

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 108

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 108-“Let’s grab something first,” Ryan suggested.

Meanwhile, Joseph squeezed out of the crowd. His initial plan was to leave with Audrey, but unfortunately, Ryan had taken her away.

He frowned and murmured, “Who’s that guy?” After dinner, Ryan invited Audrey over to the hotel he checked in together.

He reasoned, “I’m sorry to have you match according to my time Just because my schedule is tight. We’re going to register our marriage tomorrow, so let’s prepare the documents needed for it. We can hit the road first thing in the morning tomorrow.” His justification was reasonable, so she couldn’t turn the suggestion down.

Yvonne volunteered to return to the hotel by cab to get Audrey’s necessities.

The hotel Ryan checked in was close to the restaurant.

Outside the restaurant, Audrey stretched her arms out to catch the snowflakes.

It elicited a smile from him. “The way back to the hotel isn’t piled with snow.

Would you like to take a walk back?” “Sure!” her eyes turned into crescents.

Ryan took the umbrella from Julian, then he took the stairs down alongside Audrey with his arm across her shoulders.

Her hands balled into fists -a sign which showed that she was still not used to his intimate touches.

“Are you going to return to the country after the registration?” A question from her, as well as an attempt to alleviate the awkwardness lingering in the air.

“Yeah, but I’ll come over to visit you some other time,” he answered gently.

The fluttering snowflake induced a grin from her. "It must be warm back in the country." As soon as she finished, she noticed Nathan standing nearby with a bouquet.

A crease formed between his brows as he stared in their direction.

Audrey's smile gradually faded, but she kept walking side-by-side with Ryan.

Nathan's gaze fell onto Ryan's arm over her shoulders. This intimacy of theirs very much irritated him.

But Nathan simply assumed that Ryan was taking care of her as a family member. He approached the duo to greet them.

"Mr. Lambert." Nathan behaved in front of Ryan.

Ryan hummed in acknowledgment before asking monotonously, "What are you doing here in Slovomla?" "I'm accompanying Amelia. She's here to meet Director White." Nathan spared Audrey a glance in the meantime.

What are the odds? Who could've known that he would run into Ryan and Audrey here?

His question pulled her wandering mind back. "No."

Ryan flashed a faint smile at Nathan. "You must be busy. Go ahead." Then, Ryan held Audrey's hand and led her to a florist.

He asked the owner to arrange a bouquet of sunflowers for Audrey.

"I remember sunflowers are your favorite." Ryan smiled.

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 109-Audrey's lips slightly parted in surprise.

How did Ryan know that?

It didn't take long for the florist owner to arrange a bouquet of sunflowers with swift movements. before passing it to Audrey.

The owner spoke in Ruplanion, "Your boyfriend is very handsome! You look good together." Hugging the sunflower, Audrey wanted to give an explanation.

But she swallowed those words at the tip of her tongue when she thought of their itinerary tomorrow.

They were going to register their marriage.

In the end, she offered a gentle smile. "Thank you." Nathan froze while watching Audrey, who was in the florist, as though someone had pressed the pause button on him.

Suddenly, his head hurt, and he hugged his head while his eyes remained fixated on the sunflowers.

When the florist owner asked what kind of flowers he wanted, why did he answer that it was sunflowers without much thought?

White roses were Amelia's favorite though!

With furrowed brows, he discarded the flowers into the trash bin.

He then took a glance at Audrey again before leaving.

After taking a few steps forward, he suddenly stopped. The more he thought about it, the stranger it was.

Something was off between Ryan and Audrey; their intimacy didn't make sense to Nathan.

Meanwhile, Yolanda happened to notice Ryan and Audrey leaving with a bouquet of sunflowers from the other side of the road.

Hurriedly, she took pictures of them and turned to call Amelia.

"Amy, guess what I saw while I was buying coffee outside? I'll send the pictures." She then hung up the call to share the pictures.

But her finger paused before she clicked the send button..

In one of the pictures, Nathan was holding a bouquet of sunflowers in front of Audrey and Ryan.

As for the other one, Audrey was wreathed in smiles with sunflowers in her arms while walking away with Ryan.

It somehow urged Yolanda to proceed with her plan of getting Audrey to sign the confidentiality agreement.

In the end, she only sent those two pictures to Amelia followed by a voice message.

“Amy, I saw Mr. Franklin. I think he’s here to pick you up, so I bought two cups of coffee. When I came out to invite him to come along together, I saw Audrey walking away with those flowers!

“I’m not suspecting Mr. Franklin because there’s another man next to her. But do you still remember how Mr. Franklin told you to believe him that Audrey wouldn’t expose the truth?

and “It’s just a guess, but did he sacrifice something in return for that promise? He might’ve kept it a secret from you considering how much he loves you. So, I think we should give her the money make her sign the confidentiality agreement. What do you say?” After that, Yolanda revisited the cafe to buy another cup of coffee for the sake of the show.

Previously, Yolanda had tried to convince Amelia to deal with Audrey in private by giving Audrey the money and making her sign the confidentiality agreement.

But Amelia was firm with her stance and wouldn’t agree to do that.

Although Yolanda had given in, she couldn’t bring herself to just let the loose ends be left untied.

As long as the confidentiality agreement was left unsigned, and Audrey didn’t take the money, uneasiness would keep weighing down on Yolanda’s chest.

On the other hand, Amelia came out of the private lounge to pick up the call from Yolanda.

The moment she saw the pictures, her face fell, and she kept swiping between the two pictures.

Her breathing picked up its pace.

Sunflowers... Those were Audrey’s favorite!

Did Nathan remember something again?

Was he going to choose Audrey?

Matteo came out of the private lounge because Amelia had been away for a while.

There, he saw Amelia zooming in and out of the pictures with trembling fingers.

“Isn’t that your fiancée?” Matteo asked with a smile.

Meeting The One For Me Chapter 110-Audrey quickly locked her phone screen and snapped her head up with a pale expression.

She wished she could return Matteo a smile, but she couldn’t fight back her tears.

Dipping her head down, she wiped her tears off and apologized, “I’m sorry.” He was stunned for a second before he handed her a handkerchief. “This might come across as inappropriate, but... Are you fighting with him?” She shook her head. “No, I’m just being unprofessional. Director White is waiting. Let’s head inside.” She didn’t want to say much about it.

As the gentleman he was, he nodded instead of forcing her to answer.

“Do I look good?” Amelia forced a smile as her glistening eyes stared at him.

“You look very beautiful; as innocent as a lost deer in the woods,” complimented Matteo from the bottom of his heart.

He opened the door for her and followed her into the private lounge from behind. Just then, a strange feeling began to stir in his chest.

Indeed, Amelia was a beauty. His type was someone who could provoke his sense of protectiveness.

However, the feelings that Amelia had given him were different from the ones when he met his savior.

But it could be because his memories of the savior were blurry. After all, it had been years since that incident happened in Italy.

The only thing that ensured Matteo that Amelia was his savior was Nathan's strong sense of possessiveness over her.

The next day, Ryan and Audrey finished registering their marriage.

They had lunch together before he drove her back to the symposium.

Along the journey, Ryan was reading the prenatal checkup report that Yvonne had handed over.

His brows knitted together. "The stats are normal, but why is your belly not bulging? Is it because the twins absorb too much nutrients that it's affecting your health?" Julian, in the passenger seat, smiled and responded, "You do things with ease, but you don't know a single thing about babies, Mr. Lambert. It's because Ms.

Yeomans was born skinny.

"That's why it doesn't show that she's already months into her pregnancy. It was the same for my elder sister. We could only tell that she was pregnant when she was in the 24th week. Still, she could easily cover her belly with oversized clothes." Then, Ryan nodded, finally at ease.

When they arrived at the symposium, Ryan said, "I'm going to return to the country thi I'll text you once I land." Audrey nodded. "Safe travels." 20 minutes before the symposium commenced, Audrey carried a stack of documents to the conference room.

Professor Ilyich, who in the middle of a conversation with Matteo, beckoned her over. "Audrey, here!" Clad in a suit, Matteo looked back at Audrey, who was dressed in a studious and demure style.

His eyes lit up as soon as he caught sight of her.

She recognized him—it was the man whom she saved in Itaylio.

His eyes slightly widened as he released her hand.

Her mellifluous voice somehow sounded familiar to him.
