

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 193 Make a Choice

Ruby heaved a long sigh of relief.

He said, "Johnny is really lucky to have survived another disaster."

At that moment, Ceres almost fell because of fatigue.

Fortunately, Johnny managed to survive.

Ruby said, "However, Johnny's injuries are very serious, especially his head. He suffered a very strong impact. We cannot know what will happen until he wakes up."

Ceres's heart tightened again, "Then, will he... not wake up?"

She felt the roar of her ears.

When she was a child, she always had such bad luck. If she lied to her teacher that she had a cold and wanted to ask for leave, she would catch a cold. If She lied to her father that she had a stomachache, she would have a stomachache.

Ceres said, "Johnny once pretended to be in a vegetative state for so long. Will he become a vegetative state this time?"

Ruby said, "For now, this possibility is not ruled out."

Ceres took a deep breath; it was not the time for her to relax.

Ruby said, "Privately, I don't think Johnny should be unable to wake up. I'm more worried about his brain injury. If Johnny wakes up and has a brain injury, it will be more troublesome."

Bob had already understood what Ruby was saying. He patted Ruby on the shoulder and said, "Alright, Ruby, go rest first."

"Okay, then I'll take my time," Ruby was too tired.

"You don't have to worry too much. The car accident was much more serious than this one. Johnny was able to survive, and so was this time," Bob said as he walked to Ceres.

Ceres understood that this was a comforting remark, but she still nodded solemnly.

She believed that Johnny would be fine.

Johnny was transferred to the VIP ward. Ceres saw that his body was wrapped in gauze. She couldn't even see his face. She imagined how much suffering he had suffered in the past. Ceres couldn't help but cry again.

The lights in the other emergency room were off.

Sally and Mary immediately stood up and surrounded the doctor!

"Doctor, how is my husband?" Sally pulled the doctor's sleeve with a hoarse voice.

"Doctor, how is my father?" Mary also looked at the doctor anxiously.

The doctor took off his mask and sighed, "Sorry, we did our best."

Sally collapsed to the ground.

"Don't get so agitated, this patient's family member. Your husband is brain dead now. There is still hope to wake up within three months, so don't lose hope," the doctor said as he supported Sally.

"Doctor, do you mean that my father is now in a vegetative state?" Mary looked at the doctor.

The doctor said, "He is now in the state of brain death. If the patient can't wake up within three months, then he can be judged as a vegetative state."

Mary's eyes were lifeless as she hugged her mother.

The Morris Group was facing bankruptcy, and now that Mike had become like this. She might bear all the things in the family.

Mary and Sally watched as Mike was wrapped in gauze and sent to the ward.

Mary went to the bathroom, and the people in the bathroom were discussing the accident.

The first person said, "It's so scary! That man is retrograde. He risks his neck."

The second person said, "I saw it clearly at that time. The car behind rushed out and directly collided with the car that went against the road. It was said that the two families were enemies. This car that went against the road was to crash into the car in front. The car behind was to protect the car in front."

The first one said, "Isn't this too complicated? I heard that the person in the car is Johnny? Johnny is from the Eagle Group?"

The second one said, "Yes, I also heard that it is Johnny."

The first one said, "How is he now?"

The second one said, "The car has been ruined like that. Even if it doesn't die, it must be a cripple. The entire front of the car has been ruined!"

Mary listened to these words in the bathroom, her hands clenched into fists, her eyes bursting with endless hatred!

It would be best to kill Johnny!

Otherwise, her father would have died in vain.

When Mary returned to the ward, Sally looked at Mike with tears, "Mary, your father is motionless. Is he unable to wake up?"

"Mom, I just heard that my dad crashed into Johnny's car," Mary said as she sat next to Sally.

"Johnny?" Sally thought this was just an accident.

She was just saying that misfortunes never come singly.

"Johnny is trying to protect Ceres. What do you think we should do about this?" Mary stared at Sally.

Sally was Ceres's biological mother. Naturally, Mary had to ask Sally about her daughter!

"What do we do?" Sally did not quite understand what Mary was saying.

Mary said, "It's because of Ceres that my father is lying here. She is your daughter. Shouldn't you teach her a lesson?"

Sally turned her head to the side.

She had made the right decision before. She should not only rely on The Morrises but also support Ceres. Now she saw that The Morrises was coming to an end. She would rely on Ceres in the future. Naturally, she would not provoke Ceres at this time.

Sally said, "Your dad probably couldn't take it anymore, so he ran into Ceres for you. In the end, Johnny ran into him. If it wasn't for your dad..."

Mary said, "Mom! When did you start to speak up for that woman? If she hadn't come back to stir up trouble, would The Morrises have gone bankrupt? Would my dad be unable to take it easy? Besides, if she had returned to the position earlier, so many things wouldn't have happened. In the end, it was all her fault! She was a jinx! Our family raised her for so many years in vain!" Mary shouted at Sally.

Sally was very guilty.

She didn't dare to look at Mary. Both were her daughters. She didn't dare to say who she was helping or not. After all, the situation was unclear, she didn't dare to gamble.

She said, "What do you want me to do?"

"Me or her, you make your own choice!" Mary gave her final ultimatum.

Sally hesitated, "Mary..."

Mary said, "Mom, how about this? Johnny is also in the hospital. Even if he is not dead, he is seriously injured. Go help him and send him to hell."

"You, you told me to kill someone?" Sally looked at Mary in shock.

Mary said, "That's not killing. He is seriously injured. You just need to make a little move. If Johnny dies, The Winsors will belong to me and Henry. You are my biological mother. I won't ignore you. In the future, you will enjoy endless fortune."

Sally fell into deep thought.

If Johnny died, then Ceres would have no one to rely on. Sally wouldn't be able to rely on her.

But once Johnny died, just as Mary said, The Winsors would belong to Henry. She would rely on Mary.

Mary said, "Mom, I know what you are thinking. You are worried that I am unreliable, so you don't want to be enemies with Ceres. But you must be clear that you have done so many things to her. She hates you so much, how can she raise you as a mother? In this world, only I am the daughter who loves you!"

Sally was in a panic.
