

Chapter 16 Heart

"Mr. Newman, what I said is all true. If you don't believe me, you can stay around for a while and see if Scarlet will show up. Well, it's getting late, I'm going to see my daughter."

When speaking, the man deliberately stressed "daughter". Marcus' eyes narrowed, a feeling of revenge running through his heart.

"Adam!"

Marcus's roar almost spilled out from the depths of his throat, hoarse like the devil, "If you lied to me, even one word, I will definitely kill you."

Adam shrugged indifferently and left leisurely.

Marcus leaned against the wall and lit a cigarette. The green and white smoke soon surrounded him, and the cigarette butts fell to the ground.

He dialed his assistant's number and ordered, "From now on, immediately send someone to follow Adam Shaw. I want to know all this man's whereabouts."

...

In the blink of an eye, half a month has passed.

When Marcus stayed in Vancouver, he moved all his work to this side. Just after a video conference, the assistant knocked on his door with files.

"Come in." He pinched his brow in annoyance.

"Mr. Newman, I think you need to see this."

The assistant handed out the document with a gloomy expression, looked at the man's gradually frowning, and reported: "Now the government is giving this piece of land in the south of the city, and there are three companies bidding with us. And this piece of land is vital to the resort project that we are bound to win. The board of directors want you to return immediately."

The assistant swallowed and added: "Our people have been following Adam Shaw for half a month, and this man is busy with business in addition to meeting customers every day, and then he goes to the nanny to accompany his young daughter... Miss. Scarlet may not be here."

"Mr. Newman, we may have really made a mistake."

Marcus closed the file. Things were far more serious than he imagined. Tiredly pinching his brow, he pondered for half a second, "Then, we are back this afternoon."

Scarlet, even if you hide to the ends of the earth, I will find you even if I have to dig the ground!

...

"Adam, that man seems to have gone!"

Inside the villa, the man returned from outside and went to the living room with some excitement and told the story of what he witnessed Marcus moving out today.

Adam sat on the sofa, the corners of his mouth curved at the sound of his voice, and the nerves that had been tense for half a month were finally able to relax.

"Ben, Sunny, thank you for this half a month."

Adam sincerely thanked them, then gently kissed the little girl's head, "If it were not for my goddaughter to fake it, we must not be able to deceive Marcus's eyes."

During this half-month, if he and his friend did not cooperate seamlessly, creating the act of coming to the nanny to spend time with his daughter after work every day, Marcus would not be so quick to give up.

"Adam, you don't have to say that. So, is there anything else you need help with next?"

The man narrowed his eyes and thought calmly.

Now that Marcus has found him here, it means that this time that man is determined to find her, so he has to get a head start on seeing Scarlet!

"Ben, now Marcus has set his eyes on me. It is inevitable that I have some difficulty moving around, so I may have to ask you to use your connections to help me find someone."

"I have a bunch of friends inside the government agencies, it's not hard for me."

Adam shook his head and said seriously, "The person to find this time may be more difficult than any other time in the past."

"Adam, just say who you want to find."

"Her name is Scarlet Preston."