

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 275 Something Happened to Swedum

Nyla also appreciated the designer's idea, so she agreed.

Then they walked out of the break room together.

Alice looked at Ceres in front of the mirror and thought what women yearned for was probably to put on the wedding dress.

She smiled earnestly. "You look so fascinating."

This was what Ceres heard the most today. She turned around and held Alice's hands. "Alice, how are you and Bill going? Are you going to get married?"

Alice was a little embarrassed. "Not yet. Didn't you say that I should test him longer?"

"That's right, but I hope you can have a happy marriage earlier. Remember to grab my bouquet later. I will give you a signal and throw it to you."

Ceres said while sniggering. Fortunately, Nyla wasn't here.

"Forget it. Nyla said anyone couldn't compete for it with her. She wished herself marrying right now."

Since Nyla gave up Johnny, she had another date. It was just her way, so Alice and Ceres didn't know what to do with her.

Nyla always claimed to take it seriously, and they would end up getting married, but it tended not to be the case.

"Don't tell her. At that time, stay away from her. I'll throw it to you, and then she won't get it."

Alice also covered her mouth and laughed. "Is this our secret?"

"Of course! Don't tell her, or she will kill me!"

"Alright. I won't!"

Then Ceres turned around to look at herself in the mirror and sighed, "I also hope she can have a happy marriage. I heard that she had an engagement with Bob. But the two of them haven't gotten along well with each other since childhood. Besides, Nyla always has a lot of dates, so Bob probably doesn't like it."

Alice sighed, "Well, Ceres. Today is your wedding. Stop being bothered with others' problems."

Then she knocked Ceres on the head.

Alice looked at the time and screamed, "The wedding is starting soon, but the kids haven't been back. They must be having great fun somewhere. I'll go look for them."

Alice brought Ceres cake and a bottle of juice. "Eat something and be prepared for the tiring wedding later, or you will starve."

She even put a straw into the juice thoughtfully.

"You are so caring."

"Well. I'll go look for the kids!"

When Alice finished speaking, she left the break room.

Ceres was left alone. She looked at herself in the mirror and slowly smiled. Although she and Johnny already had a child, she still had a lot of expectations of this wedding.

Perhaps it was typical of women to be like this.

Suddenly, the smile on her face froze, and her mind went blank. It seemed that the wedding was just a ceremony, and she was just a participant.

After losing her memories of Johnny, she occasionally felt pain. Perhaps this was the only regret of the wedding.

Suddenly, someone knocked on the door.

It interrupted Ceres's thoughts.

"Please come in!" Ceres shouted to the door.

A member of staff walked in. Ceres spotted him immediately since the staff of Royal Hotel was all in uniforms today.

"Miss Ceres, I'm sorry to tell you that your son was injured!"

"Injured? What happened?" Ceres immediately gathered up her skirts and stood up.

"When he was playing with Dahlia, he accidentally fell down the stairs, and blood is all over his face. Now he is crying for you. Please go have a look!"

Ceres was anxious, but the long dress restricted her movements.

"Miss Ceres, let me help you take off the dress. Since Swedum is covered in blood, then what if your dress is stained?"

"Alright. I can't even move quickly in it."

"Don't worry. I've had someone inform Mr. Johnny of it, so the wedding will be postponed." The worker helped Ceres undo the zips and straps behind her back.

Ceres couldn't spare any thought for the wedding. Now the top priority was her son's safety.

She casually put on something and left with the worker.

"This way, Miss Ceres. He's there!" The worker was in a hurry and repeated.

But Ceres gradually sensed that something was wrong. They were getting away from the crowd. Although it was her first time to be here, she could tell it since the music and laughter were fading away.

Then she slowed down.

"By the way, Swedum is covered in blood, so his white suit must be stained, right?"

"Yes, blood is all over the white suit," he replied casually.

Ceres suddenly stopped.

"Hurry up, Miss Ceres. We're almost there!" The worker also had to stop.

"My son is wearing a black suit today, not white, so you have never seen him."

The worker's face darkened. "I mistook it. It's black. I was so anxious as to forget it."

"No! My son is a good boy and will not come to such a deserted place. Who are you? What are you going to do?"

Ceres knew that Johnny had hired many bodyguards and even invited the police to guarantee the security of the wedding.

Therefore, when this person told her that Swedum was injured, she believed.

This person let out a sigh of relief. "If so, then I don't have to pretend anymore."

Ceres stepped back vigilantly. She knew that she had to leave here immediately. As soon as she turned around, she saw two men in the same uniforms walking over.

Ceres subconsciously reached inside her pocket for her phone. Unfortunately, she found that she didn't take it with her at all!

"Who are you? Who asked you to do so? What are you trying to do?"

"We just work for someone who paid us. I'm sorry to offend you, Miss Ceres!"

Then a man walked up with a piece of white cloth in his hand and quickly covered Ceres's mouth and nose.

Ceres just felt the smell was so familiar.

She remembered she also smelt it last time when she was kidnapped in kindergarten.

But before she could think deeply about it, she lost consciousness.

The others finally heaved a sigh of relief.