

One Night Stand With The Uninvited Wolf President

Chapter 356 Bill Likes Alice

It was unchanged that Caleb was discharged from the hospital. Then it would be difficult to get him there again.

Ceres and Roy could find another way.

In a filming venue in Country A.

The filming of "Yes, Mr. Right!" came to an end today.

Alice had gone home with Bill and stayed there for a night. After she saw the pornographic magazines in Bill's room and several condoms that fell from Bill's pocket, Alice didn't like Bill anymore.

She seemed to have been disappointed with Bill. She liked him before, but she didn't like such a randy man.

Apart from filming, Alice was determined to not have any contact with Bill.

Bill noticed it and felt uncomfortable. The adult magazines in his car had been seen by other girls before. The condoms in his car also had been discovered by his friends who joked with him.

He did not mind others thinking that he was randy. But when Alice saw them, he was upset.

Bill could feel Alice's attitude. Every time he tried to talk to her, Alice was indifferent.

"Alright, the filming is completed!" As the director announced, all the staff and actors cheered.

According to the rules, all the staff sent flowers to Alice and Bill.

"Today it's my treat! Let's go out and have a good time!" Bill was also excited, raising his hand high to announce his decision.

Everyone applauded.

Alice wasn't popular here. Everyone liked Bill, so she sadly went to the lounge to pack up her things and go home.

In the lounge, Alice drank the last cup of coffee she reserved here and began to pack up. Suddenly, she felt someone standing at the door and looked up. It was Bill.

"What's the matter?" Alice asked coldly, continuing packing up.

"Let's go out and play together tonight. You are the heroine."

"Thank you. But I have something to do tonight." Alice smiled faintly.

"What kind of thing?" Bill asked.

Alice was a small star and had no jobs.

So she did not answer.

Bill realized that he had said something wrong and hurriedly apologized, "I'm sorry. I don't have any other intentions. It's been a month of hard work. Let's go out to relax. You are the heroine and my fiancée. If you don't go, other people will think that we have quarreled."

Alice paused. She knew that Bill was right.

She was Bill's fiancée. If she didn't go, everyone would guess what happened. If some media knew, they would write some gossip.

"Alright."

Bill was satisfied.

In the evening, Bill booked the whole Jazz Bar for the crew to eat, drink, and play. It was so lively.

Bill danced with others on the dance floor for a while, looking carefully and finding that Alice was drinking alone in a corner.

Bill immediately sat beside Alice. "Why don't you go play?"

"I don't like it."

Alice liked dancing, but she didn't like Bill. So she felt bored.

Bill noticed that they couldn't even find a common topic.

Someone pulled Bill to drink. Bill didn't have time to say anything to Alice.

Until two o'clock in the morning, the crew finally were exhausted. Bill was used to playing all night, so he was still spirited. He sent everyone away.

Alice accompanied him like a hostess. It was not until the last one was sent away that Bill turned to look at Alice.

"I'll go." Alice took her bag out and prepared to take a taxi.

"I'll send you off."

"You drank a lot. You can't drive."

"I will find someone to drive!"

Alice insisted on stopping the taxi. Bill leaned over. "Why are you always avoiding me? I won't do anything to you."

Bill said jokingly.

"Mr. Jaden, when will you announce the dissolution of our engagement?" Alice avoided touching Bill.

Bill was shocked.

Bill was gloomy. Alice planned to dissolve the engagement.

"Why are you asking this now? You still feel annoyed by that night." Bill was uneasy, "I am a man. It's normal to have those..."

"It's normal. I just think that we shouldn't continue our relationship. It will also affect my career." Alice interrupted, "So please deal with your family affairs and confess it to everyone."

At this time, a taxi stopped, then Alice directly got into it.

Bill was speechless when seeing that taxi leave.

After returning home, Bill couldn't fall asleep, even though he had played for the whole night. He was thinking of Alice's cold face.

He fell asleep near dawn and woke up at two o'clock in the afternoon. He washed up and headed straight to the Eagle Group.

After Johnny left Country A for Country M, Bob had to come to the Eagle Group often. Bill did not knock on the door of Bob's office and walked in, sitting on Bob's desk.

"Bob, I feel sad about breaking up with my girlfriend."

Bob sneered and continued to cope with the documents on the table. "You should get used to that."

"But this time, it's different. I like Alice."

Bob asked curiously, "Aren't you engaged? Did you quarrel?"

"A fake engagement!"

Bill told Bob the truth. Bob was speechless.

"Since that time, she has been indifferent to me. I always miss her. The colder she treats me, the more I want to get close to her! Am I ridiculous?"

"Yes," Bob replied directly.

"Bob, can you help me make the decision?"

Then Bob stopped working. "Alice is Ceres's best friend. So you shouldn't touch her."

"Why?"

"Ceres's friend must also be an honest girl. You are a playboy. So you shouldn't play with her."

"But I'm serious!"

Bob sneered and didn't believe Bill.

"I will prove it to you!"