

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 127 You Still Have Me

Hearing this, Johnny didn't feel tired either. He quickly went upstairs and pushed open the bedroom door.

There was no light in the room and only a small bulge on the bed could be seen. He walked over softly and carefully lifted the quilt, only to find that Ceres had opened her eyes.

"What's the matter?"

Johnny turned on the bedside lamp and saw the tears on Ceres' face and the wet pillow.

He held Ceres up in his arms and gently wiped away her tears, "What are you crying for?"

"I don't have a home. I don't have a mother. I don't have anything. Johnny, I am an orphan now!" Ceres cried bitterly.

Johnny gently stroked Ceres' hair. He already knew what had happened.

"Didn't I tell you not to go to the hospital?" Johnny was worried that Ceres would suffer a loss, so when he left in the morning, he specifically told her not to go to the hospital to visit Mary.

Ceres raised her head, "I was just worried about the child. The child is innocent. Johnny, I know that we have been avoiding this issue ever since I had a miscarriage. But do you know how sad I am? That is a life! A living life! I can't feel at ease, so I just want to see it."

"Can you change anything after seeing it?"

Ceres was speechless and wondered, "Yes, what could I change if I went?"

I could not bring the lost child back to life, so there was no difference."

Johnny felt sorry for her, "What did your mother do to you? Did they bully you?"

"My mother has cut off our relationship. She asked me to kneel down and apologize. And she told me she would end our relationship if I refused."

Speaking of this, Ceres found it ridiculous.

As a woman with two daughters, her mother asked her to kneel down and apologize to the other daughter and would abandon her if she refused, which was indeed ridiculous.

"I know that she is not a good mother, but as long as she is there, I at least feel that I am not an orphan, but now I really have nothing!"

Ceres never thought that she would be so sad. She was alone in this world and really had nothing.

Her father might spend the rest of his life in prison. She didn't even have the chance to visit him and she didn't even know which prison he was in. Sally didn't tell her because she thought it not honorable.

When people were sad, they would always gather all the sadness together.

"You still have me." Johnny gently patted Ceres' shoulder, making Ceres slowly raise her head.

It was cheering.

Johnny also looked at Ceres, "In the future, we will have our own kids, more than one."

Ceres was comforted and encouraged because of his words.

"Can I rely on him for a lifetime?" she wondered.

"This is our home. If you don't like it, there is still Evian Town, or other places. As long as you like it, we can have a home at any time."

Ceres felt unable to say a word.

She couldn't tell if she was moved or happy.

When she felt that she had nothing, he said that he was going to give her a home.

"Maybe your father will be here too."

"Are you serious?" When she heard this, Ceres immediately sat up from Johnny's embrace.

"It's fake." Johnny said as he prepared to get up.

"What you said is true! You can't lie to me! You can't go back on your words!" She pulled him back.

"Then why are you asking? Get up and eat something." Johnny pinched Ceres' nose.

"Johnny, are you serious?" Ceres sniffed and hugged him.

Only then could she understand the mood of the heroine of the TV series.

Johnny stroked her hair, "Ceres, I found an old Chinese doctor to take a check for you. When you get better, we will prepare to have a baby."

"So fast?"

Johnny, on the other hand, felt that it was not fast at all. He had been lying in bed in a vegetative state for three years and pretending to be disabled for several months. How long had it been before he met her?

She needed a home, and so did he.

He wanted to have a family with Ceres, and then have a few more children.

"Fast?" Johnny smiled. He couldn't wait to see the child born, "Alright, get up to eat something. I'll carry you."

"No, I'll walk by myself. It's embarrassing!"

However, Johnny still carried Ceres downstairs. Now, he was no longer disabled. He could walk with her and hold her in his arms.

Leaning her face in Johnny's arms, Ceres felt a sense of relief.

"What is the use of a mother like that? It doesn't matter to end the relationship." Ceres thought.

When they were eating, Johnny personally picked up some food for her. Looking at her smooth skin, he said, "Keep this up from now on."

She no longer needed to hide her beauty since she would be protected by him.

Ceres shook her head, "No, I think it's good to have red spots on my face. It's the cornerstone to test others!"

Having lived with the red spots for so long, Ceres had already felt the meaning of them.

Those who felt disgusted at her and even spoke badly to her were destined to be of poor quality, and those who were still good to her even with red spots were really good to her.

"Up to you."

"Okay."

Life was as usual the next day.

Johnny personally drove Ceres to the Eagle Group. However, far away from the company, Ceres requested to get off. She did not want others to see them together.

She didn't give up the red spots.

Then Johnny got in the president's office. He could finally enter the Eagle Group openly.

As soon as Bob entered the office, he began to clap.

"Well, Bob, I know you are very busy. I called you here today to deal with the matter of Ceres' father. I originally asked Ben to do it, but I'm afraid you have to do it since it's so important."

He would definitely help Ceres realize what she wanted as soon as possible.

If her father was able to get out of prison before their wedding, Ceres would definitely be overjoyed!

"Johnny, I was just looking for an opportunity to tell you. I'm afraid this matter..." Bob was serious.

"What happened?"
