

Chapter 44 Assignment

She opened the paper bag and took out the pile of documents inside.

The words on the white paper tingled her eyes. Scarlet's eyes were wide with shock, and when she saw the end, her eyes were full of panic and dismay!

The assistant looked at her boss's out-of-control appearance and was startled, "Miss. Linda? What's wrong? Did they send you a letter from a lawyer?"

Scarlet put the document on the table, the bottom of her eyes was full of doubts and shock. Her chest heaved dramatically, and she took several deep breaths, but still could not relieve the rush of panic.

The assistant was so nervous and worried, so she turned to see the contents of that file, which was not a lawyer's letter at all, but an equity assignment agreement!

Wait?

Equity assignment?

She couldn't help but gasp, seeing the end and exclaiming in surprise!

"Ah? Miss. Linda, isn't this the equity transfer agreement signed by Marcus Newman himself?"

Scarlet was completely confused and didn't hear her words.

Don't know how long it took before she finally remembered that she was still in the office and hurried to get her emotions under control.

This is indeed a document signed by Marcus himself.

And this agreement became effective one year ago.

It turns out that a year earlier, the man had already signed this agreement, transferring most of the company's shares to her, while he himself kept only a very small portion.

This was all done quietly and confidentially, so it wasn't until Marcus pleaded guilty and went to jail that this file would be delivered to her.

The assistant frowned, "Miss. Linda, I have a doubt! Since Mr. Newman gave you his company a year ago, then in terms of the law, Newman company's legal representative is no longer him."

Hearing this, Scarlet's face turned pale instantly.

The assistant bit her lips and muttered to herself, "Then since he is not the legal representative, those contracts that we used previously to sue him actually had no legal effect. Because he didn't have the right to sign them..."

"In that case, why did he plead guilty in court?"

The judge has already sentenced, so now if we withdraw, it will be very troublesome..."

She simply could not understand. Is there someone who likes to go to jail so much in this world?

Scarlet's eyes reddened, a layer of mist covered her eyes, and her shoulders began to tremble.

She knows...

She could no longer hold back the sadness coming from her heart. Scarlet covered her mouth and bawled!

From the beginning to the end, he was always the man who knew her best.

Marcus, you already knew that I would never give up, right?

You knew I would come back to you, so you had prepared everything.

Marcus, you won again.

After a long time, so long that the assistant thought her boss would not answer her again, Scarlet suddenly raised her head, the gloom at bottom of her eyes dense.

"Because this time, he also wants to be even with me..."

...

At night, in prison.

Although Marcus was imprisoned, he had bribed the warden and taken care of everything, so his condition was not bad.

He looked out the window at the silvery moon, his lips always holding a gentle smile.

He was thinking of Scarlet.

In the past few years, he had never been as calm as he was now.
