

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 232 Marry Me

Looking at Swedum's sincere face, Ceres was a little touched.

"Sister, you will consider it seriously and give my father a chance, right?" Swedum asked.

"I will." Ceres smiled.

She really had no way to refuse such an innocent child.

"Great!" Swedum said happily. "If I had a mother like you, I would be the happiest child in the world!" Swedum said as he dove into Ceres's embrace.

Ceres couldn't help but laugh when he saw how happy Swedum was.

Johnny, who was lying on the bed, had already woken up. Listening to the conversation between the two people, he was also very pleased.

"Then you must hurry up because my daddy is not young anymore. If you get married, you must have a baby. You have to have a baby when my daddy is young!" Swedum said excitedly.

Hearing Swedum's words, Ceres was speechless. She didn't believe that a child at his age could say those words.

Johnny, who was lying on the side of the bed, also felt humiliated when he heard his son say he was not young anymore.

Swedum talked to Ceres for a long time until he fell asleep on the sofa in the ward. Ceres came to Johnny's bed and found that Johnny had woken up.

"You're awake? How do you feel?" she asked in a soft tone.

Johnny didn't know if it was because of what Swedum said to her; she felt a little embarrassed when she looked at Johnny again.

Johnny shook his head. "I'm fine. Thank you."

"I didn't expect you to say thank you." Ceres curled his lips.

The two of them suddenly had no topic to talk about.

Johnny had a lot to say, but he didn't say anything because he couldn't arouse Ceres's memories of the past. Ceres didn't know what to say.

"Do you like me?" Ceres asked after a long time.

Ceres had never been in love except fell in love with Johnny. Facing such an excellent man who's going after her, and this man was her idol, she naturally couldn't say no to him.

"Why did I leave my company behind and go to school to teach? And why did I get myself into the hospital? Because I like you. I want to be with you," Johnny said in an excited tone.

Johnny said as he raised his hand that was still in the process of transfusion.

Ceres curled his lips. She believed what he said.

"But what do you like of me? I'm just a mediocre one," she said awkwardly.

Ceres was unable to figure out how this man, who lived at the top of the world, had taken a fancy to her.

"Do you want to know the answer?" Johnny raised his eyebrows.

Ceres saw his expression and felt that he was thinking something naughty.

"Marry me, and you will know the answer," Johnny said.

"Is he proposing to me?" Ceres felt stunned.

Ceres did not know what to say. Today, he confessed that he wanted her to be his girlfriend. After more than ten hours, he wanted her to marry him.

"You... don't push your luck. I just promised Elian that I would only consider being your girlfriend. Isn't it too fast for me to marry you?" she asked.

She was completely unable to withstand such a fast tempo.

"My son is right. I'm not young anymore. Swedum, no, Elian has always wanted a little sister, so I don't want to waste time," he explained to her.

"Swedum?" she was puzzled.

Johnny coughed lightly and explained, "My ex-wife and I had a child before Elian, but because of my negligence, she miscarried. The baby's name was Swedum."

He could only explain it this way.

Ceres vaguely felt that this name seemed familiar.

Johnny knew that Ceres must have been searching for something in her memory, so he immediately changed the topic, asking, "So, you agree?"

"No! Of course not! How could I agree to such a thing so easily?" she said.

Ceres immediately replied firmly.

"I'm just saying that you should consider it," she said.

"Alright, I'll give you time. Three days," he said.

"Three days? Are you kidding me? I need three months. At least!" Ceres extended three fingers.

"I can't wait anymore," he said to her, feeling like being wronged.

Johnny immediately refused her. He couldn't wait for a minute. He wanted to marry her earlier.

"But we have only known each other for a few days," Ceres said.

"But I have been waiting for you for three years," Johnny said.

"I have been waiting for you ever since my wife left," Johnny continued.

Ceres looked at Johnny in a daze. His charming face, coupled with that emotional statement, any girl would feel that they had met the right person.

"No, I have to think about it. I need more time," she said.

"Then three days. I'll give you an answer in three days." She timidly extended three fingers again.

Johnny immediately nodded, as if he succeeded, and said happily, "Alright."

At this moment, Ceres suddenly felt like she was being deceived.

Johnny's fever subsided the following day. Ceres took care of him for the whole night. She was tired and sleepy, falling asleep beside the bed.

When Johnny woke up, he looked at Ceres beside him and took out his phone to send a message to Ruby.

He told Ruby, "No matter what method you use, let your doctor tell Ceres that I need to stay in the hospital for three days."

When Ceres woke up, she heard the doctor tell her that although Johnny's fever had subsided a little, he needed to be injected for three days more.

Ceres was naturally a little discouraged. Johnny had even asked Nick to take Swedum away so that only he and Ceres were left in the hospital.

"Don't you have a servant? Or a special assistant, or some other relatives and friends? Ask them to come and take care of you. I have to go to work," Ceres said.

Ceres felt somewhat impatience.

Johnny was silent for a moment before replying, "No, I haven't."

"You can go to work. I didn't say I wouldn't let you go to work." He lay on the bed and looked at Ceres weakly.

"But I don't feel at ease leaving you here alone." Ceres had no choice but to call the company and ask for three days off.

Johnny knew that these three days were his chance. He had to grasp it well.

"Alright, let's eat," Ceres ordered some light food for Johnny.

Ceres placed the small dining table on the bed, and the food was laid out one by one. Johnny still leaned back on the bed and raised his eyelids weakly, saying, "I don't have an appetite."

"Even if you don't have an appetite, you still have to eat. You need to eat something to recover faster," she said.

"I really can't eat it. You eat. Don't worry about me." he pretends to be weak.

However, Ceres felt that this was not good. She ordered. "Come on, have a bite. Just eat a piece. Open your mouth."

It was like she was coaxing a child. Johnny opened his mouth, and she just put a spoonful of porridge into his mouth.

While he was feeding Johnny, Ceres received a message. It was a video.

When she watched the video, her eyes widened.

Then when he raised his head, he glared fiercely at Johnny.
