

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 160 New Life

After being imprisoned here for a long time, Ceres was almost familiar with the people here. She also remembered their shift time and schedules.

Although the note did not mention it, Ceres guessed that if Kirs wanted to save her, he would definitely action during the shift time. The guard would change shifts at one or two o'clock in the night when people were most sleepy.

In the late stage of Ceres's pregnancy, Lilian had been sleeping in the same room with Ceres in order to take care of her. So before sleep, Ceres added the medicine to Lilian's water.

After turning off the light, Ceres had not fallen asleep. She was worried that she had overslept. Her body would not be under her control after her pregnancy, so she had to be careful.

Lilian was breathing evenly. Ceres had been paying attention to the time. When it was almost one o'clock, she heard some voices below. It should be time to change shifts.

She carefully got out of bed. It's urgently important to get out of here, so she didn't bring anything.

At this moment, there was a sudden movement from the window.

Ceres carefully looked down the window. A ladder was already reaching over!

Kirs was waiting for her.

Behind the house were the deep mountains and forests, so the guards pay little attention to this side. Ceres had escaped from here once, but she had accidentally entered the deep mountains and lost her way. Finally, she was still caught.

After that, she no longer dared to escape from here.

Ceres gently opened the window and someone suddenly grabbed her wrist.

She turned around in surprise and saw Lilian standing behind her.

"Lilian..."

Lilian put her index finger in the middle of her lips to signal Ceres not to speak. She stuffed a small note and a small package into Ceres's hand.

Ceres knew that Lilian was going to let her go. Perhaps Lilian had known that Ceres was going to escape!

Lilian pointed outside, and then pointed to Ceres's belly, telling her to be careful and escape quickly.

"Thank you." Ceres hugged Lilian.

Then Ceres went down the ladder from the window.

Her belly was too big, she needed to step by step cautiously, so she wasted a lot of time.

Kirs caught Ceres and said, "Let's go. The people changing shifts will be here soon. Our car is just outside."

Because Ceres was pregnant, she walked very slowly. There was no road in the deep mountains, so Kirs parked his car on the other side.

Kirs helped Ceres walk very quickly.

"Who is it? Stop!" A shout suddenly came from behind.

"God, we've been discovered. Let's go!" Kirs held Ceres and walked even faster.

Ceres just wanted to escape from here, so she had no time to care about anything just walked faster.

The person chasing them was behind.

They entered the deep forest together. Kirs had scouted the way many days in advance. Because it was too easy to get lost here, he did not dare to be careless.

Once went the wrong way, Kirs and Ceres would really be in trouble. After all, other than people chasing them, there might be beasts here.

Fortunately, they didn't encounter any beasts along the way. But Ceres fell.

After a while, they finally got in the car, and someone was in charge of receiving them.

Ceres leaned against the car, gasping for breath. In such cold winter, she was sweating all over. Kirs was also exhausted. He hurriedly brought Ceres a bottle of water.

"Kirs, my amniotic fluid is broken. Do you see any house? I'm going to give birth." Ceres looked at Kirs, panting heavily.

When Ceres was running, she fell and felt that her lower body was wet, but she was too anxious at that time and could not care about that much.

In order to pretend to be a doctor and sneak into this place, Kirs had also learned some knowledge about pregnancy. He knew that once the amniotic fluid was broken, the baby had to be born immediately. If Ceres could not give birth, he had to perform a C-section. Otherwise, the baby would die from lack of oxygen in the belly

"But there's no house here. Ceres, hold on. It will be fine when we get home."

"No, my baby will die if lack of oxygen. Kirs, think of a way, think of a way."

Ceres grabbed Kirs's arm.

"Okay, don't move. Close your eyes and have a good rest first. I'll think of a way."

Ceres had also learned a lot about obstetrics when she was free in the villa. She knew that she had to keep enough strength, otherwise there was no way to give birth to the baby. She had just wasted so much strength, so she had to rest and conserve her strength.

So she closed her eyes obediently. The pain began to hit her, but she could still insist and relieve the pain by adjusting her breath.

The driver glanced at Kirs. Kirs shook his head, telling the driver to continue forward.

Along the way, they passed several villages. Every time passed a village, the driver would subconsciously look at Kirs. Kirs had no intention of stopping, so the driver had to continue driving forward.

The pain was getting worse and worse. Ceres no longer held on and had to open her eyes, "Kirs, I can't hold on anymore! I'm very painful!"

"Ceres, hold on a little longer. We'll be there soon. We'll be there soon."

Kirs immediately called home, and all the doctors were ready.

With Kirs's encouragement, Ceres endured the longest period of her life. When she reached Kirs's house, she almost fainted.

Kirs sent Ceres into the room, where the doctor was waiting.

To be exact, here were the Fells. Kirs had already acknowledged his ancestors. His surname was Fell.

Kirs stood outside the door, waiting outside like a statue.

After a long time, the cry of a baby was heard.

Kirs frowned. The baby was actually alive. The amniotic fluid had been broken for so long, and he was still alive!

Kirs had seen this little baby through type-B ultrasonic before, so he knew it was a boy.

The servant carried the baby out with a face full of joy, "Mr. Kirs, Mr. Kirs, it's a boy. It's too thrilling. This baby was nearly dead. He only cried after hitting his feet for a long time! There will be a blessing!"

Kirs took the baby and held it in his arms.

There was no expression on his face, and his eyes were incomparably cold.

He was Johnny's son.

Johnny and Ceres's son.

His hand was unconsciously placed on the little baby's neck. Of course, he must not let this baby live in this world, otherwise, Johnny would not let Ceres go!

"Mr. Kirs, what are you doing?" The servant was shocked.