

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 134 He Was So Good To Her

"Mom, this is my wife, Ceres Taylor. I brought her to see you today. She is the woman I chose. You will like her, right?" Johnny said as he held Ceres in his arms.

Johnny's understanding of his mother was all through the previous servants. Later, as the servants left, he couldn't know more about his mother.

He only knew that his mother was a quiet woman who liked flowers, especially the green roses. She played piano well and was proficient in eight languages.

"Your mother is so beautiful. She looks like a mixed-race, and she looks very elegant."

"She is indeed a mixed race. My grandmother is a descendant of a count of Augsta."

Ceres admired his great background.

Thus, she thought of herself. Was she worthy of Johnny?

Johnny muttered in front of the tomb for a long time. For the first time, she felt that Johnny would also speak incoherently.

"Ceres, you must think that I was talking nonsense, right?"

Johnny knew what she was thinking and he smiled awkwardly.

"It's because I don't know what to say. I've never been in contact with her. My understanding of her comes from someone else. I don't know what kind of person she wants me to be, so I said whatever I thought of."

For the first time, Ceres felt that Johnny was so pitiful. His sad eyes were heartbreaking.

"She must want you to be happy."

Johnny looked at Ceres, and they smiled at each other.

They had each other and would be happy from now on.

After leaving the cemetery, they began their honeymoon trip. On the way, Johnny and Ceres talked a lot about his childhood, his mother, and the Winsor family.

This trip was probably the one they had communicated the most.

Their first stop was his grandfather's home. His grandfather's health deteriorated after his mother passed away, and he passed away in a few years. Now, his uncle's family lived here.

Johnny's uncle was called Marlon Hood. He was the most famous person in the city. The atmosphere in the Hood family was much more relaxed. Ceres was warmly received by the Hoods.

After staying for half a month, they continued on their trip. This time, they flew to Augsta. This trip was also personally chosen by Johnny. Because of marrying him, she had given up on going to Augsta as an exchange student. Therefore, he brought her to Augsta to make up for her regret.

In the early morning of Augsta, Ceres was woken up by the light coming through the curtains. She rubbed her eyes and found several pigeons on the white roof not far away from the window.

She stood up and walked to the window, looking at the pigeons playing around.

When she first applied for an exchange student, she had checked some information about Augsta. She liked the architecture and the atmosphere here very much. After playing here for two days, she liked this place even more.

Suddenly, someone hugged her waist. The hot breath touched her neck, making her itch. "Why don't you sleep more? What are you thinking about?"

"Look at the pigeons. They are so carefree!"

Johnny looked up at the pigeons. "Do you like this place?"

"Yes."

"In a year or two, if you want, you can come here to study."

"Really?" Ceres looked at Johnny in surprise. "Why not? As long as you want, you can. And you can be the student of that professor you like."

Ceres looked at Johnny. His gentle eyes seemed to melt her. Sometimes, she would forget that he had hurt the baby in her belly.

Perhaps he didn't do it on purpose. He didn't have a better option.

He was so good to her that she could forget about all the pain.

"At that time, I will accompany you to study. We can have a second child, right?" Johnny rested his chin on Ceres's head and closed his eyes.

"We didn't even have the first one. The second one... By the way, I thought of adding some elements to the robot," Ceres grumbled.

"What?"

"Human." Ceres blurted out, "I think robots will become a trend in the world. In the future, more and more robots will replace people. Can we also choose a person as a template for the home-based robots we launched this time?"

Johnny opened his eyes and said, "Go on."

"We can choose some of the representatives in the world. We can also develop some unique characters, such as cold, gentle, simple, and crude robots, for each family to choose from.

"If a robot had a personality, it would be easier to integrate into family life. It could teach the child, accompany the single person so that they would feel like they were in love, or be a child in a family without children. Also, we can provide private customization for high-end users. We can let them provide us with information on the deceased children or parents for exclusive private customization."

Ceres kept going. In terms of artificial intelligence, she was always meticulous.

Johnny suddenly picked her up and circled several times. Ceres was shocked.

"You are my lucky star! This is exactly what I want!"

Making the robot no longer a cold machine was Ceres's design concept.

Ceres was off the ground, looking at Johnny with a bright smile.

"In this case, I'm afraid we will have to carry out a lot of data collection work. The task is very complicated. It is not practical, so I think it may take a lot of time."

"It doesn't matter."

"We also need a lot of time," Johnny said as he carried Ceres to the bed.

Ceres was suddenly placed on the bed and bounced twice on the soft bed. "What are you doing?"

"We also need a lot of time to get along, so don't think about work now." Johnny got on top of her.

"No! It's so early in the morning. In this case, we can't go out later. Last night, you..."

Ceres wanted to say something but hesitated. This man seemed to always be lustful. He had done it several times last night.

"You woke up so early this morning, which shows that you have unlimited energy. Me too." Johnny kissed Ceres on the lips.

Anyway, they were here for a honeymoon and had plenty of time.

Johnny kissed Ceres as he pulled open the drawer next to him. He looked for something in the drawer.

There were condoms in the drawer.