking style, was to use rpgs to directly shoot at the positions and blow them up into a mess.

However, using rpgs required a suitable shooting angle. It was best to occupy the high ground and bombard the enemy from a high vantage point.

Shooting rpgs from the foot of the mountain to the top of the mountain was equivalent to wasting ammunition.

Unfortunately, there were only a few machine gun positions in the nearby high ground.

The enemy could not still find the ideal shooting angle, so they could only use their lives to pile up on the high ground.

As long as they pushed the soldiers to the bottom of the slope of the high ground, they could throw grenades. This was the only thing that could pose a threat to the machine gun formation.

All the defensive measures of the death god mercenary group were to keep these infantrymen outside. This included the people in the firing position and the people arranged in the surroundings.

The five machine gun firing positions were connected in a line, and they could provide support and cover to each other. In addition to the professional mercenaries placed in the surroundings, this kind of defensive power could be considered to be the peak of a 100-man team.

With enough time to prepare, the defense around the position was naturally more well - prepared.

Yu Tian was already free at this time. He began to follow behind the chief sniper and watch him prepare for battle.

The chief sniper also had his own defensive position. His position was on the left side of the entire firing position, on the side and behind.

He chose a small hill for himself. This place could take care of the two machine gun firing positions in front and protect their foot of the hill. He could also take care of the few hills behind him, as well as the small paths that extended between the hills.

The enemy might attack from behind, especially if they could not find a breakthrough point in the front. The attack from the back was even more important.

The position of the leader sniper could be considered as a supplement to the defense of the position, and it also served as a warning.

If the enemy came from behind and exchanged fire with him, the defensive positions in front would immediately be on alert, diverting the attention of some people to the back.

The few Scout teammates of the chief sniper were all lying in ambush behind the machine gun firing positions, and they were all fighting alone.

They didn't need to defend their positions to the death. Their main task was to snipe the enemy and try to kill as many of the enemy as possible.

Yu Tian knew that every mercenary group had their own characteristics.

For example, the hyena mercenary group had a lot of skilled mortars and liked to bring a lot of mortars to fire at the enemy.

As for the death god mercenary group, they had a lot of veterans who were good at blasting and laying mines. Because of their long-term habit of laying mines on the battlefield, these veterans were also more skilled in laying mines.

The sniper was not only good at sniping, but he could also be a scout. He was also good at laying mines.

He was mainly good at digging holes and quickly setting up landmines.

Yu Tian felt that if chief sniper were to bury the corpses after the battle, he could cover the entire mountain by himself.

However, for this operation, the death god mercenary group did not bring a few landmines.

The main reason was that this thing was too heavy. Moreover, the landmines were dead and the grenades were alive. The use of landmines was not as flexible as grenades.

Chief sniper laid the mines mainly with grenades. If this thing was properly arranged and the location was well chosen, it would be no different from throwing it out.

The only flaw was that there were too few of them in the mountains. It was not like the jungle, which was very suitable for hiding booby traps.

Chief sniper could only find a few key locations and set up some ambushes. The other grenades were still on his body.

Then, the chief sniper took his sniper rifle and went to the position that he had already chosen.

He was ready.

Yu Tian was also ready. He brought Aya and sufficient ammunition and was prepared to use his speed advantage to be a “Cleaner” on the battlefield..

Translator: 549690339

The word “Street Sweeper” referred to the people sweeping the streets, which was similar to the meaning of a cleaner.

However, this term had another meaning when used in a football match. It was commonly known as “The free man.

The free man did not have a fixed position that he had to play. He could run all over the field, just like a piece of brick that needed to be moved wherever it needed to be moved.

On the battlefield, Yu Tian felt that he was also very suitable for this position. Firstly, it was because he ran fast, and secondly, it was because his personal combat strength was very strong.

As long as he did not face the violent firepower of a group of soldiers, there was basically no one who could stop him.

He could use his fastest speed to rush to the place where he needed support the most, and then launch the fiercest offensive.

This “Fiercest offensive “was not an exaggeration at all, because the big guy was also by his side, fighting alongside him.

When he attacked those machine gun positions just now, Yu Tian did not bring the big guy with him.

Because he felt that the big guy’s movements were a little too slow, and it was not suitable for this kind of work that needed to be done quickly and quickly.

However, after the battle began, the Big Guy had a chance to show off.

Yu Tian had long dismantled the light gatling on a military vehicle. Then, he had the big guy carry it into the mountains and use it as his main weapon.

An ordinary person would not be able to handle such a heavy weapon. However, the big guy did not have any problems. He even carried a few boxes of bullet chains.

This was a moving machine gun position, a human-shaped firing point.

The Big Guy only needed to consider the speed of the bullets being consumed and not shoot them all at once.

Of course, under normal circumstances, Yu Tian didn't need to use his explosive firepower unless he was facing a pile of enemies.

Actually, the death god regiment commander did not agree with Yu Tian's actions, but he could not stop Yu Tian.

Yu Tian had nothing to do with commanding on the battlefield, so he could only use himself as a soldier king.

The Death God regiment commander was in charge of the overall command. He personally took charge of the machine gun position in the middle, and he personally carried a gun and hid behind the fortification. He only brought two signalmen.

The machine gun position in the middle wasn't the most dangerous place, but it wasn't the safest either.

As the leader of the death God mercenary group, it was already good enough that he could personally go to the front line. When he joined a large mercenary group, he basically didn't need to appear on the battlefield anymore.

The Death God mercenary group's combat preparations were ongoing.

The mercenaries needed to decide how to set up the defense around the machine gun position at the last minute. These things could only be determined after they saw the real terrain.

After arranging their positions and areas, the mercenaries had to find a few bunkers, build simple fortifications, prepare ammunition, and familiarize themselves with the environment..

Of course, the more time they had to do these things, the better. The better the preparation, the higher the chance of victory after the battle started.

But the preparations could not be delayed for too long.

Death God's regiment commander planned to launch an attack before three o'clock. Then, the battle would be almost over by the time dawn broke.

Therefore, everyone was in a hurry to get everything ready before three o'clock in the morning.

However, the battle started a little earlier than everyone had expected.

The enemy's walkie-talkie on the machine gun base suddenly moved. A series of rhythmic knocking sounds came from it.

"Bang, Bang, Bang..."

The Death God mercenary group leader sighed. He knew that this was the signal for the enemy to communicate with each other, but he had no way to respond to this signal.

Thprpfnrp after the pnpml/ did nnt rpcpiVP the cnrrprt rpqnnnqp thpv wnlld immediately realize that something had happened on the machine gun formation.

Then, the battle would begin immediately.

The Death God mercenary group had to strike first and gain the upper hand. Before the enemy made a response, they had to dump a wave of ammunition.

Hence, the death god mercenary group leader immediately turned on his communication device and said in a deep voice, "All teams, pay attention. Get into battle positions immediately! Machine gunners, get into position immediately! Pay attention to my orders and get ready to eat!"

At this time, there was no longer a need to restrict the use of communication devices. Even if the enemy had detected any signals now, it was already too late.

The battle was about to begin. who cared if they would be discovered.

At this time, Yu Tian was hiding on a hill near the small fishing village with the big guy, ready to contribute to the first wave of attacks.

He also brought the death god mercenary group's communication equipment. Moreover, it was a set of high-quality earplugs and throat mic.

He had also heard the death God mercenary group's command, so he immediately became spirited.

He hurriedly patted the big guy's shoulder. "Get Ready. Hold your machine gun properly. The enemies on the other side are all yours."

“Yes, Boss!

The Big Guy quickly stood up, picked up the Light Gatling gun in his hand, and pointed at the soldiers beside the bonfire in the distance.

Yu Tian, on the other hand, grabbed a few grenades and wondered if he should throw a few of them over to the enemies from such a distance of hundreds of meters.

The preparation only took a few seconds. The Grim Reaper captain casually knocked on the enemy’s walkie-talkie a few times and then ordered the heavy machine gunner not far behind him, (‘Aim...

The enemy was a little alert and repeated the secret signal again.

At this time, the death god captain shouted, “Fire!

Dong Dong Dong..

The heavy machine gun behind him immediately sounded. The gunshots were like dense drums, and the flying shells hit the death god Captain’s bald head.

Immediately after, the heavy machine guns in the other positions also sounded.

In just a split second, dozens of pirate soldiers died in the indiscriminate firing.

The power of heavy machine guns was huge. If a human was grazed by these large bullets, even if they didn’t die, they would still be crippled.

Those messy vehicles were completely useless under such firepower. Not only did the bullet screens destroy these vehicles, even the soldiers sleeping behind the vehicles died in confusion.

Of course, the first set meal of the death god mercenary group was not just the heavy machine guns. They had prepared more rpgs.

Dozens of rocket warheads flew toward the village. The sounds of explosions and flames instantly became chaotic.

There were two armored transport vehicles in the pirate army. Although these things were mainly used to transport troops, they were still considered armored vehicles. They were very useful against light-armored infantrymen and were used to forcefully attack certain positions.

Unfortunately, the RPG of the death god mercenary group would not let go of these vehicles. As soon as the battle started, these two armored vehicles were blasted into scrap metal..

Of course, the armored vehicles weren't the only ones that were bombed. The other rpgs also had their own targets.

Those light assault vehicles loaded with machine guns were the focus of the death god mercenary group. In just a few seconds, these military vehicles that had already been assigned targets were almost completely blown up.

A few seconds was enough for some of the old pirates to react, especially those who had participated in the warlord Civil War.

Unfortunately, there were not many places to hide in this small fishing village.

Not to mention the tattered shacks, they could not even block the Akkadian rifles, let alone the heavy machine guns and rpgs that bombarded them.

Many people's first reaction was to hide behind the vehicles.

With the graceful posture of wild dogs snatching feces, they rolled and crawled, jumping and jumping behind the military vehicles and trucks, and then rejoiced that they had finally escaped.

They felt that compared to their brothers who died in their sleep, the key to their survival was that they had strong skills, flexible minds, and decisive judgment..

They could not help but admire and appreciate themselves.

But soon, they found that they had come to the wrong place. These military vehicles and trucks provoked the enemy's fire more, and they could not withstand the heavy machine guns at all.

The first wave of rpgs was aimed at the military vehicles. The exploded body of the vehicles and all kinds of debris shot out in the surroundings along with the explosion. The killing range and effect were much more efficient than pure machine gun fire.

Before the pirates could appreciate the results of the explosion and machine gun firing, the second wave of RPGs fired again.

The Pirates knew that hiding would not solve the problem, so they could only run.

They ran in the opposite direction of the gunfire and ran toward the beach.

The beach was next to the small fishing village. The pirates could fully display their ability to escape and use their fastest speed to escape from the battlefield that was covered in firepower.

The beach was also within the shooting range of the guns, but the place was slightly more spacious and the visibility was not good. The Pirates felt that there was still a good chance of escaping if they ran to the beach.

If it did not work out, they could just jump into the sea and swim back to their hometown.

However, the pirates who ran to the beach became easier targets to shoot at. The Death God mercenary group had night vision goggles, both dim light and infrared.

The direction of the heavy machine guns was also indicated by the team leader.

Where there were more people, they would shoot.

Their aim was to kill as many enemies as possible. They might not attack those who were lying on the ground and fighting back. The best choice for them was to flee in groups.

There were also many pirates who fought back on the spot. After all, the firepower of the five machine gun positions could not cover every corner of the battlefield.

Some pirates who had not yet been shot immediately fought back on the mountaintop. Wherever the muzzle flames appeared, they would crazily tilt their bullets.

Fighting with offense and suppressing the enemy's firepower would give them a greater chance of survival.

However, they were clearly at a disadvantage. The mountaintop was pitch black. It was very difficult for them to hit the target.

At the foot of the mountain, there were burning and exploding vehicles, bonfires, and broken wooden houses.

The pirate camp was basically exposed to the flames. Even if the pirates were some distance away from the light source, they could not help but reveal a blurry shadow.

The Death God mercenary group was very experienced in shooting on the battlefield, and their various firepower points were also very well coordinated.

If they needed to use heavy machine guns to shoot, they would use heavy machine guns to shoot. If they needed to use rpgs to shoot, they would use them too.

Even the snipers quickly found valuable targets and tried to kill the enemy officers.

This was more of a massacre than a battle. At least, in the first minute before the battle broke out, the pirate army had no strength to resist.

The results of the heavy machine guns were beyond Yu Tian 's expectations. In addition, there were a few light machine guns on the battlefield. The enemies that appeared in his field of vision were like wheat being harvested, falling one after another.

Death was such a child's play. Under such a blow, the unprepared army was no different from the unarmed civilians. They could only helplessly fall in the rain of bullets and explosions.

Yu Tian remembered that he had watched some war movies from the last century. It was said that more than ten soldiers with machine guns faced the charge of more than 6,000 soldiers with cold weapons.

Then, they won a big victory. More than 6,000 soldiers with cold weapons were killed completely. The whole process only lasted a few minutes.

Now, these pirates who were caught off guard were more or less the same. The guns in their hands were not as good as fire sticks. Some of them did not even have time to take their guns.

The Death God mercenary group still had special observers counting the specific data.

The statistics were also very meaningful. They could timely know how many troops the enemy still had. and know the changes in the forces of both sides-

"The number of dead and incapacitated enemy troops is about... 700! "

The observers reported the data to the death god Captain. The statistics of the few observers were almost the same.

The Death God captain was overjoyed. He did not expect that the first wave of sneak attacks could achieve such a huge result, completely crippling the enemy.

The casualties of his side were also calculated, and the result was actually in the single digits.

Perhaps the mercenaries hid too well and were very experienced on the battlefield, or perhaps their first wave of firepower was too fierce, so the enemy basically did not have the strength to organize a counterattack.

Therefore, in this one minute or so, the enemy was simply being beaten up.

However, there was also an unlucky heavy machine gunner who was shot to death. After all, the firing point of the machine gun attracted too much aggro, so the enemy's counterattack was basically concentrated on the position of the heavy machine gun.

There were also enemies who fired rpgs at the machine gun position, but they were all lucky enough to miss.

There were not many enemies who had the opportunity to fire rpgs. Most of the enemies did not have the opportunity to stand up and fire because the death god mercenary group's Akka rifle would also be watching these people carrying rpgs.

The enemies who were further away had a safer shooting environment because the light there was darker, so their actions would not be easily noticed.

However, because they were too far away, their shooting accuracy was much worse.

Therefore, not only did they fail to destroy the machine gun base, they even attracted the attention of the machine gun base.

The machine guns did not care about their accuracy. When they saw the threat, they immediately turned their muzzles and a rain of bullets poured over, smashing everything in that direction into pieces..

Although the enemy's counter-attacks were few and far between, the unlucky big guy also took a few shots.

It couldn't be said that the big guy was unlucky. His Gatling gun was also very eye-catching. The flames from the muzzle of the gun were no weaker than that of a heavy machine gun.

The Big Guy didn't look for cover. He just stood on the top of the mountain and shot one bullet chain before coming down to change bullets.

Before the second bullet chain was finished, he was shot.

However, this didn't affect his performance. The Big Guy wore a bulletproof vest and a level three head. He wrapped himself tightly.

The protective ability of the heavy bulletproof vest was very strong. In addition, the enemy used mostly ACAR rifles. Occasionally, two bullets hit him, but they couldn't do anything to him.

Bulletproof vests were not omnipotent. Even if an ordinary person wore a bulletproof vest, they would not be able to avoid injuries, such as breaking ribs or various bruises.

However, this depended on the level of the bulletproof vest, the power of the bullets, and the range of the shots.

Lastly, it also depended on who was hit.

The Big Guy was a genetic warrior. Even without a bulletproof vest, he was able to withstand the bullets of a pistol at close range. It would not be a big problem for him to withstand the bullets of a normal rifle from a distance with his bare arms.

Now that he was wearing a bulletproof vest, these bullets were akin to scratching an itch for him. They did not cause any damage.

After shooting two bullets, the big guy could no longer find any targets worthy of him shooting at.

This included Yu Tian. Yu Tian, who had been busy throwing grenades, also had no worthy targets at this moment.

Yu Tian had brought along dozens of grenades. In that one minute or so, he had thrown all of them away.

The distance that he threw the grenades was much farther than that of ordinary people. He threw them at a distance of one to two hundred meters, even farther than those RPG rockets.

He threw the grenades with great accuracy. When the grenades exploded, they basically covered a whole area, causing more than ten casualties.

According to Yu Tian's estimation, he should have killed more than a hundred people just by throwing the grenades.

However, there should be some duplicates among them.

It was the type of people who were hit by his grenades and shot by the other death god mercenaries 'Akka Rifles and machine guns. It was hard to tell who took the heads and who took the assists.

Then, the Big Guy said that he had also killed nearly a hundred people. The muzzles of his machine guns fell one after another.

According to this theory, every machine gunner could say that he had killed over a hundred people. In addition to the other mercenaries who had killed them with Akka and rpgs... even if all the pirate troops died, it would still not be enough for them.

Of course, the casualty figures could not be calculated like this. Yu Tian had already heard the results of the Observers' statistics from the communicator. Looking at the messy situation on the battlefield, he knew that his side had already achieved a great victory, he simply stopped attacking with the big guy.

He also brought an Akka rifle. However, he was not good at this kind of long-distance shooting. Moreover, the remaining enemies had basically hidden themselves. It would be more difficult to hit them.

Therefore, Yu Tian completely gave up on attacking. He began to bring the big guy to the position where the death God mercenary group was located.

The Death God mercenary group's attacks also gradually slowed down. The small fishing village seemed to have become less lively all of a sudden.

The heavy machine guns and rpgs had already stopped attacking, because there was really no target worth attacking in the village. At this time, there were no enemies, and they were still foolishly exposed to their guns.

Some lucky pirates found cover in the village, hiding behind some rocks and slopes, and now they finally had a chance to breathe.

There were also some pirates who ran to the beach. They lay in the pile of corpses and were lucky to survive.

However, they no longer had any thoughts of counterattacking. They even felt that there was no need to shoot at the Dark Hills on the opposite side.

They only wanted to take advantage of the time when the death god mercenary group stopped firing to escape.

This pirate army had several small groups, each with their own bosses, but these bosses didn't seem to be lucky enough to survive.

Therefore, the entire pirate army on the battlefield seemed to have lost their command, and there was no movement for a long time.

Yu Tian ran to the machine gun position where Death God's captain was. At this time, Death God's captain was giving the mercenaries tasks.

He asked the mercenaries on both sides to slightly press forward and change the angle. From the side, they started to snipe the pirates hiding behind the obstacles.

In addition, there were enemies on the beach. They had already started to move to both sides of the beach.

Other than the beach near the small fishing village, which was a beach, the distant coast was a mess of reefs.

That kind of terrain and environment was more suitable for hiding, and it was also suitable for escaping.

Because the beach was a little far from the machine gun position, the range of the ACAR rifles was not enough. Just relying on snipers alone would not be able to control the Pirates' large-scale escape.

Putting the other mercenaries and precision shooters ahead of the Pirates in the direction of the reef was equivalent to completely blocking the Pirates' escape route.

Unless the pirates really decided to swim home. Although the beach was also within the range of the machine guns, they still had a good chance of escaping into the sea.

With one or two people escaping, the heavy machine guns would not fire at them.

After receiving the order, the mercenaries had already started to surround the two ends of the small fishing village. Some of them had already entered the reef area, preparing to completely surround and annihilate this group of pirates.

Now that there were not many pirates left, the mercenary group would not have too much pressure to leave the position on the mountain.

Even if the pirates could organize themselves to charge at them, the machine gun formation could also help them to stop them.

The Pirate Army could be considered to have lost their momentum, and the death god mercenary group's arrangement was also much bolder.

Yu Tian was even bolder. He directly said to the death god mercenary group leader, "Let's directly attack the village."

('There's no need.

The Death God mercenary group leader was in a good mood. He smiled and said, "The enemy is already dead. We don't need to risk losing our men to launch an attack. Let's just wait and see. We have the advantage in the night battle. "

The Death God mercenary group not only had night vision equipment, but they also had snipers and accurate shooters. The personal qualities of the soldiers were also much higher than that of the pirate army.

If they continued to exhaust themselves in this kind of darkness, the pirates would die without even realizing it. In the end, they would have no chance of escaping.

Very soon, sporadic gunshots were heard from both sides of the village.

The pirates in the village and on the beach immediately panicked. The gunshots came from both sides, which meant that there were enemies on both sides, which meant that they had no chance of escaping..

Translator: 549690339

The pirates were still getting impatient. Some of them started to form small groups and moved to both sides of the beach.

However, the mercenary gunmen around them and the snipers on the mountaintop immediately let them experience the marksmanship of professional mercenaries.

In fact, the number of casualties caused by the snipers was not large. It was mainly used as a deterrent.

The real casualties were the mercenaries with Akka and the precision shooters with special rifles.

The concept of precision shooters was very easy to understand. They were special shooters who were more accurate than ordinary mercenaries and were commonly known as sharpshooters.

They were similar to snipers, but their functions were not the same.

The biggest difference was that the precision shooters 'firing rhythm was much faster.

They were not like the snipers who were particular about their hidden positions, and they would not have the patience to wait at a particular sniping spot for a few days and nights just to fire a crucial shot.

They usually appeared on the battlefield in front of the enemy troops charging forward, or the enemy positions that had been exposed, and fired fast-paced and accurate shots.

They usually used modified ordinary rifles, and because of the firing frequency and the accuracy of their guns, their shooting accuracy was not as high as that of the snipers.

It was ideal to kill an enemy with one bullet, but it was also acceptable to shoot a few more times to hit the target.

The precision shooters of the death god mercenary group were just like that, their standards were a little uneven. However, on the battlefield on both sides of the small fishing village, they could still firmly suppress the pirates in twos and threes.

The Pirates in the village also wanted to break through the encirclement on both sides, but the pressure they suffered was even greater. Just as they popped their heads out, the heavy machine guns on the hilltop rang.

This was not enough. There were still some mercenaries left on the machine gun position to defend the position, and they all fired RPGs at them.

The remaining pirates instantly fell.

Without Command and organization, the Pirates in the dark night were like chickens and ducks waiting to be slaughtered. Although the number of people was twice that of the death god mercenary group, they had no strength to resist at all.

Snipers and accurate shooters had been working hard. From time to time, they would kill one or two pirates, making the rest of the pirates even more fearful.

The longer they delayed, the more disadvantageous it was for the pirates.

Even if they delayed until dawn, the pirates who suffered heavy casualties would not have the strength to break out of the encirclement.

Realizing this, some pirates who knew that they had no hope of escaping finally raised the white flag.

The white flag was not white. The pirates did not even have white underpants.

They could only pick up their clothes and wave them vigorously. They shouted loudly, "Don't shoot! We Surrender!"

To the Pirates, surrendering was not a dishonorable thing. It was even a common occurrence.

Someone took the lead and shouted for surrender. The other pirates in the village also shouted.

“Stop fighting, we surrender!”

Knowing that they would lose the battle, no one planned to continue.

The captain of the death God looked at the time, and there was a regretful expression on his face. “It hasn’t even been an hour, and they surrendered so quickly.”

“Isn’t it good for the enemy to surrender earlier?”

“It is good, but there are still a few hours before daybreak. It is a little troublesome to accept the captives...”

The Death God captain pondered for a moment, then turned on the walkie-talkie and ordered, “The people in front shout to the enemy. Tell them to put down their weapons and gather around the bonfire in the middle of the village.”

The light in the middle of the village was brighter, making it easier for the machine gun positions to monitor and guard. The pirates who were under the muzzle of the heavy machine guns also didn’t dare to cause any trouble.

After dawdling for more than ten minutes, the pirates who were hiding behind various obstacles finally walked out carefully.

They threw away their weapons, raised their hands high, and began to gather in the middle of the village in fear.

The pirates on the beach also shouted loudly and began to walk into the village.

Everyone was a pirate. When it came to surrendering, they naturally could not fall behind others.

Surrendering was a chain reaction. When most people decided to surrender, a small number of people would be in an even more dangerous situation, and they would have no intention of resisting.

Therefore, the pirates on the battlefield began to take action one after another.

They began to scramble to surrender and head towards the bright area in the middle of the village.

Of course, there were a few lucky ones who wanted to take advantage of this chaotic scene to sneak into the sea, but these pirates were quickly killed by the death god mercenary group’s accurate shooters.

The Death God mercenary group had repeatedly warned that everyone had to gather in the village where the light was bright, or else they would be mercilessly shot.

Gradually, the bonfires in the village were filled with people.

There were still more than 200 pirates alive, twice as many as the death god mercenary group.

However, these people no longer had any fighting spirit, and became helpless captives.

Next, they could sleep and rest. They only needed to stay obediently until dawn.

Yu Tian did not know how many pirates had successfully escaped into the sea, but this did not affect the overall situation.

Victory came earlier than he had expected. Moreover, it was a great victory for all the enemies. This gave Yu Tian another new job cleaning up the battlefield.

The Death God mercenary group could also clean up the battlefield, but they didn't have enough manpower.

Moreover, the victory was too big, so they needed to pack up a lot of things.

Just the remaining ammunition and RPGs on the machine gun positions weren't something they could move away.

In addition, they also needed to assign people to monitor the captives, so there were even fewer people who could participate in cleaning up the battlefield.

"We've won a big victory. Send people to clean up the battlefield."

Yu Tian's first sentence made Harold so excited that he was no longer sleepy. He immediately replied, "Okay, boss... which army should we send over to help?"

Yu Tian pondered for a moment. "Let Allah and Muhammad's army send a part of their manpower. Two to three hundred people will be enough. Bring more trucks. We have more than two hundred captives here, and some weapons and ammunition..."

"Each army will transfer a part of their manpower?"

"Yes, let them all experience this victory."

The Death God mercenary group used a hundred people to defeat more than a thousand members of the pirate army and even annihilated them all. This was definitely a very inspiring and encouraging matter.

After arranging the follow-up reinforcements, Yu Tian immediately contacted Uncle Long.

He needed to keep track of the enemy's movements in the surrounding area, especially when the enemy was completely annihilated and it was possible that they had called for reinforcements.

He needed uncle long to arrange satellites to monitor the movements of the oasis army nearby.

But strangely, Uncle Long's phone could not be connected..

Yu Tian tried several of Uncle Long's backup contacts, but none of them could be connected normally.

This situation was very unusual.

If only one cell phone and satellite phone could not be connected, it could be understood that it was a signal problem.

All the backup contacts could not contact uncle long, which meant that something must have happened to uncle long.

Yu Tian suddenly had a headache.

Donglong company was a relatively secretive organization. Most of its branches were in an underground state. On the surface, the organization did not seem to be related to donglong company.

Yu Tian could be considered the owner of Donglong company, but he did not know much about Donglong company.

Especially after uncle long took over and organized it, the headquarters of Donglong company had changed places twice.

Yu Tian only knew that the headquarters of the DONGLONG company was near a small city in the wind country, but he did not know the exact location.

Not to mention the other branches of the DONGLONG company. He did not even know how many branches there were, let alone where they were.

There were also these members of the DONGLONG company. Yu Tian did not know who they were either.

Other than those people who had delivered goods to him, he had almost never heard of or seen anyone else.

He had no way of contacting Donglong Company to ask Uncle Long what had happened.

However..

Yu Tian scratched his head. He remembered that he had saved No. 55 's contact information. Although it was not deliberately saved, he had saved the number because he had contacted No. 55 many times before.

Therefore, he quickly took out his phone to search.

Number 55 had left a satellite phone number. Yu Tian tried to call it.

The result was very painful. Number 55 's phone could not be connected.

Yu Tian was now equivalent to losing contact with the entire Donglong Company.

Uncle Long had lost contact. Perhaps it was just uncle Long's personal accident. But he could not even contact number 55. Yu Tian began to wonder if something had happened to the entire Donglong Company.

It was currently the time of the Civil War in Damadan. The Abu Group needed a large amount of continuous logistical support and various supplies and support. These things were basically provided by the East Dragon Company in large quantities.

If the East Dragon Company had problems and could not continue to provide supplies and support, Yu Tian's war in Damadan might end in failure.

The various costs of the war were not a small amount. The Abu Group was a new force. They did not have any money on hand, and they did not have many big businessmen to cooperate with.

Their weapons and ammunition came from the support of the East Dragon Company. They even needed the help of the East Dragon Company to purchase food and medical supplies.

Without the East Dragon Company, they even needed to find suppliers for food and other things at the last minute. Then, they needed to negotiate business and prepare funds..

Thinking about these problems gave him a headache.

Without the help of Donglong Company's professional team, Yu Tian's headache wasn't just about money. He had to contact and arrange many things himself. It was very trivial.

He didn't think about these problems for the time being. Yu Tian had to deal with the battle in front of him first.

Although the pirate army was ambushed and defeated, they still had a chance to send out a distress signal.

They also had the chance to send out their hidden sentries.

The Death God mercenary group didn't have the time to deal with those sentries. Those sentries didn't dare to come to the main battlefield, but they could report the situation to the rear and higher-ups.

This 1,000-man Pirate Army was at most a vanguard force. They still had a large number of enemy forces behind them. There were also many pirate troops, Oasis troops, and even powerful armored troops in the surrounding area.

If these troops rushed over, Yu Tian would not have much time to clean up the battlefield. In fact, they did not even have the time to clean up the battlefield.

Only by knowing oneself and the enemy could one win every battle. Now that Yu Tian did not have satellite support, he could only rely on himself.

He immediately said to the death god regiment commander, "Send people to the surroundings to be on guard!"

The Death God regiment commander smiled lightly and said, "Boss, don't worry. I have already arranged for the guard. The enemy only has a dozen or so sentries wandering around the outer perimeter. At this time, they might have already fled and would not dare to come over to our side.

Yu Tian shook his head. "It's not these sentries that I want to be on guard against.

"You mean... the other enemy troops?"

"Yes, there are thousands of pirate alliance troops in the south. If they receive the signal for help and rush over to provide support, they can definitely rush over and surround us before dawn."

“This is too funny... We are just a small force of 100 people, but their army here has a total of 1,000 people. “Their strength is already so far apart, do they still need the main force behind them to come over and support them?”

“But their 1,000 people have already been completely annihilated. “Yu Tian sighed and said, “If the enemy received the distress signal and the information provided by the Sentry, they might think that we have secretly sent more troops, not just your small force of 100 people. ”

“So, they will think that we have pushed the main force up, so they will also send the main force over to fight with us?”

Yu Tian nodded. “That is possible.

The defensive measures of the Kamma were basically arranged around the city. If they waited for their work to be done in Kamma, they would definitely take advantage of it.

Rashly pulling the army to the seaside to engage in a decisive battle would be equivalent to giving up some of their terrain advantages.

This was equivalent to fighting the enemy in the wild, with both sides fighting head-on.

For kannima, who had the geographical advantage, it seemed to be a foolish move.

It was not that Kannima ‘s terrain had any defensive advantages. The main reason was that their logistical supplies were more convenient, and they had also built various fortifications.

If they were pulled out to fight in the field, these advantages would be lost.

The enemies in the South were mostly the Pirate Alliance Army, and Kannima’s army was basically pirates and new recruits. They were evenly matched, and no one was much better than the other.

If they really fought head-on, the outcome was still unknown unless they played some tricks and tricks.

The captain of the Grim Reaper took out his tablet, looked at the military map, and pondered for a moment. “Don’t we still have armored forces?”

Yu Tian said, “The enemy also has them, and they are stronger than our armored forces.

“But the enemy’s armored forces are in the west. They will arrive at this battlefield tomorrow night at the earliest... Where are our armored forces?”

“I don’t know either... I have to ask. ”

Yu Tian composed himself and said to the captain of death, “You should release the scouts first.. “

Translator: 549690339

The biggest problem of the death god mercenary group was that they didn ‘t have enough manpower.

There were only a hundred people in total. It was already good enough to win a battle. They could only guard the captives and supplies. They didn’t even have enough manpower to clean up the battlefield. Now, they had to send people to do scouting.

Scouting and alerting was a big deal. Moreover, the scope of the alerting had to be further away. Otherwise, even if they found something, they wouldn’t have enough time to react.

In order to arrange the reconnaissance mission as quickly as possible, the Grim Reaper regiment commander had to send out all the personnel guarding the vehicles in the mountainous area.

This was because the combatants on this side had to walk back from the mountainous area in order to return to the previous parking spot. Even if they were to run forward with light equipment, it would still take about half an hour.

Therefore, he could only order the convoy to quickly set out to scout while dispatching some of the people on the battlefield back to drive.

There were more than a hundred people, a total of more than twenty vehicles.

There were only about ten people left to guard the vehicles on the mountain side. They drove five military vehicles to carry out the reconnaissance mission, and left about twenty vehicles on the spot.

Death God’s captain had taken away more than twenty mercenaries on the battlefield to be drivers, so the battlefield suddenly became empty.

However, these drivers had to be removed. They had to drive the vehicles to this small fishing village as soon as possible to provide enough mobility for the entire mercenary group.

If they encountered a situation where the enemy quickly came to their aid, the death god mercenary group of more than a hundred people could only quickly retreat. At this time, they had to have vehicles.

As for the captives and spoils of war in the small fishing village, they could only abandon them when the time came.

This was because the vehicles in the small fishing village had basically been beaten into scrap metal and could not be used anymore.

The Death God mercenary group could not take anything else apart from the people they brought over.

Of course, Yu Tian would not leave the captives and spoils of war to the enemy. If he did not have time to clean up the battlefield, he would only leave a pile of corpses and explosive remnants.

The battlefield was not a place for mercy, and Yu Tian would not defend humanitarianism to the death.

There was no tradition of giving preferential treatment to captives. Whether the captives were executed or incorporated, it all depended on the actual situation.

Now that it was already a state of war, these captives would definitely return to the enemy's army and increase the enemy's military strength for nothing. Therefore, if they did not have the time to incorporate, they could only be executed.

At the moment, this group of pirates were still relatively honest and didn't show any unusual movements for the time being. They all obediently sat in the village and rested, waiting for the day to break.

Perhaps the pirates felt that what they were waiting for was to be escorted back and regrouped.

It was normal for them to change to another boss to work.

Yu Tian contacted Harold again and asked him to send more people.

At the same time, Yu Tian contacted Colonel Snoopy of the armored force. The armored force was hidden in the southwest direction of Kannima, between the enemies in the west and the south.

This location was basically a desert and Gobi terrain, and there were many hilly areas.

The enemy might know that the armored troops were hiding in this no man's land, but because this no man's land was too large, it was impossible to search without thinking.

Colonel Snoopy's armored troops were closer to Yu Tian than the enemy's armored troops, and they could reach the beach in a few hours.

The Death God regiment commander felt that with the armored troops, there was a chance to wipe out the enemy's troops in the south.

Yu Tian thought about it and ordered the armored troops to move closer to him, trying their best to get close to him before dawn.

Thus, in the dark of the early morning, the troops of Kannima started to move secretly.

The Death God mercenary group quickly drove the vehicles to the outside of the small fishing village. Yu Tian and the death god mercenary group leader felt more at ease.

With the vehicles in hand, they could advance and retreat freely.

In other words, if there were really large- scale enemies attacking them, they could immediately get on the vehicle and flee for their lives.

After the vehicle arrived, the death god mercenary group did not start to clean up the battlefield.

Because they were short of manpower, they were only monitoring the captives for the time being.

At this time, the mercenary group that went out to carry out the reconnaissance mission finally called back.

They had already rushed to a small village dozens of kilometers away and had already conducted a simple scouting.

That place was also a small fishing village by the sea. It had been occupied by the Pirate Army yesterday morning and had become a temporary base for them.

However, the pirate army in this base was not many, only about a hundred people.

This should be a small pirate force, similar to the Faraday Pirates. They did not even have proper military uniforms.

Their camp only had a few simple sentry posts, and everyone was sleeping soundly in the village. It seemed like they did not receive any requests for help, nor did they seem like they were about to send reinforcements.

Yu Tian was a little confused. Could it be that the group of pirates that had been wiped out did not send out any requests for help?

That was impossible. Their few sentries were still outside.

The Death God mercenary group did not have any extra manpower to deal with those sentries. Once the small fishing village had a firefight, those few sentries would definitely have enough time to investigate and report the situation to the headquarters.

Could it be that the relationship between the pirate armies was not that harmonious, so the pirates at the back simply ignored the request for help from the Pirates at the front?

However, this did not seem to be logical. If they really received the request for help, even if they did not have the ability to provide assistance, they would not be able to continue lying here and sleeping soundly.

These two small fishing villages were only a few tens of kilometers apart. were they not afraid that the death god mercenary group would suddenly run over and casually step on them to death?

Their Hearts were really big.

The situation here was similar to the previous small fishing village. There was also a small pirate team of about a hundred people. They were also sleeping soundly without any vigilance.

Yu Tian was even more puzzled.

At this time, the reconnaissance team had already run nearly 100 kilometers and was very close to the base camp of the Southern Pirate Alliance Army.

Yu Tian simply ordered the reconnaissance team to continue to scout to the south and take a look at the base camp of the Pirate Alliance Army.

The reconnaissance team was only a few tens of kilometers away from the enemy's base camp. They could reach it in half an hour.

Their advance speed was faster than the army's because they did not have to worry about the speed of the entire army, and there was no drag.

It was not an exaggeration to ask them to run more than 100 kilometers in two hours. They were just a little tired from the bumpy journey..

The enemy's base camp was also a small city called whale city.

Whale city was not big, and was similar to Kannima.

But because whale city was closer to the oasis and more convenient to travel, it was more prosperous than Kannima.

Whale city was the territory of the small warlord Morse, including some of the surrounding villages.

Morse was stronger than general Abu, and he was also the strongest of the small pirate warlords around.

Morse had a good relationship with the oasis. At least on the surface, he was very supportive and obedient to the orders of the oasis regime.

Therefore, in this war, Morse became the commander-in-chief of the Pirate

Alliance Army, somewhat like the Chief of the Alliance of the eighteen vassals.

Morse was in charge of commanding the attack on the south side. After that, he was also the one who represented the little pirates to fight for and distribute the profits.

Morse himself had nearly 10,000 troops, which was much stronger than the previous general Abu.

However, these small warlords had a problem with their troops, which was that they were too weak.

In their eyes, as long as they had the AKKA rifles, they could be considered a soldier.

If they were matched with a set of cheap military uniforms, they would be considered a regular army.

However, in reality, they did not have many elite troops.

For example, general Abu, although he also had two to three thousand troops, only a few hundred elite troops were truly capable of fighting.

Of course, the few thousand men in Abu's hands had all become veterans.

After Abu obtained Yu Tian's investment, especially after they occupied the maniza land, the morale of these veterans had soared, and their fighting spirit had also changed greatly.

Morse was different. The number of people under him that could be considered elite troops was only about a thousand.

The rest of them could barely be considered veterans. They had been with Morse for some time, but their combat strength was not worth mentioning.

The main factor that determined the combat strength of an army was their fighting spirit. In a place like Damadi, the soldiers mainly considered their income, future prospects, and benefits.

Morse was, after all, a small warlord. Although he was not weak, he was still a level lower than the Big Hippo.

The big hippopotamus had so many scattered troops, and Morse's troops were even more garbage.

He could not give too many benefits to the lower-level soldiers, and he even gave them mediocre weapons and equipment.

If it were not for the oasis army watching from the side, Yu Tian would only need an armored charge to destroy this pirate alliance army.

There were currently more than 15,000 pirates in whale city, but it was unlikely that all of them would participate in the battle.

This was because Morse would definitely leave some men to guard his base camp, in case too many people were lost in the war and other small pirates joined forces to take over his territory.

Another reason was that the pirate army didn't have enough vehicles.

War required a lot of materials and ammunition, and they needed to carry all kinds of heavy equipment, even things like cannons.

Most of the small pirates did not have many vehicles, such as the Faraday.

If they had money, they would mainly consider buying some pirate ships, which were their means of livelihood.

Vehicles did not mean much to them. Even if they bought a few military vehicles, they would not be able to change their weak state.

That was why Morse's transportation pressure was very high.

His vehicles were mainly used to transport supplies, and secondly, he considered the transport personnel.

Just like the pirate army that was wiped out by the death mercenary group tonight, their fleet size wasn't enough for an army of 1,000 people.

Therefore, their general way of marching was to transport supplies by vehicles, and some soldiers walked.

When they reached the base, they would put down the supplies, and only then would the soldiers who went out to act have enough vehicles to use.

According to their model, if whale city wanted to quickly send reinforcements, it was already considered pretty good to be able to pull out an army of five thousand people at one time.

After the reconnaissance team arrived near whale city, they finally discovered some movements of the enemy.

The enemy's military camp was also outside whale city. The camp was filled with people and bright lights. It seemed that they were busy preparing for the expedition.

Yu Tian could not help but heave a sigh of relief. He thought that these pirates finally had some normal reactions, but this reaction did not seem to follow normal logic.

It was said that rescue was like putting out a fire. If the enemy wanted to send reinforcements, they should immediately send out troops when they received a distress signal, simplifying all the preparations to the extreme.

However, it had already been more than two hours since the end of the battle on Yu Tian's side, and the enemies of whale city were still taking their time to make preparations before setting off. What did this mean?

By the time they reached the small fishing village, it was probably already dawn.

“Actually, I think that their main purpose is not to rescue, but to take advantage of this opportunity to fight against our main force.”

At this time, Yu Tian and the death God’s regiment commander already had enough time to discuss the situation on the battlefield.

This was because the Kanimar army that was responsible for cleaning up the battlefield had already rushed to the small fishing village.

The person in charge of this logistics job was allab. He was arrogantly commanding his subordinates to stuff the captives into the transport vehicles.

These captives could be sent back to do hard labor and help them build fortifications.

More sweat before the war, less blood during the war. The more fortifications were built, the safer it would be when the war started.

The death god mercenaries had already retreated from their positions and returned to the small village that they were stationed in previously.

As the reinforcements from whale city had not set off yet, Yu Tian and the death god mercenary group leader did not need to be too anxious to discuss the battle situation.

The death god captain said slowly, “As you said before, the enemy might suspect that we have sent our main force to participate in this battle. “After all, since they dare to take the initiative to attack the enemy and even surround and annihilate them, they should not have fewer troops than the enemy “Therefore, the enemy will feel that this is a good opportunity, a good opportunity to fight with us in the wild “Therefore, the purpose of the enemy’s troops is not to rescue the crippled little pirates, but to fight with us.

“However, because they are worried that we will set up an ambush, their plan is to rush to the battlefield when the sky is just bright.”

Yu Tian sighed, “So, we still have time to sleep well?”

The commander of the death God squad laughed and said, “That’s right. It’s a good opportunity for us to recuperate. ”

Yu Tian asked curiously, “Aren’t they afraid that we’ll pack up and Go Home?”

The commander of the death god squad said, "It's not that fast. It takes time to clean up the battlefield. Moreover, many things are only convenient to do when the sun rises.. "

Translator: 549690339

"Then, the main battlefield will still be in this small fishing village?"

Death God shook his head, "No, this small fishing village is not suitable. The reinforcements from whale city would not go into this dead end. They would only place their troops at the outer exit. This way, it would not be convenient for us to annihilate them all. "

Yu Tian said, "Actually, this isn't a problem. As long as their troops show up here, I can have the armored forces launch another surprise attack, just like the last time outside of kanmud city..."

"It's different, it's different. "The Grim Reaper regiment commander quickly said, "This time, it's broad daylight. Your armored forces will be discovered by them when they are still tens of miles away. Then, they will immediately get into their vehicles and flee for their lives. Your tanks and armored vehicles won't be able to catch up to them at all.

"So, do you have any good plans?"

"I don't think so. I think we can lure them here and delay them. Then, we can let the armored troops appear behind them and cut off their escape route..."

The Grim Reaper pointed at the electronic map. The battlefield he chose was the small fishing village where they were stationed previously.

In fact, this nameless village was not a dangerous place. It was just that the terrain nearby was slightly more complicated, especially the mountainous areas that were littered with rocks.

There were still some plants in the mountainous areas near the small fishing village. The mountainous areas near the Gobi desert were almost completely littered with rocks.

Such terrain was not very convenient for large-scale military operations, but it was just right for small-scale military activities like the death god mercenary group.

They could set up a defensive position on the hilltops near the small fishing village, or they could run into the mountains and fight with the enemy.

Those mountain roads were not easy to walk on, so there was no need to think about large-scale charging. Once they were disturbed by the enemy, their attack speed would be greatly reduced.

The death god commander said, "We will first clean up the battlefield here, and then have Alabu's troops retreat quickly at dawn. "The enemy will definitely just bite behind them and chase us all the way to our nameless village

"Then, we'll fight and retreat at the nameless village, draining their strength while bringing them into the mountains

"Finally, the armored troops suddenly appeared behind them, and it's too late for them to retreat from the mountains

"At this time, they won't be pestering us to fight, but we'll be pestering them to fight

"Even if they sacrifice a portion of their soldiers to cover the rear, they won't have enough time to escape from the encirclement of the armored forces... perhaps some of them will escape, but this army will definitely be crippled. "

"What do you think of this plan?"

"I think it will work.

Yu Tian happily made the decision. "Then let's do it. "

After dealing with the main force of the pirate army in the south, the remaining miscellaneous troops wouldn't pose much of a threat. Yu Tian could then focus more of his troops and energy on the mine in the west.

The armored forces of the oasis army might be stronger, but they could only bring out a limited number of infantry. Without the cooperation of these allied pirate forces, their threat would be much smaller.

In the mine with complicated terrain, or in kannima, which was full of fortifications, it would be very disadvantageous to only rely on the armored forces to attack.

Kanima was not weak to begin with, and Yu Tian still had some trump cards in his hands. Defending Kanima was not a big problem.

Now that they had ruthlessly annihilated an enemy infantryman, the pressure on the defense would be even less.

Yu Tian pondered in his heart. Perhaps when the battle situation stabilized, Oasis would be helpless against Abu Group and could only carry out peace talks, tacitly agreeing to the current situation.

Then he could find time to deal with the East Dragon Company's matters.

Not long after, Yu Tian and the death god mercenary group returned to the nameless village.

At this time, the reinforcements from Kanima had also arrived at the nameless village. The leader of this army was Mohammed.

Yu Tian did not mobilize Harold's direct troops. Mohammed's scattered sand mercenary group was suitable for this kind of dilly-dallying war of attrition. He would not feel distressed even if there was a slight loss.

The nameless village had already been laid with a batch of landmines by the death god mercenary group. Therefore, the vicinity of the village was still guarded by the death god mercenary group.

Because they already had the idea of retreating after the exchange of fire, this kind of defense would not be too tight. The main purpose was to lay the landmines on the route of their retreat, creating a little obstacle for the enemy's pursuit.

This kind of obstacle couldn't be too many, lest it scared the enemy out of their wits.

Of course, the enemy's reinforcement this time should be more. The few mines brought by the death god mercenary group weren't enough to completely stop the enemy's pursuit.

Moreover, the death god mercenary group only had about a hundred people, and the defensive area they set up was a little too small. It was impossible to count on how much time they could delay the enemy.

If they insisted on stalling for time, they might be surrounded by the enemy, and they would not even be able to retreat.

Therefore, in order to ensure the safety of the death god mercenary group's retreat, Muhammad had to set up a heavy defensive position at the back.

The mountainous area behind them was more complicated, and there were a few simple roads running through the mountainous area.

The simple roads were naturally not cement and asphalt. It was the kind of road that naturally became a mountain road when there were too many people walking on it.

This kind of road could also be used by vehicles. The plan of the death God mercenary group was to take a vehicle and retreat from the mountain road.

The defensive and blocking positions that Muhammad had set up were mainly set up along this mountain road.

The positions were intersected and covered, making it convenient for the soldiers in these positions to retreat in turn.

After going deep into the mountain for a distance, they would arrive at the official position that Muhammad had set up. They would satisfy the wishes of the enemy here and start exchanging fire with the enemy with great fanfare.

Once the two sides started exchanging fire on a large scale, it would not be easy to withdraw.

Of course, this was an ideal situation.

If the enemy chased into the depths of the mountains, it would basically be a dead end.

It was nothing more than pressing the army up and entangling them.

The casualties might be greater if they did so, and the outcome of the battle after the armored troops blocked their way would be smaller. However, Yu Tian felt that it did not matter.

After returning to the nameless village, he communicated with Muhammad about the battle plan. The rest of the specific arrangements would be up to Muhammad.

It was not yet time for the death god mercenary group to rest. They had to be busy laying the mines first.

Due to the change in their strategic plan, the position of the mines laid previously had to be adjusted properly. They couldn't seal it too tightly.

Then, the preset position had to be changed to a position that was more convenient for retreating into the mountains.

Finally, the position had to be slightly camouflaged, with some worthless weapons and ammunition..

There weren't many things left on the battlefield because the death god mercenary group didn't plan to resist for too long.

However, in order to make the necessary camouflage, they still had to leave behind some cheap weapons, ammunition, and supplies.

These messy supplies would give the enemy an illusion and make them more certain that the death god mercenary group was fleeing in a panic, which was why they abandoned a large number of weapons and ammunition.

If the position was cleaned up, the enemy might realize that this was a premeditated trap.

Of course, the materials used to create disguises were not very good.

For example, the bullets of the Akka rifle and the bullets of the same rifle might look similar on the surface, but in fact, there was a big difference.

This was the same as other ordinary goods. There were different manufacturers and different quality differences.

Although technology had developed to such an extent, there were still many small countries that did not have the ability to produce bullets.

Or it could be that the production technology was quite backward and the quality of the products was quite poor, even inferior to the arsenal of some countries in the last century.

In addition, there were a large number of outdated products on the arms market, as well as second-hand products.

Outdated products were easy to understand. Every country had a large number of weapons and ammunition reserves.

These reserves were often not used at all, but they had to be produced in sufficient quantities and stored in large quantities in warehouses.

The amount of reserves was of course not used up. No matter how much target training was done, it would not be used up.

In the end, these unused ammunition stocks finally passed their expiration date. It was time for them to be scrapped.

The big countries would definitely not keep these expired products for use, because this ammunition was likely to fail.

However, the probability of them failing was very small. If hundreds or thousands of bullets were fired, there would always be a chance for them to fail.

If such a situation occurred once on the battlefield, it was very likely that a soldier's life would be lost.

This was a low-level mistake that could not be tolerated for a military power.

Therefore, these expired ammunition had to be destroyed.

However, there were also those that were not destroyed. For example, the ERMAO and San Mao, who had inherited a large amount of military supplies from the federation, had long relied on selling ammunition to survive.

Those brand new and unopened ammunition and weapons were piled up in large quantities in the warehouse, and they were sold like cabbages.

As for whether they had expired or not, this was not something they cared about at all.

If the buyer felt that this item had expired and was not a qualified product, they also had a very good solution a discount would be enough.

There was no business in this world that could not be done. The reason why the business could not be negotiated was only a matter of price.

Therefore, these expired bullets appeared in large quantities in the arms market. Because they were cheap, they were unanimously praised by those small and poor countries.

On the battlefield in Damata, there was no need to be too surprised if the soldiers suddenly jammed after firing a few shots.

Even they themselves would not complain too much.

It was already considered pretty good that they could use expired products. Many of the pirates in Damata even used second-hand products.

Second-hand products were those reloaded bullets that were picked up from the battlefield. With the addition of the bullet and gunpowder primer, this was another bullet that could be used again.

As for the quality and reliability, they didn't care about that as long as it was cheap.

Therefore, these second -hand bullets, expired bullets, and low-quality bullets produced by some small country's arsenal were all flooding the battlefield.

Of course, the death god mercenary group would not use such fake and shoddy products. No matter how poor they were, no matter how frugal they were, they could not joke about their own lives.

Mercenaries were a business. In doing business, one had to consider the cost.

The cost that should be spent must be spent. Otherwise, the business would not be able to do well.

In fact, mercenaries did not understand the reason for this cost in any industry. They were also the industry that was most willing to spend money on their own equipment.

Every piece of their equipment was related to their own life and safety. This was the most worthwhile investment.

Just like those night vision goggles, without these things, it was impossible for them to achieve such a great result in the previous battle.

The equipment and the loot, including a large portion of their contributions, could be converted into bonuses in Yu Tian's hands.

With so many war bonuses and gains, the Grim Reaper regiment commander couldn't care less about the inferior weapons and ammunition.

Previously, he wasn't even interested in cleaning up the battlefield in the small fishing village. Now, he had thrown all kinds of weapons and ammunition all over the battlefield.

After throwing away the weapons and ammunition, the Grim Reaper regiment commander began to throw away the car.

Yu Tian could only helplessly dissuade him. Throwing away the weapons and ammunition was reasonable, but there was no need to throw away the car.

When it was time to run for their lives, who would not drive their cars.

There was no need to leave cars for the enemy, especially when the enemy was already short of cars.

The more cars there were, the easier it would be for the enemy to run for their lives. Leaving cars for them was equivalent to funding the enemy.

Hence, the death god mercenary group was busy for a while. They first evacuated the trucks that were transporting supplies, then left behind sufficient military vehicles and a few trucks that were purely used to transport soldiers.

After working for one or two hours, the death god mercenary group had already done most of the preparations.

What was left was the position that Mohammed had set up.

Their arrangement was actually simpler, mainly because the pirates were lazier.

Not to mention the blocking positions at the front, they felt that since it was a position that they had to flee for their lives, there was no need to do too much repair and tidying up.

The most important thing was to choose a suitable position for fleeing.

The position had to be difficult to climb up from the front, and then there had to be a road at the back that could be quickly evacuated.

Then, the hill behind had to be easily covered with bullets, preventing the enemy from using the hill to chase and kill the retreating soldiers.

In short, this was something that needed to be seriously considered and dealt with. It was something that needed to be done with one's mind.

The scattered sand army's pirates were mainly focused on thinking about how to choose a suitable position for escaping. They didn't care about the defensive ability of the position at all.

Only in the rear position, which was personally supervised by Mohammed, did the scattered sand army's pirates carefully build some fortifications.

This was the main position, an important battlefield to entangle the enemy.

In order to entangle the enemy, it was best to let the positions of both sides and the army cross each other.

It became the kind of chaotic state where you had me and I had you.

No matter who wanted to run, they would be bitten by the other side..

Apart from a few high points that had to be defended, there were some positions that could be given up to the enemy.

This was also called luring the enemy deep in, followed by some roundabout and counter-attacking actions to ensure that both sides could stick together like a piece of SH * t plaster. No one could spread their legs and run away.

The Reaper mercenary group's reconnaissance team couldn't monitor the enemy in real time. After all, they weren't satellites. Moreover, in this dark night, it was difficult for satellites to obtain detailed information.

The enemy seemed to be heading towards the small fishing village, and their target was the death god mercenary group.

The Death God mercenary group had already left the small fishing village. The only people left in the small fishing village were the small army of Alab. They were still unhurriedly collecting the materials that they had missed on the battlefield.

Yu Tian would not let them run too fast, because if they ran away, the enemy would easily lose their target.

The enemy still had some fish that escaped near the small fishing village. They would definitely be able to provide some information to the whale city army on the battlefield.

However, these fish that escaped did not have any vehicles. If allab dragged the army away, the enemy would also lose their target's whereabouts.

Giving the enemy convenience was giving them convenience.

Yu Tian did not urge Allab to speed up his actions. He just let them slowly wait on the battlefield.

As time passed by, the sky gradually began to show a glimmer of light.

The Death God mercenary group's reconnaissance team was getting closer and closer to the small fishing village. They judged that the enemy was very close to the small fishing village. If Allab's army did not retreat., it was very likely that they would be blocked by whale city's army in that dead end.

"Allab! The scouts have discovered a large number of enemy troops and are advancing towards your location. Stop what you are doing immediately and lead the troops to retreat immediately. Return to the nameless village on our side and we will be here to pick you up!"

"Yes, Boss!"

Allab knew nothing about Yu Tian's plan. He did not know about the trap that Yu Tian had set up, nor did he know that he had become a bait.

On the contrary, he was glad that his boss had set up a warning force around him, so that he could detect the enemy's movements in time and remind him to retreat quickly.

So allab immediately picked up the walkie-talkie and shouted loudly, "Brothers! Don't pack your things if you haven't cleaned them up. We have to retreat quickly! The enemy's main force is here. We have to return quickly!"

The troops in the small fishing village immediately became nervous, and the low-ranking officers immediately followed and shouted, asking their soldiers to come back and gather.

According to Alabu's instructions, they hurriedly left the places that they hadn't cleaned up in time, grabbed the personal items that they had looted, and ran in the direction of the convoy in a panic.

Allab continued to shout, "All teams, call out names immediately. Everyone, get into the vehicles immediately. We are ready to set off!"

It did not take too much time for them to just run for their lives. The pirates under allab were good at running for their lives. They could even carry the wind when they ran.

Because the battlefield was not large, there would not be any soldiers who ran to places where they could not find people.

Arab did not have the patience to wait any longer and immediately ordered the vehicles in front to set off.

This was how pirates worked. They had to run fast and listen to orders.

It was the same when they robbed and when they ran for their lives.

If anyone did not follow the team and did not get any benefits or lost their lives, they could not blame anyone else.

The evacuation of a large group of troops was much more troublesome than the evacuation of a small group of cars alone.

This situation was like a traffic jam on the highway. A car in front had an accident and stopped in the middle of the road. Hundreds and thousands of Tai cars were immediately blocked behind.

Once this kind of traffic jam was formed, it would take a lot of time to clear it out.

From the first car to the last car that could move, there could even be a few hours between them.

Although the army in Arab was not as crazy as the traffic jam, they still had forty or fifty trucks.

Half of them were for transporting soldiers, and the other half were for transporting supplies.

The vehicles used to transport supplies could take the lead, but the vehicles used to transport soldiers had to wait until everyone had arrived before they could start.

Although the roads near the small fishing village were not smooth, they were still quite spacious.

The vehicles that could go first could leave the group and pass by the side of the convoy, directly following the lead vehicle in front.

The vehicles behind were a little anxious. After the roll call, they also quickly left the convoy and quickly joined the departing convoy.

It was unknown whether or not the army of Arab was particularly talented in escaping for their lives. These soldiers basically did not need any command. Those who could leave first would try their best to leave first. They did not care about the order of the convoy, they just followed the convoy.

Very soon, the vehicles set off one after another.

Arab's military vehicle was the first to leave the dead end of the small fishing village. He drove the vehicle to the Gobi Desert.

Then, he finally acted like a commander. He parked the vehicle by the roadside and began to watch his army retreat.

The trucks walked out of the dead end one after another and started to move towards the nameless village.

Arab saw that his army had successfully left, and he was finally relieved.

Looking at the end of the wilderness, it seemed that he had not seen the shadow of the enemy, which immediately made him feel more relaxed. "General! There seems to be someone on the hill over there! "

The guard next to him quickly reminded Allab and pulled him to his seat.

As the sky was getting brighter, the soldiers' field of vision was much wider.

Allab's Guard inadvertently saw the enemy on the opposite hill. They were the few enemy sentries who had slipped through the net.

Arab was a little panicked, but he quickly regained his composure.

He felt that the enemy could not have caught up so quickly. After all, it had only been less than half an hour since Yu Tian had informed him to retreat.

Even if the enemy had caught up, it should have been a few fast attack vehicles instead of a few people who had climbed to the top of the opposite hill for no reason.

Hence, Arab immediately realized the identity of the enemy.

First of all, they were definitely not on the same side.

They should know each other's whereabouts. Even if they did not know, they would not sneak around the Allied troops.

Therefore, this was the enemy who had luckily escaped on the battlefield..

After figuring out these people's identities, Arab immediately became very courageous.

They were just a few defeated soldiers who were lucky enough to escape from the battlefield. How dare they look down on our army's might?

"Beat them up! "

Allab immediately let out a battle roar and gave the order to attack the guards around him.

There were not many guards around him. He had two in his own car and four in a military vehicle. There were only six people in total.

The soldiers who were chosen to be his personal guards were naturally the most loyal soldiers to Arab. They were also veterans who had followed him for many years.

This was because he knew very well that he was weak. If his soldiers were not satisfied with his salary, no one would be willing to follow him.

Therefore, after every robbery and kidnapping, he would give more money to his subordinates than other pirate leaders.

After getting enough money, his soldiers would naturally be willing to work for him. Therefore, his several hundred men had never been separated by the Big Hippo.

The few guards around him were especially loyal to him. They were afraid that if their boss died, they would not be able to find such a generous boss in the future.

Not only were the guards loyal, they were also very experienced on the battlefield. They were all veterans who had survived hundreds of battles.

As soon as Alabu gave the order, the guards on the two military vehicles immediately reacted.

The military vehicles were equipped with machine guns. The two machine gun shooters did not hesitate to turn their muzzles around and quickly aimed at the hill on the other side. Then, they fired fiercely.

The two machine guns fired at the hill on the other side. The sound was terrifying, but it did not seem to hit any living thing.

Using machine guns to fire fiercely. This kind of fighting style was in line with the Pirates' shooting habits. Unfortunately, the accuracy of the machine guns was ultimately not as good as the rifles.

After the guards opened fire with their machine guns, the soldiers sitting behind the truck did not want to be outdone. They picked up Aya and fired a few shots in the direction of the hill.

There was no one on the hill. The enemy sentries were scared out of their wits. They rolled down the hill in a hurry and ran away.

The soldiers on the truck laughed complacently. It seemed that it was better to kill the enemy than to kill the enemy.

However, allab was not very happy. He immediately urged his soldiers to speed up their retreat.

The enemy's main force was chasing after them. It was too early to be happy.

These few defeated enemy soldiers appeared on the hill. It was obvious that they were providing information to their army.

Therefore, the enemy's army must have known that they were retreating. For example, they would speed up and chase after them.

Allab's convoy was mainly made up of trucks. Of course, their speed could not compare to a small military vehicle specially when the entire convoy moved together, it was even more impossible for them to increase their speed.

Fortunately, the terrain ahead was very open. The convoy could increase their speed recklessly and did not have to pay too much attention to the problem of the route.

However, this kind of road was still a little bumpy. After the speed of the convoy increased, the soldiers in the convoy were immediately turned into dogs, and curses were heard everywhere.

Allab followed behind the convoy with his guards. As he urged the convoy to speed up, he would occasionally turn his head to observe the situation behind him.

After running for a few kilometers, Alabu finally discovered the enemy convoy that was chasing them from afar.

The expected enemy had finally appeared. Alabu was both nervous and relieved.

At this time, the sky was already bright. Both sides could clearly see the enemy's formation.

The enemy that was chasing them was a vanguard unit. There were not many of them. There were only dozens of military vehicles and hundreds of soldiers.

However, these military vehicles were all light assault vehicles, and their speed was much faster than Alabu's fleet.

In addition, these military vehicles were equipped with machine guns.

Alabu only had two military vehicles on his side, so of course, they were not the enemy's match.

However, there were still several hundred infantrymen on the trucks at the back of the convoy.

Although the infantry's ACAR rifles were no match for the machine guns, they were not completely without the strength to resist.

The soldiers immediately became flustered. While cursing, they also hurriedly got ready to shoot.

The enemy's convoy began to spread out. Relying on their speed advantage, they began to flank the convoy from the side.

Very quickly, the enemy's formation turned into the shape of a sickle.

If it wasn't for the fact that the terrain on the other side was unable to pass through the vehicles, the enemy might have turned into a pair of scissors and surrounded the entire convoy in the middle.

"F * ck! Get Ready to fire!

Alabu's military vehicle had already reached the outer side of the convoy and could be considered to have protected a part of the flanks of the convoy.

Although Alabu really wanted to ditch the convoy and escape for his life, with the speed of his two military vehicles, it was basically impossible for the enemy to catch up to him.

However, there were only a dozen kilometers left from the nameless village where Yu Tian and the others were stationed. Alabu was really unwilling to give up his army just like that.

The hundreds of people under him had not come by easily. If they were to die in front of their home, it would be too unfair.

He had to give it his all no matter what.

The enemies on the flanks quickly approached him.

Although they were still some distance away from the best shooting range, Arab did not hesitate to give the order to shoot.

He did not care if he could cause damage to the enemy. The main purpose of machine gun shooting was to scare the enemy. As long as the enemy did not dare to get too close, the soldiers in his convoy would be safer.

The effective range of a heavy machine gun was about a kilometer, but in reality, a bullet could definitely fly a few kilometers away. However, at that time, the bullet basically lost its accuracy, and its power was greatly reduced.

Therefore, if one did not pursue accuracy, they could basically shoot as long as they saw the enemy's shadow.

Arab's shooting seemed to have an effect. The enemy's military vehicle subconsciously made some evasive actions.

However, evading or not evading did not make much sense. The distance between the two sides was still outside the effective range of the machine gun. In addition, both sides were moving at high speed. Under such circumstances, shooting was purely a matter of luck.

Alabu's luck was not bad. There was actually an enemy who was hit by a stray bullet and fell off the vehicle from the position of the machine gun shooter..

Alabu had a machine gun, so did the enemy.

Alabu could shoot randomly, but the enemy could also waste their ammunition.

So the enemy immediately began to fight back against Alabu.

The enemy's firepower was denser, so the chance of trying his luck was naturally higher.

In the blink of an eye, the guard on Alabu's car was shot several times.

The guard's head had been blown off, his arm had been broken, and his body had been knocked out of the car by the powerful force of the bullet.

There were deaths in war, and it was not as if Abu had never experienced these things.

However, seeing the guard beside him being beaten up like this, Abu was still covered in cold sweat.

He immediately realized that the shooting range was still very dangerous, so he immediately shouted to the driver, Speed Up! Speed Up!

The driver was also covered in cold sweat, and he immediately stepped on the accelerator to the bottom.

The military vehicle jolted violently, as if it was going to fall apart.

Allab hardened his heart and prepared to personally take over the position of the machine gun shooter.

Because he and the driver were the only ones left in his car, if they did not continue to maintain the state of machine gun shooting, their car would only be more dangerous.

But as soon as he got up, he was almost thrown out by a violent bump. He panicked and quickly hugged his seat.

There were four guards in the car behind him. Fortunately, none of them were injured. At this time, they were busy pouring bullets at the enemy.

It seemed that the four guards had attracted some fire. Arab felt that there were fewer bullets flying around him.

So he gritted his teeth, climbed up again, and entered the shooter's position.

This type of military vehicle could only carry three passengers. Except for the front and front passenger seats, the back seat could only carry one machine gunner.

Of course, there were also those large ones that could carry several people like a pickup truck.

Generally speaking, the machine gun's position had a fixed safety device. This thing was like a guardrail, which could ensure that the shooter's body would be fixed while the vehicle was moving, so that he would not be thrown out. Some of them also had some bullet-proof measures, some steel plates, and so on.

However, the military vehicles on the side of the F * Ck had basically dismantled these things. They felt that a good shooter did not need to rely on the guardrail to stabilize his body.

There was also that bullet-proof steel plate. The protective surface of this thing was not big. If one was unlucky, one would still be shot in the head, so it did not have much meaning.

After removing these things, more people could sit in the back seat of the military vehicle and put more ammunition and supplies. This was what the F * cking Madi people needed.

It was the same situation with Abu's military vehicle. The narrow shooting position did not have any protective measures.

After Abu personally went to the shooting position, he suddenly felt bad.

Without the device to stabilize his body, it was like he was tricking a shooter. It was like a worker working at a high altitude without safety measures, making it impossible for people to work in peace.

After Alabu fired a few shots bitterly, he found that he could not control the accuracy of the muzzle.

Especially when he could not even stand steadily, it was even more difficult to stabilize the machine gun.

No wonder the accuracy was still so low despite so many machine guns firing at each other.

Everyone was running wildly and the road was bumpy, so there was no need to talk about aiming.

It was already good enough to try his luck if he could point the muzzle in the right direction.

Fortunately, there was a horizontal railing behind the driver's seat, which could let the standing Arab lean slightly, reducing the risk of him falling off the military vehicle.

After firing a few shots, he suddenly gained a lot of courage.

He felt that his luck had always been good after all these years on the battlefield.

Since everyone was shooting by luck now, let's see who had the better luck.

He had to ensure that his attacks were sustained at a high frequency, so that he would be easier to encounter.

It was just like buying lottery tickets. In theory, the more he bought, the greater the chance of winning the lottery.

Once he stopped firing, the enemy would fire more frequently. It was equivalent to giving the enemy the chance to try his luck.

If he kept taking hits, no matter how lucky he was, he would still have the chance to be hit.

So, Alabu persevered stubbornly. No matter how bumpy the car was, he also tried his best to continue shooting at the Archer's post.

This instantly boosted the morale of the guards behind. Even their boss had personally gone up, how could they dare to slack off.

Therefore, they continued to fiercely shoot at the enemy amidst the bumpy ride.

The two military vehicles sped along. The machine guns on the vehicles almost never stopped. Their firepower and momentum were not any weaker than the enemy's military vehicles on the opposite side.

On the battlefield, morale and momentum were still very important. Soldiers who fought with their lives were more effective than those who took advantage of the situation.

The enemy on the other side was obviously not as desperate as Alabu. After all, they were the one chasing after them, not the one being chased. There was no sense of deadly crisis, and there was no reason for them to risk their lives.

Their shooting frequency was not as high as Alabu's, and because there were more vehicles, the probability of being hit by stray bullets was higher.

Soon, another unlucky shooter was hit by stray bullets and flew out of the car.

Alabu immediately laughed out loud in satisfaction. He realized that this enemy seemed to be hit by himself.

There were only a few kilometers left from the nameless village. Alabu could already see the mountain in the distance. He knew that there was a position set up by the death God mercenary group there.

Alabu was suddenly a little excited. He felt that his convoy should be safe soon.

Unfortunately, the enemy's military vehicle had already caught up to the rear of the convoy. Then, they began to fire machine guns at the soldiers on the truck.

This range was the range of machine guns, and the AKKA rifles were far from it.

Although the soldiers on the truck were also using the AKKA rifles to fight back, it was of little significance.

The effective range of the AKKA rifles was only 300 meters. Although in theory, they could shoot up to more than a kilometer, the accuracy and power of that distance were basically not considered.

Of course, the soldiers on the trucks still did not give up shooting. This was also a matter of luck.

The enemy's military vehicles were moving at a fast speed. At this time, as long as there was a bullet that could float onto their vehicles, it would be able to cause a great deal of damage.

Not to mention bullets, even a rock could cause an accident.

However, this matter was still a bit too much of a gamble. After all, the bullets of the Akkadian rifle would disappear after exceeding the shooting range. It was very difficult to have the chance to encounter the enemy.

On the contrary, the killing effect of the enemy's machine gun on them was not ordinary.

The soldiers on the rear vehicle did not last long and were shot down by half..

Translator: 549690339

The soldiers on the rear vehicles were the most miserable, but so were the other vehicles at the rear of the convoy.

At this time, Alabu was already too far ahead, so the flanks at the rear of the convoy were also completely unprotected.

The enemy military vehicles approached from the side and began to fire machine guns at the trucks at the rear of the convoy.

If it weren't for the fact that both sides were moving at high speed, the trucks at the rear of the group would have been destroyed by the heavy machine guns.

However, the current situation wasn't particularly bad. At least these trucks were still moving at high speed. It was just that the soldiers in the back of the trucks had suffered some losses.

Being chased by a pile of machine guns, the soldiers quickly learned their lesson.

Seeing their comrades fall one by one beside them and being shattered by machine gun bullets, the soldiers could not help but start to panic.

It was not that they had not seen death on the battlefield, but this kind of situation where they could only get beaten up and could not fight back made them feel a little desperate.

In just a few minutes, dozens of soldiers on the trucks behind had been shot to death.

The remaining soldiers could only give up fighting back and quickly lay down in the carriage to avoid the enemy machine gun fire.

This way, there were fewer casualties, but the pressure on the driver was even greater.

The enemy felt that the shooting accuracy of the carriage was a little worse, so they focused their fire on the driver's seat.

Although the hit rate of this kind of car chase was not high, there were still bullets hitting the driver's seat.

The driver could only step on the accelerator, hoping to escape to a safe place as soon as possible.

Unfortunately, one truck suddenly shook twice, and the engine stopped.

Most of the equipment of the Abu Group was obtained from Donglong Company's channels, and the quality was basically guaranteed.

But at the same time, they also had a lot of things that they had captured from the battlefield.

It was impossible to abandon these captured vehicles. They could only let the mechanics carry out some repairs and maintenance to ensure that there wouldn't be any failures.

But failures were inevitable. When it came to bad luck, there was no way to avoid it.

In addition, these trucks were clearly using too much force, so the chances of failure were also greater.

The stalled vehicle continued to move forward for more than 100 meters due to inertia. The driver restarted the vehicle with sweat all over his forehead, but it was completely ineffective.

The vehicle slowly stopped at the roadside.

The driver jumped out of the vehicle without hesitation and shouted to the soldiers in the back of the vehicle, "Hurry up and jump out of the vehicle. Are you still lying in the car waiting to die?"

At this time, it was impossible to repair the car. The driver did not even have time to check if the car was malfunctioning.

He turned around and ran to the side of the road. His co-pilot also quickly jumped out of the car and followed behind him.

The soldiers did not hesitate. At this time, they did not even have time to curse. They could only jump out of the car and follow him to the side of the road.

There was a small hill on the side of the road. After climbing over the hill, they could directly run to the seaside.

The road there was not easy to walk on, but the terrain was more complicated. They could also avoid the enemy's shooting.

From the seaside, they could also go around to the nameless village where Yu Tian was. Although the road was a little difficult, this place was not far from the nameless village.

This was the time to show their true skills.

As long as they successfully climbed over the hill before the enemy's military vehicle caught up to them, they would basically be able to escape.

The vehicle was full of soldiers from allab. They were very skilled at escaping. Other than the Akkadian rifles and water bottles, they didn't carry anything else.

Therefore, they ran very fast. They were all sprinters and ran up the hill like wild dogs.

Therefore, they ran very fast. They were all sprinters and ran up the hill like wild dogs.

Normally, they would run faster if they threw away the Akka rifles. However, reducing the weight wouldn't make them faster. Instead, it would make them lose their last bit of resistance.

When the driver turned off the engine, he tried his best to move closer to the side of the road. Now, the dozens of people were only about 100 meters away from the top of the hill.

If they ran desperately on flat ground, 100 meters would only take them about 10 to 20 seconds.

However, this did not affect them much. The dark-skinned guys were naturally more talented in sports. Moreover, their main training these years was to run for their lives, or to march quickly.

No matter how difficult the uphill road was, it was only a small distance. No matter what, it would not exhaust their strength.

However, the enemy did not intend to let them off easily. As they chased, they began to shoot up the hill.

This kind of shooting did not have much accuracy. They started shooting from the moment the truck stopped. They shot all the way until the soldiers were about to run up the hill, but they did not hit anyone.

Seeing these soldiers climb up the hill, the enemy was also a little anxious.

A military vehicle that was chasing immediately stopped. Then, it steadied its machine gun and began to fire at the top of the hill.

This time, the accuracy increased by a lot. It gave the soldiers who were near the top of the hill a fright.

However, these soldiers did not stop. They continued to climb up the hill with all their might.

With just a few steps, who would be willing to be trapped by these bullets? No matter what, they had to give it their all and forcefully climb over the hill. The soldiers who had climbed over the hill also heaved a sigh of relief. When they saw the terrain at the bottom of the hill, they knew that they had saved their lives.

They were not in a hurry to escape. Instead, they turned around to provide cover for their comrades behind them.

They scattered a little and then began to fire at the enemy with their AKKA rifles.

The enemy's military vehicles were getting closer and closer. This could be considered to be close to the firing range of the AKKA rifles.

Although it was difficult to hit a vehicle that was moving at high speed, the soldiers still fired enthusiastically, as if they were venting their anger.

Their actions also attracted some fire, allowing the other soldiers to take the opportunity to climb over the hillside.

This exchange of gunfire was a waste of effort, and neither side gained anything.

After firing a few shots, the Arab soldiers hurriedly retreated. They ran into the woods and rocks at the bottom of the hill, then turned around and ran towards the nameless village.

All of these actions were witnessed by Yu Tian.

He was on a hill a few kilometers away, using binoculars to observe the situation here.

This was not the behavior of cannon fodder..

Yu Tian had always felt that the scattered sand corps under Muhammad's command were all cannon fodder, as well as the hundreds of old pirates under allab. They were all undisciplined armies.

An undisciplined army did not have any combat ability. However, this old pirate army of Allab did not seem as bad as he had imagined.

At least these old pirates had rich battle experience. Even if there was no one commanding them, they would still be able to make a suitable choice on the battlefield.

If this ability to escape was placed on offense, it might be able to give off the aura of a special forces squad.

Arab could not care about the carriages of soldiers that were left behind. He saw these soldiers running up the hill from afar and was slightly relieved.

He felt that these soldiers had a great chance of escaping, even better than his own convoy.

The convoy was still being beaten up, and the enemy machine guns were chasing after them.

There were even a few enemy military vehicles in front of them, as if they wanted to intercept the entire convoy.

However, the vehicles at the front of the convoy had already entered the road leading to the nameless village. The Death God mercenary group was set up on a hill near the intersection. If the enemy dared to approach the intersection.., the Death God mercenary group would definitely give them a head-on beating.

Before the enemy's convoy could approach the intersection, a series of intense machine gunshots suddenly rang out in the convoy.

These machine gunshots were louder than the machine guns in the vehicles, and they seemed to be more powerful as well.

Abu seemed to have seen the flashes of fire from the bullets. Moreover, there were more than one machine gun firing in the convoy. Instead, there were a few machine guns that formed a crossfire.

The enemy's military vehicles were originally arrogantly approaching the convoy, constantly using machine guns to harass the convoy and kill the personnel.

The convoy did not have enough strength to fight back, and Akka alone was almost unable to do anything to the enemy.

However, he did not expect that after chasing after the few troop carriers at the end of the convoy, the truck in front of them that was transporting supplies began to show its might.

Among the spoils of war this time, there were five heavy machine guns. These five guns were one size bigger than the machine guns on the truck. They were so big that it was impossible to install them on military vehicles.

The soldiers on the truck set up the heavy machine guns amid the bumps and finally began to fight back.

Apart from the heavy machine guns, there were also a few light machine guns.

However, there was no need to use these things. The main reason was that there was not enough space on the truck.

The five heavy machine guns were already powerful enough. After they were stabilized, they could basically function normally.

The bullets that were as big as a casserole were thrown at the enemy troops. Although many of the bullets were shot into the sky, there was still a careless enemy military vehicle that was hit by the Bullets.

The power of this type of heavy machine gun was obviously much greater. The enemy military vehicle suddenly felt that a part of it had shrunk. The machine gun rack and shooter on the vehicle suddenly disappeared.

Immediately after, the military vehicle overturned, because the driver also lost half of his brain.

This sudden situation gave the other enemies a fright. They hurriedly adjusted their direction and pulled the team further away from the convoy.

The morale of allab's team was immediately boosted. Because the truck with the heavy machine gun had slowed down a little, the truck behind quickly followed and hid behind the heavy machine gun.

This time, the people in the convoy immediately relaxed a lot.

It was also a machine gun exchange, but the power of their machine guns was obviously much greater. Even the enemies did not dare to get close.

Allab heaved a sigh of relief. He felt that there would definitely be no problem in escaping back to the nameless village this time.

The convoy slowed down a little, but under the protection of the five heavy machine guns, they did not have to get beaten up again.

Very quickly, the last few kilometers of the road were completed. The convoy smoothly entered the intersection leading to the nameless village.

The enemy did not dare to get too close. When they reached the intersection, they discovered the defensive position set up by the death god mercenary group, so they immediately did not dare to go in alone.

The convoy entered the nameless village. On the road, there were soldiers instructing them to continue retreating and not to stop at the nameless village.

Hence, allab did not stop and continued to lead the convoy to retreat.

Seeing the layers of positions set up by Muhammad's army, Allab was finally completely relieved.

Next, it was time to count the number of casualties.

Allab did a simple count and discovered that the chase just now had actually caused the convoy to lose over 200 people.

Those military vehicles were also battered and tattered. Some of them had barely driven back. If they did not want to be scrapped, they had to start repairing them as soon as possible.

This loss was a little too big. Out of the 200 people, half of them were Alabu's subordinates, and the other half were people gathered from the scattered sand corps.

Alabu's heart ached terribly.

Originally, it was just a simple mission to clean up the battlefield. He did not expect to be chased by the enemy and suffer such heavy losses.

Before Alabu had time to sigh, Yu Tian's orders came down.

His convoy had to continue to return to khannima, bring back the wounded and supplies, and then rest.

As for the soldiers who fell behind, they would naturally have Mohammed 's scattered troops to support them.

The following battle did not require Alabu's participation, but Alabu could not take it lying down.

He had a total of six guards. They had followed him for so many years and nothing had happened. He did not expect that one of them would be killed today.

There were also more than two hundred soldiers who had been shot to death. There were also more than a hundred old pirates who had followed him for many years.

With such a heavy loss, he felt that he had to stay and take revenge.

Hence, he immediately contacted Yu Tian to ask for battle.

Yu Tian was a little surprised, but he still agreed. He wanted to see if these old pirates could fight.

The number of soldiers that allab had brought out was not many. Right now, there were only more than a hundred people left in his direct army.

Yu Tian pondered for a moment, and directly placed these more than a hundred people into the scattered positions behind the mountainous terrain, to increase the firepower of those positions.

These arrangements weren't something that could be done in a hurry, because at this time, the enemy still didn't dare to attack the mountain pass where the death god mercenary group was stationed.

The enemies that were chasing after them were all fast troops, and in the wilderness like the Gobi Desert, they still had a slight advantage in terms of mobility.

Without the advantage of speed, they could easily become targets and receive all kinds of attacks.

If they wanted to enter the mountains, the convoy would definitely not be able to. At the very least, they could not move alone.

There were clearly enemy positions on the mountains on both sides of the road. They had to first use the infantry to take down these positions so that they could continue to push deeper into the mountains..

Translator: 549690339

The enemy's convoy stopped outside the mountain pass and began to call for reinforcements.

Of course, they did not have to worry about the enemy on the mountain coming down to attack them. The infantrymen exposed in the wilderness could only serve them vegetables.

Therefore, the enemy's convoy just generously blocked outside the mountain pass.

The next thing was to wait.

The enemy was waiting for their reinforcements, and Yu Tian was also waiting for the enemy's reinforcements.

They waited until noon. After eating a simple and terrible lunch, the enemy's army finally arrived outside the mountain.

He discovered that there were more than ten armored vehicles in the enemy's army. Moreover, there were armored vehicles with a more ferocious appearance. One look and one could tell that they were relatively new.

He quickly threw the binoculars to the commander of death. "Take a look at the enemy's armored vehicles. What kind of armored vehicles are those? They seem to be more advanced than our armored vehicles. "

The commander of death was much more familiar with weapons and equipment than Yu Tian, so he had to be responsible for explaining things to this boss.

He held the binoculars and observed for a while, then he said, "Self-propelled assault cannons and self-propelled anti-tank missile launchers. These armored vehicles are used to deal with tanks and armored targets. They can also attack solid fortifications... They are a little more advanced than your armored forces, Boss.

"These armored vehicles sound like they are more ferocious than tanks?"

"That depends on what kind of tank they are compared to. Generally, the armor and firepower of armored vehicles are not as good as tanks.

"How about compared to our tank?"

"Are their cannons stronger than ours?"

"In terms of the power of the shells, it's not that there's a big difference. "

"But their new models have better maneuverability and more advanced equipment. 'h "If our tanks were fighting against them, they would have fired several rounds before we could even aim at them.

"It seems to be an intergenerational product... that small warlord in whale city also has such a good weapon? Did he buy it from Oasis?"

Yu Tian thought about it and felt that the possibility was quite high.

If oasis wanted Morse to participate in this war, they had to give him some benefits.

By providing some new armored vehicles, Morse's strength would become stronger and he would be able to better attack the Abu Group.

As for whether these armored vehicles were bought by Morse from the oasis or given to Morse by the oasis, that was none of Yu Tian's business.

What Yu Tian needed to think about now was how to kill as many of Morse's armored vehicles as possible so that they would not hurt his own tank unit.

The enemy's mighty convoy stopped outside the mountain pass. Countless infantrymen walked out of the trucks.

Yu Tian roughly counted, and sure enough, there were four to five thousand people.

These enemies were like street vendors outside the mountain, occupying territory within a radius of several miles.

Next, these enemies seemed to be preparing to eat lunch.

Yu Tian's people had already eaten, so they could only continue to wait patiently, waiting to see if the enemy would attack.

With such a mountain defense, the attacking side would definitely be at a disadvantage. Morse might not be willing to fight to the death with Yu Tian.

Yu Tian wondered if he should pull the armored troops over now, but it was impossible to really stop all the enemies in such an open Gobi Desert.

The enemy could simply run back. If they were fast enough, they would not lose much.

It was safer to lure the enemy into the mountains.

After the enemy had finished their lunch, one of the enemy's infantry troops finally began to move forward.

In front of them were armored vehicles and war chariots. Such an army would definitely not lead the charge, and it was not suitable to attack the mountains.

Therefore, the initial battle was all about the infantry.

The first batch of infantry troops that appeared in front of the mountain pass was about 300 people. They quickly changed into a scattered formation and slowly moved towards the foot of the mountain.

The terrain near the nameless village was slightly more complicated. There were many obstacles and trees that could provide some cover for the enemy's infantrymen.

This was the terrain that Yu Tian had specially reserved to prevent the enemy from thinking that it was too difficult to attack and suddenly giving up.

There were highlands on both sides of the intersection. Yu Tian had set up positions on the highlands, but these two highlands were not considered high. Yu Tian did not plan to let the death god mercenary group hold on for too long on these two highlands.

The enemy had surrounded the highlands from many directions, and chief sniper had chosen a person who looked like a commander who was coming from the front.

When the enemy finally entered the shooting range, chief sniper immediately fired.

The leader's marksmanship represented the death god mercenary group's highest level of marksmanship. Naturally, he killed the enemy's little commander with a single shot.

The Death God mercenary group's leader began to consider whether this shot was worth a hundred yuan, but suddenly, the sound of cannon fire rang out from the enemy's camp.

The Death God mercenary group's leader was shocked. "F * ck, they actually fired.

Before attacking, they had to prepare a round of artillery fire. Covering the enemy's position with artillery shells and even ploughing it a few times was a very normal operation.

Especially in a war between large countries, artillery fire preparation had to be done.

Even in many small countries in war, artillery fire was a very common method.

However, in a poor place like Damadi, normal warlords would not be willing to waste artillery shells on such a small-scale position.

Artillery shells also required money. To waste a few artillery shells in order to kill a few worthless soldiers, this was definitely a business that would erode one's capital.

It would be fine if it was said to be the kind of position outside the city of Khannima. After all, there were many fortifications that needed to be destroyed, and there were many soldiers hiding in the fortifications.

However, on such a small hill in the wilderness, the enemy basically did not even have any fortifications. They only found a few mounds of soil to hide behind as a temporary position.

Moreover, it was obvious that there were not many people in the position. It was a little like the situation where if they could defend, they would defend for a while. If they could not defend, they would quickly flee into the mountains for their lives.

Wasting a few cannonballs in such a place was simply a luxury.

Moreover, the small warlords in Damadan basically did not have specialized artillery troops, nor did they have those cheap old-fashioned cannons and outdated cannonballs.

If they wanted to use cannons, they could only use the cannons on armored vehicles or tanks.

These cannonballs were not enough to begin with, so how could they bear to use cannons to kill mosquitoes.

Translator: 549690339

Yu Tian had originally thought that only he could use the rich fighting style on the battlefield, such as the PG fighting style that was free of charge.

He did not expect that the small warlord Morse would be so generous in fighting. He fired more than ten rounds at the two positions in front of him.

After more than a dozen rounds, the mercenaries on the hill immediately sensed that something was wrong and their first reaction was to immediately fall to the ground.

Compared to the soldiers in Hell, the mercenaries of the death god mercenary group had more experience in facing cannon attacks. Their reactions were also faster than the pirates, and their countermeasures were more reasonable.

Perhaps the enemy had fired suddenly, so they did not test and calibrate. The landing point of these dozen or so shells was not very accurate, and they did not completely land in the middle of the battlefield.

After the mercenaries fell down, they avoided the shrapnel. Other than being shocked, they did not receive any actual damage.

Taking advantage of the pause in the sound of the artillery, the mercenaries immediately got up and quickly fled to the back of the battlefield.

The Death God mercenary group had no intention of defending to the death, so they naturally would not risk the danger of artillery fire to defend the battlefield.

Behind the base was a slope. The slope was slightly steep, which was equivalent to a reverse slope.

When the mercenaries went down the slope, they didn't have to worry about being hit by the artillery, so they let out a sigh of relief.

Then, they immediately began to retreat along the foot of the mountain, following the predetermined route.

The Death God mercenary group's leader hurriedly picked up the walkie-talkie and inquired about the casualties.

Fortunately, the previous wave of shelling did not cause any casualties the kind that had two pieces of skin broken due to lying down did not count.

The mercenaries safely retreated to the next position, and the enemy soldiers gradually made their way to the front of the mountain.

Their attack rhythm was not affected, as if the little commander who died was a fake.

Yu Tian's position also started to fire at the enemy. The enemies that had climbed up the mountain also started to look for cover and began to shoot at the death god mercenary group.

The enemy did not carry heavy machine guns because these things were too heavy and needed several people to carry them.

This was not only tiring, but it was also inconvenient for the soldiers to attack and hide. It was easy to attract the attention of the enemy and become a focus of fire.

However, they still brought a few light machine guns that could be carried by one person.

Yu Tian's position did not have a heavy machine gun. This was a position that he had originally planned to give up. There was no need to carry the heavy machine gun up and then waste a few people carrying it while escaping.

He had originally been too lazy to even bring the light machine gun up, but there was not even a light machine gun in a single position. It was really too outrageous.

If the enemy came with a big charge or if there were a little more people attacking, without a light machine gun, it was basically equivalent to having no ability to stop them.

Therefore, it was still necessary to have a light machine gun.

This kind of thing did not need to trouble others. The Big Guy could handle the light machine gun and the ammunition he needed on his own.

He had always brought his six-barrel Gatling gun with him and a whole box of ammunition.

Seeing the enemy play with the machine gun arrogantly, the Big Guy did not want to be outdone. He immediately walked to the front of the position with a swagger and started to fire in the direction of the enemy with the machine gun.

The mountain where Yu Tian was at was slightly higher. It was the highest one among the few mountains in front of him. This was to facilitate him to observe the enemy's situation.

Now that he was exchanging fire with the enemy who had attacked the base, the big guy seemed to be bullying the enemy from above.

The firepower of the big guy's weapon seemed to be more ferocious. The moment he opened fire, the enemies were so scared that they did not dare to raise their heads.

Those who were unlucky were grazed by Gatlin's bullets. At the very least, they had broken arms and legs.

Those who were lucky were blown up by a single shot. It saved them a lot of trouble for the rest of their lives.

However, the enemies also had a great advantage. After all, they had more people.

Hundreds of people surrounded the top of the mountain. Soon, more than a dozen light machine guns appeared in the surroundings. There were even more akas.

The Big Guy stood straight in front of the camp. He did not have any cover, nor did he have any intention of hiding. He was even more arrogant and despotic than the heroes in the movies.

Naturally, the enemy would not let this hothead go. His position was too suitable for him to die.

In the blink of an eye, bullets that were like water splashed onto the big guy's body.

Indeed, genetic warriors could take a beating, but it also depended on what kind of weapon they were facing.

At this distance of a few hundred meters, the ACAR rifle indeed could not hurt him, but the light machine gun was within its effective range, and it was enough to hurt him.

Although the Big Guy was still wearing a bulletproof vest, the bulletproof vest was not enough to cover every part of his body.

His arms and legs were planted on the ground, and even his head was shot a few times.

Under the strong push of the machine gun bullets, the big guy was immediately knocked down from his position and fell on all fours.

“F * ck, are you okay?”

Yu Tian was also shocked and hurriedly went forward to check on the big guy's condition.

When he saw the Big Guy's miserable state, Yu Tian could not help but laugh.

There were still a few bullets embedded in the Big Guy's face. The machine gun bullets that were as thick as a finger were stuck in his flesh, as if they were covered with strange hemp.

“It hurts a little...”

The Big Guy took a deep breath and said, “It doesn't hurt very much. This little injury is nothing.

The Death God's regiment commander and the others were stunned.

Still not dead? was he still human?

However, Yu Tian did not explain to them, and the death god Captain and the others did not probe further. They should not pry too much into the secrets of their employer.

Genetic warriors were biological weapons that were specially developed for the battlefield. Weakening the pain and controlling blood loss were their basic functions.

The Big Guy did not need Yu Tian's help. He removed the bullet from his face and then carried Gatlin to the fortification of the base.

Yu Tian pulled him back. “Forget it, forget it. There's no need for that. We should retreat too.

“Let me shoot a few more rounds.

“Stop fighting. Don't scare the enemies. If they find out that a machine gunner like you can 't be killed, your identity might be exposed...”

Yu Tian did not know if these enemies knew about genetic warriors. However, it was best not to reveal these strange things.

Currently, they were originally planning to give up their position. Hence, there was no need for Yu Tian to continue pestering them.

He immediately said to the death god captain, "Let everyone retreat.."

The Death God leader gave the order to retreat to the surrounding mercenaries. Then, he and Yu Tian quickly retreated from their positions.

The gunshots on the battlefield immediately became much quieter.

Another few positions easily fell into Morse's hands. This kind of attack efficiency made Morse feel a little puzzled.

"Could it be that the enemy has some kind of conspiracy?"

His armored vehicle had a few display screens, and on the roof of the vehicle, there was an observation device similar to a periscope.

With this observation device, Morse did not have to take the risk of walking out of the armored vehicle with the telescope, to avoid being shot by the enemy's sniper while observing the enemy's situation.

The situation at the front line had always been under Morse's observation. It was not that he had not encountered such a smooth attack before.

However, based on the siege last night, the enemy should be a very capable force. They should not be as weak as they were now.

One of the staff officers immediately raised his own opinion. ('I don't think the enemy has the desire to fight us. For them, fighting in the wild is definitely not as advantageous as fighting in kaima).

Another staff officer said, "I don't think so. Didn't they run out just like that last night? They even wiped out a thousand of our elite troops.

“This is just them seizing an opportunity to launch a sneak attack. Now that they’ve successfully completed the sneak attack, they definitely won’t waste any more time in the wild.

“So the positions they’ve set up are just to delay us and give their main force time to retreat. ”

“That’s right. It’s not difficult to take down their positions, but I reckon... They must have set up a lot of positions behind us that can obstruct our advance layer by layer.”

“If that’s the case, we’ll be in trouble. These positions are easy to take down, but... are we really going to take them down one by one? What’s the point?”

“That’s just your assumption. There are other possibilities... for example, they’re luring the enemy deep into the mountains. Maybe there’s a trap they’ve already set up?”

“It’s not impossible. If there are traps...

Morse began to ponder.

There was not much time to think on the battlefield, so one of the staff officers immediately suggested, “I think we should immediately apply for satellite reconnaissance...

Another staff officer immediately said, “Satellite reconnaissance is very expensive. Oasis doesn’t have their own rented satellites. They rent them from others on a temporary basis. How can they provide us with satellite reconnaissance at any time?”

“This is their war. We are fighting for Oasis. This is the decisive battle of the main force, not a small fight between hundreds of people. If we don’t use satellite reconnaissance at such an important moment, when will we use it?”

“Alright, there’s no need to argue. Pll ask Oasis for satellite reconnaissance immediately!

Morse immediately made a decision, and then said, “Order the soldiers at the front line to continue advancing... confirm if there are any ambushes on the surrounding hills. If the conditions are suitable, advance according to the original plan.”

“Yes, General.”

After confirming the order, Morse's army immediately began to move.

Apart from the first wave of troops, there were other soldiers who began to advance into the mountains.

The second wave of soldiers was slightly more, and there were already more than five hundred people.

Apart from the infantrymen, a few military vehicles also entered the mountain road and followed the infantrymen to advance toward the nameless village.

After the military vehicles entered the mountain road, they no longer had the advantage of speed. They only acted as a purely mobile firepower support.

Although it was not very useful, the machine guns on the military vehicles were still very intimidating to the infantrymen.

Not to mention the power of the bullets, just the sufficient ammunition that the military vehicles carried could fully suppress the enemy on the battlefield.

The positions on both sides of the mountain road were immediately beaten up. The mercenaries of the death god mercenary group did not have any intention of fighting against the machine guns. They hurriedly fought back a few times and began to retreat one after another.

With the cooperation of a few military vehicles, the advancing speed of the attacking side increased by a few times.

In less than half an hour, Yu Tian retreated twice in a row.

These positions were indeed lost in the original plan, but Yu Tian did not expect them to be lost so quickly.

The main reason was that the enemy's attacking method was a little out of his expectations. The enemy had been using artillery to help the infantrymen advance.

Obviously, there were some artillery observers hidden in the enemy's advancing troops.

This branch mainly provided positioning for the artillery. They provided the artillery soldiers with the enemy's coordinates that they observed, so the artillery soldiers could fire outside of their field of vision.

Then, the artillery observers could adjust the artillery's shooting parameters through the bullet points to help the artillery better hit the enemy.

This was a technical branch. Under the circumstances of having artillery, a person's strength could even match up to an entire unit.

Yu Tian suddenly had a headache. If they continued to play this game, as long as the enemy had enough shells, they would not have any positions that they could defend against.

The fortifications on their positions were very simple. They did not have the ability to defend against artillery fire at all. Even their defensive machine guns were somewhat sloppy.

If they fought to the end and hit the positions that they had to defend, the losses that the artillery fire would bring to them would definitely not be small.

"We have to think of a way. "Yu Tian said to the death god regiment commander, "If we let them continue fighting like this, Muhammad's position will not be able to defend at all. "

The Death God captain hesitated for a moment, he said, "There is no good solution in this situation. They have more than ten cannons, but we don't even have a single cannon. "This basically means that they don't have the power to resist. It's similar to the difference between a cold-weapon army and a modern army.

"Is it that exaggerated? We can't do anything to them without a few cannons?"

"Unless we kill those artillery soldiers, but we don't seem to have that chance... or we can kill their artillery observers and make their cannons blind. n . "But it's not easy to find their artillery observers. They look similar to those ordinary soldiers, so it's a bit troublesome to find them.

"In other words, other than getting blown up, there's nothing else we can do?"

Yu Tian's head started to hurt..

The Death God regiment commander pondered for a long time, then he said, "It's not completely impossible. The biggest problem of the artillery is that there is a delay in the process of finding the enemy, attacking the enemy, and accurately hitting the enemy..."

"Delay... "Yu Tian scratched his head.

The commander of the death god division said affirmatively, "Yes, and judging from their shelling just now, their artillery skills seem to be a little sloppy. After the second round of artillery fire after correction, they still haven't achieved the accuracy that regular artillery should have."

“So you’re saying that our position can still withstand their artillery fire?”

“No, no, no, no. No matter how bad the artillery is, our position will still be blasted into a pile of dog SH * t if they continue to fire.”

Death God shook his head. “What Pm saying is that the enemy only has a dozen or so cannons, and the frequency and accuracy of the cannon fire are just so-so. “We can be like whac-a-mole, and take turns to withdraw from the position and enter the position...

“Your idea is too unreliable. Do you think that Muhammad’s army is all those mercenaries under your command?” “How could they do such a complicated operation?” “Q “Let them go back and forth between the cannon fire and determine if the cannon fire is aimed at them... they don’t have such a good mentality.

Yu Tian shook his head. “Besides, this is a large-scale army battle. It’s not just your hundreds of people playing guerilla warfare. “No matter how much you run, the enemy’s army is there, and the position is there too. “The enemy doesn’t only have cannons. Once the army presses on, we can only flee.

The Death God regiment commander scratched his head. “What if we counterattack?”

“Counterattack?”

“Yes, a sudden counter charge, intersecting with the enemy. The position will be completely messed up, and the soldiers will be completely scattered. They will even be inserted near the enemy’s armored vehicles, launching an attack on them...”

“This... seems to work too.

Yu Tian did not have any combat experience in this area. However, after considering that his armored troops were nearby, he felt that he could still fight the enemy head-on.

He had originally planned to use the infantrymen to stall the enemy. Now that he had nowhere to hide after being hit by the enemy’s cannons, he might as well let the soldiers charge up and fight with the enemy.

The enemy would not go so far as to fire at their own people, Right.

However, if they fought like this, it felt like they had basically entered a melee mode, and the losses would be much greater.

This was a little different from Yu Tian’s original plan. He wanted to use the armored forces to annihilate the enemy. He really did not have much confidence in Muhammad’s scattered sand legion.

In addition, the army that he left in the mountains was only about two thousand people, only half of the enemy.

If they really wanted to fight head-on with the enemy, they might not be able to outlast the enemy.

Moreover, once the battle between the two sides reached its climax, it would be impossible for the 2,000 soldiers to retreat.

Yu Tian pondered for a moment. If it really didn't work, he could only let the armored forces appear earlier.

If the enemy didn't send all their main forces into the mountains and into the battle, then the armored forces' gains would be much less.

He took out the map and looked at it. In his heart, he wondered if he should retreat a few kilometers back.

If he retreated a little further, the enemy could only send the armored forces into the mountains if they wanted to maintain the advantage of artillery attacks.

If that was the case, when his armored forces appeared, if they wanted to flee for their lives, they would have to take an additional difficult journey.

The death god commander said, "If we fight like this, we have to deploy all of our forces now. "It doesn't matter what happens at the rear. As long as the enemy enters the vicinity of our last line of defense, we will surround them from all directions and engage them in a chaotic battle. "They only have a few cannons, how can they cover the entire mountain area?"

"Is there a way for them to send 5,000 people in?"

"This... I'm afraid that's not possible." Death God's regiment commander said with a headache, "Their advance is so easy. It's enough to send 1,000 people in. At most, they can send a few more cannons and armored vehicles into the mountain. This is enough to destroy our position. Unless..."

"Unless what?"

"Unless our soldiers are too powerful. They can withstand their cannons and make them cry. If that's the case, they have to send more reinforcements.

"I'm afraid that's even more impossible." Yu Tian sighed, "Forget it. Let the soldiers at the position pay attention to avoid the cannon fire. When the enemy's infantrymen arrive, I'll call the armored troops to take their escape route.

"Once the armored forces appear, the enemy will definitely run away in fear. "

"If they run away, then so be it. At least the 1,000 infantrymen that entered the mountain area won't be able to run away. In the current situation, if we can kill 1,000, then so be it. It's better than losing all of our soldiers." Although Muhammad's scattered sand legion could only be considered as cannon fodder. Yu Tian would not waste them so easily.

Just to wipe out a thousand enemy troops, there was no need for him to lose too much.

At this time, Morse had already received the satellite reconnaissance information.

His staff officers gathered once again.

"The satellite reconnaissance has discovered two important information about the enemy. One is that there is an enemy convoy retreating towards KHANIMA. "In addition, there is another enemy main force lurking in the depths of the mountains. This main force of the enemy has about two to three thousand people, and there are still a large number of vehicles behind them... This is a satellite photo, everyone take a look.

The staff officer directly showed the satellite photo to the others on the screen in the armored vehicle. On It, apart from the pictures of Arab retreating, there were also a large number of vehicles that Yu Tian and the others had left behind in the mountains.

As a wealthy man, Yu Tian's vehicle configuration was far more generous than that of the other F * cking army.

If the enemy forced a soldier into a vehicle, he could transport them with two vehicles.

In addition, Yu Tian could provide adequate support for all kinds of weapons, ammunition, and strategic supplies. The logistics team was also larger than the other F * cking army.

Therefore, there would be some errors in judging the size of his army based on the number of vehicles.

In addition, most of the soldiers were arranged in the position, and it was difficult for the satellites to distinguish them after they were hidden. Therefore, the results of the satellite reconnaissance were even more unreliable.

This was Kanimar's assistant troop, with a total strength of three to four thousand men.

This was a big piece of meat, and they would feel itchy if they did not take a bite..

"The few thousand people in this mountain are definitely the main force of the enemy. They haven't retreated in time. This is a good opportunity! If we can get rid of them here, we won't have to go to Kenema city to fight them to the death.

"Three to four thousand people. This is almost the entire army of Kaina City, right? 'Q According to the previous intelligence, the total military strength of Kaina City didn't exceed ten thousand people. They still have to split a part of the mine to defend the west of Kaina city. Kaina city only has a maximum of five thousand people...

"There might be some errors in the data, but without a doubt, this is the main force of the enemy! General, this is a rare opportunity!

"I don't understand. Why would the enemy's main force come here? This place in the wilderness doesn't have any strategic value. Could it be that they think this kind of mountainous area is more convenient to set up a defensive position?"

"Perhaps it's for the sneak attack last night. After all, to deal with our elite troops, it's normal to send out a few thousand main forces. "

"But according to the news from those sentries, they didn't find any traces of the enemy's large -scale military operation. "

"What could they have found? If their sentries had been effective, they wouldn't have been ambushed by the enemy and wiped out. I guess they were just a few deserters looking for excuses for their criminal acts!

('But why did the enemy's main force stay in this mountainous area? They could have just returned to Kanimar.

"I think they originally wanted to retreat, but they didn't expect us to come so quickly, so they didn't have time to leave.

"No, I think they originally wanted to set up an ambush for us here. From the satellite photos, they even set up a simple position. This should have been prepared for us to have reinforcements chasing after us."

"So they have an ambush? No wonder the formation outside was so easy to advance."

“So what if they have an ambush? Such a simple ambush and formation was discovered by our satellites. It Won’t be effective at all. ”

“But they have three to four thousand people! ”

“We have more people, so our numbers are not a problem. Our combat strength is also stronger than theirs. We can definitely fight this battle. ” Morse stared at the satellite image and fell into deep thought.

There were no other troops around Kannima. Just the ambush that he found in the mountains was not a threat to his army.

This battle could indeed be fought.

Morse immediately made a decision. “Fight! Try to annihilate them as well! ”

Another person immediately objected. “If we continue to circle around, we’ll go around to Kannima. When that happens, we’ll be surrounded by the troops that Kannima left behind. That would be even more troublesome for us. “Then I’m afraid it’ll be very difficult to annihilate the enemy.”

“The possibility of annihilating them isn’t high. Even if the enemy is defeated, they can still run into the surrounding mountains. We Can’t chase after the scattered soldiers. We can only try our best to kill as many of them as possible.

“We can push all the troops forward and bite down on them. That way, it’ll be even more difficult for them to retreat completely. “Then there’s this place... their vehicles and supplies are all concentrated at this location. “We can quickly break through this place and let an army destroy their vehicles. This way, they won’t even have the means to retreat to Kanimar.

“That’s a good idea... Let’s do it.”

Once Morse made up his mind, his staff officers began to convey his orders to the army.

The 5,000-man Army of whale city was not all directly under Morse’s command. In a decisive battle like this, Morse could not possibly use all his soldiers to risk his life.

Apart from the armored forces, there were only about 1,000 soldiers under Morse's direct command. The remaining 3,000 soldiers were all from the small warlords and pirates around whale city.

The main reason why everyone was able to fight side by side was because of the bounty given by Oasis, and also because of Morse's reputation.

With such a battle goal, of course, they could not risk their lives too much, and they could not carry out missions that were too dangerous.

Of course, when they had the advantage, it would not be a problem for them to fight a smooth battle.

For example, if there were armored vehicles that followed them into the mountains and provided artillery support from behind, the morale of these pirates seemed to be much higher.

The first batch of pirate troops began to move into the mountains. They followed the main road in the mountains and began to advance in a scattered line, gradually approaching the nameless village.

Behind them were all kinds of military vehicles, ready to support them with machine guns at any time.

Behind them was a long convoy of transport vehicles. Most of the soldiers were sitting in the vehicles and heading deep into the mountains, waiting to arrive at the final battlefield.

At the back was an armored convoy. Morse did not plan to use the armored vehicles as an assault force.

The mountainous terrain was not good for fast driving, and it was not suitable for armored vehicles to carry out an assault. Even if his armored vehicles were very powerful, it was still very dangerous to encounter rpgs in this terrain.

Oasis had actually investigated the previous battle between Abu and the Great Hippo. Although they did not find the great hippo, they had learned from some other information about the battle that took place in the camp of Kanimar.

It was said that Abu's rpgs were extremely numerous, as if they were free.

Once the armored troops were sent to the frontline, they would definitely face a sea of rpgs attacks. Morse certainly would not let his limited armored forces bear this kind of danger.

Morse personally led the armored troops to follow at the back. He even mixed military vehicles and armored vehicles together to protect the armored vehicles.

There were still more than a thousand troops left outside the mountain. It could be considered as guarding their escape route, in case the enemy suddenly circled the mountain pass and surrounded them.

This arrangement was considered very appropriate for Morse. In his previous combat career, he had never treated the enemy with such caution.

The troops at the front slowly advanced to the vicinity of the nameless village. However, there were no enemies in the nameless village, so the troops at the front still had to continue advancing.

The advancing speed was not fast, and they did not cause too many casualties to the enemy.

On the contrary, some soldiers stepped on landmines in the enemy's retreating position. This immediately caused everyone to be on tenterhooks, and the speed of the attack became even slower..

Translator: 549690339

The Death God mercenary group used infantry mines. This kind of stupid land mines basically couldn't kill people, but it caused a lot of injuries.

Those who stepped on the land mines would lose a leg, and the comrades next to them wouldn't have it easy either. They would all be turned into marijuana by the rolling balls.

This kind of injury was worse than death, especially in the eyes of the other comrades. It made people feel low morale.

In order to avoid stepping on mines, the soldiers could only slow down the pace of the attack, carefully looking at the road, and trying to avoid those suspicious places.

Even if it was an assault charge, they could not help but slow down a little.

Along the way, they did not use too many cannons.

One reason was to save ammunition, and the other was that those positions were not worth shelling.

As Yu Tian did not plan to defend to the death, Morse's troops did not have much trouble advancing.

However, they still paid a heavy price. There were 50 to 60 soldiers injured by the mines.

In addition to the soldiers who had accidentally taken bullets, there were around one to two hundred casualties.

Fortunately, the soldiers responsible for attacking the mountains were taking turns, and Morse's soldiers were not the only ones who were injured. Everyone had lost some men, so the average number of casualties was still acceptable.

The casualties on Yu Tian's side also began to gradually increase.

The death god mercenaries had already completed their task of stopping them and retreated to the main position at the rear. Currently, the middle part of the position was being defended by the scattered sand mercenaries.

The combat ability of the scattered sand mercenaries was naturally not as good as the professional mercenaries of the death god mercenaries. There were also some problems with the cover and coordination between the positions.

Moreover, under their panicked escape mode, many of the wounded did not even have the chance to run back to the rear. They were either shot to death by the pursuing enemies, or they were left behind because they could not run, and then they were still killed by the enemy.

Less than one-tenth of the wounded were able to escape, and they were all lightly injured with minor injuries to their upper limbs.

When Yu Tian saw this situation, he was also somewhat helpless. The fine bait was forcefully turned into a real defeated soldier, and it was even worse than the real defeated soldiers.

It was better to let them stay in their positions and fight for their lives. That way, they could at least counterattack the enemy and lower the casualty rate.

However, this result had its advantages. It finally gave the enemy the courage to continue attacking.

Very soon, a scout sent the news that Morse's army had begun to enter the mountain area in large numbers.

Yu Tian's mood immediately became much better.

After spending so much time and effort, this was what he had been waiting for.

However, Yu Tian did not immediately call for the armored troops. He needed the enemy to go deeper and completely spread out their troops.

Once the troops were fully deployed, it would not be easy to gather the troops and retreat.

Yu Tian called Muhammad over again and asked him to order the soldiers on the battlefield to strengthen their resistance and not let the enemy advance too easily.

If the attack pressure was too low, the enemy would not send more troops to the top of the mountain. The two to three thousand troops behind them did not even need to get off the vehicles. They could turn around and withdraw from the mountain at any time.

The order was quickly passed down, but the effect was basically zero.

With the idea that they would definitely lose and retreat, they did not have the interest to hold their ground for one more minute.

When the enemy started to fire machine guns and suppress their firepower, they would crawl behind the base and refuse to raise their heads.

Once the enemy approached the base, they would casually fire a few shots and immediately begin to retreat.

When they fired back, they did not even dare to show their heads. It was purely a waste of a few bullets to show their presence.

Such a blockade would not be able to delay for much longer, much less force the enemy to send more troops.

At four o'clock in the afternoon, Morse's army was approaching the last line of defense for the remaining days.

The last line of defense was set up slightly more strictly. Not only were there positions on the surrounding mountains, but there were also soldiers stationed at suitable positions on the mountainside and at the foot of the mountains.

This kind of defense was more three-dimensional, and it would be more difficult to take it down.

The enemy also realized that the position here was somewhat different from the previous one. They knew that there were more than a few days of main forces here, and now it was time for the real decisive battle.

They stopped in front of the position and began to take a short rest.

After that, a large group of pirate warriors who had just been recuperating finally came up behind them, ready to take over their offensive mission.

This time, the area of the positions was larger, and the soldiers on the positions were more concentrated.

Morse knew that it was impossible to take down these positions with just a few hundred infantrymen. It was time to spend the capital.

His goal was to destroy as many enemies as possible and defeat them. Then, he would bite down on the enemy's army and chase them all the way, making it impossible for them to return to Kannima.

As long as he broke through the defenses of these positions, the enemy would have even less power to stop him and would collapse at any time.

Once the enemy was defeated and fled for their lives, it would be time for him to reap the fruits of victory.

Therefore, he must now invest enough troops to destroy the enemy's morale and positions with a thunderous momentum, so that the enemy would collapse quickly.

This possibility was still very high, because the enemy had been retreating all the way, and those soldiers who had retreated were all beaten into a mess. It was very likely that they had lost the confidence to resist.

Such a negative impact might affect other soldiers, causing the entire army to lose morale very easily.

Of course, the enemy might have already set up an ambush here and planned to kill him ruthlessly.

This was all the more reason for Morse to be cautious.

In order to prevent himself from falling into a disadvantageous position in the ambush circle, Morse scattered his troops far away.

His soldiers began to go around the mountains further away, preparing to place the battle location outside the enemy's encirclement.

Morse's army had more numbers. As long as they were not ambushed, they had the ability to counter the encirclement.

More than 3,000 soldiers were thrown out by him, leaving only a few hundred people in the front.

However, he did not have to worry about the enemy attacking him from the front. There were still a large number of military vehicles and armored vehicles on this mountain road. In addition to the infantrymen left on the mountains on both sides, it would be difficult for the enemy to break through him.

Morse was very calm..

The battle started very quickly.

This time, the first to open fire was the machine gun on the battlefield. The scattered sand legion didn't need to worry about the consumption of bullets, as long as they hurt the enemy.

The Death God mercenary group was also scattered to various positions, including their number one sniper, the head sniper.

The head sniper's target was no longer those people who looked like commanders, because Yu Tian found that killing some of the small leaders did not seem to have much effect on the enemy.

Therefore, the main target of the head sniper was those people who looked like artillery observers.

Once these people entered his line of sight, he could not let any of them go.

This was currently the most valuable target.

In fact, the physical characteristics of the artillery observers were not difficult to distinguish.

They were usually like high-ranking commanders, with binoculars on their bodies, which was their tool for eating.

In addition, the artillery observers would certainly not appear at the front of the crossfire. They would hide in the distance and secretly spy with binoculars.

After all, the battlefield was so big, and there were bullets everywhere. Finding a few people who were deliberately hiding was as difficult as finding a needle in a haystack.

However, it was not impossible to find them. It was just that it would take more time.

This time, Yu Tian focused on the task of killing the artillery observers and gave this task to all the snipers in the army.

Yu Tian felt that this was the most important task at the moment. Only by killing the artillery observers and making the enemy lose the support of the long-range artillery would their positions be truly safe.

This kind of sniper task could only be handed over to the snipers, because the artillery observers would definitely hide outside the shooting range of other soldiers.

There were actually quite a number of snipers in the entire army, but their standards were a little uneven.

There were also quite a number of specialized sniper rifles, so those who were good at accuracy were also assigned tasks.

Other than the artillery observers who had to be sniped, the other valuable targets on the battlefield, such as commanders, machine gunners, rocket launchers, and so on, were handed over to other accurate shooters.

These people would still appear within the range of ordinary rifles.

There was no need to worry about the intensity of the firepower. Yu Tian had machine guns and heavy machine guns in his hands. They were all scattered around the various positions.

Fortunately, the accuracy of the enemy's cannons was not enough. There were not too many losses on the positions that had been bombarded. The soldiers were all running for their lives as they dodged. They rolled into some pits or the reverse slope behind the positions.

In the end, the number of more than a dozen cannons was a little too small, especially on such a battlefield where there were many positions and large areas. The actual damage that the cannons could cause was not high, but more of it was just a psychological deterrent.

Under Yu Tian's strict orders not to retreat, the soldiers of the scattered sand corps could only make up their minds and immediately return to the position after dodging the first round of artillery fire.

The second round of artillery fire resulted in some actual losses. A machine gunner and his machine gun at one of the positions were hit in the head, turning into a pile of scrap metal and rotten meat.

Unfortunately, this was a heavy machine gun.

A heavy machine gun that could easily tear apart a vehicle. This was the most threatening firepower in the vicinity.

However, this matter did not affect the overall situation of the battle. There was not only one machine gun position in the surroundings. Even if all the machine guns were lost, Yu Tian still had quite a number of infantrymen.

These infantrymen did not just rely on Aya to make a living. Yu Tian was never stingy with his weapons. Their positions were filled with grenades and RPGs.

They had the terrain advantage and also had sufficient weapons and firepower. Under normal circumstances, it was not difficult to defend a position. It would not be a problem for them to hold on for a few days and nights.

The only thing that caused trouble for them were the cannons. Although the firing frequency of these things was not high, they stared at these positions and shot down one by one slowly, sooner or later, they would be able to clean up all of Yu Tian's positions.

Right now, it was a matter of speed. Let's see if the enemy would shoot down the positions first, or if they would kill off the enemy's artillery observers first.

Under normal circumstances, snipers could not casually fire because once they fired, it would be equivalent to revealing their position. This would allow the enemy's snipers to target them.

The greatest enemy of snipers was snipers, which was a very fatal thing.

The head sniper and the other snipers scattered around the various positions did not join in the attack. Their only target was the enemy's artillery observers. Hard work paid off, and the head sniper finally found a suspected target.

He did not think much and immediately aimed and fired.

The enemy fell to the ground. In that instant, he was shot three times. This meant that besides the sniper, there were two other snipers who were targeting him at the same time.

This kind of thing was too coincidental.

After waiting for a minute or two, he found that the enemy's artillery fire had indeed stopped.

The soldiers on the battlefield also became active. Without the deafening explosion of the artillery shells, their mood was much better.

The firepower on the battlefield suddenly became fierce, causing the enemy to be stunned.

However, in a few minutes, the enemy's artillery began to sound again.

The enemy also had more than one artillery observer. The task of snipe and the others was not over yet. This game of hide-and-seek still had to be continued.

In other positions that were farther away, the battle was even fiercer.

The position on the other side was not suppressed by the artillery. They could use their own firepower. machine guns, grenades, and rpgs could be created with great force.

Morse's army was almost stunned. They could not organize their charge for a long time.

The front line was a little more bitter, and the surrounding positions were much easier.

According to the plan that Yu Tian and the death god regiment commander had discussed before, they had to launch a counterattack against the enemy, as well as all kinds of roundabout attacks that could be done to completely mix with the enemy's army.

This was a test of the soldiers'fighting will and combat skills, as well as their weapons and equipment.

In this aspect, the scattered sand regiment had the advantage because they carried enough grenades and RPGs.

However, the military qualities of both sides were about the same. After mixing them together, there would not be a situation where one side would immediately be defeated.

An hour after the battle started, the scattered sand regiment finally entered the rhythm of a counterattack.

The victory or defeat of the counterattack was not important. What was important was that Yu Tian could finally call the armored forces..

He had been approaching Yu Tian's position since the wee hours of the morning, and had been lurking at the edge of the Gobi Desert before daybreak, waiting to launch a surprise attack at any time.

As a professional war commander, Colonel Snoopy felt that Yu Tian's plan was very excellent, and it gave him a chance to fully display his strength.

In fact, Colonel Snoopy was better at commanding the armored forces than General Caro. He had trained this armored force for two months, and he felt that it had improved a lot compared to before, it was absolutely necessary to show Yu Tian his strength.

Now, this plan of cutting off his retreat and exterminating everyone was very much to his liking. He couldn't wait any longer.

It was just right that after this battle, it was time for him to return to Kannima to resupply.

In order to avoid possible satellite detection, their armored troops had been hiding under camouflage during the day. The soldiers had also been exposed to the sun to the point of death. They were extremely anxious.

Now that they had finally received the order to set off, everyone became excited. "Set off! "

"Advance!

"After this battle, I want to return to Kanima and drink a big barrel of beer!

"After this battle, I can go home and see my wife again! "

"After this battle...

“Wula!”

There were still a few old Russians in the armored unit. They were Ivan, Ivan, and Ivan.

Because Yu Tian had given them very generous treatment, the three Ivan instructors had been staying in the armored unit in KANIMA.

However, they did not bring any students with them. Instead, the three of them formed a group and drove an armored vehicle alone.

They did not choose a tank. Instead, they chose an old-fashioned wheeled armored vehicle.

Generally speaking, the cannons and armor of the wheeled armored vehicle were weaker than the tracked armored vehicle. However, they were faster and more agile.

Ivan felt that the real experts should choose this type of vehicle and use their own techniques to defeat the enemy, instead of fighting the armor and cannons head-on.

This was like an assassin on the battlefield, retreating with a single strike, traveling thousands of miles in an instant.

Morse was currently having a headache.

The attack was not as smooth as he had imagined. The enemy's resistance was very tenacious.

His original plan to take down the first target was the enemy's material camp.

However, the positions on both sides of the road were much more difficult to push forward than before. It was not easy to take down a position and let the soldiers climb up the mountain to control it. However, they were immediately besieged by rpgs from all directions.

The enemy's rpgs were indeed free. The actual damage they caused was much greater than the cannons of the armored vehicles.

In addition, the enemy had a lot of grenades. Every time his soldiers approached the enemy's position, grenades would rain down.

The attacking side was at a disadvantage. Originally, he wanted to rely on the support of the cannons and use sufficient shells to force the enemy out of the position.

However, he did not expect the enemy's resistance to be so tough. Not only did they have sufficient firepower, but they even killed a few of his artillery observers.

This was considered good because this was a frontal position, which was his main direction of attack.

The troops from the other directions were even more battered by the enemy. The enemy's infantry weapons were much stronger than his.

Right now, other than having the advantage of more than a dozen armored cannons, he was completely no match for the enemy.

Morse realized that he had underestimated the enemy. To be able to easily annihilate an army of 1,000 people, whether it was a sneak attack or a strong attack, one's strength could not be underestimated.

Morse now had the intention to retreat. It was not worth it to continue fighting like this. It was better to let the enemy return to Kenema before attacking the positions outside Kenema City.

That way, at least they would not have to attack the base on these hills, and the cannons would be more effective.

"I was careless, I was careless... I underestimated the enemy too much.

Morse sighed. Just as he was about to ask the staff officer to organize the army to retreat, he saw his staff officer run over in shock. "General! This is not

This was the last thing Morse wanted to hear on the battlefield.

"What happened? Tell me clearly, don't make a Fuss! "

"Oasis has sent us a situation. Their satellite has discovered the enemy's armored troops, right behind us!"

"What? Isn't the enemy's armored troops in the West?"

"Yes, but... They are now behind us, on the way here!"

"What the hell, where exactly are they! "

"Retreat immediately! Tell everyone to retreat immediately!

“But... it’s impossible for the troops on the two wings to retreat so quickly.” “Even if they can’t retreat... They have to retreat! Let’s Retreat First! ”

Morse immediately made a decision. Geckos cut off the tail and warriors cut off the wrists. These were the wise choices made by the seniors and their experiences were summarized.

When it was time to run for their lives, there had to be some trade-offs and some sacrifices.

What Morse paid the most attention to was the dozen or so new armored vehicles that were left by his side. These things were not something that could be bought with money.

In addition, he had brought out about a hundred light assault vehicles this time. This was also a large sum of property, and he could not give it up easily.

There were also a few hundred soldiers who had stayed close to the vehicles to defend. These were the elites under his command, and they had all spent a lot of money to train and equip them.

These few hundred soldiers drove the hundred or so military vehicles and fled with his armored vehicles. If everyone could escape, it would be considered to have saved a lot of losses.

As for the trucks used for transportation, they were all cheap goods. Morse felt that it would not be too painful to throw them away.

Of course, the ones who suffered the greatest losses were the more than 3,000 soldiers.

However, these were not all Morse’s soldiers. More than half of them were the small pirate warlords that he had gathered.

Thinking about it, his losses were reduced by half.

Therefore, the soldiers who could not retreat could only lose.

If they could retreat, there were still many trucks left. They might have a chance to escape in the trucks.

Those small pirate warlords had a good relationship with Morse. That was why they had accompanied him as the main force to fight such an important battle.

However, Morse still felt that escaping was more important. No matter how close his friends were, he could only abandon them, and abandon them without any psychological burden.

This was a run for his life. After Morse gave the order, he immediately ordered the armored vehicle to turn around and run first..

The roads in the mountainous areas were relatively wide, but this place was not a regular road. Although the roads were wide, there were large and small pieces of gravel scattered everywhere, and the roads were also somewhat bumpy.

After all, Kandama was not a city where caravans traveled frequently, and this mountain road was not the main route to other cities in kandama, so there were almost no people passing through it normally, the road condition was worse than the Gobi Wilderness.

It was not a problem to pass through such a road condition, but it was a bit urgent to escape.

When Morse thought of the road condition, he felt a headache. He knew that this kind of winding and bumpy mountain would waste a lot of his time.

He led a dozen armored vehicles to complete the u-turn first. He did not have time to wait for those who were still gathering and gathering the army vehicles. He immediately began to retreat toward the mountain pass.

The soldiers naturally had officers of all ranks and small leaders to command them. When they received the order to retreat from Morse, the roars of middle-ranking officers and lower-ranking officers immediately rang out in the surroundings.

Of course, the soldiers could not all stay in the vehicles. There were also many people scattered on both sides of the hillside, occupying some of the commanding heights nearby.

Now that they had received the order to retreat for no reason, the soldiers suddenly became a little confused. They did not know what had happened.

Especially when the armored vehicles began to retreat, the soldiers became even more panicked.

This was obviously running for their lives. It was completely different from the so-called retreat.

The soldiers on both sides of the hill immediately moved closer to where the vehicles were parked and ran like stray dogs.

The troops on the front line who were attacking also received the order to retreat, including those who were carrying out the order to go around the back and those who were entangled with the scattered sand corps.

They had not noticed the chaotic situation on the convoy's side, and the orders they had received were to retreat. There was also no mention of the reason for their retreat.

Hence, they did not immediately fall into chaos. Instead, they continued to maintain the order of the army and began to slowly retreat from the battlefield.

The scattered sand corps quickly noticed their intention to retreat, and their morale soared. They immediately followed the original plan and continued to pursue.

The firepower of the scattered sand corps was originally quite fierce. Now that they realized that the enemy was fleeing for their lives, the fighting became even fiercer.

Especially those heavy machine guns that were inconvenient to move, and the RPGs that had prepared a large amount of ammunition, they shot them out as if they were garbage.

If they did not shoot out all the ammunition, they would still have to carry them down the mountain by themselves. This was another tough labor.

If the ammunition was used up, it would save them a lot of trouble.

However, the enemy had already started to retreat. They could not chase after them while carrying the ammunition. They could only waste a wave of ammunition before the enemy left their firing range.

Morse's army immediately cried out in pain. They were even unable to raise their heads due to the crazy firing of heavy machine guns.

Moreover, as the positions of both sides were already crisscrossed, it would be better if they fought slowly. If they wanted to retreat quickly, it would be very dangerous.

The troops that could truly retreat were the ones that attacked from the front. They only needed to turn around and run back.

However, when they started to run, Yu Tian immediately ordered the soldiers to start chasing.

If they simply ran, they definitely wouldn't be able to escape.

Someone had to stay behind to cover. At the very least, there had to be several crisscrossed positions to give the others a chance to retreat.

The officers under Morse also understood this logic. They could only arrange for a portion of people to cover the rear.

Fortunately, the officers and soldiers at the bottom did not know what had happened or why they had to retreat. Therefore, a portion of the army that received the order to cover the rear did not panic too much.

The only ones who were truly in chaos were near the convoy. Morse's lead to escape had already caused panic. Everyone knew that their side had inexplicably failed, so they immediately began to run for their lives.

Since they were running for their lives, no one followed the so-called order.

After jumping onto the military vehicles, the soldiers immediately started the vehicles and started to turn around, preparing to escape for their lives.

The vehicles that were turning around immediately attracted the attention of the other soldiers. Everyone climbed onto the military vehicles.

Although there were low-ranking officers shouting loudly to maintain order, the entire convoy was still in a mess.

The surrounding hundreds of elite soldiers quickly ran to the side of the road. The officers did not care about maintaining order anymore and hurriedly started their own vehicles to escape.

Now was the time to run for their lives. If they could run away, they would have to do so.

These so-called elite soldiers were the closest to the convoy, and they were also the fastest to get on the vehicles and leave.

There were also some who were dawdling. Those who were at the back of the convoy could only resign themselves to their fate.

The officers could not care about everyone, and they could not possibly delay everyone's journey for the sake of a few people who were left behind.

The first vehicle that started had already completed its U-turn. Then, it left the convoy and headed straight for the mountain pass.

The remaining soldiers were even more anxious. They even started arguing over the right to ride in the vehicle.

However, no one wasted too much time on arguing. The number of military vehicles was definitely enough. The soldiers who did not get on the vehicle cursed a few times before hurriedly running towards the next vehicle.

Although the scene was a little chaotic, the efficiency of these soldiers escaping was not bad.

The military vehicles left one after another. Soon, the road was largely empty.

Subsequently, the soldiers who attacked at the front line also ran back a few hundred people intermittently. Each of them began to retreat in a hurry.

There were still a lot of trucks left where the convoy stopped, but the soldiers who stayed behind had already run away.

This scene looked a little scary, but they did not have the time to panic.

Yu Tian's troops had already chased closely behind them, and even the military vehicles had started to join the pursuit.

They suddenly realized that the enemy was stronger than they had imagined, especially when the enemy had entered the stage of counterattack, their attacks were much more fierce than theirs.

Perhaps it was a problem of morale, or perhaps it was because of the existence of the death god mercenary group. It was also possible that Morse's army was withdrawing their soldiers. Moreover, their position did not have any defensive fortifications, they also did not have too many heavy weapons to support them.

In short, when the remaining days of the army launched a counterattack, Morse's army found that they could not hold on anymore.

The RPGs and grenades of the scattered sand corps were thrown at them as if they were free. It was not something that a few infantrymen could defend against.

When the army vehicles of the scattered sand corps appeared at the mountain pass under the position, the front line of Morse's army suddenly collapsed. The battlefield was so strange. When the enemy began to advance and their own side began to retreat, everyone would realize that the battle had failed, and then they would switch to escape mode in their minds. Especially when the command has been interrupted..

Morse was a warlord, and most of the armies he controlled were soldiers who came from the pirate family, or some local ruffians recruited near whale city.

This situation was similar among all the warlords in Damadi. Everyone's armies were gathered in this way, and the quality of the soldiers was also at this level.

Such an army did not have a military spirit. Compared to the regular armies of other countries, they did not have the sense of honor that soldiers had.

Their combat strength was hard to say. Sometimes they were very strong, and sometimes they were very weak.

Basically, those who dared to fight and kill could be considered elites in the army, and those who could follow basic orders could be considered disciplined.

It was no problem for them to fight a smooth battle. They could also fight when they were evenly matched with the enemy, because such a battle situation would make them feel less pressure.

But when they were at a disadvantage, it was hard to say.

Yu Tian felt that the real test of an army's combat strength was their resilience after they had fallen into a difficult situation.

Morse's army was obviously not good in this aspect. Once there was a situation where someone fled, panic quickly spread.

The people at the back were running for their lives, but why should the people at the front hold on.

Other people could escape, but why should I be the one to die.

With this thought in mind, the soldiers at the front line did not hold on for more than a few minutes under the violent firepower. They immediately gave up resistance.

They began to retreat one after another. They even ran without caring about anything else, even throwing away their weapons.

Even the low-level officers didn't have any thoughts of resisting. They only thought about how to escape, or whether they should just surrender.

Thinking about it, they realized that surrendering was actually a good choice.

They were either the cannon fodder soldiers under Morse's command, or those small pirate forces. They couldn't get many benefits from Morse's camp, so surrendering was basically not a psychological burden for them.

If they joined the Abu Group, perhaps their treatment would be even better. After all, the Abu Group was developing quite well.

Since that was the case, why should they risk their lives to resist, or risk their lives to escape?

Could it be that there were other benefits for them to escape back to whale City?

Especially the leaders of those small pirate organizations. They had already received news from their subordinates and knew that Morse had left them behind.

Their current position was too far away from the convoy. It would not be easy for them to retreat, let alone escape back to whale city.

Although they did not know what had caused Morse to suddenly flee in panic, they could guess that the enemy had the conditions to win.

This made them feel that there was no point in resisting.

Someone shouted, "Stop fighting, stop fighting, we surrender!"

Defeat could cause a chain reaction, and surrender could also cause a chain reaction. Soon, more people began to surrender. The battlefield was covered with white flags, and the sounds of gunfire gradually quieted down.

This situation surprised Yu Tian. If the enemy resisted stubbornly, they could still cause a lot of losses to their side.

However, since the enemy had surrendered, he naturally had to accept this result happily.

Soon, the surrendered enemies followed the order and put down their weapons. They walked out of the position in formation and gathered in an open area where there were no obstacles.

There were still many fleeing enemies on the road into the mountains. Yu Tian did not intend to let them off so easily.

The military vehicles that had rested for a long time were finally put to use. The scattered sand corps began their high and mighty pursuit.

The military vehicles chased after the trucks. Of course, there was no problem of being unable to catch up.

When Yu Tian's fleet caught up to the outside of the mountain pass, the army that Morse had abandoned was basically wiped out.

Those who surrendered surrendered surrendered, and those who did not surrendered were, of course, shot to death by the machine guns mounted on their vehicles.

The people of the scattered sand corps did not have the patience to persuade them to surrender, nor did they have any mercy.

What they wanted on the battlefield was results and efficiency. They needed to capture or eliminate more enemies.

Yu Tian also followed the pursuing army all the way to the mountain pass.

He saw that not many vehicles were destroyed along the way, and not many enemies were killed. This proved that most of the enemies chose to surrender wisely.

Only a small number of enemies who had the illusion that they still had a chance to escape had been shot to pieces by the scattered sand corps with their machine guns and their vehicles.

These destroyed vehicles were basically trucks. They were not valuable to Yu Tian. So what if they had been destroyed? There was nothing to feel sorry for.

After all, their vehicle speed was not slower than the scattered sand corps. In addition, there were some defeated soldiers at the back that delayed the scattered sand corps' pursuit time. This allowed them to escape with ease.

When Yu Tian followed the army to chase outside the mountain pass, he could only see the shadows of the enemy's fleet. The dozens of armored vehicles of Morse had run so far that he could not even see their shadows.

It was indeed difficult for them to catch up with those who wanted to escape.

However, Yu Tian could not just watch them run away like this. He still had to give chase.

There were nearly a hundred military vehicles on the side of the scattered sand corps, which could carry a few hundred infantrymen. Yu Tian personally led these military vehicles to chase after them.

Muhammad stayed behind to clean up the battlefield. This was also a very important matter.

In order to prevent any other unforeseen circumstances, Yu Tian requested that they clean up the battlefield quickly. They should try their best to clean up all the useful resources on the battlefield before their pursuit ended. The Death God mercenary crouD was also left behind. They were ordered to rest and regroup before retreating back to Kannima.

There were no dangers or difficulties after victory. Yu Tian did not need to give the death god mercenary group any more bonuses.

The armored forces did not only have tanks and armored vehicles. Colonel

Snoopy had also allocated dozens of military vehicles and trucks for himself.

These were all logistics vehicles. As the armored forces hid in the wild and waited for an opportunity to move, they needed to bring sufficient supplies, including fuel, food, water, and other things.

Now that they had lost the support of satellite reconnaissance, these military vehicles took on the task of reconnaissance.

Colonel Snoopy did not plan to let an enemy escape. He wanted to capture Morse with his own hands.

Yu Tian had already informed him of the battle situation. Currently, only a dozen armored vehicles and hundreds of military vehicles had escaped from Morse.

It was not difficult to defeat the remnants of the enemy. Even if Colonel Snoopy did not personally command this armored unit, a pig would still be able to defeat the enemy.

More than 200 armored units, on the battlefield of the World War, would be a terrifying torrent of steel.

Those military vehicles were very fast, much faster than the armored forces.

As long as they made a slight mistake in their interception, these military vehicles would have the ability to charge through.

Even if both sides met head-on, the military vehicles could still find a way to break out of the encirclement and use their speed advantage to cut through the encirclement.

Colonel Snoopy was confident that he could deal a certain degree of damage to the army vehicles, but he was not confident that he could wipe them out completely.

Therefore, his main target could only be the enemy's dozens of new armored vehicles. That was the target he had to eliminate.

His military vehicle was deployed more than ten kilometers away from the main force. It was divided into several areas to monitor the enemy's escape route and help him determine the specific plan of encirclement.

There was no need to worry about the safety of these scouts. One was that the enemy would not be in the mood to tangle with the scouts. In addition, as long as the scouts did not want to exchange fire with the enemy, the enemy would not be able to catch up with them.

But strangely, none of the scouts sent out by Colonel Snoopy had found any traces of the enemy.

Yu Tian's news was quickly transmitted over.

The escape route that Morse had chosen was actually not the direction of whale city. Instead, he had bypassed this mountainous area and started to run in the direction of Kenema.

Of course, they wouldn't run all the way to Kenema in this direction. Instead, they could enter the desert at any time.

After that, they could run to the west or take a detour to return to Whale City.

This escape route gave Yu Tian a headache.

The armored forces were supposed to intercept them, but now it was equivalent to chasing after them.

How could the armored forces catch up with those light assault vehicles?

Colonel Snoopy thought for a moment and immediately made a decision.

He split the armored forces into two parts and followed behind Morse at a slow speed, while the fast ones were personally led by him and cut through the desert.

He was not sure if he could stop those military vehicles from entering the desert, but he had to stop Morse's dozens of new armored vehicles and keep them out of the desert.

The fleet of vehicles that had been following Morse for the past few days also followed closely behind.

The armored vehicles were always slower than the military vehicles. Under Yu

Tian's tierce pursuit, it was only a matter of time before they were caught up.

What made Yu Tian feel a little strange was that the military vehicles of Morse had actually lost the armored vehicles.

The military vehicles were even faster. They had already fled to the front. The remaining dozens of armored vehicles that could not move were left alone behind.

This time, Yu Tian felt that he had achieved a complete victory.

As long as he destroyed the dozens of new armored vehicles of Morse, even if the military vehicles ran away, it would not be a big deal.

Yu Tian's fleet immediately spread out and surrounded the armored vehicles from all directions.

They did not launch an attack because there was no need.

The military vehicles were no match for the armored vehicles. The machine guns on the vehicles basically could not hurt them.

The RPG could hurt the armored vehicles, but the military vehicles did not dare to get too close to the armored vehicles. The armored vehicles also had machine guns, so it was very dangerous for the military vehicles to get too close.

In addition, the RPG's hit rate was slightly worse. Yu Tian felt that there was no need to waste ammunition, and there was no need to use too many casualties to exchange for these armored vehicles.

The battle had been won, and zero losses to gain victory was the most rational thing.

Yu Tian had already informed Colonel Snoopy to have his armored troops come over and gnaw on this tough bone.

He ordered the army vehicle troops to continue chasing the fleeing enemy army vehicle troops. Yu Tian stayed behind with more than a dozen army vehicles, personally keeping an eye on the whereabouts of these new armored vehicles.

The armored vehicles seemed to have sensed that their situation was not good. They began to fire wildly at Yu Tian and the others with machine guns, and one of the armored vehicles even fired a rocket.

However, because the distance between the two sides was too far, and both sides were moving at high speed, these attacks were all in vain.

Yu Tian and the others easily dodged these attacks. They still followed around the armored vehicles at a leisurely pace. They had no intention of fighting back.

This made the enemy even more panicked.

Snoopy's armored troops appeared in front of them. There were more than 50 armored vehicles. These were the fastest light armored vehicles among the armored troops.

Although they were some wheeled light armored vehicles, they were all equipped with cannons. These cannons might be a little difficult to deal with the heavy armored tanks, but it was definitely not a problem to deal with the armored vehicles.

Although their artillery system was more advanced, and even their armor was thicker, they did not have the confidence to fight against several times their opponents.

However, Colonel Snoopy did not have the intention to stop and engage in artillery fire. His armored fleet directly charged towards the enemy's position.

Was this a close combat?

Soldiers could fight with bayonets in close combat, and armored troops could also fight with each other in close combat.

Relying on the fact that he had more people and more vehicles, Colonel Snoopy wanted to fight with the enemy in close combat.

In that kind of situation, no matter how advanced the enemy's armored vehicles were, it would be meaningless. In any case, everyone would be killed in one shot.

Snoopy's armored vehicles were even more. As long as a small amount of sacrifice was made, the enemy would be completely wiped out.

The enemy immediately panicked. Colonel Snoopy came menacingly, as if he was going to die together with them in a car accident.

The armored vehicles suddenly slowed down. Someone climbed out from the roof of the vehicles, holding a piece of unknown white cloth in his hand, and waved it with all his strength.

Yu Tian was immediately amused. was he going to surrender?

Colonel Snoopy was also a little surprised. The enemy actually surrendered so easily? Wasn't this too useless?

If he was the one commanding the enemy's armored vehicles, it might not necessarily be impossible for them to break out of the encirclement.

It was nothing more than changing direction and engaging the enemy in pursuit. The outcome of the casualties on both sides was still unknown..

Translator: 549690339

However, the enemy seemed to have lost the confidence to resist.

The moment they saw Snoopy's armored troops, they realized that they had encountered the enemy's main armored force.

What made them even more fearful was that they did not know how many enemy tanks and armored vehicles were surrounding them.

The greatest fear was the unknown danger. Humans were often able to scare themselves with their imagination.

Therefore, the enemy simply gave up resisting and surrendered.

Although this result was a little unexpected, it was still considered a happy ending.

The armored convoy slowly stopped. The passengers in the vehicles obediently got off and stood beside the armored vehicles with their hands raised.

Just like that, Yu Tian did not even need to use a single shot to take the dozen or so new armored vehicles into his hands.

Yu Tian did not care how much these things were worth. The main thing was that capturing these armored vehicles would have a great impact on the morale of both sides.

The military vehicles immediately surrounded them. The armored soldiers who got off the armored vehicles posed no threat to them.

These armored soldiers did not even have a few decent guns in their hands. In addition to the Snoopy armored forces that were gradually surrounding them, these armored soldiers did not dare to have any thoughts of resistance.

After gathering the captives, Yu Tian did not find Morse among the captives. He did not even find anyone who looked like a senior officer.

“Where’s Morse?”

Yu Tian began to interrogate the prisoners.

The prisoners said with a sad face, “He already changed vehicles and ran away.

This answer was also within Yu Tian’s expectations. If it was purely for escaping, military vehicles were obviously more suitable than armored vehicles.

Although Morse felt sorry for his new armored vehicles, it was impossible for him to be buried with these armored vehicles.

It was a very reasonable operation to abandon his treasure and run away.

Now, it seemed that the possibility of Morse successfully escaping into the desert was still very high.

However, Yu Tian still did not give up on pursuing. If he could bite off a piece of meat from the enemy, he would continue to bite down.

Just as he was about to give the order to continue the pursuit, the messenger hurriedly ran up. “Reporting to boss...”

Reporting to boss?

Yu Tian smiled helplessly. “What’s the matter?”

It was much more convenient to make a call directly than the old telegraph communication method.

The call was quickly connected.

“What’s the specific situation?”

“It’s like this, boss. This is the information that our scouts just reported. The enemy troops in the west have already left the base in the morning and are marching toward us. “Judging from their route, I estimate that their direction of attack should be the mine...”

“How many people are there? What kind of troops are they?”

“There are less than 100 armored vehicles and about 5,000 infantrymen...”

Yu Tian did some calculations.

The armored troops in Oasis were probably dozens of tanks. They did not get any more specific data from their intelligence.

If they gathered a few armored vehicles, they would be able to gather about 100 of them.

This should be oasis’entire armored force.

5,000 infantrymen. This should be oasis’limit. They even gathered some soldiers from small pirate warlords.

Yu Tian did not think that oasis would spend all of their resources for this war, especially when the war situation was not clear yet.

The reason why they dared to casually take out their armored troops was because they felt that their armored troops were no match for them.

However, they would not be so willing to spend their capital on the infantry side.

Therefore, the combat strength of these infantry troops might be just that.

The mine was not a place where the armored troops could act rashly. What they needed to invest the most in the mountainous terrain was the strength of the infantry.

Yu Tian was not too worried about the defense of the mine.

Even if the enemy was stronger than the mine, taking down the mine was not a goal that could be achieved in the short term.

Therefore, the oasis should not be targeting the mine this time.

They might want to test how strong the mine's defense was, but it was more likely that they wanted to launch a surprise attack on Kannima.

Kannima's main force was fighting in the south, and even the armored forces had fled to the south. Now was the time when Kannima was at its weakest.

Anyone with a bit of brains would take this opportunity to make a move on kannima.

If Kannima was taken down, Yu Tian would lose all of his logistical support in the Kannima region. and it was only a matter of time before his entire army was wiped out.

Even if they did not take down Kaina, the oasis would still be able to cause a lot of damage to Kaina. It would consume Yu Tian's army and material reserves. No matter what, this was a good deal.

"Pay attention to Kaina's defense. They might attack Kaina directly... Our Army will be back soon."

Kaina only had one to two thousand people. However, with the fortifications and positions outside the city, as well as sufficient weapons and ammunition, Yu Tian felt that it would not be a problem for them to hold on for two days. The only situation that was out of control was that it was almost night time.

Perhaps the defenders of the positions had an advantage because they were more familiar with the environment.

However, the enemies also had an advantage because they could easily hide their main attack direction in the dark.

If they found a weakness, the armored tanks and infantry would charge forward. They might even be able to charge into kannima city.

Yu Tian instructed Harold to deploy the soldiers to the battlefield and then immediately called Mohammed.

“Mohammed, have you finished cleaning up the battlefield?”

“Not yet. The enemy is still fine. Most of the supplies are still in the trucks. But we are slightly in trouble. There are more supplies left on the battlefield...”

“Leave 200 soldiers to continue packing. The rest of you, bring the captives and supplies back to Kannima immediately. There might be a battle in kannima tonight.

“Yes, boss. We’ll return immediately. But... there are too many captives. There are more than 2,000 of them. It’s a lot of money just to feed them every day. Should we...”

“Pack all of them and bring them back to kannima. Do We have enough vehicles?”

“Yes, we have plenty of trucks. The enemy’s trucks are basically not damaged. If we let the captives squeeze in, there will be a lot of empty vehicles. “Then hurry up and bring the captives back to Kannima. It’s going to be dark soon. You have to be vigilant and not let the captives cause trouble..))

“Very good. Immediately organize the evacuation work and return to kanmud as soon as possible to participate in the defense.”

“Yes, Boss.”

After hanging up the phone, Yu Tian immediately called Colonel Snoopy over and briefly explained the current situation.

As long as Muhammad’s army could quickly return to Khannima and take a short rest, they would be able to enter Khannima’s defensive position.

The main problem was the enemy’s armored forces and their own armored forces. These were the key factors that determined the outcome of the battle.

“Oasis may attack Kannima. Do you think it’s better for your armored forces to return to Kannima and participate in the defense, or to stay outside?”

“We’ll stay outside! ”

Colonel Snoopy immediately made a decision.

The armored forces were used to attack, not to defend.

To purely participate in the defense of those positions, the role of a tank might not be as effective as a concealed cannon.

Kenema had cannons, which were Yu Tian’s trump card.

Colonel Snoopy felt that his armored troops did not need to participate in Kenema’s frontal defense, which was a bit redundant.

As a counterattack and assault force, he had a better chance of being useful if he stayed outside than if he stayed in Kenema.

At the very least, if he stayed outside, he could launch a surprise attack from behind the enemy’s rear.

As long as Kanima’s defensive army created this opportunity for him, it would be a good opportunity to make a contribution.

This time, Colonel Snoopy mainly played a deterrent role in annihilating Morse’s army. He did not go all out and display his actual combat strength, which made him somewhat unwilling.

He was very eager to have a head-on collision with the enemy’s armored forces and display his art of command to inflict heavy damage on the enemy.

Although the armored forces of Oasis were more advanced, Colonel Snoopy felt that with his outstanding commanding ability, he still had a chance of winning.

He decided to wait outside for this opportunity.

The supplies brought by the armored forces could last for another two or three days. If he still hadn’t found a suitable battle opportunity by then, he would return to Kannima or go to the mine for supplies depending on the situation.

It was already close to night, so satellite reconnaissance would not be effective. It was very suitable for his armored forces to continue hiding in the wilderness.

Although the enemy knew that he was in the wilderness, they could not find his position. He still had the initiative to fight.

Yu Tian wanted to bring back the new armored vehicles that he had captured. Because Snoopy did not have any extra armored soldiers, he could not use all of the armored vehicles immediately.

Yu Tian did not have any armored soldiers either, but he could let the prisoners continue driving. There was only one driver in each armored vehicle, and then he would let a soldier watch him.

This way, he did not have to worry about the driver driving the armored vehicles away. Moreover, there were no gunners or machine gunners in the armored vehicles, so it was impossible for them to pose a threat to their own vehicles and personnel.

The rest of the captives boarded the military vehicles. Yu Tian called back the convoy that was chasing Morse and returned to the battlefield in the mountains with the captives.

When they returned to the battlefield in the mountains, Muhammad's retreat was nearing its end.

At this time, the sky had completely darkened. There were only a few dozen trucks and 200 soldiers who were laboriously moving supplies in the mountains.

Yu Tian thought about it and felt that Morse did not have the courage to return to the battlefield.

After dark, the enemy could not understand the movements of Yu Tian's army through the satellite.

Morse only had a few hundred soldiers and a few hundred military vehicles. He was in a hurry to escape, so he could not run back to the battlefield when the enemy situation was unknown.

Even if he was really hot-headed and wanted to run back and risk his life, he might not be a match for these 200 coolie soldiers.

Morse's military vehicle did not carry too much ammunition. The main thing was some machine gun ammunition and a small amount of r's. Other supplies were very limited.

As for the coolie soldiers left behind in this mountainous area, their weapons and ammunition were so much that they could be used extravagantly.

They still had basic defensive measures. They had set up a simple defense and vigilance around the periphery of the convoy.

If Morse really dared to crash into them, the situation would be very awkward. The firepower he would have to face would probably be a hundred times fiercer than during the day.

Yu Tian began to return to Kaina with ease. He could still see the taillights of the Mohammed Convoy. The time for everyone to retreat was about the same.

A few hours later, Yu Tian and the others finally returned to Kaina.

The position outside Khannima City was already in a state of preparation for battle. There were soldiers resting everywhere in the position.

When the convoy approached Khannima City, the traffic started to slow down.

This was because there were trenches and traps everywhere outside the city. There were also all sorts of boulders from the mines as roadblocks. These were all prepared for anti-tank purposes.

The road that was left for their own convoy was not wide, and there were some twists and turns, so the vehicles could only slowly pass in a single line.

Yu Tian was not in a hurry either. If the oasis army on the West wanted to rush to kannima, they would have to walk until the second half of the night at the earliest.

Although they were fully mechanized troops, the overall movement of the army was different from that of a small force. There were more trivial matters, and the time spent was also more.

In addition, they stopped to rest and eat on the way to relax their bodies that were about to fall apart due to the turbulence. This wasted even more time.

The hard-working reconnaissance troops could arrive near Khannema in advance and conduct reconnaissance on the situation of Khannema.

Perhaps they had already arrived, but they had not been discovered by Khannema's people.

Yu Tian had no way to avoid such a situation.

The enemy had discovered that his army was returning to Kannima in large numbers. What would they plan to do?

Give up on launching a sneak attack on Kannima? Or perhaps continue to take action and fight a tough battle with Kannima?

No matter what plans the oasis side had, Kannima had enough strength to deal with them.

Now that their army had returned to Kannima City, as long as they did not play any suicidal tricks, they would not cause any major problems.

According to Sun Tzu's art of war, any fighter would win by combining the two forces.

As long as he defended these positions of Kannima openly, the enemy would not be able to do anything to him other than to fight him to the death.

The key was to see who could afford to fight him. Yu Tian thought of the lost uncle long again..

Translator: 549690339

After returning to Kanimar, Yu Tian called a small meeting with the main generals and held a video conference with the MANIZARTI, sharing the results of the battle with the Manizarti.

During the meeting, he briefly summarized the battles of the past two days, and then asked General Abu to prepare to reward him for his contributions.

This battle had basically crippled the enemies in the south, and the pressure on Kannima's defense had been greatly reduced.

They had obtained a large amount of resources on the battlefield, which was equivalent to giving Kannima wings.

According to the current strength of the enemies and allies, Kannima's side did not need to take any more risky military actions. As long as they defended Kannima to the death, they would be invincible.

Even if the enemy threw out some tempting bait, they did not need to care. The next task was to defend to the death.

This simple tactic did not need Yu Tian to personally watch over it. Harold could arrange everything.

As for Maniza, the situation there was much better than Kanimar.

The terrain around Maniza was more complicated. Many dangerous terrain was more advantageous to the defense.

In addition, the armored forces of Maniza were stronger than the enemy. The experienced general karo was not so weak as to be unable to deal with a small warlord.

General Karo's defensive line was arranged ten kilometers away from Maniza, and there were armored forces supporting and protecting the rear. No matter how the war turned out, it would not destroy the prosperity of Maniza.

This war seemed to be basically stable.

They did not expect to wipe out all the enemies and occupy the enemy's territory, but it would not be a problem for them to defend their land.

Yu Tian felt that he could now spare some energy to deal with Uncle Long and the Donglong Company.

The DONGLONG company was an underground organization, and it was difficult for outsiders to understand their information.

However, Yu Tian felt that it was not completely impossible. He could still try to seek help from the eastern country.

After the reorganization of the DONGLONG company, most of the top-level personnel had been replaced by people from the eastern country. Their management had always been more protective of the interests of the eastern country, and their relationship with the eastern country could be considered very friendly.

Yu Tian felt that the eastern country would definitely have some relevant information about the donglong company, and they would even have a certain level of understanding of the organizational structure of the Donglong Company.

This was the basic operation of a large country. They would need to investigate and understand any organization or force. Whether it was hostile forces or friendly forces, they would need to have a certain level of understanding.

Therefore, after a short rest, Yu Tian took advantage of the cover of the night to take the Big Guy and Cass'mouse team and set off for the cave by the sea.

He did not have any channels to contact the higher-ups of the eastern country. In the past, these things were handled through Uncle Long.

Now that it was his turn to do it personally, he immediately felt that there were many inconveniences.

Now, he could only contact the higher-ups of the eastern country through the scientific expedition team and ask them to help inquire about the situation of the DONGLONG company.

Originally, he wanted to bring along a truckload of supplies to replenish food and water for the scientific expedition team.

However, Faraday said that there was no need for that. Secretly transporting supplies at night would expose the expedition team.

Although a war broke out in kannima, merchants were not prohibited from entering and leaving.

Because there were not many secrets in Kannima's fortifications, the information that ordinary people could see was also not much.

Therefore, every day, there were still merchants' vehicles that slowly passed through the positions and headed to other cities.

Because there was wilderness along the way, there was no need to worry about being followed. Even if the enemy had satellite reconnaissance, they would not be interested in a single broken truck.

There was no problem with the replenishment of the scientific expedition team's supplies, So Yu Tian did not need to worry about it.

The expedition team went deep underground, so normal communication tools could not contact them at all.

If Yu Tian wanted to find the expedition team, he could only go down to the bottom of the cave personally.

Traveling in the middle of the night was very tiring, but Yu Tian's team was not ordinary people. Their physical strength and energy were enough to deal with it.

The pirates who led the way for them did not have any problems, because the pirates had been hiding in the cave all day and dozing off. At this moment, they were full of energy.

They walked for a few hours. Although Yu Tian had exceptional lightness skills, he did not know the way in the cave.

He could only follow behind the pirates who led the way, advancing at a moderate pace.

There were indeed many forks in the cave. Without someone leading the way and marking the path, if one went down without permission, one would definitely get lost.

The roads in the cave were also very difficult to walk on. There were many places that could not be called roads at all. They could only be considered as some cracks in the cave.

However, after passing through these cracks, it was discovered that the cracks were gradually widening. One could still continue to go deeper underground.

A few hours later, the road suddenly became spacious. Even the light from the flashlight could not see the stone walls on both sides of the passage.

Yu Tian held the flashlight and looked around. He found that he seemed to have walked into a huge underground space.

Thinking of Faraday's previous descriptions, Yu Tian was not too surprised by this environment. He only observed it curiously for a few times before continuing to follow the pirates who were leading the way.

However, his bodyguards were all amazed and began to hold the flashlight to observe the surroundings.

The bottom of the cave did not look like a naturally formed cave. The entire space was like a corridor in a giant's home, with a width of fifty to sixty meters.

The height of this corridor was also very high. It was about ten stories high, higher than many small buildings of low-rise buildings.

The dome and walls of the corridor were very neat and smooth, as if they had been cleaned and polished by some construction machinery.

Finally, there was the ground. The road had become extremely flat, and even the speed of the pirates had increased a lot.

This place indeed looked like a relic. It was no wonder that Farrah had thought that he would be able to find antiques and cultural relics here from the very beginning.

The ancient people did have the ability to build some big projects, such as the pyramids. It was not impossible to complete them with more manpower and material resources.

But what was the point of digging a hole in the ground by the sea?

A mausoleum?

He could see the lights from afar, illuminating the space in front of him.

They had plenty of light and could use research equipment such as laptops.

There was no concept of day and night in the cave. When Yu Tian arrived, the Oriental team was still working..

Translator: 549690339

The research team's working place was a hall, a space that was wider than the corridor just now.

The hall was also connected to the other three corridors, forming a huge intersection.

This meant that there was still more space worth exploring in the depths of the cave, but Yu Tian was not interested in understanding these things for the time being.

He quickly found the person in charge of the scientific expedition team, a vice-captain who was in charge of logistics.

The vice-captain's surname was Wang. The pirate who led the way introduced Yu Tian's identity. Captain Wang immediately became enthusiastic.

As the manager of logistics, Captain Wang was very clear about Yu Tian's identity and status, including his identity in the Donglong Company.

His superior had explained these matters to him before he left the country, and had even solemnly told him that he must maintain a good relationship with Yu

Tian.

The eastern country's officials were very clear about some of the things that Yu Tian had done in the past, and they also knew that there were many things that they did not know about Yu Tian, and it was not as simple as it seemed on the surface.

What they were most puzzled about was why Yu Tian had come to this godforsaken place, and why he seemed to be cultivating the power of warlords.

Of course, without affecting the safety and interests of the eastern country, the eastern country had no intention of asking about Yu Tian's matters.

Captain Wang treated Yu Tian politely as if he was looking at his superior.

“Hello, Mr. Yu. Welcome to our place to inspect our work. ”

“An inspection... ” Yu Tian smiled wryly. How would I know about your work?

Captain Wang readily agreed. In any case, he could only help those who could and couldn’t help.

Yu Tian didn’t beat around the bush and went straight to the point. “I want you to contact your superior. I want to talk to the higher-ups of the Dongfang Kingdom.”

“You want to talk to the higher-ups?”

Captain Wang was a little surprised. With his status, he could not interfere with the affairs of the higher-ups. He could only say, “Who exactly are you talking to? I can help you contact the higher-ups and see if they can arrange it.”

“The higher-ups, or the top level of the Security Department.

“What exactly is it about?”

“Uh... I know a little. Before we left, I made up some information about Mr. Yu and Donglong Company.

“That’s good... ” Yu Tian did not care about Dongfang country’s investigation of his information. He felt that this would make communication between everyone easier.

Since captain Wang also knew about Donglong company, he could speak more clearly and directly.

“Yesterday morning, I lost contact with the higher-ups of the East Dragon

Company. I suspect that something special happened to the East Dragon Company, which caused them to not contact me and send me relevant information... it’s not convenient for me to leave the F * Ck right now, so I need you to provide me with some information about the East Dragon Company. “Okay, I understand. I’ll report this situation to my higher-ups immediately. ” Captain Wang immediately realized the seriousness of the situation.

The current top management of the DONGLONG company were all Easterners. They often cooperated with the officials of the eastern country, so their attitude toward their compatriots was naturally very friendly. This was a very favorable situation for the eastern country.

For example, in this scientific expedition, the Donglong Company would only reveal the information to the eastern country and invite the eastern country's national team to participate.

However, if something happened to the Donglong Company and the control fell into the hands of foreigners, things would be a little troublesome.

Putting aside the long-term interests, the current expedition might also be divulged.

How could the eastern country easily give up this opportunity to monopolize and give the benefits to foreigners?

From the standpoint of the country, any country was selfish, and more selfish than any individual.

Under such circumstances, Captain Wang felt that he had to report to his superior immediately.

There was no way to contact his superior underground, so captain Wang immediately followed Yu Tian back to the surface.

Before leaving the underground, Captain Wang also took out a small sealed plastic bag and said that this was a gift that the expedition team planned to give to Yu Tian to express their gratitude for Yu Tian's discovery of this civilization relic.

Coincidentally, Yu Tian had come underground again, so he simply let him bring this gift back himself.

Yu Tian was not in the mood to look at the gift right now. He casually stuffed the thing into his trouser pocket and then began to bring people back to the surface.

The journey back was even more difficult because it was all uphill.

Yu Tian's bodyguards were still able to hold on, but the pirates and captain Wang who were leading the way were somewhat unable to bear it.

The pirates who were leading the way decided to rest for a few hours first. After they slept, they would return to the surface on their own.

Captain Wang had no other choice. Although he was a little sleepy now, he could only personally make a trip to the surface.

Yu Tian had no reason to ask for such a civilian 's physical strength. After all, humans had limited energy. If they focused on one skill, it would be difficult for them to improve their other abilities.

This was a very easy task for him.

Captain Wang did not reject Yu Tian's operation because he knew some information about Yu Tian. He knew that Yu Tian had this ability, so he did not need to pretend to be polite.

After a few hours, Yu Tian finally returned to the ground.

His mouse team was all exhausted. Only the Big Guy and Cass were considered to be better.

One of them was a genetic warrior, while the other was an ascetic. This kind of activity that consumed physical energy was something they were good at.

When they reached the ground, captain Wang immediately used a satellite phone to contact his superior and reported Yu Tian's request.

The superior also realized the seriousness of the problem in the DONGLONG company and immediately continued to report to his superior..

An hour later, Captain Wang's satellite phone finally rang.

Captain Wang picked up the phone and a steady voice came from the other end.

"Mr. Yu, please pick up the phone."

This tone of voice was very similar to that of a veteran boss.

Captain Wang did not dare to be negligent and hurriedly handed the phone to Yu Tian.

"Hello, I'm Yu Tian. "

"Hello, my surname is Wang. I'm in charge of the eastern country's foreign intelligence and security work... you can call me old Wang."

Foreign Intelligence and security was basically espionage work. He managed a group of spy agents and carried out some secret operations that were often seen in movies.

Their usual job was to collect and analyze all kinds of messy information from various sources.

The identity of the person who did this naturally had to be kept secret. Old Wang being able to tell Yu Tian his surname was already a great degree of trust..

Translator: 549690339

Although Yu Tian felt that the name Old Wang was a little strange, he couldn't care less about these details.

He exhaled and said in a deep voice, "Hello, Old Wang... It's so late to contact me. You guys should have already investigated the relevant situation, right?"

Yu Tian had already waited for an hour for this call. The time was obviously a little too long.

Of course, for such an important matter, the eastern country's officials would have to go through many layers of internal reports. They might even have to hold a meeting to discuss it before they could decide on a candidate and a way to communicate with Yu Tian.

However, this process would not take as long as an hour. An hour was enough to delay many important matters. This should not be the efficiency of the eastern country.

Yu Tian believed that they were definitely gathering and preparing information about the Donglong Company at the last minute after such a long time. Old Wang's tone didn't change as he said calmly, "That's right. I just checked the recent situation of the DONGLONG company and indeed found some suspicious things...

"Suspicious things... Don't you have any definite information?"

"No, we didn't spend too much time and effort on Donglong Company because the higher-ups felt that it was unnecessary and could easily lead to misunderstandings...

"I understand...

Yu Tian smiled bitterly in his heart.

Because donglong company had a relatively friendly relationship with Dongfang country, it made it inconvenient for Dongfang country to take too many investigation and surveillance measures on Donglong Company.

Perhaps foreign intelligence agencies knew more about Donglong company, but Dongfang country did not know much.

Old Wang said, "Although there is no specific information, we have also found some signs of Donglong company's activities through other channels. When these information is combined... have you seen the news? "Yesterday, there was a relatively serious armed conflict in San Mao Country..."

"Uh, I didn't pay much attention to the news."

Naturally, someone would sort out the valuable information and pass it on to Yu Tian, so Yu Tian didn't have the habit of reading the news.

Old Wang wasn't surprised by this situation, he continued, "According to our intelligence, this armed conflict is related to a big arms dealer in San Mao, and the weapons and equipment you have are all from this big arms dealer in San Mao..."

"A big arms dealer from the three-mao Country? What's his name?"

"His identity is very mysterious, and we don't know his specific name, but everyone calls him... Ivan."

"Ivan? Ivan again?"

Yu Tian didn't know what to say. Why did these Maoists all have the same name?

"Alright, Ivan... is this armed conflict related to the East Dragon Company? The East Dragon Company should only be considered as Ivan's client, right? Why would they get involved in the armed conflict of the three-mao Country?"

"Donglong Company is not just Ivan's customer... We have obtained relevant intelligence before. Donglong company and Ivan have a very deep cooperation, so they can be considered as partners. "Before the conflict broke out yesterday, Donglong Company's people had already appeared nearby..."

"This... should be considered a very normal thing. Donglong company is unlikely to get involved in this kind of thing. They appeared in San Mao Country... because I happen to have some business dealings with that country recently."

"This situation is not normal. If it's purely business matters, Donglong company only needs a contact to appear in San Mao country to complete it. ". "Moreover, a partnership like yours has already had many successful large-scale partnerships. There's no need for the contact to appear again. They can just place an order and pay for the business..."

"Okay, so you're saying that the East Dragon Company is also involved in this armed conflict?"

“Yes. In fact, there are more than a few members of the East Dragon Company who have recently appeared in San Mao Country. “According to the check-in records of the local hotels, at least three batches of people from the East Dragon Company have arrived in San Mao country. “Especially the third batch, which has as many as 20 members...”

“Then, what does this mean in the eyes of your intelligence agencies?”

“This means that the DONGLONG company is mentally prepared for this armed conflict... we can basically confirm that the group of 20-odd people from the DONGLONG company should be your operational personnel.

“More than 20 operational personnel... can cause an armed conflict?”

“Of course not, but according to our other intelligence... at least a few hundred international mercenaries have entered the SANMAO country through various channels in the past few days...”

“Are you saying that these are all people hired by the Donglong Company?”

“Not necessarily. Perhaps they are your partners or some hostile force. happened rather suddenly. We didn’t deploy too many intelligence personnel in the SANMAO country and are still investigating the specific conflict situation.” “If you have any needs, we can strengthen the investigation there...”

“Okay, thank you very much.

“Then, Mr. Yu, let’s exchange contact information. I’ll inform you in time if there’s any further news. If you have any needs, you can contact me directly.”

“Okay, thank you very much.”

Could it be that Uncle Long went to the San Mao Country to fight a war?

Then he was captured, so he lost contact with Uncle Long?

It was not impossible.

Since Donglong Company was an underground organization with businesses all over the world, it naturally had its own affairs. Moreover, there would be conflicts and conflicts with other organizations and forces due to various matters.

Yu Tian was fighting a war in Damadi, and Donglong Company’s work would not stop because of this. They still had to do what they had to do and continue their business.

However, Yu Tian did not expect that Uncle Long would lose contact because of this matter.

How could such a large organization like the DONGLONG company let such an accident happen to the top management so easily?

At the very least, it was unlikely that Uncle Long would personally go to the SANMAO country, and it was also unlikely that he would put himself in a dangerous situation. There should be other reasons for his loss of contact.

However, these were all Yu Tian's guesses. He felt that he should personally go and check the situation and find Uncle Long's whereabouts.

He should go to the three-mao country to take a look, or go to the headquarters of the East Dragon Company to take a look.

However, before deciding on the next step of his action, Yu Tian still needed to get more information. At the very least, he needed to figure out where Uncle Long had lost him.

As for whether there was something wrong with the East Dragon Company and whether the internal affairs were in a mess, Yu Tian was a little out of his league.

He was completely confused about the internal affairs of the East Dragon Company. These matters could only be dealt with after Uncle Long was found.

After bidding farewell to Captain Wang, Yu Tian decided to return to Kanima first and wait for news..

Translator: 549690339

When Yu Tian returned to Kanimar City, the sky was already bright.

He had just returned to general Abu's former villa. After taking a shower, Harold, Mohammed, and other high-level generals came to his door.

('Sorry to disturb your rest, Boss...

"Is it the battle situation last night? Sit Down and talk... "Yu Tian rubbed his hair and casually let them sit down on the sofa in the living room. "What Happened Last Night? There seems to be no movement from the Oasis

Army

Although Yu Tian had been traveling in the cave the whole night, he still reached the ground when it was close to dawn.

Although the seaside was far from Kainima city, if there was a battle in Kainima, the seaside could more or less hear the sound of cannon fire and explosions.

However, Yu Tian did not hear the sound of battle from the beginning to the end, as if the Oasis Army had not appeared last night.

Harold hurriedly reported, "Reporting to boss, the Oasis Army did not come to Kannima last night, but they went to the mine..."

"They did not get any benefits from the mine.

"Yes, they tried to launch a sneak attack on the mine, but we already knew their movements, and the mine had long been prepared. "The Oasis Army's attack didn't yield any results. They just left dozens of corpses behind. " Yu Tian smiled lightly. He had already expected this outcome.

Since the Oasis Army didn't have the chance to launch a sneak attack on Kannima, they could only try to attack the mine. This was something they had to do sooner or later.

Kannima's army had just experienced a battle, so they had to rest at night. Attacking the mine at this time was actually a very good opportunity.

At least Kannima's army had no possibility of supporting them.

Unfortunately, the defense of the mine was much tighter than they had imagined, so they could not find an opportunity at all.

There were more mountains near the mine, and there was a certain amount of vegetation. There were many places that were suitable for defense and hiding, and there were also many terrain that was easy to defend but difficult to attack.

The most important thing was that there was originally no way to go to the mine.

The so-called road was the slightly flat ground between the mountain and the mountain crevices.

As no vehicles had ever passed through these crevices, the paths between these crevices were basically rugged and rough, making it difficult for vehicles to pass through.

In order to clean up a path, the mine had spent a lot of time to find a route that was suitable for being cleaned up as a mountain path. Then, they used bulldozers and road rollers to forcefully make a simple dirt road.

In order to reduce the difficulty and time of clearing the road, these routes were naturally the easiest to flatten, so the road leading to the mine was full of twists and turns.

If the oasis army wanted to attack the mine, it was impossible for them to use armored troops to charge up.

Tanks and armored vehicles that could not run fast would only become living targets for RPGs in the complicated environment around the mountain path.

They could only use infantry to sneak up, and then use the artillery of tanks and armored vehicles to provide support, just like how Morse fought.

However, the terrain of the mine was much more complicated than the hills that Morse faced. There were many places to avoid the artillery in the woods along the mine road. There were also many strong fortifications, as well as some very steep terrain.

If the oasis army wanted to attack the mine, it would be much more difficult than the mountains that Morse had attacked before.

Most importantly, Yu Tian had also set up a mercenary group on the mine, which was the hyena mercenary group that was best at using mortars.

Half of the hyena mercenary group's mercenaries were skilled at using mortars, and the rest of them had more or less played with them.

In the terrain of the mine, if the oasis army wanted to use infantry to push forward, what awaited them was an almost endless number of mortars.

This thing did not look as impressive as tank cannons, but it was more effective against infantry than tank cannons. It was also more practical than tanks and armored vehicles in the mine.

The person in charge of commanding the mine defense was a drill instructor of the Tiger Squad. He was also a middle-level officer under General Caro, and he had a lot of battlefield command experience.

As an officer of the regular army of a major military country, their style of battlefield command was more stable.

Perhaps they didn't have many tricks up their sleeves, but they were still very familiar with this kind of well-organized defensive and offensive positions.

In addition, the hyena mercenary group had a lot of experience in small-scale combat. It was just in line with the military ideology of "Winning by surprise". Yu Tian didn't need to worry about the defense of the mine.

“Oh? Where are their armored troops?”

“Oh... are they trying to seal the mine? To exhaust the troops we put on the mine?”

Yu Tian was a little surprised. The oasis army was so willing to spend money on war?

The mine had been hoarding food for at least a month or two, and they had also found a water source and dug a well.

If the oasis army wanted to wear down the people in the mine, they would have to spend a month or two in the wilderness.

The F * CK, the oasis army had always been famous for being poor. How could the oasis army be willing to fight such a war of attrition?

Yu Tian was of course not afraid of attrition. If that happened, he would only be shutting down the mine for two months. He did not care about such a small loss.

Even the mine did not need to be shut down. It was just that the mines that were dug out could not be transported out for the time being.

The mine had only just started, and the current output was not large. Even if there was a backlog of goods, there would not be much of it. The losses were not even worth mentioning.

However, Yu Tian did not want to continue wasting time with the oasis army.

He needed to stabilize the situation as soon as possible to prevent any accidents from happening.

Although the current situation seemed to be more stable, and the possibility of the Abu Group losing was not high, it was still under siege. Who knew if something unexpected might happen.

“It seems that it’s time to use my trump card...”

Yu Tian had to finish off the enemy as soon as possible, so that the ABU group could gain a firm foothold in Damadi as soon as possible and determine the power and situation.

After settling the Damadi matter, he could deal with Uncle Long’s matter in peace.

Originally, he wanted to wait for the best opportunity to take out his trump card to obtain the greatest effect.

However, the current situation seemed to be an opportunity. Most importantly, he didn't want to waste time with the Oasis Legion.

Kanima's defense was more difficult than Manizar's, and the troops stationed there weren't as powerful as Manizar's. However, Yu Tian had brought the three mercenary groups he had hired..

Translator: 549690339

Every mercenary group had to have their own specialties, or they would be reduced to cheap cannon fodder.

Especially when the mercenary group had developed to a certain scale and became a medium-sized mercenary group, they couldn't just be a simple light infantry.

The small mercenary group with more than a dozen people couldn't be helped, and could only become a special combat team. After arranging the battle positions, there were no more people left to play other tactics.

They could only improve their combat ability.

However, a medium-sized mercenary group was different. With more than a hundred people, they naturally needed to have some special troops to support different types of battlefields.

The mines of the death god mercenary group and the mortars of the hyena mercenary group were all unique combat methods. Yu Tian basically gave them a suitable position to play.

The Death God mercenary group guarded Kannima and helped to lay the mines.

The hyena mercenary group was placed in the mountains of the mine and used mortars to kill the enemy infantrymen who were attacking the mountains.

There was still the loyal and reliable guardian mercenary group left. They had never played a special role before, but now it was finally their turn.

In fact, in terms of combat ability of the light infantry, the guardian mercenary group should be the strongest.

They were especially good at defending their positions, and they also had experience defending their positions on large battlefields.

In the recent decades of civil wars in some countries, they had appeared on the battlefield.

What they were most worthy of bragging about was that they had once forcefully withstood the attacks of the beautiful country's army on the battlefield.

As everyone knew, the beautiful country's army was the most extravagant army, and the firepower on the battlefield was fierce.

The army that could survive their frontal attack was an army that was worthy of bragging about.

The fighting strength and fighting will of this kind of army was not something that a pirate warlord like the MOTHERF * cker could compare to.

However, the true value of the guardian mercenary group was not here. Yu Tian had no intention of putting them on the defense of the position.

The Guardian mercenary group, which had experienced many battles on the battlefield, would also use a weapon that was indispensable on the battlefield Heavy Artillery.

The truth was within the range of the artillery. An army without heavy artillery could never be considered powerful, nor could they grasp the truth of the battlefield.

Yu Tian had already purchased a batch of howitzers and found a few artillery instructors from the tiger squad to train an artillery squad.

However, they did not have enough time. The Abu Group had many miscellaneous matters, so there was not much time left for the army to train.

The new recruits could barely complete some basic training. It would be much more troublesome to pick out some who knew arithmetic to train artillery units.

As a result, Yu Tian's artillery unit had not been successfully formed.

But it didn't matter. When the time came to use heavy artillery, Yu Tian could hire people to use it.

He could even hire people to fight the entire war, but that would be too eye-catching.

It was best for mercenaries to use it secretly.

The Guardian mercenary group didn't need to show their faces on the battlefield. They could use the howitzers that Yu Tian had prepared long ago to kill the enemy from thousands of miles away.

The range of howitzers was more than ten kilometers away. The howitzers used in modern times could basically reach dozens of kilometers, and there were even rocket-propelled grenades with a range of 100 kilometers.

Yu Tian did not deliberately pursue the range of howitzers. He mainly considered the cost-effectiveness ratio and lethality.

Of course, it was also difficult for the East Dragon Company to get their hands on too sophisticated weapons. They could only get some old-fashioned weapons.

However, old-fashioned weapons also had powerful weapons. For example, the 155 mm howitzer. Its power was truly astonishing.

Compared to tanks and armored vehicles, the price of howitzers was naturally much cheaper. Yu Tian did not feel that it was a waste to buy a hundred of them and stuff them in the warehouse.

This thing could be pulled around the streets by a tractor, and then fired secretly from a certain position. It did not have to go to the front line to take risks like tanks and armored vehicles.

In a war like this, the artillery basically did not have any other threats. At least, they did not have to worry about the enemy's artillery locking onto them.

If it were not for the fact that there were too few gunners, Yu Tian would have wanted to hide hundreds of all kinds of artillery in khannema. That way, no one would be able to break through Khannema's defense line.

The captain of the Guardian mercenary group, Mark, soon arrived at the villa. During this period of time, they were really bored to death.

This was because if the mercenaries did not participate in the war, they would not be able to earn much money.

Now that Yu Tian had personally summoned him, Ma Ke knew that he had a job to do.

Sure enough, said to him the moment they met, "It's time to show the real technology..."

Ma Ke said happily, "Boss, just say it. Who Do you want us to do?"

Yu Tian opened the electronic map and pointed at the mine. "The enemy has placed the military camp here. Tell me what to do.

"Military Camp? "Ma Ke immediately became excited. "That's perfect. We'll use the cannons to bombard the F * Ck."

"I think so too. So... get ready to set off immediately and pull the artillery into a suitable position to bombard the F * Ck.

"Boss, I think we should do this at night. After all, the enemy has satellites."

"UH... It's up to you."

"Okay, I will arrange for people to observe the specific arrangements of the enemy. At night, we will give them a good beating.

Mark did not care at all about how dangerous it was to pull the artillery out alone, or if he felt that the pirate army in F * Ck was not able to pose a threat to them.

If this was placed on the battlefield of other countries, it would indeed be a little ridiculous. If they used the artillery like this, they could be wiped out at any time.

At worst, they could just send some military vehicles to protect them.

What mark needed to think about now was to find a suitable artillery position within the range of the artillery.

He needed to be able to attack the enemy's camp and avoid being easily discovered by the enemy's scouts. It would be best if the enemy's armored forces couldn't attack him.

Soon, he found a suitable place on the south side of the enemy.

That place was farther away from Kannima, even farther than the enemy was from Kannima.

But the biggest advantage of that place was that there was a section of rocky terrain that was difficult for vehicles to pass between the enemy's camp. It was the kind of terrain where there were many large and small stones in the ground, similar to roadblocks.

At the same time, he also planned to take a look at the enemy's camp personally to confirm the coordinates.

Yu Tian did not need to participate in these operations personally. After all, he did not understand it..

After the mission was arranged, Harold and the other high-ranking officers left the villa one after another.

Yu Tian didn't give them any new missions. Other than asking them to keep it a secret and cooperate with the Guardian mercenary group's operation, he also asked them to continue to defend the campsite in Kannima.

Then, Yu Tian informed Colonel Snoopy of the battle plan, asking him to consider how to cooperate.

The formal operation still had to wait until night time.

Yu Tian worked all night and planned to sleep well so that he could watch the battlefield at night.

Before he went to sleep, he took out the small gift given to him by the expedition team, a small sealed plastic bag.

Opening the outer package, there was an egg-like white stone inside.

Yu Tian weighed the stone in his hand and found that the egg was quite heavy.

Looking at the light, the stone seemed to be crystal clear.

Yu Tian was sure that it was only a stone and not a fossil of an animal egg.

With Yu Tian's status, he naturally wouldn't receive any worthless junk.

The scientific team couldn't treat an ordinary stone as a serious gift from the entire team. That would be a disgrace to the eastern country.

Therefore, Yu Tian estimated that this stone should be some kind of rare gemstone, and it should be a relatively valuable gemstone.

If the expedition team was only mining, then the possibility of finding such a gemstone was basically not high.

However, they were currently excavating an ancient civilization relic, so it was very likely that they would find a few gemstones from the relic.

However, when Captain Wang gave the gemstone to Yu Tian, he did not give any special instructions. This meant that other than being relatively valuable, there was nothing special about this gemstone.

However, Yu Tian vaguely felt that there was something inside this gemstone that attracted him. This was definitely not as simple as an ordinary precious gemstone.

He rubbed this gemstone curiously and carefully felt the unusual aspects of this gemstone. His body gradually felt a vague sense of oppression.

This gem was indeed unusual. It was not an ordinary ornamental stone.

However, it was very strange. If there was something special about this gem, why did the expedition team not make any special explanations?

Did the expedition team not find anything special about the gem, or did they think that they would definitely recognize it once they had it in their hands?

Yu Tian felt that the first possibility was not very likely because the expedition team definitely had a lot of professional testing equipment. Even if they could not figure out what the GEM was, they would at least be able to detect its unusual features.

Therefore, when they gave this gemstone to Yu Tian as a gift, they would at least give some explanation to prevent any accidents from happening.

Therefore, Yu Tian felt that the research team should recognize this gemstone, and they even thought that they recognized this gemstone as well.

They even thought that this gemstone was very valuable to Yu Tian, so they took it out as a gift.

It was impossible for someone of Yu Tian's status to just give him a gemstone that was worth a little bit of money, especially a gift that represented the country and the scientific expedition team. Just the value of the gemstone was too vulgar.

Yu Tian thought about it carefully, and the more he thought about it, the more he felt that this gemstone was not that simple.

However, he did not know what this was, and he was too embarrassed to ask the scientific expedition team what it was.

Of course, it would be a waste of time to ask the expedition team about it.

Now was the crucial period of the Battle of Kannima. Yu Tian could not disappear for half a day just because of such a small matter.

He could only hold the stone and think about what it was. Why would the expedition team give such a small stone to him as a gift.

A gift, of course, had to suit his taste.

What kind of thing could the country and the scientific research team bring out?

To Yu Tian, what kind of gift was worth his attention?

Yu YTian had a thought. He immediately circulated the weak internal energy in his body and injected it into the stone.

Very soon, the stone reacted.

The white stone became even more crystal clear. Even the original white color seemed to have disappeared, and it was still emitting a faint white light.

The internal energy that Yu Tian sent out was immediately swept back by a huge force. This force quickly surged into his body, almost bursting his meridians.

He realized what was inside this stone. This was an ancient martial arts practitioner's cultivation energy, internal energy or genuine QI, which could be collectively called "Qi"

And this stone should be a treasure similar to the spirit stones in novels, which contained a huge amount of "QI"energy.

It was no wonder that the scientific team would give this thing to him, because everyone knew that Yu Tian was a martial artist, and a very powerful one at that.

But no one knew that Yu Tian couldn't even be considered a beginner in ancient martial arts.

He had only felt the existence of "Qi" in the beginning and could barely use it.

However, compared to those true ancient martial arts practitioners, his ability was too basic.

It was still too early for Tian to use spiritual stones to practice "Qi". He had not even established a good foundation in ancient martial arts.

If he was just an ordinary person, his meridians might have already been shattered. Even if he did not die, he would still be crippled.

However, Yu Tian's physique was far beyond that of an ordinary person. He found that he could actually withstand it.

With the flow of Qi and energy just now, Yu Tian indeed felt like he was about to burst.

However, after enduring this wave of energy impact, Yu Tian did not feel so bad anymore.

This wave of Qi energy surged into his body and immediately spread out to all his meridians. Not only did he not feel bad, but it also made his entire body feel much better. It was as if the fatigue from the entire night had been swept away.

With so much qi energy wandering around his meridians by himself, it was obviously too much of a waste.

Although qi energy could nourish his meridians and strengthen his body, Yu Tian was not an ordinary person.

He needed to learn ancient martial arts, not just strengthen his body.

With his current body, there was not much room for him to train.

He should use this qi energy to cultivate the internal energy of ancient martial arts, but he had not learned the internal energy of ancient martial arts..

Wait a minute, he seemed to have learned it too.

The USB drive that he got from Cui Zhengzhi's house had all sorts of combat skills that Kroni had organized, as well as the traditional ancient martial arts of various countries.

Yu Tian also picked out three types of martial arts to practice. They were a godly offensive martial art, the "Six meridians godly sword", an inexplicable golden bell cover iron shirt, and an unknown lightness skill..

Translator: 549690339

Yu Tian tried to practice for a period of time. Other than some gains from his qinggong, he did not feel anything about the other two martial techniques at all.

He had initially suspected that these two martial techniques were some kind of joke, but after the effects of his qinggong had been achieved, Yu Tian had dispelled his doubts about the two martial techniques.

He felt that the main reason why he was unable to achieve any effects was because he did not have any ancient martial arts foundation. His inner strength was too weak, so he was unable to display the functions of these two martial techniques.

If his inner strength was strong enough and he had enough qi energy, then he would naturally be able to see the immediate effects of practicing these ancient martial techniques that were based on Qi energy.

Right now, the Qi energy in his body was very abundant, so he immediately began to circulate the internal energy in his body according to the internal energy circulation route of the six meridians divine sword.

A sharp sword qi that could not be detected by the naked eye shot straight from the tip of his right index finger. It was as if his finger had suddenly extended a large length, instantly poking a hole in the wall at the corner of the wall.

Tian himself was somewhat dumbfounded.

This was the six meridians godly sword... Shang Yang Sword?

The power of this thing seemed to be even more exaggerated than what was shown in the TV series, and it was also somewhat different.

The Sword Qi shot out from the TV series was like a bullet. And the sword Qi shot out by him was really like a long sword that extended out from the tip of his finger.

Yu Tian looked over and realized that the sword Qi had not only pierced through the wall of his bedroom, but also the wall of the room next door.

Even the room next door had a pile of tables and cabinets that had been pierced through.

If it were not for the fact that the sword Qi was not long enough, he was afraid that wherever his sword Qi went, all obstacles would be pierced through.

This time, Yu Tian didn't dare to recklessly try to use the six meridians divine sword again.

This was because there weren't many people living in general BU's villa. Otherwise, the previous attack would have caused heavy casualties.

However, that attack had consumed about half of Yu Tian 's Qi energy. It could be seen that the six meridians divine sword also consumed a lot of qi energy.

Now that he still had half of his energy left, he didn't dare to recklessly shoot out sword qi. He could only circulate the Qi energy in his body back and forth, drawing it without releasing it.

This feeling of holding it in made Yu Tian feel very uncomfortable, as if he was holding a piss.

The six meridians divine sword was originally an offensive martial art, which was different from those inner strength cultivation methods.

Its main function was not to increase the cultivation of inner strength, but to channel the energy of Qi outside the body to attack.

Therefore, during the process of executing the six meridians divine sword, the energy of Qi circulating in the meridians did not suffer any loss, nor did it increase.

This energy circulated repeatedly in the few meridians of the Shang Yang Sword, and it was always about the same amount as before.

Yu Tian had a headache. What should he do with the remaining Qi Energy?

Send it into his dantian?

But this energy did not seem to have completely calmed down. Could it stay in his dantian?

Yu Tian could not completely control this qi energy for the time being, nor could he integrate it into his own energy system.

He had no experience in such a situation, so he could only helplessly continue to circulate the qi energy and carefully sense and control the energy.

This circulation was not completely futile. At the very least, the few meridians required for the circulation of the Shang Yang sword had gradually become thicker and tougher.

After continuing like this for more than an hour, the energy that had invaded Yu Tian's body finally calmed down.

Yu Tian tried to slow down the speed of the energy circulation, and then slowly sent them into his dantian.

This cyclone did not need Yu Tian to control it. He could slowly circulate it in his dantian, and it was expanding at an extremely slow speed.

Yu Tian was secretly delighted. Was he considered to have entered the rudiments of ancient martial arts?

Perhaps it was because he had just entered the rudiments, but the total amount of Yu Tian's internal energy was still very small, so the slow increase of this cyclone was relatively easy to detect.

When his internal energy had grown to a certain extent, this spontaneous increase seemed to be negligible.

Looking at the egg-sized gem, Yu Tian felt that there was still quite a lot of energy in it.

What he needed to do now was to continue absorbing this energy and strengthen the cyclone in his body.

In this way, he wouldn't have to use up all of his internal energy when he used the six meridians divine sword in the future.

However, Yu Tian still needed to carefully consider how to absorb this energy more efficiently and incorporate it into his own energy system.

The six meridians godly sword was definitely not suitable for this kind of operation. Yu Tian could only consider the golden bell cover iron cloth shirt that he had learned before.

However, the golden bell cover iron cloth shirt was obviously not a professional internal strength cultivation method. It mainly used internal strength to temper the body, not to absorb and cultivate the strength of internal strength.

If he wanted to train internal strength, he still needed to find a professional internal strength cultivation method.

Therefore, he turned on the tablet computer again and took out the various information collected by the Clone Society to read.

After searching for a long time, he finally found an ancient martial art that was suspected to be an inner strength cultivation method.

However, this martial art did not have a name. It was only labeled as "Probably a basic inner strength cultivation method."

This martial art was all about the movement of inner strength in the meridians. There was no description of other functions. It indeed looked like a simple inner strength cultivation method.

According to the habits in the novel, mental cultivation methods and martial arts had to be used together in order to bring out the proper effects.

For example, the golden bell cover and iron cloth shirt should be used together with the internal energy of Buddhism.

The same was true for the six meridians divine sword. However, although the main character in the TV series was proficient in Buddhism, he did not have any normal internal energy.

Since he could use the six meridians divine sword, Yu Tian could naturally do the same.

Moreover, Yu Tian had already used it once. Although he was not very familiar with it, at least it proved that the inner strength in his body was suitable for the six meridians divine sword.

Since that was the case, he decided to practice it first.

After reading the nameless inner strength carefully, he realized that this nameless inner strength was divided into nine stages.

This was very normal. Nine was considered the extreme number in the eastern culture, so it was natural for the martial arts inner strength to be divided into nine stages.

He first tried to practice the first stage.

The practice this time was very effective. After all, he already had inner strength in his body. He could clearly feel the existence of inner strength, and he could also skillfully mobilize it.

After circulating the nameless internal energy for a small cycle, Yu Tian felt that the total amount of his internal energy had increased a lot.

By the time Yu Tian had completed one big day, it was already noon. He was now in high spirits and no longer had the thought of sleeping, so he decided to have lunch.

When he reached the first floor of the villa, Big Guy, Cass, and the other bodyguards were preparing lunch.

Their staple food was beef and mutton and some vegetable salad, and they rarely ate rice, flour, and starch.

Yu Tian asked Cass to get him a lunch as well. Then, he sat in the dining room and ate with the mouse team.

Halfway through the meal, a soldier on duty outside the door came in and reported that Faraday had come to see Yu Tian.

Yu Tian was not sleeping, so he asked the soldier to call Faraday in.

Faraday was sweating profusely. As soon as he saw Yu Tian, he said hurriedly, "Boss, an important guest wants to see you. "

"What guest?"

A guest who could make Faraday rush over at meal time was definitely not an ordinary person.

When Faraday said that he was an important guest, Yu Tian did not doubt him at all.

Faraday glanced at the people in the restaurant and felt that there was nothing to hide from the mouse team, thus, he said, "It's those guests who were transporting our weapons and equipment. We just happened to find them at the seaside..."

In order to cover the existence of the scientific expedition team, some of Faraday's pirates had returned to the pirate village. They disguised themselves as ordinary fishermen and went to the beach twice a day to fish up a few fish to cover their tracks.

They would be able to discover any movements in the surrounding waters in time.

When Yu Tian heard Faraday's words, he immediately stood up and asked,

"Where are they?"

"They're just outside the villa. I didn't ask for your permission and brought them directly to Kenema..."

"You've done well. Invite them in immediately.

Yu Tian couldn't wait any longer.

There were a total of four guests who came in. Yu Tian was already familiar with one of them. It was No. 55, who had been in charge of delivering weapons to him many times.

He had originally thought that he had completely lost contact with the East Dragon Company. He had not expected number 55 to come knocking on his door at this time.

Number 55 was a little excited when he saw Yu Tian. He hurriedly said, "Mr. Yu..."

Yu Tian waved his hand and said, "Don't be anxious. Since you've already come to my place, there's no need to be anxious anymore... have you eaten?" Number 55 said, "We brought some dry rations. We've already eaten."

Yu Tian nodded and looked at the few people behind number 55. These people all looked familiar. They seemed to be number 55's subordinates who had participated in the transportation of weapons in the past.

Thus, Yu Tian said, "Let's go. If you have anything to say, let's talk in the study."

Then, Yu Tian put down his lunch and led number 55 and the others to the second floor.

After they sat down in the study, Yu Tian personally brewed tea for them. Then, he asked unhurriedly, "Tell us, what exactly happened to the East Dragon Company and how Uncle Long is doing."

Number 55's expression was a little gloomy. "Uncle Long... We don't know his situation now. We only know that he has fallen into the hands of the enemy."

"What enemy?"

"The identity of the enemy is not very clear, but it seems... to be related to those people on Demon Island. "Demon Island? The Kronin Society?"

Yu Tian was slightly stunned.

This answer surprised him a little, but it seemed to be very natural.

He had destroyed the entire demon island with the help of the East Dragon

Company, which was a very important hostile event for the Kronin Society.

The KLONI Association would certainly regard them as the number one enemy and an enemy that could pose a strong threat to the survival of the KLONI association.

Then, the KLONI Association would certainly pursue this matter to the end, and would do its utmost to find out who was behind this matter.

Yu Tian had already known from Park Guochang's description that the KLONI Association's intelligence ability was very good.

It didn't seem strange that the Kronin Association would eventually find out about the East Dragon Company.

Although the East Dragon Company's actions were secretive, they would always leave some traces behind.

These traces weren't left behind on Demon Island, but somewhere outside the battlefield.

For example, the vehicles that were responsible for transporting Yu Tian to and from Demon Island weren't created out of thin air.

Every vehicle that appeared at a specific time, location, and route had its origin and could be traced back to where they came from.

It was the same as humans being monitored by big data. Those vehicles were also recorded by various inspection departments.

Just like the old Russian's broken submarine. Although they were secretly out at sea on a hiring mission, after leaving the port, people would naturally notice that they had disappeared.

Then, they would have a training mission on the surface, just like how they usually went out to sea for training.

However, the data of these voyages and the fuel and materials consumed definitely did not match with the original mission.

Moreover, the broken submarine was almost crippled because of the electrical pulse from the nuclear explosion. In the end, they mobilized the maintenance ship to carry out rescue.

Including when they went home, they still had to carry out various repairs.

Even if someone helped to cover up these abnormal situations, it was still a very obvious suspicious point.

Since the intelligence ability of the Kronin society was so strong, they would naturally find these suspicious clues.

If they followed these clues, the Kronin society would at least be able to find some clues about their employer.

In the end, they might eventually find out that the mastermind behind this was related to the East Dragon Company.

In addition, Yu Tian also killed a small arms dealer of the Kronin Association in Happy Valley. This matter could also be traced back to the support of the East Dragon Company.

They could at least find out that the East Dragon Company had been secretly transporting arms to Happy Valley recently. This incident could already prove that the east dragon company had some activities in Happy Valley.

In Happy Valley, other than the East Dragon Company, they could not find any suspicious targets.

The East Dragon Company was indeed suspicious because the only organization that had the power to attack the Demon Island was the East Dragon Company.

There was no need to talk about evidence because this could be considered a threat to the life and death of the Clone Society.

At this time, as long as they found a suspicious enemy, they did not need to do anything to verify it.

If the delay continued, the enemy would attack Kroni a few more times. The various research plans of the Kroni Society might be tormented to the point of bankruptcy.

The Kroni Society must immediately launch a strong and effective revenge. They must strike first against the enemy.

Therefore, it was reasonable that Kroni would attack the East Dragon Company.

Yu Tian slightly sighed, this, he and Kroni will finally put the contest on the surface..

Since they were going to beat up the dog, they naturally had to be on guard against being bitten by the dog.

The incident with uncle long this time could only be said that the DONGLONG company had been too careless.

Perhaps it was because they hadn't met any decent opponents in the world all these years, but the people of the donglong company always thought that they could do whatever they wanted.

According to No. 55 's description, the cause of this incident was that the contact person of the DONGLONG company in San Mao country had suddenly been arrested by the authorities.

This incident made the donglong company's higher-ups somewhat angry.

Although the DONGLONG company was an underground organization, it had many multinational groups on the surface, and its economic strength was very strong.

The people of the DONGLONG company would be treated courteously and courteously by the authorities in many large countries, treating them as if they were gods of wealth.

A country with a declining economy like the San Mao country actually dared to arrest the people of the Donglong Company at will. This was truly an arrogant act.

Just a few casual moves from the donglong company could bankrupt the finances of the SANMAO country.

Therefore, the DONGLONG company immediately sent people to the SANMAO country to question the intentions of the local authorities.

After a round of wrangling, the DONGLONG company finally understood the reason for the matter.

This matter involved the transaction between the DONGLONG company and the local arms dealers of the SANMAO country, which was also the issue of the arms that Yu Tian had been frequently purchasing recently.

There was no doubt that the amount of arms that Yu Tian had purchased these past few times was very huge.

With such a huge amount of arms, it was naturally impossible for him to place an order in the official factory.

Because the arms transaction affected the security of the entire world, as well as the balance of power of each country, the matter of international arms sales to each country had always been closely watched.

Placing an order in an official factory was very troublesome. Not only was the procedure troublesome, but the identity of the buyer was also more troublesome. More importantly, there was no stock, and it would be very troublesome to pick up the goods.

Therefore, Donglong Company directly emptied the inventory of a certain military warehouse in San Mao country and removed a large batch of old-fashioned obsolete weapons.

This trade was completed by a military general. These dead generals had always had the habit of selling arms. In the warehouses they controlled, most of the arms had been "Consumed" in various ways.

Originally, there wouldn't have been any trouble with this transaction because there was a civil war in the San Mao country, and the data on the arms and supplies was also in a mess.

However, for some reason, the general they were dealing with was suddenly arrested. Yu Tian felt that this matter should be related to the Kronin Association, which was the first step of their revenge.

Then, the arms dealer who was the intermediary was also arrested.

But it was not Ivan who was arrested, but Ivan's agent in the region.

The matter should have ended here, and it had nothing to do with the East Dragon Company.

But unfortunately, Ivan's agent defected.

So soon, the officials of the three-mao country arrested the East Dragon Company's garrison in the three-mao country.

Stealing and selling the materials in the national arsenal was, of course, not a trivial matter.

This case was handled by the Security Intelligence Department of the military of the SANMAO country. Normal relations and legal channels simply could not work.

The DONGLONG company did not deploy too much force in the SANMAO country. Even because the country's economy was relatively poor, they did not make any investments in the SANMAO country.

They had no way to deal with the things that happened in the SANMAO country. They could only contact Ivan, the arms dealer, to help.

But Poor Ivan was also wanted by the SANMAO country's authorities because of the betrayal of his agent.

In fact, being wanted was not a big deal for Ivan. He had been wanted by various countries and various security agencies. There were also some international agencies, such as Interpol.

Being wanted was a common occurrence for Ivan.

However, this time was a little different. Because of the betrayal of his agent, Ivan's whereabouts were leaked.

Donglong company lost contact with Ivan. They did not know whether Ivan had been arrested or not.

No. 55 felt that Ivan's fate might not be good, because the special forces organized by the beautiful national security department were the ones who carried out the capture operation.

Whether it was combat strength or all kinds of high-tech equipment, the special forces of a large country were not something that some private armed forces and bodyguards could compare to.

No. 55 felt that Ivan was definitely doomed.

As for Uncle Long, it was because the military of the three-mao country had requested that the person-in-charge of the East Dragon Company must personally go to the three-mao country to handle this matter.

Originally, Uncle Long had no intention of paying any attention to this matter.

After all, this was only the arrest of a garrison member in a region. It was simply not the place for the person-in-charge of the East Dragon Company to personally handle this matter.

However, it was not only the three-mao country that was paying attention to this case. Or rather, it was other international agencies that were pushing this matter forward, as well as the security agencies of some large countries, such as the beautiful country.

In fact, many countries were well aware of the whereabouts of this large amount of arms.

This kind of matter could not be kept under wraps. The Abu Group had suddenly become so powerful that even if the intelligence agencies were all pigs, they would still know that the arms had fallen into the hands of General Abu.

What they wanted was not the results of the investigation into this arms smuggling case, but rather, they wanted the DONGLONG company to give an explanation to the international community.

The donglong company was not a rat organization like the KLONI association. They had many legitimate industries and businesses in various countries around the world.

Under pressure from all sides, uncle long finally made a trip to the SANMAO country personally.

At the same time, Uncle Long also wanted to investigate Ivan 's situation to see if Ivan was dead or not and if the donglong company could help Ivan.

Uncle Long was very concerned about Ivan 's whereabouts. The reason was not because of Ivan's identity as an arms dealer, but because Ivan was extremely rich.

The arms business was a lucrative business. Ivan had been an arms dealer all his life, and the wealth he had accumulated was already an astronomical figure.

Ivan was involved in many of the East Dragon Company's investment projects, and the funds involved were on the surface the legal assets of the East Dragon Company.

Because of Ivan's powerful influence and his friendly partnership with Donglong, Uncle Long could not swallow his investment.

Therefore, when Uncle Long went to San Mao country, he also brought a group of professional fighters to investigate Ivan's whereabouts.

At the same time, these fighters could also protect their own safety to a certain extent.

But the result was of no use. More than twenty fighters could not withstand a single blow from the state machine.

Uncle Long originally thought that the SANMAO country did not have the guts to target him. After all, he had the powerful Donglong company behind him. This was a power that no country could underestimate.

However, the SANMAO country still attacked him. Uncle Long was attacked the day after he arrived in the SANMAO country..

In ancient times, second brother Guan lost Jingzhou due to carelessness. His failure was due to his pride and contempt for the enemy.

Uncle Long's situation was similar to second brother Guan's. He thought that Donglong Company could run rampant in all the countries in the world, but he did not expect that someone would dare to attack him.

Moreover, there was definitely a clone behind this matter.

Yu Tian sighed and asked again, "Who was the person who attacked Uncle

No. 55 shook his head. "I'm not sure. We didn't go to the SANMAO country at that time. However, their official news said that the militants attacked the local authorities, and the fighting affected the civilians..."

"Official news..." Yu Tian sneered. "Did the official news say who these militants were?"

"They said that Ivan's subordinates are taking revenge for the incident with Ivan.

"Hmph... according to them, Ivan attacked Uncle Long?" "Impossible. No matter how stupid Ivan is, he wouldn't do such a thing. "What about Ivan's whereabouts? Do you have any news?"

"No news. We don't know if he was secretly arrested or dead... and..." number 55 hesitated for a moment and then said with difficulty, "There's also a problem with our East Dragon Company..."

"Oh? What's the situation?"

"Some of the higher-ups in our headquarters were arrested by the local authorities.

"All the higher-ups?"

"Most of the higher-ups are from our eastern country. "

"So, there's a traitor in the Donglong Company?"

('I think... Yes, "no. 55 said slowly, "My residence was attacked yesterday. Fortunately, I wasn't in my residence at that time, so I was lucky enough to escape. "After I was lucky enough to escape, I immediately contacted other colleagues..."

"Colleagues? You have contact with other colleagues?"

"Yes, there are many easterners among the middle-level cadres of our donglong company. We usually have some private contact. Although it is against the rules, Uncle Long has never paid too much attention to this matter..."

"Fortunately, this unintentional mistake has given the Donglong company a chance to survive... how are your colleagues?"

“Some of them can no longer be contacted. I’m afraid they’re doomed... the rest of them were also attacked and luckily escaped. “Moreover, although we’re scattered all over the world, almost all of us were attacked at the same time...

“It seems that the Kronin Association has been planning this operation for a long time...

Launching an attack at the same time all over the world and wiping out the upper and middle levels of the East Dragon Company was of course a meticulous plan. Furthermore, there were traitors within the organization who provided specific information and information.

No matter how strong the Kronin Association’s intelligence capabilities were, it was impossible for them to find out all the members of the East Dragon Company and wipe them out in one go.

The ones who were attacked were all members of the eastern country, and the target was very obvious.

The East Dragon Company was currently mainly controlled by the eastern people, but half of the middle and high-level personnel were foreigners.

This proportion was even higher among the lower-level personnel, because the majority of the East Dragon Company’s business was all over the world, so it was more convenient to use foreigners.

Moreover, the Donglong Company was born from the original magic snake, and the original members were 90% foreigners.

After Uncle Long took over the DONGLONG company, he promoted a large number of Easterners, hoping to use these compatriots to firmly control the Donglong company in his own hands.

The easterners could understand this operation, but the foreigners were somewhat unable to accept it.

Yu Tian was not too surprised that such a rebellion had occurred.

He even felt that the scale of this rebellion was much larger than he had imagined. The low-level foreign members, as well as the peripheral members, might have already participated in it.

If that was really the case, the DONGLONG company could be said to have been destroyed, or it had already become someone else’s.

Yu Tian felt that uncle long must have left behind some sort of backup plan, but he could not find uncle long at the moment, and he was completely clueless about the situation of the DONGLONG company. Even if there was a backup plan, he could not use it.

He pondered for a moment, then asked No. 55, "Where is the headquarters of the Donglong Company Now?"

"In the wind country."

"Is there still anyone there now?"

"Should be... also, only the top management of our easterners at the headquarters have been arrested by the authorities, and there hasn't been any fighting. Those traitors should still be working at the headquarters, maintaining the original command system."

"Give me all the information you know about the DONGLONG company, and then inform those surviving colleagues to hide on the spot. If they have no way to hide safely in the local area, then immediately return to the eastern country. "

"Return to the eastern country?"

"Yes, there's no place safer than the eastern country now. Leave the rest to me. I'll inform you to take over after I'm done. You guys go down and have a good rest, and wait for my mission arrangements. "

"But... "

"There's no buts. This is my order. Didn't Uncle Long tell you my power

"UH... Yes, number one."

Although number 55 was not sure that Yu Tian was the behind-the-scenes boss of the East Dragon Company, he knew that Uncle Long was only the manager of the East Dragon Company, and there was a real boss behind him.

Number 55 had naturally guessed who the real boss was long ago.

Whose number could be number one? Who could make the East Dragon Company deliver weapons and equipment without paying?

However, Yu Tian himself did not say, and number 55 could not casually reveal this information.

The Big Guy arranged a room for them and let them have a good rest.

However, number 55 certainly could not rest at ease at this time. He immediately began to contact other surviving colleagues.

Their contact details were absolutely beyond the enemy's expectations, because they used a very popular social chat software in the eastern countries.

They also set up an emergency group, deliberately focusing on discussing the follow-up measures for this major incident.

No. 55 directly sent the message to the chat group.

"I have met our boss. From now on, all the affairs of the DONGLONG company will be handled by the boss personally. The boss asked everyone to ensure their own safety and to hide in the safe house without taking any action. "If you really can't guarantee your own safety, immediately return to the eastern country and wait for the next order..."

"who's The Boss?"

A colleague immediately sent an inquiry message.

No. 55 replied, "For now, it's confidential... but I believe that the boss will soon announce his identity to everyone."

"Is there anything we can do to help?"

"Yes! Send me all the information!"

Artillery preparation began.

Commander Ma Ke didn't have the patience to wait any longer. He had waited all night for this moment.

He asked for instructions for the remaining days, then immediately returned to the command position.

There were actually many ways for artillery soldiers to prepare to fire. For example, the simple method, the precise method, the result method, the bomb test method... The uses of these methods varied.

In movies, it was often seen that a test firing was carried out. This was usually the fork method and the deviation method. This was used when the distance deviation between the explosion point and the target could not be determined.

It was more complicated to say. In fact, there was a shooting commander in front to observe and then make a correction of the firing elements according to the landing point of the shell.

This was to hit the target more accurately.

For this degree of accuracy, there would even be a second test shot, a second correction.

However, for a shooting distance of more than ten kilometers, from the time the cannonball was fired to the time the cannonball fell, there would be about a minute's time.

After making the observation and correction, there would be a certain amount of time delay.

Such a long preparation time was enough for the enemy to jump onto the vehicles and escape for their lives.

If they encountered armored troops, they might even be able to charge right under the nose of the artillery formation.

Hence, this method was only suitable for fixed enemy positions. The enemy would just hide in the position to defend.

In addition, modern warfare also had various artillery radars that could easily determine the position of the enemy artillery based on the direction of the shells.

If they were slow in firing, the enemy's artillery fire would immediately cover them and blow up their artillery positions into a waste collection station.

This time was usually about five minutes. In other words, from the start of the first shot, there was only five minutes before the artillery had to change positions.

In a country without artillery, commander Ma Ke did not have to worry about the enemy's artillery counterattack.

However, he didn't plan to test fire.

Because the test fire took too long, it was enough for the oasis army to run away with their tanks.

Therefore, commander Ma Ke used the simplest method.

He had already calculated the data. He wanted to fire directly, and the entire army would fire together.

As for whether it was accurate or not, he would say it as he fired.

Anyway, he wanted to fire at the enemy's camp. It didn't matter if there was a slight error. They could correct it as they fired.

Besides, with the help of all kinds of modern calculation and positioning technology, it wasn't as difficult to prepare to fire at Zhu Yuan anymore.

Yu Tian's target was the enemy's armored troops. As for the infantry in the camp... those pieces of trash weren't important.

The observers had already calculated the position of the Oasis Army's armored troops and were waiting for the sudden attack from the artillery.

The main purpose of this type of attack without test firing was to not give the enemy any time to react.

From the start of the first round, it was a high-density rapid attack that dealt the most damage to the enemy in the shortest amount of time.

"Everyone pay attention! "

"One standard, shoot at top speed!"

"Target number one... Fire! "

There was no other way. The cannon conditions of Kannima were not perfect, so they could only use this backward command method.

Fortunately, this place was relatively quiet, and there were no enemies around, so it was more suitable for shouting.

Under the command of the commander of the Death God, nearly a hundred howitzers on the battlefield began to roar.

The process was very rushed, and there was no sense of ceremony.

However, it looked very shocking. After all, nearly a hundred howitzers fired at the same time. This kind of scene was rarely seen in world wars.

The artillery soldiers themselves felt their blood boiling, as if they were on steroids.

Everyone's ears were buzzing, but they did not need to listen to any further orders. They had to finish firing a standard shell first.

The observers were also the firing commanders of the artillery. After observing the situation where the shells fell, they would immediately report the firing results to the artillery positions.

Commander Ma ke would adjust the firing parameters of the cannon according to the firing results.

He wanted to go to the front line to take a look and see how the enemy's camp had been blown up.

Hence, he immediately jumped onto the military vehicle and left the position with his bodyguards.

Commander Death God originally wanted to stop him, but when he thought of the powerful force Yu Tian had displayed, he felt that he did not have to worry about Yu Tian's safety.

His task was to protect the artillery position, not to meddle in Yu Tian's business.

Yu Tian drove the military vehicle at full speed.

The artillery position was less than 20 kilometers away from the Oasis Army's camp, and it would be slightly farther if he took a detour.

However, he did not really need to run to the Oasis Army's camp. He only needed to be a few kilometers away from the camp to see the battlefield.

The Oasis army was stationed at the edge of the mountain where the mine was located. Yu Tian only needed to find a higher mountain in the distance to use his night vision binoculars to see the situation in their camp.

The military vehicle sped all the way to the eastern side of the oasis army in less than ten minutes.

Although it was a little bumpy, Yu Tian was still full of energy.

When he reached the foot of a mountain, he immediately jumped off the vehicle and ran to the top of the mountain.

This was not the highest mountain, but the height was enough for him to observe.

Under the binoculars, the Oasis Army's camp was in chaos.

It was unknown how many rounds of rapid artillery had been fired, but the oasis army's armored troops had been blown to pieces.

Perhaps it was because the artillery was too dense, but more than half of the Oasis Army's tanks did not escape the artillery coverage of the camp.

Many of the tanks remained in the camp and continued to be bombarded.

Although the tanks did not look like they had been destroyed, they remained motionless.

It was unknown whether the drivers had been killed by the indiscriminate artillery fire or some of the functions of the tanks had been damaged.

Needless to say, most of the armored vehicles and military vehicles had been destroyed, and the rest were basically incomplete.

There were also some who ran out of the camp and avoided the range of the artillery bombardment, but could only huddle together in the distance of the camp, not knowing where to go.

Facing the artillery, they seemed to have no countermeasures.

They didn't even know what to do next, not knowing if it was because their commander had been killed in the explosion.

The army camp where the infantrymen were was dumbfounded.

They were basically not affected by the artillery fire, but they were still in a mess.

Countless soldiers ran out of the army camp and entered the defensive positions.

Their defensive positions were very simple and crude, much simpler than those outside the city of Kannima.

This kind of position could not defend against howitzers. At most, it could only give them some psychological comfort.

Yu Tian brought three base number shells this time, each howitzer has nearly 200 rounds of ammunition on average.

Yu Tian began to think about how to deal with the Donglong Company and Uncle Long's matter.

Uncle Long's whereabouts were unknown, so it was certainly not Ivan who made the move.

It was possible that he had fallen into the hands of the Sanmao nation, or it was possible that he had fallen into the hands of other big countries, such as the old Mao nation or the beautiful nation.

Another possibility was that he had fallen into the hands of the clone society.

However, Yu Tian felt that the possibility of Uncle Long's life being in danger was not very high.

As the actual manager of the Donglong Company, Uncle Long definitely had a large amount of industries and funds in his hands. These things were certainly not something that the rebels could easily obtain.

This was the most basic method of a manager. Any manager would grab the most important things in their own hands.

Uncle Long was not an idiot. Of course, he would have his own contingency plans after an accident. He would not let outsiders take advantage of him.

Therefore, Uncle Long's life would not be in danger for the time being.

He still had a lot of value. At least, those people would not easily kill him before they squeezed out the wealth he had.

Yu Tian hesitated for a long time between the donglong company and uncle long. He decided to deal with the DONGLONG company first.

This time, Uncle Long's accident was a trap set up by the Kronin association with some countries. The enemy could be said to be unprecedentedly powerful, and it would be difficult to gain an advantage in a head-on confrontation.

On the East Dragon Company's side, it was the Kronin Association that had allied with the traitors and seized the power of the East Dragon Company.

It felt that it was easier to deal with the East Dragon Company's matters.

If the East Dragon Company was a collective rebellion, then after dealing with these traitors, the East Dragon Company would definitely be greatly weakened.

But even if the East Dragon Company was greatly weakened, as long as it was once again in Yu Tian's hands, it would still be a colossus.

They would still have a large amount of wealth in their hands, and it would still be an organization worthy of the attention of the various large countries.

With the strong strength of donglong company as support, Uncle Long would naturally be safer.

No matter which country uncle long fell into the hands of, they would consider using uncle long to exchange for certain benefits.

This was a very common method for those major countries.

Seizing certain businessmen and executives of certain companies, and then using various methods to seize their assets as their own... These things had already been done more than once or twice by certain countries.

Therefore, controlling donglong company and adding some chips to his hands was the first thing that Yu Tian had to settle now.

As for the KLONI association, what they wanted to destroy was the entire Donglong company, as well as the true behind-the-scenes boss of Donglong Company.

If they found out that Donglong company had been seized again, and the true behind-the-scenes boss had also appeared, their interest in Uncle Long would not be so great, and Yu Tian would not need to worry about Uncle Long's personal safety.

In addition, for a multi-pronged operation like this to secretly capture Uncle Long, the leading power was definitely in the hands of some countries.

The Kronin Society might still kill Uncle Long to vent their anger, but those countries that were involved would definitely not allow such a situation to occur.

After considering all the factors, Yu Tian felt that the right choice was to deal with the Donglong Company's rebellion first. It would also be more helpful in rescuing uncle long.

Although he didn't know much about the donglong company's current situation, Yu Tian still had his own methods to deal with the rebellion.

He immediately picked up the phone and made a call.

He contacted Old Wang from the donglong country's security department. Old

Wang had previously taken the initiative to offer assistance to the Donglong Company's matters. Yu Tian felt that there was no harm in letting the donglong country participate.

What the Donglong Company lacked the most was fighters. They were still at the level of bodyguards and assassins.

If they had the support of the eastern country, their shortcomings in this area could be quickly remedied. Their control over the various branches of the company would also be strengthened.

In addition, Yu Tian currently lacked intelligence support and logistical support. With the assistance of the eastern country, many things would become very easy.

Old Wang's call was quickly connected.

Yu Tian said straightforwardly, "I need a transportation tool that can send me to the wind country as soon as possible." "No problem. When do you want to set off?" "Tonight, at the latest tomorrow morning.

"Where to pick you up?"

"The seaside... Don't tell me you can come to kanmud to pick me up?"

"As long as you provide us with a location, we can pick you up anywhere.

Old Wang's tone was full of confidence. Yu Tian was a little surprised, but when he thought of the rapid development of the eastern country over the past few years, he suddenly had some expectations.

How advanced was the eastern country's military technology? Were there any other secret weapons?

Yu Tian paused for a moment and immediately said, "Alright... Then, I will give you the coordinates of the vicinity of Kanima City."

"No problem. Our people will contact you at that time.

"Okay. "

"Do you have any other needs?"

"Not at the moment, but... do you have any armed forces in the wind country?"

“We don’t have many of our own operational personnel in the wind country, but... “Old Wang hesitated for a moment and immediately said, “We have a completely controlled security company.

“The main members of the security company are all ex-soldiers and ex-mercenaries.

“That’s good. I should hire them as security guards at that time and let them maintain the order of Donglong Company and be responsible for the safety of the company’s employees. ”

“That’s not a problem. You can inform me whenever you need anything. I can arrange it for you as soon as possible.”

“Thank you.

Yu Tian hung up the phone.

Using the security forces controlled by the eastern country was at least more reassuring than using the security companies that were hired from outside.

Even when necessary, they would accept some special arrangements from Yu Tian. The company’s higher-ups would also let them work even harder.

With reliable armed forces, Yu Tian felt that he had nothing more to arrange.

If the battle at Kannima went smoothly today, he would immediately lead the mouse team to the wind country.

To deal with the chaotic situation at Donglong Company, he had to go straight to the yellow dragon and clean up their headquarters first.

After lunch, Yu Tian began to wait for the generals at night.

Taking advantage of this free time, he began to practice the magical ancient martial arts that he had picked out.

First was the six meridians divine sword. This set of martial arts was just like in novels, with a total of six meridians.

Yu Tian had only used one type of Shang Yang Sword, and he felt that it was enough.

Next, he only needed to master it skillfully, and there was no need to practice the other meridians for the time being.

Translator: 549690339

After practicing the internal force movement of the Shang Yang Sword for dozens of times, Yu Tian felt that he had mastered the Shang Yang sword very well.

This thing was actually not difficult. With a little practice, he could use it easily.

But the biggest problem now was not the degree of proficiency in using this set of martial techniques.

According to the TV series and the original novels, the use of the six meridians divine sword required a deep level of internal force.

In the early stages, the main character's internal force was too weak, which was why he often had problems with it.

Moreover, he himself had not realized this problem. He always thought that he could launch a few shots at any time, but when he could not, it would be awkward.

In the later stages, the main character absorbed a lot of other people's inner energy before he could finally use the six meridians divine sword freely and flexibly.

Yu Tian had the same problem now, which was that the amount of inner energy was too little.

Of course, he would not be as naive as the main character. He clearly had no inner energy in his body, yet he still had to shoot a few shots.

In order to prevent his inner energy from running out, he had to strengthen his inner energy reserve as soon as possible.

There was only one way, which was to absorb the energy from the stone.

Yu Tian had already practiced the nameless mental cultivation method in the morning, so he was already familiar with the operation of the entire great heavenly cycle.

He decided to immediately start using the nameless mental cultivation method to absorb the energy from the stone.

In terms of practicing martial arts, Yu Tian was still very confident in his Returning to the bedroom, Yu Tian took out the stone again and began to use the energy in his body to activate the energy in the stone.

Just like the situation in the morning, he slightly released a trace of Qi Energy, and the energy in the stone immediately poured into him.

This time, the amount of energy he controlled was even smaller, and the amount of energy he triggered was also a little less than in the morning.

He was still able to withstand this level of impact.

Thus, he immediately activated the nameless mental cultivation method and began to guide the energy in the stone. Following the trajectory of the nameless mental cultivation method, it slowly began to circulate in his body's meridians.

Using the nameless mental cultivation method to absorb qi energy was indeed much faster than using the six meridians divine sword.

After an hour, the cyclone in Yu Tian's body immediately expanded by dozens of times, almost filling up his entire dantian.

He could only stop the absorption and put away the precious stone.

According to the description in the nameless mental cultivation method, this had already reached the bottleneck of the first stage.

If he continued to cultivate, the total amount of his internal energy would not increase too much, because the acupoints in the human dantian were only that big.

To enter the second stage, he had to improve the quality of his internal energy.

According to the method in the nameless mental cultivation method, the second stage was to open two cyclones.

Two cyclones could increase the total amount of his internal energy? It could increase the quality of his internal energy?

Yu Tian did not quite understand.

However, according to the nameless mantra, two cyclones could not only increase the quality and quantity of internal energy, but it could also speed up his cultivation and speed up the recovery of his internal energy.

This was not something that could be explained by modern science, so Yu Tian simply did not think about the rationality of it.

He began to open the second cyclone according to the method in the secret manual.

After trying it for a while, he failed.

Under the interference of the first cyclone, the second cyclone was disturbed before it could take shape.

Yu Tian felt that this was the reason why he was not familiar with the control of his internal energy.

After hesitating for a while, he decided to temporarily give up on entering the second stage of cultivation, because he did not have time today. He could only do these things after he had solved the problem of the DONGLONG company.

It was not completely without benefits to continue repeating the first stage of practice. Although the total amount of inner energy would not increase, after the inner energy was practiced, the speed of recovery would be faster.

As long as the frequency of attacks was not very high, Yu Tian felt that he had brought a desert eagle with unlimited bullets.

Wrong, the six meridians divine sword was much more powerful than the Desert Eagle.

The golden bell cover iron shirt that had no effect from his previous practice immediately had an effect with the support of sufficient internal energy.

Yu Tian could spread his internal energy all over the surface of his body to increase the strength of the surface of his skin. This was the so-called iron shirt.

He could also spread his internal energy outside his body to form a protective shield. This was the so-called golden bell cover.

However, it was obvious that the golden bell shield was more difficult to use than the iron cloth shirt, and it consumed more energy.

However, the Golden Bell Shield also had its own advantages, which was that it could protect the user's clothes and the items they carried with them.

Although the iron cloth shirt was easier to use, it was very likely that the enemy would beat it until it ran naked.

Yu Tian felt the strength of the golden bell shield and iron cloth shirt. He felt that it might be a little difficult to withstand the bullets, but it was not very practical.

This might only be the effect of the initial stage. If he wanted to be truly practical, he had to train the Golden Shield iron shirt to a higher level.

However, Yu Tian obviously did not have enough time to practice these things now. Cramming at the last minute would not have much of an effect. It was much more practical to find a few bulletproof vests.

Yu Tian jumped easily and was actually able to jump to a height of more than ten meters. Climbing eaves and walls had become a reality.

His movement speed also became faster. Even his own shadow appeared after he saw it.

Yu Tian felt that this effect was much better than the golden bell shield and iron cloth shirt. As long as he was not hit by the enemy, he did not need to care about the defensive power at all.

When he had time later, he would practice the Golden Shield iron shirt as a precaution.

When night fell, Yu Tian, whose personal combat strength had greatly increased, found the leader of the Guardian mercenary group, Ma Ke.

The battle was about to start, so Yu Tian wouldn't slack off. He wanted to personally ask about the preparation for the battle.

"Have you finished your reconnaissance work?"

"Most of it has been completed. I've also left a few groups of artillery observers near the enemy's camp... now I'm only waiting to bombard his mother at night.

Commander Ma Ke looked very confident.

Yu Tian nodded and said, "Very good. I'll set off with you guys tonight and personally escort you guys."

"Okay boss, follow us and I'll definitely guarantee your safety.

Commander Ma did not refuse. The artillery soldiers were supposed to stay in a safe position. Yu Tian would not be in any danger if he stayed with the artillery soldiers.

Even if the enemy really attacked them, there would be scouts who would discover them in advance.

Commander Ma treated Yu Tian's words of escorting them as mere words.

The next step was to continue to rest and wait for the night to come..

As it was the waning moon, the first half of the night was still not a good time to set off. Everyone could only continue to wait patiently.

At this moment, Old Wang called Yu Tian again.

"I have already prepared the means of transportation and can go to the location you have located at any time. Have you decided when to set off?" "At least until the second half of the night, after midnight..."

Yu Tian was also a little anxious, but there was nothing he could do. The Moonlight Tonight was exceptionally bright, and the first half of the night could not be dimmed.

The war was a major event, so they could not take the risk to attack.

Old Wang said, "The second half of the night is fine, but I suggest that you set off before dawn. That way, it won't be easy to be discovered by the satellites of certain countries.

He was so bored that his balls hurt. He could only continue to practice his nameless mental cultivation method.

There was finally movement in the camp of Kannima.

The tractor-trailers were similar to trucks, but their performance was usually better and their off-road ability was stronger.

Apart from carrying shells, the tractor-trailers could also carry artillery and a small number of infantrymen. These infantrymen were enough to complete the basic defense of the artillery positions.

However, Yu Tian still brought dozens of military vehicles and all the members of the death god mercenary group.

In addition, he also brought enough RPGs.

If they really encountered any unexpected circumstances, they had to at least let the artillery positions have a certain degree of resistance. They couldn't just throw away these howitzers for nothing.

Because Kandama had been under curfew recently, the spies in the city had no chance to see what was happening outside the city at night. Hearing the sounds of the movement of the army, they could only guess what was going on.

Perhaps they thought that there was a military operation in Kannima at night, but they did not know what kind of operation it was, so they could only warn the oasis army to be careful.

After reminding them a few times, they found that nothing had happened. The movements outside the city and around the barracks were just making noise.

It was like a wolf coming, so the spies in Kannima City were already used to the movements of the troops.

The wilderness near Khannema was flat, and there was basically no terrain to hide in. One could even see what was happening a few kilometers away at a glance.

This made Khannema's defense a little troublesome, and it also made some of Khannema's military operations very difficult to hide.

But similarly, this terrain also made it difficult for the enemy's reconnaissance troops to hide themselves.

As long as they found suspicious vehicles, they could drive the military vehicles and chase them for several kilometers.

Unless they encountered the enemy's large army, and some mountainous terrain that was prone to ambushes, they didn't have to worry about anything.

Therefore, in the area near the outskirts of Kandama city, they basically did not have to worry about being spied on by the enemy.

However, the situation at night was slightly different. The enemy scouts might muster up the courage to get closer to Kandama City.

Of course, the Kandama side could not allow the enemy to be so rampant. Therefore, at night, they would send a large number of convoys to patrol the surrounding areas to clear out those scouts that might exist.

In any case, there were no enemies that came to Khanima. The soldiers stationed there were also a little bored. They were all hoping to make a small contribution and get a little reward.

This time, the artillery unit moved out at night. Naturally, KHANIMA's patrols outside the city were strengthened.

They had to ensure that when the artillery unit left the city, they would not be discovered by any enemies. When they were deep in the Gobi Desert, it would be even more impossible for the enemy to discover their presence. Unless the enemy was bored and left a few scouts in the Gobi Desert that no one went to.

This was a matter that depended on luck.

The Death God mercenary group was the escort force of the artillery unit this time. Naturally, they had to take on the task of clearing the way and scouting.

They had more than a hundred people and drove more than thirty light assault vehicles. When the artillery unit was still in formation, they had already set off.

The patrolling soldiers checked the surroundings once, but the death god mercenary group still had to check again and expand the scope of the inspection.

They were equipped with night vision equipment in every direction of their patrol, so they could find the enemy's vehicles at a very far location.

If the enemy was an infantryman, and they were lying on the ground, they might not be able to find them.

While guarding against the enemy's scout, Yu Tian also scouted and monitored the enemy's camp.

After the artillery unit left Kanmud City, Yu Tian immediately asked commander Ma Ke to contact the scouts on the front line to ask if there were any unusual movements in the oasis army's camp.

The scouts replied that the Oasis Army's camp was very quiet. Apart from normal patrols and sentry posts, they did not take any special actions.

Judging from the enemy's reaction, they should not have noticed the movement of the artillery unit, and they should not have deployed any scouts near Kainima.

However, when they got closer to the mining area in the west, the enemy would definitely have defensive sentry posts.

However, the artillery unit would not go to the west. Not long after they left the city, the artillery unit turned to the south.

They had to go around to the south of the oasis army. On the way, they would pass through a long stretch of uninhabited Gobi Desert.

Going South would take them a distance closer to the mountains. However, the enemies in the south had long been crippled. They had long given up on the idea of continuing to fight with the army of the KANIMA.

In the morning, there was another army that was cleaning up the battlefield in the mountains that had retreated to Kainima. They reported that the enemies in the south had long since disappeared. They did not suffer any attacks or harassment on their way back, they did not even see a single feather of the enemy.

In order to ensure the safety of their operations at night, Harold had specially sent a wave of reconnaissance troops to scout some of the surrounding areas..

After scouting, they discovered that the pirate army in the south had indeed disappeared without a trace.

After Morse suffered a defeat, the entire southern army lost all confidence in fighting. They ran straight back to whale city and prepared to disband.

If it weren't for the Oasis Army's actions, those pirates might have really disbanded and gone home.

This situation was very beneficial to kannima, and it was also very convenient for them to move at night.

After the artillery unit traveled a distance to the south, they started to head southwest into the Gobi Desert.

At this time, the cautious commander Ma Ke once again contacted the scouts on the front line to confirm the movements of the oasis army camp.

This time, everyone could basically confirm that the operation to secretly leave the city was a success.

If the enemy sensed something, there would definitely be some reactions in the oasis army camp.

Not to mention sending the armored troops to attack, at least a large number of infantrymen would be woken up and arranged into the surrounding positions.

If they did not take any action, it meant that everything was fine.

However, the artillery unit still did not dare to move too arrogantly. The leading military vehicle still used night vision goggles to lead the way. The tractor at the back only turned on a small flashlight-like light and continued to move forward in silence.

This was to prevent the presence of enemy scouts in the surroundings. Too strong a light would disturb the Scouts' sleep.

Fortunately, this was a Gobi Desert. Other than some bumps, they would not encounter any ditches or deep pits.

After walking for more than two hours, the death god regiment commander who was leading the way in front suddenly sent a message.

"We have a situation. Stop Moving Forward!"

The leading military vehicle immediately stepped on the brakes. Following that, the tractor cars behind also lit up one after another with faint red brake lights.

Yu Tian hurriedly picked up the communicator and asked, "What's the situation?"

"We found an army ahead. It seems to be... an armored force?"

The commander of the Grim Reaper was also a bit puzzled. Wasn't the armored force of the Oasis Army sleeping in the camp? Why did they come here? Could it be that they had a hidden army?

No wonder there was no movement in the oasis army camp. They were trying to paralyze us..

Uh... WAIT!

The Grim Reaper suddenly felt that something was wrong. He remembered that there was an armored army in kannima, and they were hiding in the Gobi desert between the west and the south.

With the advantage of the night vision goggles, the Grim Reaper secretly drove the military vehicle forward for a while.

Then, he became even more confused.

He saw some military vehicles and tanks. The style of those tanks seemed to be the old-fashioned tanks of the KHANNIMA armored forces.

So, he immediately reported, "Boss, that seems to be our armored forces..."

Yu Tian was slightly stunned, then he recalled the order he gave Colonel Snoopy.

He told Colonel Snoopy to wait for an opportunity to make a move and decide whether or not to participate in the war and how to participate.

The reason for this decision was that he did not want Colonel Snoopy's armored troops to go head-to-head with Oasis's armored troops.

Although he was now preparing to attack the Oasis Army's camp with artillery fire, it was still unknown how much damage the howitzers could cause to the oasis army's tanks.

The howitzers were not mainly used to hit the tanks. The artillery used to hit the tanks was best to shoot horizontally and directly. Howitzers were curved projectiles. The shells fell in a parabola toward the enemy's camp.

Such a shooting trajectory made the shells lose the ability to penetrate armor when they fell.

It was difficult to penetrate the thick armor of a tank. It was usually difficult to penetrate the armor of a tank unless it hit the top of the tank's head.

The armor on the top of the tank's head was very weak. It was still easy to be damaged by a large caliber shell.

Of course, there were other situations.

For example, if the bullet landed right next to the tank's tracks, the impact of the explosion might flip the tank over and break the tracks.

The specific situation had to consider the type of tank, and there was a difference between a heavy tank and a light tank.

In addition, although the explosion at close range could not penetrate the tank's armor, it might cause damage to some of the equipment on the tank. The tank would be left with nothing but its armor, but it would lose its ability to fight.

In short, it would be best to see how far the oasis army would be able to last after this night of howitzers.

Therefore, whether Colonel Snoopy would take the opportunity to launch an attack or not, it would be up to him to decide.

As a professional, Yu Tian believed that Colonel Snoopy would definitely not do something stupid like hitting a rock with an egg.

Yu Tian immediately dialed Colonel Snoopy's number again. After confirming with each other, he realized that they had coincidentally come together.

This kind of coincidence was perhaps inevitable. Everyone wanted to go to the Oasis Army's camp to make a scene, so they naturally appeared around the Oasis Army's camp.

Yu Tian did not waste any time. He let the artillery force continue to move forward, and then let Colonel Snoopy continue to ambush them.

This time, the artillery unit did not only have the mercenaries of the guardian mercenary group. Yu Tian pulled out all the instructors of the Tiger squad who knew how to play with howitzers.

In addition, there were also a few hundred cadets who acted as coolies. They were in charge of carrying the shells and loading them.

The people of Tamar were naturally gifted in war. They could basically play with guns and rpgs by themselves.

Although they did not receive any training, their marksmanship was quite accurate, just like the eastern country's militia guerrillas back then.

As long as they did not need to calculate, they would be able to act as a member of the artillery team and perform those simple shooting operations.

This phenomenon showed that the people of Damadi didn't lack basic combat skills.

Under certain conditions, they could still become qualified soldiers and use and operate some less high-tech weapons.

Under the command of the guards mercenary group and the Tiger Squad instructors, the artillery positions were quickly spread out.

At this time, the tractor finally turned on the lights and lit up the artillery positions on the first line.

Although the new recruits in Kannima were not professional enough, they were still qualified to work as coolies. They completed these preparatory work in ten minutes.

Then, they adjusted the shooting parameters. These were the data that had been investigated and calculated.

Translator: 549690339

If all the shells were fired, there would be about 20,000 rounds.

This was enough to blow up every corner of the oasis army camp.

However, after a basic number of shells bombarded, the artillery fire suddenly stopped, and the battlefield seemed to become much quieter.

The oasis army was shocked and suspicious. The soldiers outside the camp did not dare to return to the camp to clean up the mess.

Their armored troops only had less than 50 of them left. Among them, there were less than 20 tanks. The rest were mostly military vehicles that ran faster.

It seemed that the proportion of the remaining tanks was relatively large, which meant that the tanks were indeed more resistant to being beaten up.

There were about thirty tanks that were killed, and nearly fifty armored vehicles were also abandoned in the camp.

The gains from this artillery attack could be said to be huge.

The sound of a convoy advancing could be heard from the distance behind them. Yu Tian turned around and saw that it was Colonel Snoopy's tank.

It couldn't be said that he was picking up scraps. He should have led the tank troops to set off before the results of the shelling came out.

Perhaps he had already expected the result of the shelling and could cause a devastating blow to the enemy.

Or perhaps he planned to drive the troops over first. If there was an opportunity, he would rush forward to pick up scraps. If there was no opportunity, he would retreat quickly.

In short, they came just in time.

Looking at the Oasis Army's armored troops, they were still in a bit of a mess, as if their commander had really been blown to death by the chaotic cannon fire.

This was a case of the house falling into the rain at the same time, and it could be considered extremely unlucky.

The Oasis Army's armored troops that had lost their command did not show any unity for a long time, as if the commander of the infantry side did not care about them.

Colonel Snoopy's armored unit was moving forward, and the formation had already begun.

These movements were naturally noticed by the oasis army. Their infantry position immediately panicked and began to set up the eastern defense line.

Yu Tian originally thought that they would ditch the infantry and run for their lives. After all, this was the fighting style of the F * cking army.

One was the fuel problem. The way back was too far.

Without filling up the tank with gas and bringing a few large tanks, they wouldn't be able to run far.

The other was that Colonel Snoopy's armored forces had even faster armored vehicles.

They chased and harassed along the way. They could definitely make the oasis army's dozens of tanks die on the way home.

However, Colonel Snoopy did not give them the chance to put up a desperate fight. His armored troops suddenly stopped.

The oasis army immediately felt that the situation was not good.

This time, their target was the infantry position outside the barracks.

There was a slight error in the firing point, but it did not affect the overall situation.

This time, they only fired about half of the artillery shells before the artillery shells stopped.

The infantry positions of the oasis army had been blown up so badly that it was unbearable to look at.

Their positions did not have the ability to defend against the bombardment of the howitzers. The soldiers hiding in the positions were still killed and injured.

The tank troops hiding behind the position were also unlucky. This time, within the range of the artillery fire, a few more tanks had stopped moving. There were only about ten of them left.

However, the military vehicles still managed to escape in time. Almost as soon as the sound of the artillery fire was heard, they immediately began to flee to the back, like frightened birds.

However, this was meaningless because Colonel Snoopy's armored forces immediately launched a charge.

This time, the artillery and armored forces seemed to have a certain coordination.

Commander Ma Ke called Yu Tian. "Boss, our artillery forces are preparing to retreat.

"Retreat. Your mission has been successfully completed. The rest of the battle is none of your business."

No wonder it was said that cannons were the king of war. The truth was within the range of the cannons.

Without the preparation to face the cannons, without building a professional anti-cannon position, the enemy simply did not have the ability to fight against the artillery.

This battle was also equivalent to teaching Oasis a lesson. Don't always look for foreigners to buy tanks. As long as their tactics were correct, cheap cannons would be more valuable than tanks.

Of course, tanks were also valuable, such as cleaning up the mess.

As soon as Snoopy's armored troops charged over, Oasis army began to surrender.

There were more than 200 tanks and armored vehicles. This kind of steel flood was terrifying.

In addition, Colonel Snoopy had mixed military vehicles with them. He turned on the bright headlights and shot straight at the enemy's position. This made the enemy even more dazzled. They could not figure out his background.

Snoopy had already communicated with the mine before. The army in the mine had already advanced to the front line during the night.

Now that they wanted to pick up the scraps, it was naturally for everyone to pick up the scraps together.

The army in the mine was very interested in accepting the surrender, cleaning up the battlefield, and watching the captives.

Only Colonel Snoopy was not interested. Their armored troops did not play a decisive role in the battle on the entire Kannima battlefield, and they were always picking up scraps.

There were also two mercenary groups that were not interested, the hyena mercenary group and the death God mercenary group.

They did not do much work this time, and their income would not be too high.

The existence of these things was like nuclear weapons. It was already very good that they could act as a deterrent.

Under the deterrence of the armored forces, the enemy would quickly surrender. This would save a lot of ammunition consumption and also save a lot of casualties.

In addition to the captured prisoners, whether it was for ransom or to be taken back as coolies, it was a very good choice.

Seeing the armored forces rapidly advancing, the army on the mine also rushed into the enemy's camp. Yu Tian felt that he could leave the battlefield.

The rest of the matters were handed over to Snoopy. Yu Tian made a call to inform him, and then he led the bodyguards to quickly rush to Kanima..

The faster the matterId cause.

There was still time before daybreak. Yu Tian quickly informed old Wang and sped toward Kanima.

The better place to meet Old Wang was behind the Kanima military camp, on the road leading to the Maniza land.

Yu Tian was very curious about what kind of transportation tool old Wang would use to meet him and how he would send him to wind country.

Would he use a helicopter to send him to a naval ship by the sea, or a submarine to send him all the way to wind country?

After returning to Kamnima, Yu Tian directly bypassed the city and the military camp and headed straight to the sea passage leading to Manizadi.

The military vehicle quickly approached. Yu Tian took a closer look and saw that the black shadow was actually a plane.

There was no runway in this place. Although the terrain was flat, there were still many bumps and bumps on the road.

A normal plane would not be able to take off and land in such a place, unless it had the ability to take off and land vertically.

As far as Yu Tian knew, the oriental country did not have the ability to produce such a plane with the ability to take off and land vertically, because the oriental country had never been good at engine technology.

The reason for this was rather complicated, so he would not explain it for the time being.

There were only a few types of planes in the world with the ability to take off and land vertically. The five major countries all had their own manufacturing technology, design concepts, and unique plans, but the oriental country was completely blank in this aspect.

Yu Tian did not expect to see the eastern countries' aircraft here, and it was definitely a vertical take-off and landing type aircraft. This really surprised him.

Did the eastern countries secretly advance their technology to this stage, or did they buy these technologies or products from their allies?

After the military vehicle approached, the pilot was already waiting beside the aircraft.

The moment he saw Yu Tian, he immediately greeted him, "Hello, Mr. Yu. I'm here to pick you up."

Yu Tian jumped out of the car and nodded. Without wasting any time, he said directly, "Let's Go..."

However, Yu Tian soon discovered a problem. The plane was not big enough to fit more than a dozen bodyguards.

This made him feel a little frustrated. When he contacted Old Wang previously, he only asked for him to be sent to wind country as soon as possible. He did not mention that he had to bring more than a dozen bodyguards with him.

Normally, other than the bomber-type fighter plane that could hold a few more people, most fighter planes were single-seat or two-seat.

Theoretically speaking, the smaller the load, the faster the fighter plane's speed would be.

Therefore, if the crew of the fighter plane could pilot and operate alone, they would never arrange two seats.

Especially for the vertical take-off and landing type of fighter plane, because the engine load was greater during take-off, the weight would be lighter. Usually, it would only be a single seat.

This was also the reason why the vertical take-off and landing type of fighter planes had not been commonly used. In order to achieve the vertical take-off and landing function, they sacrificed too much for other functions.

For example, they carried fewer bullets, had a shorter flight range, and had a lower cost-effectiveness ratio in war... and so on.

The eastern country's vertical take-off and landing fighter in front of Yu Tian might have been prepared for some special circumstances. It did not carry all kinds of weapons, so it could not be considered a real fighter.

It should be called a transport plane. There was a small crew cabin behind the cockpit. It was purely there to transport supplies or personnel.

With the financial and material resources of the Eastern countries, it was not surprising to spend a lot of money to get a few of these things that were rarely used.

Even if it was purely for technology and research, they could get a few finished products to test out the actual effects.

This was under the condition that they did not carry too much equipment and items. If they still had to carry equipment that was required for certain special missions, then only one person could sit in the crew cabin.

It seemed that this was a transport plane prepared for some special missions.

Yu Tian and the others did not have much equipment. It was impossible for them to bring big weapons like Aya or RPG when they went to the wind country.

He originally wanted to bring a big guy, but he found that the big guy was indeed a little bigger. He could fill up the cabin almost by himself.

Flying was not like taking a bus. The passengers had to have a fixed seat, and there had to be safety measures to prevent accidents.

It was impossible to buy a standing ticket, squat in the cabin, and then let the pilot take off without me.

Cass was also not suitable to accompany him, because Cass was responsible for bringing the whole mouse team to the wind country.

Therefore, Yu Tian could only choose a mouse team member who was more familiar with wind country.

Soon, Kobe stood up and volunteered to accompany Yu Tian.

Kobe was the killer who claimed to be good at interrogation. Compared to the other Kobe, he was much shorter and thinner.

Coincidentally, Kobe was from wind country, so he was naturally more familiar with wind country than the others.

Thus, the candidate to set off was decided. Before Yu Tian boarded the plane, he called Old Wang and asked him to arrange transportation to send his bodyguards to the windy nation.

Then, Yu Tian brought Kobe onto the plane and set off immediately.

The vertical take-off and landing plane was indeed very convenient. It rose into the air unsteadily, and then plunged into the clouds.

It was at least a distance of more than 10,000 kilometers from the Damadi to the wind country, which was at least two eastern countries.

Even if the fighter planes used the speed of sound to travel, it would still take more than ten hours.

This plane could only seat two people at most, except the pilot.

This was another complicated problem, so let's not talk about it for the time being.

In addition, the route to the wind country also passed through the airspace of several countries, so they could not just swagger over the heads of others.

Fortunately, they did not need to take a detour because the Inland Sea was right next to Damadi. They could fly along the inland sea all the way to the northwest wind nation. It would be much safer that way.

The vertical take-off and landing fighter aircraft had been mature in technology and products in the last century. At that time, they were already able to break the speed of sound.

The eastern country's transport aircraft was obviously more advanced in technology and was also faster.

The pilot had already told Yu Tian that their estimated flight time was three hours.

This speed was already the best in the world, or at least among the best known fighter planes.

It could be said that it was very exaggerated that a vertical take-off and landing fighter plane could achieve this speed..

Although the speed was fast, due to its small load, the transport plane did not have enough fuel to fly directly to the vicinity of the wind nation.

After flying over the narrow inland sea, they entered a wider inland sea area.

Then, the plane began to slow down, and then slowly descend.

The medical ship was brightly lit, as if it had been waiting for their arrival for a long time.

The medical ship had a large tarmac, which was just right for the plane to land.

The tarmac was usually used to dock rescue helicopters, but it was clearly larger than the tarmac normally used by helicopters, which was a waste of space for the ship's design failure.

But the eastern countries couldn't have deliberately made such a stupid design, and this landing revealed their true colors.

This time, they passed through two straits and arrived directly near the wind nation's territorial waters.

They landed again, and it was also a medical ship.

The cabin cover was opened, and the pilot took off his mask and said to Yu Tian, "Mr. Yu, I can only send you here. There are people on the ship to assist you, and they will be responsible for your next trip.

Yu Tian nodded and then got off the plane with Kobe.

Of course, the plane could not approach the airspace of the wind country's territorial waters. If it did, it would be discovered by radar and would be "Escorted" by the wind country's Air Force. Even because their identities were unknown, there was the risk of them being shot down and captured.

Therefore, they could only take the sea route, and they had to use the method of sneaking into the wind country.

After getting off the plane, there were already people waiting to meet Yu Tian at the tarmac of the medical ship.

The leader was also an Easterner. When they met, he even gave Yu Tian a military salute.

Yu Tian immediately realized the identity of the other party. This person was from the military.

“Hello, Mr. Yu. My surname is Wang. You can just call me little Wang.

Little Wang... Old Wang..

Yu Tian smiled slightly. What a coincidence.

Little Wang continued, “Next, we will escort you to the wind country.

“No, we can only sneak into the country.”

Because the time zone was different, the wind country was still dark. It was around dawn.

This was a good time to sneak into the country.

After turning on the engine, Yu Tian found that the small motorboat actually did not make any noise, unlike a normal motorboat that had a noisy motor sound.

This was probably a boat that was specially used to carry out infiltration missions. If it was used by smugglers, it would definitely be a great weapon.

There were naturally coast guards patrolling the coastline, but it was impossible to prevent these small boats from sneaking in.

Xiao Wang was not a smuggler. The information he had was far from what those criminals could compare to.

They had already figured out the movement patterns of the Coast Guard and knew the real-time location of the Coast Guard.

The small motorboat approached the coastline and did not encounter any other ships.

The place where they docked was a beach. Little Wang took the lead and jumped into the shallow water. Then, he softly called Yu Tian and Kobe to follow.

The beach was dark, but there was also a weak light from God knows where. Yu Tian could vaguely see little Wang's black figure in front of him.

"Mr. Yu, please follow me.

Xiao Wang walked in the front with a small flashlight. The light could only shine on the road in front of him.

The headlights of this flashlight had a special design. The headlights were sunken and the frame was longer. Unless one looked from the front, one would not be able to see the light of the flashlight.

The three of them walked on the beach and began to walk inland.

Under the night sky, Yu Tian could vaguely see some tall and short black shadows in front of him, which seemed to be some low-rise buildings.

Xiao Wang led Yu Tian and Kobe slowly walked in the darkness, gradually approaching the black shadows.

Yu Tian soon stepped on the wooden stairs. Two or three steps up, there was a long corridor on the wooden floor.

With the faint light of the flashlight, he found that it seemed to be a small bar or restaurant by the beach.

Wherever there was a beach, there would inevitably be some people coming for a vacation.

Places with slightly more people would usually have some bars and restaurants, or other commercial buildings.

Places with less people might also have no buildings or facilities other than a bare beach.

Since there were commercial buildings here, it meant that there were a certain number of tourists coming and going. It was not a secret place.

The three of them entered the room. Wang closed the door and turned on the lights.

There was only one window in the room, and there were thick curtains. There was no need to worry about the light leaking out.

The room was relatively large, but it was piled with a lot of miscellaneous items. It looked a little messy.

There was only one bed in the room, and it was the kind of single bed. It looked like an employee's dormitory.

"Mr. Yu, let's Rest here until dawn. When dawn comes, someone will send your companion's passport over. You can move around freely then." As Xiao Wang spoke, he pulled out a few things from a drawer on a table.

Car Keys, passport, driver's license, change..

Yu Tian's passport was a fake passport that had been prepared a long time ago. However, the Oriental country's security department did not expect Yu Tian to bring an attendant, so Kobe's passport was not yet available. It needed to be made temporarily.

Next, the three of them began to rest and wait for dawn.

There was only one bed in the room. Little Wang and Kobe wanted to let Yu Tian sleep.

However, Yu Tian did not need to sleep. He sat cross-legged in the corner of the room and began to practice the nameless mantra in a serious manner.

The nameless mantra did not necessarily require one to sit cross-legged. However, the practice method of sitting cross-legged was obviously more traditional and more formal. It was very much like an expert practicing martial arts.

Little Wang did not find this traditional martial arts practice strange. Only Kobe was a little curious and took a few more glances.

It was not far from daybreak. Little Wang and Kobe squeezed on the small bed and took a short nap. The morning of the windy nation had arrived..

“Who is it...

He spoke in the language of the wind nation.

The person outside the door replied in oriental, “Breakfast Delivery!”

Xiaowang let out a sigh of relief. He opened the door and let the person outside in.

The person who came in was also an oriental. He was indeed carrying a bag of breakfast.

He casually placed the breakfast on the table, then nodded to Yu Tian and Kobe.

He then said to Xiaowang, “Would you like to have some breakfast?”

Little Wang said, “Let’s get down to business first. We still need a passport.

The person smiled and said, “Don’t worry. I’m a fast worker. I need a few passports and a few passports.

At this time, Yu Tian had also stopped practicing. He looked at the large bag of breakfast and laughed. “Your password is too simple. If we really meet a breakfast delivery person...”

Xiao Wang laughed, “We don’t have a secret signal... we can tell who it is just by listening to his voice.”

Yu Tian came to a realization, and then he casually rummaged through the bag of breakfast.

Although the food preparation in wind country was more exquisite and exquisite, a simple thing like breakfast was still similar to the fast food in most western countries.

There were a few different kinds of bread, with butter, honey, chocolate, or jam.

Then there are sandwiches, with steak, salmon, vegetable leaves, eggs, bacon, ham and other common things.

Then there is coffee and tea juice, which are all very common food.

Yu Tian did not eat properly these two days, but saw the food did not have much appetite, just casually took a sandwich and orange juice.

Kobe still couldn't have breakfast because the Easterner who had just arrived wanted to take a photo of Kobe and make a fake passport on the spot.

In fact, Kobe was originally from the windy nation, so he naturally had a passport from the windy nation.

However, he was an assassin. His previous identity might have some problems, so it wasn't convenient to use it. It was better to get a fake passport.

Yu Tian was a little surprised. "That's it?"

"It's definitely done."

"It won't be detected?"

"Absolutely not. Even if the police come to take a look, they won't be able to tell if it's real or fake. Even the identity in the official system can be matched... at least for this period of time, this identity will always exist."

This Easterner's face was full of confidence, and Yu Tian could not help but sigh at the professionalism and system level of the national organization.

Xiao Wang closed the door and asked Yu Tian, “Mr. Yu, do you need me to continue escorting you?”

Yu Tian shook his head and said, “There’s no need. Our next operation will be a little dangerous.

Xiao Wang smiled and said, “I’m also a member of the operation. I have some combat experience.”

“There’s no need. You guys have already helped me enough. Let me handle the rest of the matters by myself.”

“Alright, if you have any needs in the wind nation, you can contact me directly... It’s the same as contacting China.

“Oh... then do you know that security company?”

“Are you talking about the security company that we control?”

“Yes.

“The higher-ups told me about this matter. I can let the security company participate in your operation at any time, even if it’s completely exposed or destroyed.

“It doesn’t have to be so obvious. I want to hire the security company through normal channels and let them do some normal security work. “You ask the security company to prepare a contract, and Pll arrange for someone to transfer the money to them normally... you can contact this number and let him handle all these matters... his name is No. 55.”

Yu Tian was only concerned with dealing with the traitors. After dealing with the traitors, he planned to hand everything over to No. 55 and the people from East Dragon Company so that they could clean up this mess.

The biggest problem of the East Dragon Company right now was the lack of manpower, especially the lack of operational personnel and security forces.

Number 55 and the other high-level or middle-level cadres were like a single commander. They basically didn’t have many hands left that could be used.

Therefore, it was still very necessary to hire external forces like the security company, especially these trustworthy external forces.

Xiao Wang had already prepared a car for him and parked it on the highway not far from the beach.

It was a very unremarkable ordinary car. It still looked a little old, but the documents and procedures in the car were very complete.

In order to save time, Xiao Wang did not prepare a driver's license for Kobe. So now, only Yu Tian could drive, and Kobe, a local, was in charge of directing the way.

Both of them took the passports of the wind nation and were officially locals of the wind nation.

However, Yu Tian was obviously an immigrant, so all the matters on the trip were handled by Kobe, which would save them a lot of trouble.

The two of them sped along the road and encountered police cars and policemen, but no one paid any attention to them, let alone stopped them.

Their target was the windy nation's dusk city, which was about 100 kilometers away from their current location.

The headquarters of the DONGLONG company was in the suburbs near Dusk City. According to the information provided by No. 55, the place was a winery and a grape plantation.

The wine industry in the wind country was not world-class, but there were many famous brands in the world.

The winery that the Donglong Company used as a cover was also a relatively well-known wine brand in the wind country, but it was not considered an international brand.

He did not go directly to the winery at the Donglong Company's headquarters. Instead, he entered the city first.

There was also an Easterner from the DONGLONG company hiding here. The serial number was No. 76.

This serial number was somewhat chaotic. On the surface, No. 76 appeared to be very low in rank, but in fact, he was a high-level manager at the headquarters.
