Under such chaotic circumstances, the Kronin Society finally confirmed that Yu Tian was indeed in the mini-bull market.

This situation surprised them a little. They thought that Yu Tian should have left the windy nation long ago.

Looking at the current battle situation in the mini-bull market, Donglong Company seemed to have the idea of unifying the underworld.

But this idea was basically impossible to achieve.

As long as the people of Blue Underpants and Red Dragonfly dared to show their faces in public, the police would certainly arrest them.

In the end, there would be no victor in this underworld war.

So, why did Yu Tian go through so much trouble in the mini-bull market?

Kronin would have some doubts, but he didn't care too much about this problem.

In short, Yu Tian was the target they had to eliminate. Only by eliminating Yu Tian could they be considered to have dealt a fatal blow to the Eastern Dragon Company.

However, this time, they did not mobilize the genetic warriors.

The genetic warriors could not do anything to Yu Tian. They could only use them to destroy the other forces of the Eastern Dragon Company.

If they wanted to get rid of Yu Tian, they could only use the members of the Knights.

They quickly figured out Yu Tian's location. The high-end combat power of the Knights quickly gathered in the mini-bull market.

Yu Tian had moved to an apartment building in the slums. The people there were complex, and there were many of them. Together with the messy buildings, it was really a suitable battlefield.

His location had already been leaked through Bono, and it had been confirmed several times by the Kronin Association using various investigative methods.

Yu Tian thought that Kronin would come to kill him soon, but after waiting for a few days, there was no movement at all.

He suspected that Kronin would want to use a missile to directly attack, but he felt that the possibility was not high.

Firing a missile into a city was equivalent to starting a war, and Kronin would not be forced to this path.

There was no other way, so Yu Tian could only continue to wait patiently.

The attackers this time were most likely the knights, so Yu Tian had sufficient ancient martial art practitioners at his side.

Meng Nan and Meng Bei were already in position, hiding in Yu Tian 's apartment building.

In addition, he had another ancient martial art practitioner from the Eastern kingdom by his side.

The new helper was called Tang Lin, and he was from the same sect as Tao Jun Shi, who had died in battle.

However, Tang Lin was not good at using concealed weapons, nor did he use weapons. He was the type that relied on his fists to fight.

Yu Tian felt that this type of ancient martial art practitioner's lethality might not be enough, but Meng Nan and Meng bei both said that this Tang Lin was much stronger than them. This made Yu Tian very much look forward to Tang Lin's performance.

Another quiet night passed, and the war between the East Dragon Company and those gangs quietly began again.

This city was still bustling. Even if there were gangs fighting and killing, it would not be able to stop the demand of ordinary people to earn a living. Yu Tian greeted the other ancient martial art practitioners, then walked out of the apartment and prepared to eat breakfast.

There was an oriental restaurant nearby. For breakfast, one could eat things like noodles and rice noodles.

However, the price of those breakfasts was dozens of times more expensive than in China. A bowl of noodles cost dozens of dollars in international currency.

However, Yu Tian was already very satisfied to be able to eat oriental food in this godforsaken place.

The four of them walked out of the apartment one after another and did not walk together.

Yu Tian was now more like a bait, and the other ancient martial arts practitioners had set up a trap for this bait.

Of course, this wasn't a trap. Kronin would definitely guess that he had guards around him.

If they wanted to attack Yu Tian, they would have to be well prepared. Two or three people definitely wouldn't dare to act rashly.

After passing through the streets and alleys, Yu Tian and the others successfully arrived at the Oriental restaurant.

Then, the four of them sat down and ordered their own dishes, waiting for their own breakfast to be served.

There were not many foreigners who liked to eat oriental food, just like how easterners would eat western food once in a while.

Because there were too many people in the eastern countries, there were always some easterners in the western restaurants.

However, the population of the Western countries was less, so it was not possible to see Westerners in the eastern restaurants.

However, the strange thing was that not long after the few of them sat down, two or three Westerners followed them in. Each of them occupied a table and began to order their own food.

Yu Tian and the other ancient martial art practitioners looked at each other, then continued to wait for their breakfast without batting an eyelid.

The few Westerners who followed them were ninety-nine percent likely to be enemies.

Of course, there was also a slight possibility that they were ordinary people who came to eat breakfast.

No matter what, all of their actions would be closely watched by Yu Tian and the others.

Breakfast was quickly served, and the fragrant beef noodles made Yu Tian's appetite soar.

Although there were still a few suspicious people around, this did not affect him from eating a beautiful breakfast.

Yu Tian ate heartily.

The breakfast of the others was served one after another, and the sound of chewing and swallowing could be heard in the restaurant, which was slightly more elegant than the sound of pigs eating slops.

Yu Tian could eat very quickly, especially when he was in a hurry.

He could finish a bowl of noodles in two or three mouthfuls even if it was full.

Tang Lin's bowl of noodles had just been served, and he had already begun to pick up the bowl and drink the soup.

He had not even taken two mouthfuls of the soup when Yu Tian suddenly started to move.

The Broken Spear had appeared in his hand at some point. He flew toward the Westerner at the table next to him and stabbed him in the waist.

It was said that a spear was like a dragon, but Yu Tian was now like a flood dragon emerging from the water, so fast that no one could react in time.

Since he suspected that the other party was an enemy, Yu Tian did not plan to let the other party make the first move.

Following him to the restaurant in such a swaggering manner and even pretending to sit next to Yu Tian was equivalent to revealing his identity.

No stalking or sneak attack could be so obvious. Even a fool would find it abnormal.

However, Yu Tian did not care about this. Even if he stabbed the wrong person, at most, he could just cure him.

Yu Tian was a doctor, and he was quite good at saving people.

However, if he stabbed the right person, it was the same as striking the first blow. No matter what, he could still gain some advantage.

This action of his was obviously a little unexpected to the westerners. The Westerner who was targeted by Yu Tianxuan hurriedly pushed the table and used this force to retreat.

How could Yu Tian give him a chance to escape when he had gathered all his strength for this attack.

He swung the broken spear and drew horizontally across the person's stomach.

Yu Tian felt that the broken spear seemed to have cut through a piece of metal, but this piece of metal was unable to stop the sharp broken spear. He still managed to cut open the person's stomach.

The Westerner knocked over the table behind him and took a few steps back while clutching his stomach.

At the same time, everyone else erupted at the same time and fought with each other.

At this time, Yu Tian no longer had to guess the identity of these westerners.

They were obviously members of the Kronin Society, and they were also members of the Knights..

Chapter 1432: Chapter 1,431, absolute advantage

Translator: 549690339

Yu Tian's group of four had a total of six Westerners following them into the tour.

In terms of numbers, the enemy clearly had the advantage.

The moment Yu Tian made his move, the rest of the people followed suit.

Apart from the one who had been injured by Yu Tian, three of the remaining five westerners pounced on three eastern ancient martial art practitioners, while the other two pounced on Yu Tian.

It was obvious that these people could accurately identify Yu Tian's identity.

Yu Tian was their main target, so they only needed to entangle the other three ancient martial art practitioners and then concentrate their strength to surround and kill Yu Tian.

These westerners all carried weapons. When they took them out, it was a duan rod that was about half a meter long and felt like a rolling pin.

These westerners gently twisted the short sticks, and a sharp blade silently popped out from one end of the short sticks. The short sticks instantly turned into a short sword that was about one meter long.

Yu Tian immediately knew the specific identities of these people. They were all knight Squires.

The weapons in their hands were the weapons of the two knight Squires that he had seen before.

The previous battle had taken place in the middle of the night, and Yu Tian could not see their weapons clearly. Now, he could see them clearly.

This kind of short sword was a little like a short spear or a javelin throwing spear. The body of the sword was very narrow, less than the width of two fingers.

If one used this kind of short sword to stab someone, one could easily pierce through it with one look. It was extremely dangerous.

Yu Tian 's martial skills were not considered superb. He relied more on his own speed and strength to fight.

This kind of fighting style did not have any obvious disadvantage in a one-on-one fight. After all, in the world of martial arts, speed was the only thing that could not be broken. As long as one's speed and strength were sufficient, ordinary techniques and moves could be easily crushed.

However, when faced with multiple opponents besieging him, his speed was somewhat unable to keep up.

After all, the opponents were all knights 'retinues who were proficient in martial skills. Moreover, they seemed to have undergone genetic modification. Their speed and strength were not inferior to Yu Tian's.

Fortunately, Yu Tian had already dealt a heavy blow to one of them. For the time being, he only needed to face the siege of two Knight Squires.

Relying on his nimble movements, he constantly adjusted his position to prevent the two knight Squires from forming a pincer attack on him.

One against many, the most important thing was not to be besieged.

If the enemies were only in one direction, then he did not need to divert his attention.

Yu Tian waved the broken spear with all his might, forming streaks of blade shadows in front of him.

The two knight Squires knew the power of the broken spear. For a moment, they did not dare to break through from his front. They could only change positions continuously, trying to find his weakness from the side.

The injured Knight Squires were not in a hurry to join the battle. Instead, they quickly treated their wounds.

Although they had undergone genetic modification, their sense of pain had greatly decreased, and normal wounds would not lose a lot of blood.

However, this also depended on the size of the wound. If their stomachs were cut open or their limbs were cut off, they would not be able to ignore such injuries.

Yu Tian's attack just now was too sudden. Although the retinue tried his best to dodge, his stomach was still cut open, and his intestines almost leaked out.

The Knight's retinue all wore inner armor, which was a thin metal plate that protected their torso.

The defensive power of this inner armor was similar to that of ordinary bulletproof vests, but it was very light and did not affect the knight's retinue from performing their martial arts.

However, this level of defensive power could not defend against broken spears, nor could it defend against some large-caliber bullets.

The Knight's retinue wore inner armor mainly to prevent ordinary guns or weapons from hurting them, which could also be considered as an additional layer of protection.

Generally speaking, the Knight's retinue would not use it to fight against the army. This kind of metal inner armor was enough to deal with some small-scale battles.

If it were not for the broken spear in Yu Tian's hand that made them quite fearful, their battle style would be much more violent and unrestrained.

The other three knight Squires fought in such a manner.

Their mission was to tie down Yu Tian's bodyguards as long as they could buy time.

However, they felt that they were fully capable of killing their opponents. They relied on the fact that they were wearing an inner armor, so they did not need to have too much defense. The rhythm of their attacks was very crazy.

Meng Nan and Meng bei used ordinary short knives. Very soon, they broke them when they hit the Knight Squires.

They realized that their opponent was wearing inner armor, so they immediately threw down the broken short knives and began to fight with the enemy using capture.

The Knight's retinue soon encountered a difficult problem. The opponent also wore a very strong bulletproof vest, which greatly reduced the threat of their weapons.

Both sides were in a situation where their defense was high and their attack was low. Even the ancient martial art practitioner's defense was higher.

The ancient martial art practitioner looked for an opportunity to put on his hood and basically ignored the attacks of the cold weapons.

The Knight's retinue's inner armor only protected the torso. The head and limbs did not have any defense. On the contrary, it had more weaknesses.

The Knight's retinue's weapons were also made of key metal alloy. This alloy material was very strong. Even a broken spear could not easily destroy it.

However, their weapons did not have any special advantages other than being strong and sharp.

They could easily split many solid objects, but they also relied on their own strength and the hardness of their weapons.

However, to reach the level of cutting iron like mud, it was not something that modern technology could achieve.

An unscientific existence like a broken spear was a special case in itself.

The weapons of the Knight's retinue could not do anything to these ancient martial art practitioners, so they were quickly caught off guard by the attacks of Meng Nan and Meng Bei.

The martial arts techniques of the east were more exquisite and complicated. Most of the moves of the ancient martial art practitioners had all kinds of grappling and joint techniques.

The martial arts techniques of the Knight's retinue did not have so many exquisite moves. Instead, they relied more on speed and strength to go straight to the enemy.

The outcome of the battle was quickly determined. Tang Lin was the first to take down the enemy. He shattered the opponent's skull with one palm.

Tang Lin was good at fist and foot martial arts. It was naturally not a problem for him to deal with these crude westerners.

The Knight's retinue did not wear helmets. If it was just a normal battle, not wearing a helmet would not pose much of a threat to them. Their speed was enough to allow them to avoid danger. However, when they encountered an ancient martial arts expert, this was a fatal flaw.

After Tang Lin killed his opponent, the situation suddenly reversed.

With extremely fast speed, he suddenly launched a sneak attack on one of the knight squires surrounding Yu Tian and once again sent the enemy flying.

Tang Lin used his internal energy for every attack. Although the knight Squires had also undergone genetic modification, they were unable to withstand a blow of this magnitude.

The situation then took a turn for the worse. After losing the advantage in numbers, the remaining Knight's retinue were no match for him.

Yu Tian casually cut off the head of one of the Knight's retinue, and Tang Lin quickly killed the injured Knight's retinue..

Meng Nan and Meng Bei also quickly finished off their enemies and contentedly snatched the weapons of the Knight's retinue.

The entire battle only lasted for more than a minute before the restaurant was already in tatters.

Yu Tian finally witnessed Tang Lin's combat strength. As expected, he was much stronger than Meng Nan and Meng Bei.

After leaving the restaurant, the Kronin Association's attack seemed to have stopped for the time being.

The six knights' retinue were only the first wave of attack. They might have thought that the six knights' retinue were enough to kill Yu Tian, but they did not expect to be defeated so thoroughly.

Yu Tian and the others still returned to the apartment, swaggering and waiting for the Kronin Association's next wave of attack.

They didn't care what actions the government would take against them. Hiding in the city was equivalent to kidnapping the entire city.

Even if the government evacuated all the citizens of the Mini Bull City from the city, they could still contend against the army in the complex buildings.

This was the terrifying aspect of high-end combat strength. It was even more destructive than the genetic warriors of the Kronin Society.

With the support of the country, the East Dragon Company definitely had the ability to cause a headache for the superpowers.

At night, Yu Tian's side came over with reinforcements.

This time, it was Tang Lin's martial uncles, Meng Nan, Meng Bei's master, and his fellow disciples. There were more than a dozen of them.

There was an old saying in the eastern kingdom, "When the young are beaten, the old will come.

Tao Jun and Liang Yongde, these two ancient martial art practitioners, had died in battle. Moreover, they had been killed by the self-detonation of the Knight's retinue. It was as if they had stirred up a hornet's nest, provoking the experts of these two people's sects.

How dare a mere barbarian show off in front of me, the Easterners?

The Easterners' ancient martial art world was already standing at the top of the world. How could they tolerate these man-made western martial art practitioners coming to provoke them.

In order to ensure Yu Tian's safety, brother Zhu had spent tens of billions of dollars in the country and invited a large number of ancient martial art practitioners to join the battle.

Of course, just the money alone was not enough to impress too many ancient martial art practitioners.

Zhu Geliang revealed the fact that the Knights had used genetic technology to create a large number of high-level martial arts practitioners. He also slightly exaggerated and described the purpose of the clone society using genetic technology to dominate the ancient martial arts world.

This angered the ancient martial arts world of the eastern country.

Although some people thought that Zhu Gelang was exaggerating, using genetic technology to modify ancient martial arts practitioners would indeed create a numerical advantage and pose a great threat to the ancient martial arts world of the eastern country.

After all, it took the eastern country several decades to nurture an ancient martial art practitioner, but genetic technology could quickly raise ordinary people to the level of high-level martial art practitioners. Even if they did not have internal energy, they could still contend with ancient martial art practitioners.

Under the numerical advantage, the ancient martial art world simply had no way to contend with these genetic people.

Therefore, the eastern country's goal was also very similar. They had to eliminate organizations like the clone society in the bud.

This also happened to be in line with the country's interests, so that everyone's participation in the war would feel more like a righteous army.

As a result, more than a dozen reinforcements came at once, giving Yu Tian a feeling that his power had skyrocketed,

What the East Dragon Company had to do now was to fully provide logistical support and support for these ancient martial art practitioners.

For example, the top-fitting bulletproof vests. The East Dragon Company spared no expense to equip each ancient martial art practitioner with a set.

The second wave of attacks from the Clone Society arrived on the second day.

This time, they did not try to hide anything because Yu Tian had always lived in that apartment building. It was obvious that he was waiting to fight against the Knights.

Therefore, the Knights came to him openly and issued a challenge to Yu Tian.

At this time, both sides understood that it was not meaningful to compete with the bottom-level fighting forces. The winner of the war between the two organizations was still determined by the high-end forces.

If the high-level forces won, it would be easy to destroy the remaining forces of the other side.

If the high-level forces failed, they could only wait for the other side to organize their forces and attack them under the leadership of the high-level forces.

Therefore, the second wave of attacks from the Clone Society finally sent out their knights.

Knights were existences who had trained their combat aura. They were on the same level as the ancient martial art practitioners in the east. Their combat strength was a little stronger than those knight Squires.

However, the number of knights that were dispatched this time was not many.

The number of ancient martial art practitioners from the west had always been smaller than those from the east. When they were used, they were also stingy.

During the second attack, there were only three knights. However, the Knight Squires had brought over 30 people.

This proved that the clone society indeed had the ability to mass produce knight squires.

However, although this batch of knight Squires had a large number, their quality was slightly inferior compared to the previous batch.

This was because this batch of Knight's Squires had been selected from the genetic warriors and trained in martial arts.

Their martial arts proficiency was slightly worse than those Knight's Squires that had been trained since they were young. Only by relying on their physical fitness would they be able to shorten the training process.

Initially, Kronin would have thought that three knights with over 30 Knight's Squires would be enough to wipe out Yu Tian's team.

He did not expect Yu Tian to have more than a dozen people by his side, including a few true ancient martial art experts.

When Yu Tian met the ancient martial art assassin, he Feihong, he knew that there were more powerful experts among the ancient martial art practitioners. This time, he had finally experienced it.

Meng Nan, Meng Bei, and Tang Lin said that Tang Lin was very powerful, but Tang Lin said that he could not be considered an expert among the ancient martial art practitioners. At most, he was between a second-rate expert and a third-rate expert.

Among the ancient martial arts practitioners that were going to reinforce him this time, there were his sect elders, as well as Meng Nan and Meng Bei's sect elders.

These ancient martial arts practitioners who had been bitterly practicing their martial arts all their lives had combat strength that far exceeded Yu Tian 's imagination.

Right now, other than a six meridians divine sword that could be used, which could be considered an extremely destructive martial arts technique among the ancient martial arts, Yu Tian 's martial arts in other aspects were far inferior to these true experts.

The strength of the three knights could bring a lot of pressure to Yu Tian. However, in front of a true ancient martial arts expert, they lost their lives in just a few moves. It could be described as being unable to withstand a single blow.

Although the remaining knight Squire had quite a number of people, Yu Tian's side also had over a dozen people. They were not at the stage where they would be besieged by a group.

Under the cover of the others, a few ancient martial art experts quickly killed the enemies one by one. Soon, the difference in numbers was smoothed out, and then all the enemies were annihilated.

With the experts participating in the battle, Yu Tian's side did not even have any injured people.

This kind of situation was also very normal.

As long as the others could withstand a few moves, those experts would quickly finish off their own opponents, and then help the others finish off their opponents.

Their advantage would be like a rolling snowball, getting bigger and bigger.

The ancient martial art experts were like a straw that crushed a camel. Once they broke through a single point, the situation would change like an avalanche.

This battle had fully displayed the strength of the eastern ancient martial art world. All of a sudden, the Kroni society had stopped fighting, and even the surrounding genetic warriors had gone into hiding..

Chapter 1434: Chapter 1,433, rapid development

Translator: 549690339

It was obvious that the clone society was starting to retreat. Their high-end combat power was still insufficient to contend against the East Dragon Company.

Currently, the East Dragon Company was able to mobilize the entire eastern country's ancient martial arts world. The Clone Society was still not ready to fight against them.

It would also take a certain amount of time to produce genetic warriors and warriors modified by genetic warriors. For the time being, the clone society still did not have enough reserves. They did not have the strength to face the entire eastern country.

The clone society would not appear again, and there was no need for Yu Tian to stay in the wind country any longer.

The group did not even go through the formalities of entering and leaving the border. They swaggered out of the wind country through the smuggling channel, and the wind country's officials could only pretend that they had not seen anything.

It was not that the officials could not do anything about these ancient martial art practitioners. Deploying the Navy and fighter jets would always be able to stop the ancient martial art practitioners, and even a missile could take care of them.

However, the wind country authorities did not want to shed all pretenses of cordiality, nor did they want to bear the revenge of the eastern country's ancient martial art world.

As for the chaos that Yu Tian had created in the mini-bull market, the wind country could only swallow this loss silently and did not argue with the East Dragon Company on this matter.

In any case, this chaos was only limited to the underground world, and the casualties were basically all gangsters.

However, the government of the windy nation could no longer tolerate the existence of red dragonflies and blue underpants. Cracking down on the gangsters was something that the government should do.

The donglong company did not attach much importance to the gangster industry, and it was impossible for them to bring this matter out to negotiate with the government.

After the Donglong Company's fighting team disappeared without a trace, the government quickly seized the blue underpants and red dragonflies industry, and began to arrest the gang leaders of blue underpants and red dragonflies.

The donglong company did not resist. If they started a war against the authorities because the police arrested the gangs, they would really become terrorists.

They could only transfer those gangsters out and send them to other countries and regions.

Those who were willing to retire would retire. Those who wanted to continue working in the gangs would join other gangs and start from the grassroots.

Mina 's treatment was slightly better. Her starting position was a gang administrator. As she had eastern blood, if there were no mistakes in her work in the future, it was only a matter of time before she became a regional executive.

Yu Tian and the others returned to the country, and the Kloni Society also temporarily disappeared.

The internal department of the Donglong Company began to focus on reform and reorganization. Yu Tian did not want to interfere with these complicated civilian work. He was only interested in walking around the training camp a few times.

The training camp of the DONGLONG company was not for the training of the regular army. There was not much discipline and training.

The operational personnel that were gathered here mainly received training from special combat squads and cooperation in small-scale operations.

At the same time, they also needed to be exposed to more types of weapons, as well as the driving and operation of various combat vehicles.

Just training alone was not enough to turn these operational personnel into elite soldiers. However, there were not many battlefields for them to fight on at the moment.

Yu Tian originally wanted to throw these combat troops into the battlefields to train, but it felt too wasteful to throw them into a frontal battlefield to participate in battle.

Although the horse-riding region was not a big country, in terms of land area, it was not much different from the wind country.

When this kind of small country's civil war was intense, the scale of the weapons invested was not smaller than the previous world wars. Especially the investment in tanks and cannons, they could definitely crush these small-scale infantrymen.

If they wanted to carry out actual combat training, they could only find another opportunity.

A few months quickly passed, and the initial training of the operations department was basically completed.

After the survival of the fittest, the Donglong Company's combat team finally only had around 5,000 people left.

This number seemed to be quite large, but it was not a large number that could be spread across the entire world.

The donglong company had divided the various regions of the world into five branches, and each branch planned to arrange around 1,000 combat forces.

This was mainly to save money and spend it on the equipment of the combat troops.

In addition, a combat troop of more than a thousand people was already considered a very large force.

Under the condition of being fully armed, a combat troop of a hundred people could absolutely beat the police force of a city to the ground. Even if they encountered an army, they would still have the strength to fight.

The only thing that limited their combat strength was that they could not carry too many weapons and ammunition, and it was also impossible for them to continue fighting.

Of course, the DONGLONG company did not intend to subvert the regimes of those countries. They did not need to launch a large-scale battle.

Their supposed enemy was always genetic warriors. As long as they fully utilized their weapons advantage, a 100-man team would be enough to fight against genetic warriors alone.

In addition, there were also some special operational personnel, such as Yu Tian's previous bodyguard team, the Big Guy, and the mouse team.

These people were all equivalent to ordinary warriors. Although their combat power was not as exaggerated as ancient warriors, they still had their own characteristics and advantages.

Donglong company had selected 200 to 300 outstanding operational personnel from various operational departments and handed them over to ancient warriors instructors for more personal ability training.

These teams were not mainly used to fight against genetic warriors because there were too few of them.

They were used to carry out more difficult assassination missions, and to carry out targets that were not suitable for fully armed raids.

What made Yu Tian feel regretful was that some of the members of the mouse squad had chosen to withdraw from the main combat team. They had voluntarily become a small security guard in the commercial department and had been assigned to companies that had been reorganized around the world.

Even Cass chose to retire. He planned to return to his hometown and continue to be a monk, honing his martial skills.

Yu Tian did not force them to stay. The rat squad had given their lives to him and had made sacrifices. Now that he had retired, he could be considered to have achieved great merit.

The Big Guy, on the other hand, did not leave. He felt that his genetic identity could not be integrated into society, so he was more suitable for the battlefield.

However, the big guy's figure was not suitable for an assassination team, and he did not have the ability and experience to command a large-scale operation. He could only be arranged to be a squad leader in a combat team.

The DONGLONG company developed rapidly and advanced steadily. The newly established departments gradually got on the right track.

However, the Kronin society seemed to have disappeared without any movement.

Yu Tian felt that it was because he had stayed in the country that the clone society had lost their target. That was why they had quieted down again, just like before.

Yu Tian felt that he should reappear abroad to attract the clone society.

However, Brother Pig felt that there was no need. It didn't matter if he killed the small fry or not.

If he had the time to go overseas, he might as well go and have children with Chu Qing and the others. He had more than a hundred wives, but none of them had a son or a daughter. He didn't know what he had been doing all these years.

Yu Tian wanted to retire and live in seclusion as soon as possible, but if he didn't get rid of the Kronin, he would always have a hard time..

Chapter 1435: Chapter 1,434, stepping in

Translator: 549690339

The opportunity came very quickly.

While Yu Tian was bored in the country, the DONGLONG company finally found the headquarters of the KLONI Association.

In the past few months, they had dug out almost all the land in the mud country. Finally, they noticed something unusual at a military base in the mud country.

The mud country was a small country formed by warlords. Naturally, the ones in power were also warlords with guns.

Behind any warlord was the shadow of another country's forces. The rulers of the country of mud were no exception. Behind them were the people of the country of coal.

The warlord of the country of mud had set up a military base near an important mine. In this military base, there would often be the shadow of suspected soldiers of the country of coal.

According to the investigation of the DONGLONG company, these soldiers of the country of coal should be the military instructors that the country of coal supported the country of mud's army. The strange thing was that the material consumption of this military base was very high.

Mainly in terms of food, the supply far exceeded the needs of the people in the base.

Although the food supply and waste of the coal country's army had always been ranked first in the world, the mud country's military base that they supported was not to the extent of such waste,

The countries in black continent were already short of food. No matter how much they wasted, it was usually in terms of weapons and ammunition. There was no possibility of wasting food.

Therefore, donglong company suspected that the headquarters of the Clone Society was hidden in this military base.

As they continued to investigate, it seemed that there was no hidden space in this military base. The intelligence personnel of Donglong Company set their eyes on the nearby mine.

There was already a large amount of construction in the mine. In order to mine, the underground was already riddled with holes.

If Kronny secretly built a base in the underground of the mining area, then all he needed to do was to use the existing mine, and the construction would also be covered.

Moreover, with the cover of the military base next to it, their personnel and supplies would also be difficult to detect.

This was indeed a very hidden location, and it was also very convenient for Kronny to conduct genetic experiments in the mud country.

This was because the warlord leaders who ruled the mud country were bloodthirsty to begin with, and there were many rebels who were executed every year. These people could be sent to the clone society and become their experimental materials.

Donglong company secretly observed for two months and finally confirmed that there was indeed a secret base hidden in the mining area. That should be the headquarters of the Clone Society.

However, what made them feel troubled was that this secret base was obviously under the protection of the ruler of the country of mud, and even had some connections with the people of the coal country.

This made it difficult for Donglong Company to act.

Pigge Liang had long felt that the coal country's official attitude toward the KLONI society was somewhat ambiguous. Now it seemed that they had been together for a long time.

If they were to simply attack the KLONI society, the coal country's people would not be able to openly react.

However, if they were to attack the mine's secret base, the mud country's warlords and the coal country's people would not be able to sit idly by.

They could treat this attack as an attack on the mine, a provocation to the mud country and the coal country.

This was the mud country's territory, and the military base was right next to it. There was no chance for other forces to act atrociously.

If they wanted to attack the mine, they had to take down the military base next to it.

With such a scale of battle, it was almost like they wanted to overthrow the mud country's warlord regime.

The East Dragon Company could not hide their identity in such a scale of battle. Once the battle started, the whole world would know that they were the ones who did it.

An external force attacking a country would naturally not be justified, and the international impact would be very bad.

Therefore, if they really wanted to attack this mine, they had to find a local force to do it in the name of subverting the regime.

For the DONGLONG company, subverting the regime of a small country was not particularly difficult. The difficulty was that this small country had the support of the Coal Nation Consortium.

Once the fight started, the Coal Nation people would naturally intervene, and in the end, it would turn into a battle between two super powers.

This situation made Piggy Liang struggle for a few days. He even repeatedly discussed it with the higher-ups.

A month later, the higher-ups' attitude changed. F * Ck him.

They did not use the name of the war against terrorism to directly help the resistance of the mud nation to rebel.

Under the rule of warlords, there were naturally resistance forces. However, these resistance forces were usually very weak and existed in the form of guerrillas.

The resistance forces of the countries in Hei Zhou were even more shabby. Not only did they not have many weapons, they could not even wear clothes or pants.

Such a group basically had no value to support. It could be described as a group of mud that could not support a wall.

Whether it was economic aid or assistance in terms of weapons and supplies, they were unable to make these bandit-like guerrillas have the ability to overthrow the warlords.

At this moment, the arrangements that Yu Tian had made previously came into effect.

The Abu military group that he had established in Damadi had tens of thousands of troops in their hands.

These troops already had rich combat experience in damadi, and they were also familiar with all kinds of combat equipment. More importantly, they were all black men.

It was impossible for the eastern country's army to be sent to the mud country. The Eastern Dragon Company's operational forces were mainly white men. If they carried out military activities in the mud country, it would not be a rebellion, but an invasion.

To let the black workers from Damadi sneak into the mud country to participate in the war looked almost exactly like the locals, except that they were wearing better equipment.

There was no better choice.

However, there was another troublesome matter. The war in Damadi was still in a stalemate. Although the Abu Group firmly occupied their own territory, they would not give up even an inch of land.

However, the official army in Tahmati was still in a stalemate with the Abu Group.

There was no other way. The East Dragon Company could only spend a large sum of money to solve the problem in Tahmati first.

A large number of advanced equipment was sent to Tahmati, including fighter jets and missiles.

In addition, a large number of mercenaries were also involved.

A barren place like Tahmati had never attracted the interest of other big countries. No one invested here, and no one supported the warlords here.

The behavior of the DONGLONG company was observed by the other big countries, and they could not figure out their purpose.

However, the coal country had always liked to cause trouble for the eastern country.

The donglong company and the eastern country were birds of a feather in his eyes. No matter what the Donglong Company's purpose was, the people of the coal country did not mind being a troublemaker to cause trouble for the DONGLONG company.

The people of coal country immediately began to assist the officials of the Ma di empire, providing them with material and weapons assistance. Then, they condemned the rebels of the Ma di empire internationally and said that they would consider beheading the ABU group.

However, before they could start their operation, the war in the Ma di Empire was over.

Donglong Company's assassination team directly sifted through the leadership of the oasis. They basically killed all of them, leaving only small fish and small shrimps..

Just like that, general Abu became the president of Damadi. General Caro took the opportunity to push the armored forces to the port of Sherimbe and killed the last warlord, the horse monkey, who was entrenched in the north.

The assistance supplies from the coal nation had just arrived at Damadi. Some of them had not even been sent to the warehouse before they became general Abu's property.

The East Dragon Company did not have time to waste in Tamar. They hurriedly organized the inauguration ceremony for general Abu and then gathered the media from various countries to make an announcement.

The overall situation in Tamar quickly stabilized, leaving only a few small warlords who still wanted to play guerrilla warfare and did not obey the leadership of General Abu.

The East Dragon Company immediately invited the eastern countries to participate in the construction and investment of Tamar in the name of the president. They also stationed troops to exterminate the pirates and ensure the safety of all kinds of investments and construction.

The pirate industry had already fallen into the sunset. It was impossible for it to become a hope for the development of Tamar.

Only the eastern countries could save them and lift them out of poverty.

The relationship between the Abu Group and the East Dragon Company, as well as the relationship between the East Dragon Company and the eastern countries, was obvious in the eyes of all the countries in the world.

Therefore, the other countries were not surprised by this result.

The only thing they could not understand was why the eastern country would be interested in the Holy Land.

The Holy Land was not rich in mineral resources. The only advantage it had was that it occupied the shipping route.

However, this shipping route already had other alternatives. It was not unique.

The eastern country had nurtured the ABU group, so it was impossible for them to continue being pirates.

The whole world was curious about the eastern country's actions and wanted to see what the eastern country would do next.

However, the results disappointed them. The eastern country only unhurriedly developed a few small mining areas in Damadi and made a few investments. They did nothing else.

While everyone was confused, the troops in Damadi began to be secretly sent to the mud country.

The army sent to the country of mud were the elites of general Abu, and they were also the most loyal army of General Abu.

Their armed forces were as simple as ever, Akagar RPG. This was their main fighting method.

Of course, the East Dragon Company could provide more weapons, but it could not be so fast for the time being.

The army of Damadi would not rush into the country of mud all at once, so that the guerrillas of the country of mud would suddenly become a strong regular army.

There must be a process to the rebellion, and there must be a reasonable time to develop and grow.

First, the guerrillas began to launch sneak attacks on the warlord's troops, and they continued to obtain small victories.

Then, their troops began to expand, and countless civilians began to join their army.

After that, they obtained the support of the mysterious financial group, and their weapons and equipment began to increase in large numbers.

Finally, tanks and cannons appeared on the battlefield of the mud country.

At this point, the identity of the financial group behind them was exposed.

The source of so many weapons and supplies could not be hidden, and the East Dragon Company once again appeared in the eyes of the countries around the world.

Then, the Resistance Army began to win one victory after another.

The combat strength of the army in Damadi was far stronger than the mud country's army. The intensity of the war they experienced was also far stronger than the mud country's army that bullied the mud country. It was not something that the mud country's warlords could stop.

The warlords immediately panicked. They hurriedly found the coal country consortium to fork out money and began to hire professional armies to participate in the war.

The Resistance Army did not show any signs of weakness. The East Dragon Company was rich and powerful. They even invited groups like the sheep mercenary group to the battlefield.

Just as the war between the warlords and the resistance army was at its most intense, the resistance army suddenly attacked the mining area where the headquarters of the Kronin Society was located.

The headquarters of the KLONI society was originally considering whether to leave the mud country and, if so, where to move to.

However, before they could think it through, the resistance attacked.

The military base nearby could not stop them at all. Even if some of the coal country's troops were involved, they were blasted into meat paste by the heavy cannons of the resistance.

The headquarters of the KLONI Society was drowned by the flood of troops just like that. The genetic research they were doing was exposed in front of the eyes of the whole world.

The war continued, but the coal nation people no longer intervened to help the warlord president.

The various human experiments of genetic research were broadcasted live in front of the world. The clone society could no longer whitewash itself. Even the warlord of the country of mud became his accomplice. For a time, everyone deserted him.

At the same time, Donglong Company's combat teams around the world also took action.

They took down the headquarters of the Clone Society and obtained the list and information of all the members of the Clone Society. Now was the time to close the net.

The branches of the Clone Society were destroyed one by one. All the members were captured or killed. A small number of escaped members were also hunted down by the DONGLONG company.

The list and information of the Clone Society were also simultaneously exposed in front of all the countries around the world to explain the actions of the Donglong Company.

At the same time, the SANMAO country finally handed over uncle long because the officials involved in the arrest of uncle long were also members of the Clone Society.

The only thing that surprised Yu Tian was that the power of the Clone Society did not infiltrate the official upper echelons of the coal nation, and it had nothing to do with the financial groups of the Coal Nation.

Even the upper echelons of many Western powers had nothing to do with the clone society.

This seemed normal, but Yu Tian didn't believe that these countries had nothing to do with the KLONI society. It was a pity that he didn't have any other evidence.

Zhu Geliang felt that this was a good thing. Even if he got the relevant evidence to prove that the western world's officials were colluding with the Kloni Society, there was nothing he could do about them.

Perhaps the people would protest and March, and the opposition parties would impeach the president, but they wouldn't be able to subvert the entire western world.

There was also a council of elders and a group of knights behind the Clone Society. Piggy Liang suspected that their council of Elders was a high-level united parliament in the Western world.

It would take more than a few decades to destroy such a huge union.

It was impossible for the Eastern countries to wipe out all the western countries, and it was also impossible to wipe out all the westerners. They could only use the economy and culture to influence them and make them agree with the values of the easterners and abandon their official rule.

At that time, the Elders Guild, who were Schemers hidden in the darkness, would no longer have any land to live on, and they would no longer have any power to be used.

After wiping out the clone society, the war could be considered to have come to an end.

The Eastern Dragon Company had obtained information about the traitors from the information of the Clone Society. In the end, they had conveniently wiped out those traitors, and the war would be completely over.

However, the hunt for the Knights was still going on. Yu Tian would not let these rats live.
