

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 153 Be Kidnapped or Escape?

Johnny finished the transfusion at eight o'clock in the morning. Originally, he would finish it at nine o'clock, but he constantly adjusted the speed of the infusion.

After the transfusion, he rushed home without stopping.

As soon as he entered the house, the servant, Sofia, came forward, "Master Johnny, Mrs. Ceres, she..."

"What happened to her?" Johnny immediately asked anxiously.

"She disappeared. I went to call her for breakfast this morning, but I found that the room was clean and tidy, and there was no Mrs. Ceres."

Johnny walked up the stairs.

The room was indeed tidy, as if no one had ever lived in it.

There were two pieces of paper on the bedside table.

One was a divorce agreement, in which Ceres stated clearly that she had voluntarily given up all his assets, while the other was a letter Ceres had written to Johnny.

"When we meet again, we will be enemies."

This sentence deeply hurt Johnny.

She still couldn't let it go.

Sitting at the head of the bed with the letter, Johnny still called Ben after a moment of hesitation.

"Lock down all the railway stations, airports, and bus stations immediately. If you see Ceres, stop her immediately!"

He could not let her leave, absolutely not!

Also, Johnny immediately called Bob to ask him to help find Ceres.

Because Bob had something to do this morning, he did not stay at the hospital to accompany Johnny. He did not expect that Johnny would return right after he left.

He happened to be at home there, so quickly rushed over, "Johnny, are you tired of living? Don't you know that you were stabbed just a few hours ago and almost hurt your heart?"

But Johnny was anxious, "I can't care so much. I have to find Ceres immediately."

At that time, he began to regret his own obstinacy, his dogmatism, and his self-assertion.

He should have considered Ceres's feelings and told her the truth earlier.

"You rest, and I'll help you find Ceres!" Bob forced Johnny onto the bed, but Johnny couldn't sit still. He suddenly stood up, but his eyes turned black and he fainted again.

Bob had to send him to the hospital.

When he woke up again, Johnny had been in a coma for two hours. The moment he opened his eyes, he covered his chest and struggled to sit up.

"Johnny, don't worry. I've already sent all the people to help you find her. You can rest at ease and recuperate here."

Looking at Johnny, Bob did not know what to say.

"Alright," said Johnny.

"But Johnny, even if she was forced her way back, having said those words, do you think it's possible for her to be with you again?" Bob asked.

Lowering his head, Bob added, "Sorry, I saw the letter she left you on the bedside table."

Every word of the letter pierced Johnny's heart like a knife.

Even Bob felt distressed. The woman Johnny cherished very much actually hated him so much.

"I'll tell her the truth, at least after we find her."

At this moment, Johnny's phone rang. It was Ruben, the director of Technology Department in the Eagle Group.

"It's terrible, Mr. Johnny. The core chip of our latest robot has been stolen!"

"What?"

The robots that the Eagle Group was developing had entered the most critical moment. Ever since Ceres proposed that idea, everyone had accelerated their progress a lot, which had already entered the testing stage. And after the test was successful, they could go on sale!

This was a crucial step for the Eagle Group!

But at this time, the chip was stolen. It was the painstaking efforts of the entire Technology Department in the Eagle Group for many years!

"Are you sure that it was stolen?"

"Yes, and we suspect that it is stolen by Ceres. A colleague who worked overtime all the night saw Ceres sneaked into the company this morning at six o'clock. Other than her, no one else came. And the colleague said that the chip was still there last night!"

"It's impossible!"

Johnny refused to believe that it was Ceres who stole the chip.

That was the result of their efforts together!

"But there really is no one else!"

"Continue the investigation!"

Johnny angrily hung up the phone call, racked with headaches.

"Did the chip get stolen?" Because of the close distance, Bob heard the contents of the phone call clearly. "Did Ceres do it?"

"No!" Johnny roared in anger, causing the wound on his chest to hurt violently.

"Johnny, don't lie to yourself. Having been in the Eagle Group for a while and always by your side, she knows how important that chip is to you. However, she still stole your chip. She has changed. Maybe she is not the Ceres you know at all!"

"Shut up!"

Johnny roared.

Bob did not continue.

...

When Ceres opened her eyes again, she found herself in a strange room, which looked like a villa, because she saw the crown of the tree through the window.

But her hands and feet were all tied up and she could not move.

Who on earth kidnapped her?

She was extremely puzzled.

After a long time, the door opened and a woman came in. The woman looked about thirty years old and dressed very simply. She walked to the table with a plate and then walked to her with a bowl.

Following behind her was a man, who seemed to be here to keep an eye on Ceres. He had a fierce face, looked not a man to be trifled with.

Ceres did not dare to eat. If she was poisoned, she would never be able to escape.

Seeming to have seen through Ceres's thoughts, the woman immediately picked up a spoon and took a bite.

Ceres also knew the woman's intention to ease her alert mind.

Since that woman had already eaten, it meant that this thing was not poisonous. Ceres had not eaten much for several days, so she felt hungry. Besides, she must have enough strength to escape.

Thinking of this, Ceres opened her mouth.

The woman seemed also very happy, and hurriedly sent the porridge into Ceres's mouth.

This was seafood porridge with a fishy smell.

As soon as Ceres tasted it, she felt nausea, and all of a sudden she vomited all the porridge in her mouth.

She used to like seafood porridge quite a lot. Maybe it was not to her liking, so she felt very disgusted!

Seeing that Ceres vomited the porridge, the man immediately scolded, "Bitch! Don't choose the hard way! I serve you, and you should eat the food!"

The woman hurried forward to stop the man, then pointed to her stomach.

It wasn't that Ceres didn't want to eat it, she just felt disgusted.

The man looked at the woman doubtfully, "You mean she might be pregnant?"

Ceres raised her head abruptly and looked at the woman!

Pregnant?