

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 204 He Will Leave This Marriage with Nothing

Ceres didn't refuse, her small mouth was very cooperative.

This made Johnny out of control, and the heat in his abdomen became hotter and hotter!

Suddenly, Ceres pressed her hands against Johnny's chest, putting a polite smile on her face, "Mr. Johnny, you are seriously injured. You can't do something now."

After that, Ceres got up and went back to the sofa, continuing to eat her snacks.

Johnny finally understood that this girl was doing this on purpose!

She was deliberately trying to seduce him to make him endure and suffer!

He couldn't help but smile, silently cursing, thinking that he would finish it with her later.

At that time, Joel called. Ceres saw the number on the phone screen. She thought for a moment and answered the call. She leaned against the sofa, acting like a hostess.

"Mr. Joel."

"Miss Taylor, I have prepared all the files here. I can appeal at any time. What's the situation on your side?"

Since Johnny had told him that he should handle the divorce properly, he would listen to him. After all, he got paid a lot for this.

"Oh, I can appeal at any time?" Ceres deliberately raised her voice.

"Yes, anytime. With my efficiency, you can rest assured."

"I hope that I can change my terms. I want to take back the five percent shares that belonged to me. Those shares were mine before I got married. They should be considered my pre-marriage assets, right?"

"That's right."

"And during our marriage, Johnny made a lot of money. Logically speaking, I should be able to get a share, right?"

"This is fine too."

"He and I haven't divorced yet, and he is already engaged to another woman and made it very high-profile. Do you think this should be considered cheating?"

"Yes."

"Very good, then my term is for him to leave with nothing."

Joel broke out in a cold sweat as he listened. After all, he was hired by Johnny. If he made Johnny leave the house without a penny, he might not get paid.

"Miss Taylor, are you sure?"

"I'm sure. Add my terms in the contract. When you are ready, you can press the charge."

Ceres did not forget to glance at Johnny as she spoke.

Johnny looked at this clever little woman. He didn't know what she was thinking. How could she demand him to leave the house with nothing!

"Johnny, the lawyer you hired for me is really helpful. Thank you!" Ceres said with a bright smile.

With that, she walked out the door triumphantly.

"Where are you going to?"

"I'm going home apparently. My son is still at home."

"What about me?"

She was back finally, wasn't she supposed to stay here and accompany him?

"You? Just stay here! You can ask your fiancée to come over and accompany you," Ceres said as she walked to the door.

After saying that, Ceres glared at him and left.

She didn't want to let Johnny off so easily. No matter what, it was the truth that he had lied to her. She trusted him a hundred times and told him everything.

At the very least, she had to teach him a lesson and make him not dare to lie to her in the future!

The next day, Ceres brought Swedum to the hospital. Little Swedum was very excited to see his daddy.

Outside the ward, Jack Winsor, whose back was a little bent, stood there, looking at his son through the window.

He never thought that in his life, such a scene would happen twice.

The last time he stood there, he was still in high spirits, but this time, he was already powerless.

Fortunately, his son was still alive.

"Mr. Jack, I have talked with the doctor. Mr. Johnny's injuries are very serious, but fortunately, none of them hurt his vital parts. Now, his body is taking good care of himself. Mr. Jack, you don't have to worry too much."

Jack snorted, "Who told you that I am worried about him? I couldn't wait for his injury to be more serious so that Winsor Group would have one less opponent!"

Colin lowered his head and did not speak. Jack was already old, but he was still unwilling to admit that he was concerned about his son.

Hearing a voice from the side, Colin hurriedly said, "Mr. Jack, someone is here."

Jack withdrew his gaze towards the ward and immediately walked to the other side.

Ceres held Swedum's hand and walked over. "Swedum, Daddy might be working, why don't you stay inside with him for a while before going home?"

"Okay, I'll stay with Daddy. But daddy still needs mommy to accompany him."

Ceres frowned. She did not want to accompany him!

Because Jack was in the corridor on the other side, Ceres and Swedum did not see him.

Jack turned around and saw Ceres and Swedum walking into Johnny's ward.

"What did that child say just now?"

"He seemed to call daddy and mommy. They probably went to the wrong ward. Mr. Johnny has no child," Colin answered truthfully.

"No, if they went to the wrong room, why didn't the bodyguards stop them?"

Colin was shocked.

"Go and find it out!"

"Yes!"

Ceres brought Swedum into the ward. Johnny was working as she predicted. When he saw them coming over, he immediately stopped the video conference.

"Daddy!" Swedum ran to the bed.

Most of the gauze on Johnny's face had been removed, but there were still circles of gauze wrapped around his head and his arms. There were also bloodstains on the gauze.

"Daddy, does it hurt?" Swedum pouted when he saw his tall and mighty daddy looks that way.

Ceres secretly rejoiced. Fortunately, she brought Swedum here today. If Swedum saw Johnny when he was just out of the emergency room, he would probably be frightened.

At that time, Johnny was wrapped like a mummy.

"Daddy is a man. Men are not afraid of pain." Johnny reached out and stroked Swedum's head.

"But I'm also a man. I'm afraid of pain."

Johnny smiled gently, "Then next time, you must remember to say that you are not afraid of pain."

"Mommy said that it was just being stubborn."

Ceres nearly laughed out loud.

"Is this the way you teach your son?" Johnny glanced at Ceres.

"I gave birth to him which means I can teach him the way I want. It has nothing to do with you!"

"Swedum, I'll give you ten minutes. Ten minutes. Then mommy will take you to kindergarten. Mommy still has to go to work."

Ceres ignored Johnny and walked out of the ward.

Swedum tuck out his tongue and turned around, "Daddy, did you make mommy angry?"

Johnny was suffering a headache, he could only nod.

"It's OK, daddy. I will coach you!"