

Our Billion 1261

Chapter 1261-“Did he leave any message?” “No.” Eason hesitated for a few seconds.

Worrying that Catelyn couldn't stand the blow, he continued, “Mrs. Mason, you are now in the mansion, right? Is there anyone with you? Please don't do anything stupid.”

Catelyn knew that Eason was concerned about her. She didn't say anything more, but asked the housekeeper to take good care of her two children, and then she drove to the underground parking lot of the theme park.

She didn't even care to change her shoes. She just wore a pair of slippers, and after getting off the car, she began to look for Cedrick everywhere like a headless chicken.

When watching the news, she learned that the explosion point was in Area F, so she directly headed to it.

Upon getting there, she saw that the whole area was covered with the residue left by the explosion, and the air was filled with the stench of something being burnt.

Firefighters and the theme park's security personnel were evacuating the crowd and setting up a cordon. Catelyn wanted to run into the area, but she was stopped by the police. “Madam, there has been an explosion in the parking lot, and the site is very dangerous. Please leave immediately with other tourists.”

“Officer, the explosion point is my husband's car. Please let me in. He is probably still inside, and I am going to find him!” Catelyn said hysterically.

Two police officers looked at Catelyn with sympathy and compassion. They didn't expect the car owner to be so young.

“Madam, I'm sorry for your loss. We're really not sure if there will be a second explosion, so we can't let you in ...”

Catelyn kept telling herself to calm down all the way, and she had managed to do that during the drive.

However, hearing the police officer say “I’m sorry for your loss”, she completely lost her senses and stared at them coldly with scarlet eyes.

“What did you say? No body parts have been found at the scene, right?”

Knowing that he had said something wrong, the police immediately comforted her, “Madam, you’d better leave now...”

“Well, since you won’t let me in, I’ll find my own way!”

Catelyn took a deep breath and didn’t want to waste more time with them. She went around to the back of Area F to call Eason. Just after she took out her mobile phone, Eason’s phone number flashed on the screen.

She put through the phone at once. “I have been to the parking lot. Where are you? Have you found Ceddy?”

“Mrs. Mason, I just want to report to you! Mr. Mason is fine. It’s just a smoke bomb, and he is now in the Pioneer Hospital...”

Catelyn was racked by doubts.

Since Cedrick was fine, why was he in the hospital now?

Without much explanation, Eason bluntly said that she would understand everything when she saw Cedrick.

At the Pioneer Hospital.

Cedrick was lying in the most luxurious VIP ward. His head was slightly injured and he was still in a coma.

Eason was waiting outside the ward.

“Eason, what’s going on? Is Ceddy injured?” Catelyn asked anxiously.

Eason shook his head and told Catelyn what had happened.

Before falling into a coma, Cedrick told Eason that the bomb was arranged by Mr. Denham, who had also taken away Jennie!

As Catelyn had guessed, Mr. Denham noticed that there was no private detective and that Cedrick had arranged everything to deliberately lead him out.

Therefore, Mr. Denham pretended to be deceived by their plan and made another deal with Cedrick before going to the theme park.

The two sides agreed not to hurt Catelyn and Jennie. Mr. Denham was not short of power but short of money. As long as Cedrick could give him a huge sum of money, Mr. Denham would promise to return Jennie to Catelyn.

What happened next was within expectation...

Chapter 1262-Both sides had ulterior motives. Mr. Denham wanted to take the opportunity to kill Cedrick, while Cedrick managed to take back Jennie during the negotiation.

Both of them were seriously injured.

Cedrick had taken Jennie to the hospital.

The reason why he hadn’t told Eason and Catelyn in advance was to keep his plan a secret.

At the same time, he didn't want Catelyn to worry too much about him.

Eason's words corresponded to what Cedrick had said at the Atherton family's villa last night.

It turned out that Cedrick had secretly reached a deal with Mr. Denham.

His purpose was to redeem Jennie with a huge sum of money.

Thinking of this, Catelyn looked at Cedrick lying in bed through the window, and she couldn't help covering her mouth and sobbing quietly. She was deeply moved by Cedrick, but at the same time, she was quite concerned about his health.

"Can I see my daughter now?"

"Jennie is a little dirty. The nurses brought her to take a bath and will bring her back soon," Eason said.

After knowing where the shower was, Catelyn walked over without hesitation.

Catelyn never had the chance to hug her daughter, who had been missing since she was born.

She wondered what Jennie looked like now.

Catelyn quickly walked to the shower. Two nurses had just finished taking a bath for Jennie and were dressing her skillfully.

Jennie pursed her lips slightly. She had a thin and sallow face, with only a few hairs on her head. Catelyn couldn't help connecting her with a stray cat that had just been picked up by the roadside.

"Mrs. Mason, this is your daughter..." Holding Jennie in her arms, the nurse said enthusiastically.

Catelyn's smile faded when she saw Jennie's appearance.

Her daughter seemed a little ugly.

She was not as adorable as Sharon's daughter.

But maybe it was because Jennie had suffered a lot during the past month and a half.

Catelyn asked the nurse to hand Jennie to her.

As soon as Jennie got into Catelyn's arms, she involuntarily moved toward the warmest place.

She was a little irritable and unsettled, constantly moving in her arms, waving her little hands and grabbing Catelyn's hair.

Jennie scratched Catelyn's face with long fingernails, and Catelyn immediately bled.

The nurses immediately became frightened. "I'm sorry, Mrs. Mason. We just didn't have time to give her a manicure..."

"It does not matter." Catelyn was filled with guilt for her daughter at this moment, and she shook her head and said, "Give me the bottle and I will feed her some milk. You can give her a manicure at the same time."

"It's very kind of you, Mrs. Mason." As they were at an advanced hospital, the nurses had prepared formula milk that babies could drink.

Catelyn gently held Jennie and stuffed the nipple into her mouth. "Sweetie, I am your mother. Do you remember me?"

Jennie immediately sucked the nipple with her pale lips.

Her grumpiness seemed to be appeased.

Catelyn stared at Jennie's thin face with mixed feelings of sorrow and joy.

What kind of suffering had her daughter gone through?

Jennie was so skinny that Catelyn's hand hurt a little. Perhaps she was only half of Puffy's weight.

'I must make up for my daughter in the future!' Catelyn thought.

However, Puffy's cute and rose-colored face always flashed through her mind when she was holding Jennie.

This was weird. Why did she always think of Puffy?

Catelyn dispelled all her messy thoughts and began to take care of Jennie.

Jennie seemed to be unfamiliar with the new environment. After feeding her some milk, Catelyn hugged her for more than half an hour. Her arms had become a little numb, but Jennie still refused to sleep.

Jennie didn't cry loudly, but she kept struggling in her arms

Chapter 1264-4 "Then why haven't you taken a look at our daughter since I took her into the ward?" Catelyn stared at Cedrick with her eyes full of doubt and questioning.

Cedrick's expression instantly stiffened, and a fierce look flashed across his face.

He then seemed to think of something. Wearing a smile, he spread out his hands at Catelyn.

"I brought our daughter back, so I have already seen her. Besides, I have just been saved from almost certain death, so I want to see you more. Honey, you are so beautiful that I really can't take my eyes off you. I apologize to you and our daughter, and I will help you take care of her."

Catelyn was surer that Cedrick was quite abnormal!

At ordinary times, Cedrick would never say such glib words in front of outsiders.

He had always been aloof and detached.

Catelyn sighed silently, walked up to the doctor with Jennie and said, "I am truly sorry, and we won't leave the hospital now. I feel that Ceddy's brain seems to be damaged. Please take a more detailed examination for him..."

The ward fell silent for a while.

The doctor nodded. "Due to damaged nerves, some patients with head injuries tend to do something different from their usual behavior. We were probably negligent when examining your husband's situation."

When Cedrick heard that he was suspected of having broken his brain and had to do another examination, his face immediately darkened.

"I'm fine, and I want to leave the hospital now!"

"No way." Catelyn refused and said in an overbearing tone, "Your head injury might be serious, and you are weird today. You must finish the examination, and you can't leave before the doctor makes sure that you are fine."

Bang!

Cedrick was grinning a second ago, but he suddenly seemed to have changed into a different person. His eyes gradually turned scarlet with a tinge of ferocity.

He lifted his leg and kicked the coffee table in front of him, causing it to slide one meter away on the ground.

“Do I look sick?”

Jennie was frightened by the shrill sound, and her whimper turned to wail.

Catelyn subconsciously covered Jennie’s ears, took a few steps back and looked at Cedrick in shock. She couldn’t believe that he had just lost his temper with her and even used violence.

Except for Catelyn, Eason and all the medical staff looked at Cedrick in amazement and fear.

Cedrick didn’t feel that his behavior had gone too far.

He directly picked up the blazer on the sofa and put it on, reaching out to Eason.

“Give me the car key.”

Eason was in a dilemma, and he glanced at Catelyn out of the corner of his eye.

“Mr. Mason, Mrs. Mason did this for your own good ...”

“Are you my subordinate or hers?” Cedrick narrowed his eyes evilly, and his expression had become more ferocious.

Eason had no choice but to give the car key to Cedrick.

Cedrick glanced at the brand logo on the key and put on a contemptuous look upon realizing the car was not a luxurious one. But he still took the key, shouldered the nearest doctor aside and walked away arrogantly.

It took quite a while for Catelyn to come back to her senses.

Jennie was still crying, and the situation was rather chaotic.

Seeing that Cedrick had gone far away, Eason decided to stay with Catelyn.

“Madam, Mr. Mason has a brain injury, and he certainly didn’t mean to be harsh on you.”

Catelyn took a deep breath. “If he had done it on purpose, I wouldn’t have easily let him off!”

Eason was rendered speechless.

“Ask a few people to follow Cedrick and seize the opportunity to sedate him. If he is uncooperative, tie him up and send him back to the hospital!” Catelyn ordered calmly.

If Cedrick returned to Mason Estate in such a fierce manner, Miles and Ollie would probably be scared.

After Cedrick left the hospital, he couldn’t help wearing a disdainful look when seeing the Bentley prepared by Eason.

Chapter 1263-She could only walk around the room with Jennie in her arms, coaxing softly, “Don’t be afraid. I am your mother, and you will be safe in my arms. Do you still remember the sound of amniotic fluid?” She tried to imitate the gurgling sound.

Catelyn used many ways to coax her, but Jennie still refused to sleep.

Catelyn was extremely anxious.

A baby couldn't grow up healthily without enough sleep.

At this point, Eason knocked on the door and said that Cedrick had woken up.

Catelyn's face lit up. With Jennie in her arms, she went to Cedrick's ward.

In the ward.

The doctor was doing a routine test for Cedrick. Holding a flashlight, he opened Cedrick's eyelids slightly to test the rotation and focus of his eyes.

After all, Cedrick's head was injured, so the doctor needed to be very cautious.

What was more, Cedrick was a rich and powerful man, and the hospital had to take care of him very carefully.

After the doctor finished the inspection, Catelyn stepped forward and stared at Cedrick with a smile, and her eyes were full of tenderness.

"Ceddy, thank you for getting our daughter back, and thank you for giving me a complete home. Our family of five is finally reunited."

Cedrick leaned back on the pillow and stretched out his arms, as if he were going to hug her, but before doing that, he withdrew his arms and took a glass of water from the bedside table instead.

Holding the glass, he stared at Catelyn unblinkingly.

"This is all I should do! If you really want to thank me, why don't you give me a French kiss?"

There were several medical staff standing in the room, as well as Eason.

Catelyn was slightly dazed, and her ears slowly turned red. She glared at him without saying a word.

Eason and the medical staff bowed their heads in succession.

Cedrick was so excited by her shy glance that he pulled her to the edge of the bed and let her sit behind him.

“Honey, are you shy?”

He put his arms around her from behind, with his jaw resting on her shoulder.

He moved his thin lips to her cheek, wanting to kiss her.

Catelyn felt that it was a little inappropriate to do so in the hospital, but at the thought that he had just been rescued from a serious accident, she didn't refuse his hug. Her long eyelashes drooped slightly, and her body shook gently.

Unexpectedly, Cedrick hugged her so tightly that Jennie, who was in Catelyn's arms, suddenly burst into tears.

Catelyn was most concerned about her daughter's feelings at the moment.

She pushed Cedrick away directly, with a hint of warning in her eyes, as if to say, 'This is no time to fool around!' Cedrick felt rather disappointed. He lifted the quilt and got out of bed, asking the nurse to go through the discharge formalities for him.

The doctor frowned and kindly reminded him, “Sir, you have a slight concussion.

We suggest that you stay in the hospital for a few more days ...”

“Fuck off.” Cedrick pushed the doctor away and said coldly, “I know the severity of my wound better than you, and I am sure there are no signs of concussion.

You just want to charge more, right? I have plenty of money, but I’m not willing to give it to you doctors! Go through the discharge formalities for me now!”

The doctor’s face turned scarlet and then white, for he was both annoyed and embarrassed.

Catelyn also frowned.

She stretched out her hand to touch Cedrick’s forehead.

His skin seemed a little rough, but his temperature was normal, indicating that he had no fever.

Cedrick smelled the faint gardenia fragrance on Catelyn, and his eyes lit up.

“Honey, your hands are so sweet and soft. Touch me more, for I like it when you do this.”

Catelyn directly shook off his hand.

“Why are you acting weird today?”

But Cedrick failed to realize it at all. “What nonsense are you talking about? I’m just so happy to find my daughter back!”

❓

Chapter 1265-Cedrick went directly to the nearest automobile sales service shop and chose a super-luxury limited edition Bugatti. When he touched the key chain, his eyes glowed with excitement.

The clerk made out the bill and respectfully handed it to Cedrick. "Mr. Mason, would you like to pay by credit card or..."

"By my identity." Cedrick glanced at him coldly.

"Your... your identity?" The clerk was a little surprised.

"You can go to the Mason Group tomorrow. Just tell the finance department that I bought a car and let them pay the bill."

The clerk had never heard about such a way. In the past, Cedrick always asked his subordinates to go to their shop. An embarrassed look flashed across the clerk's face, which made Cedrick suddenly narrow his sharp eyes.

"I can't buy this car with my identity?"

The clerk's face suddenly changed, and he repeatedly said yes. After sending Cedrick onto the Bugatti and seeing him drive off, the clerk immediately called the finance department of Mason Group.

Therefore, Catelyn, who was still waiting for news in the hospital, received a phone call from the finance department.

Catelyn was sure Cedrick had made those outrageous moves due to his brain damage. She acquiesced in the finance department to transfer the money to the car shop, and then she turned to ask the doctor, "Sir, how long does this personality change caused by brain damage usually last?" "This varies from person to person. For example, if a person lives in a depressing environment for a long time, his sense of resistance will be strengthened after his brain is damaged, which may lead to some exaggerated reversal of his personality. But from the cases I have seen so far, I think the hematoma in Mr. Mason's head will disperse and he will recover in less than half a month."

Catelyn was somewhat disappointed. She didn't expect that it would take such a long time for Cedrick to fully recover.

Fortunately, Jennie had been found back.

At two o'clock in the afternoon, Cedrick was sedated by Eason and brought back to the hospital.

When Eason found Cedrick, he was driving his new Bugatti on the rampage in the downtown area, almost hitting the passers-by. After Cedrick got off the car to argue with others, Eason took the opportunity to subdue him.

The doctor gave Cedrick a detailed and comprehensive examination.

It was found that there was no hematoma in his head. Instead, he just had a slight concussion.

In this case, there was no need to operate on him. The doctor arranged for a female acupuncturist to provide acupuncture to Cedrick to promote his blood circulation, remove blood stasis and dredge meridians, hoping that he would return to normal as soon as possible.

Even if Cedrick fell asleep, his facial features were slightly distorted, and the fierce look made him like a grumpy lion.

Catelyn couldn't help missing the old Cedrick.

This huge contrast made her feel that he had changed into a different person!

Suddenly, Catelyn had a strange feeling. If there was no hematoma in Cedrick's head and his brain hadn't been damaged, then why did he have a huge contrast in his personality?

This reminded her of the murderer who had hit Stella with his car. It was a person who looked exactly like Cedrick.

If she only observed with the naked eye, she couldn't even tell the difference between them.

Before the explosion took place in the theme park's parking lot, she had called Cedrick, and the latter especially reminded her that he had a small lump on his right shoulder. Did he know that there would be a "fake Cedrick" to replace him?

Catelyn stared at the man lying on the bed. Actually, it was very simple to verify whether he was the real Cedrick or not.

She just needed to see if there was a lump on his right shoulder.

Catelyn walked around the room, unable to calm down for a long time. After the nurse gave Cedrick IV fluids, Catelyn motioned for the medical team to leave and walked step by step toward "Cedrick".

If he was fake, then where was the real Cedrick?

Also, who was the baby girl he had brought back? Was it really Jennie?

Catelyn stopped half a meter away from Cedrick's bed, and her slender hands fell on his collar...

She was just about to turn him over when "Cedrick" suddenly opened his eyes and stared at her with a scowl. "What do you want to do? Why am I here?"

Chapter 1266-Catelyn's hand hung in the air. Holding her breath, she said nonchalantly, "The doctor said that there is a clot in your head. Acupuncture is needed to remove it."

The man glared at her.

Catelyn detected a hint of ferocity in his eyes. It was the same look she had seen when the imposter of Cedrick ran over Stella with a car. She immediately felt a shiver down her spine.

Now she no longer needed an examination to confirm that he was a fake.

But she couldn't lay it bare now.

It was easy to expose him, but this might be a plan laid out by Cedrick. He should have his reasons to place the man in his position. She shouldn't foil his plan.

At the same time, she was upset that Cedrick didn't make things clear.

What if she failed to see it through when this man tried to do something intimate with her? On the sides, her fists slowly clenched, but on the surface, she acted gently.

"Are you thirsty? I'll get you a glass of water."

Probably aware that he couldn't be discharged any time soon, the man put away his fierce look and said softly, "Honey, you seem to be shaking. Are you upset?"

"You bet." Catelyn unclenched her fists and smiled at him bitterly, "I thought we would have a happy family reunion, but your head was injured."

"I'm sorry. That was an accident." The man wrapped his arms around Catelyn, "A voice in my head is forcing me to do things against my will. It was not my intention to be mean to you. Don't be mad at me."

Catelyn's hair stood on end. She was unnatural but didn't struggle.

She had to play along with this man and cooperate with Cedrick in his plan.

Depression built up in her chest. This man was a fake sent over by Mr. Denham.

He was her enemy. She knew it but had to treat him nicely like her real husband.

The imposter wasn't aware that he had been exposed, which meant that the situation was in her favor.

"You're the love of my life. I won't be mad at you no matter what happens." Her voice was as usual when she nestled in his arms.

"I think the voice in my head is weaker now. When can I be discharged from the hospital?" The man got to the point.

It looked like he was anxious to leave the hospital to do something.

Catelyn sighed, 'According to the doctor, you'll have to wait until the clot is dissolved.'

"Okay, I think I'll be good in three days." The beautiful woman in his arms made his lust surge. He couldn't wait to lean close to her cherry lips.

Catelyn itched to slap him. In a hurry, she stopped him." Come on, you just woke up and haven't recovered yet.

According to the doctor, you should recuperate and avoid any physical activities."

Her tone was sweet to no end. It disgusted even herself.

The man listened to her. He pinched her on the waist and stopped his action.

Catelyn was relieved.

Just then, Eason knocked on the door.

"Sir, Mr. Atherton is here," he reported.

Catelyn took the chance to get out of the imposter's arms." Edwin is probably worried about your injury. Send him in. Jennie has been found. We haven't shared the good news with him yet."

The man had no reason to reject it.

Edwin then appeared in the next second.

Chapter 1267-Due to the fact that he just had a fight with Cedrick, his face was wounded. He wore a pair of sunglasses and a black face mask. This maintained his high-class temperament and his status of being the CEO of Worldwide Entertainment Co.

"Hey, Ced. I've heard that an explosion nearly killed you. Are you alright?" Edwin checked that Cedrick's injuries were no big deal and gave him a meaningful look.

He felt a little guilty for taking Puffy away, but he was beaten up by Cedrick, so he wanted to get his own back.

"I'm fine!"

"Cedrick", who was on the bed, tensed his muscles and kept his eyes on Edwin alarmingly.

Edwin walked around the bed and sized Cedrick up. "It's a pity that such a good car was ruined."

"Well, that gives me an excuse to get a new car. I've bought a new Bugatti. It was about 2 million dollars," the fake Cedrick said excitedly.

When Catelyn heard this, she suddenly felt she was a little disgusted.

'How dare he use my husband's money to buy luxury cars?' Catelyn complained inwardly.

She should not have told the person from the finance department to make the payment. She should have let "Cedrick" make the payment himself. However, when she remembered that this guy had the same face as Cedrick, she knew that if she didn't control him, then there was no knowing what things he would do. This might cause him to ruin Cedrick's reputation.

Edwin didn't notice anything strange in Cedrick's words.

After all, men buying new cars were like women buying new bags. It depended on the person's mood. A new car worth 2 million dollars was normal.

"It's a relief to hear that you're fine. Mr. Peterson will take care of everything.

You just get some rest." Edwin patted "Cedrick" on the shoulder lightly.

"Cousin, I have some good news for you," said Catelyn." Caddy has found Jennie. She's resting in the suite next door. Do you want to go see your niece?"

Edwin cocked his brows. He came straight over from the manor. To him, Puffy was still in Kelly's arms. Since when did she come to the hospital?

Edwin gave "Cedrick" a puzzled look as if he was asking him, "What the hell are you doing?"

"Cedrick" didn't get the hint in Edwin's eyes. He snorted arrogantly and said, "That Mr. Denson isn't scary at all. All I did was pull off a little trick and I was able to get Jennie back."

After a short pause, he then said deliberately with a deep voice, "It's a pity that it was a little too late when I found Jennie and caused her to suffer grievance."

Edwin looked like he had seen a ghost. "Ced, are you feeling alright?"

'Could it be that Cedrick didn't want Catelyn to fall out with me so he deliberately pretended that he had taken Jennie back from Mr. Denson's hands? This isn't like him at all,' thought Edwin.

“A little concussion. That’s all. No big deal. Do you want to go see Jennie? You can, but make sure you stay quiet and don’t wake her up. She lacks a sense of security. It took the nurse quite some effort for her to go to sleep.”

Cedrick’s words made Edwin even more suspicious. He followed Catelyn to the other room to see Jennie.

Puffy was a premature infant, but Edwin had hired a nutritionist to take care of her. She had quite a strong sense of security and would always fall asleep very fast.

Since when had she lacked a sense of security?

However, when Edwin saw a skinny baby lying on the bed fast asleep with her mouth opening and closing, he realized that this baby wasn’t Puffy at all.

He didn’t even know where this child came from.

Edwin was in a daze. He turned and saw Catelyn locking the door and looking at him seriously. “Cousin, there’s something I need your help with.”

Chapter 1268-Edwin was totally muddled by Catelyn and “Cedrick”.

“What is it?”

“I suspect that the baby girl isn’t my daughter. Please help me investigate her origin.” Catelyn lowered her voice, and thus only Edwin could hear what she said.

Edwin frowned and didn’t know what “Cedrick” wanted to do with the fake Jennie. “Why do you suddenly suspect that the baby girl isn’t your daughter?”

There is no need for Ced to deceive you.”

Edwin decided not to expose “Cedrick” temporarily.

“It’s a long story. It’s inconvenient to talk about it in the hospital. I will go to see you later and tell you the whole story. Anyway, please help me investigate the baby girl’s origin.” Catelyn was afraid that “Cedrick” would suspect, so she reminded Edwin simply.

Edwin thought. ‘Of course, the baby girl isn’t Jennie. Besides, the baby girl isn’t adorable at all.’ But he didn’t tell Catelyn his thoughts and nodded.

“OK. I will give you my findings as soon as possible.”

“Thank you, Edwin. By the way, please go to Mason Estate to take Miles and Ollie to Atherton Manor. ‘Cedrick’ has hurt his head. I don’t want them to be influenced.”

Edwin made an OK sign with his fingers and left the hospital. The more he thought about it, the more confused he felt.

‘Both “Cedrick” and Catelyn are so strange!

”“Cedrick” knows that Puffy is Jennie, but he still takes the fake Jennie back.

Although Catelyn feels suspicious, she doesn’t question “Cedrick” and asks me to investigate the baby girl’s origin privately.’ In the next few days, Catelyn accompanied “Cedrick” in the hospital every day.

She tried to sound out the identity and purpose of “Cedrick” and urged Edwin to investigate if the baby girl was her daughter or not.

Of course, she didn’t forget to contact Eason and Charles.

The real Cedrick must have hidden somewhere and schemed something. He couldn't succeed if he was alone.

"Cedrick" felt bored staying in the hospital. Every day, he said that he had recovered and wanted to leave the hospital. To prove that he had recovered, he restrained his temper and attitude. He even put on an act for Catelyn.

However, he still showed his true colors when Catelyn was unable to notice his moves.

For example, when a female nurse changed the dressing for the wound on his head, he would seize the chance to fondle the nurse's hips.

The real Cedrick had never done such things.

He always hated those women who threw themselves at him.

Miles and Ollie had lived in Atherton Manor for two days.

Both of them wanted to go to the hospital to see "Cedrick". Catelyn said that "Cedrick" was delirious and refused them.

This day, when "Cedrick" was taking a nap, Catelyn went to the manor secretly.

This time, she didn't play dumb with Edwin and had it out with him.

"The man in the hospital isn't Cedrick, so I suspect that the baby girl he took back isn't Jennie."

Then Catelyn told Edwin what had happened in detail. A man, who looked precisely the same as Cedrick, hit Stella with his car.

Thus, at that period, Catelyn went to Shoal Villa to live with Joanne.

Edwin still remembered it, but he didn't pay too much attention to it at that time.

Chapter 1269-Hearing this, Edwin finally figured out her intention. "Is that why you deliberately sent two kids to my place?"

"Yes." Catelyn nodded. "I once had a guess with Caddy. Before the fake Cedrick hit my mother with his car, he had been following Caddy to imitate and learn his way of speaking and doing things, but after he hit my mother, his cover was blown, which made Caddy immediately investigate the matter in depth. The fake Cedrick was afraid that his plot would be exposed in advance, so he had to disappear."

"This time, he made a comeback and pretended to be Caddy again. However, due to his inconsiderate observation, so many of his behaviors betrayed him."

"But this shows that we can know Mr. Denham's real identity soon. That's why he used this trump card so rashly."

After hearing the truth from Catelyn, Edwin was lost in thought.

Since the fake Cedrick was in the hospital, it meant that he didn't know Puffy was Jennie.

In order to gain the trust of Catelyn and to distract her, the fake Cedrick returned with "Jennie".

Everyone knew that Catelyn had been looking for Jennie all over the world.

As long as Jennie came back, Catelyn would devote all her attention to Jennie, thus ignoring some of his unusual behavior.

However, the fake Cedrick in the hospital was exactly the same as the real one.

Even when Edwin was with him, he didn't notice anything wrong. He had thought that Cedrick deliberately brought back a fake daughter to avoid Jennie being taken away by Mr. Denham...

Edwin's original intention of taking away Jennie was to force Joanne to show up.

What was more, there were indeed many forces preparing to steal Jennie in the dark.

If someone else stole the child, they might abuse her. Therefore, Edwin decided to get Jennie back by himself!

In order to keep this whole thing a secret, he also killed all the mercenaries involved in the kidnapping of Jennie.

Their bodies were tied with stones and sank into the sea.

When Edwin thought of this, a trace of shame appeared on his face. He said to Catelyn seriously, "Kitty, since you have deep trust in me, I also have one thing to confess to you."

"Confess?" Catelyn asked in suspicion, "Why are you so serious? We are siblings, and I won't blame you except for the matter of Joanne."

"Listen to me first." Edwin's mood was somewhat complicated, and he looked out of the window with a sigh.

The newly hired nanny was holding Puffy in her arms and wandering in the corridor...

The nanny wobbled with a rattle toy in her hand to make Puffy happy.

"Puffy's real age is not one month, but one and a half months. When she was born, she was very weak, weighing less than four pounds. She barely survived after staying in the incubator for half a month. Sharon is not her biological mother, but a woman I picked up casually from the countryside. My purpose is to let her take care of Puffy."

Catelyn's breathing almost stopped at this moment, and she could feel a ringing in her ears.

She stared at Edwin's moving lips.

Puffy was not Sharon's daughter...

When she was born, she weighed less than four pounds and stayed in an incubator for half a month...

She suddenly understood why Cedrick beat Edwin so hard on Edwin's birthday and why Edwin apologized to her.

"Say that again. How old is Puffy?"

"One and a half months." Catelyn slapped him hard on the left face.

She had exerted great efforts, which directly left deep red marks on Edwin's face.

With a complicated expression, Edwin continued, "The situation was quite critical at that time. I know Cedrick went to Fidelysia to find you, and I planned to stay with you for a few days until you gave birth to the baby. But as soon as I arrived at the border of Fidelysia, I accidentally found that two groups of people were going to rob your child as a bargaining chip. I could only take your child away and replace her with a dead baby."

Chapter 1270-Slap...

With a poker face, Catelyn slapped Edwin once again.

She could never forget the desperation when the nurse held a dead baby and told her that her daughter was gone.

She wished the dead one was her.

That kind of despair and agony could destroy one's faith.

When she had just lost her daughter, she couldn't sleep every night. The cries of the baby kept echoing in her head.

She had been tensed and suspecting everyone, including Cedrick and her father's political enemies in Fidelysia, but not Edwin.

Even when she went back to Sapphire City and saw Edwin holding Puffy, she only thought that he had betrayed Joanne and had a baby with another woman.

How could he do this? He was so cruel.

"Edwin, I won't forgive you. Give Puffy back to me. I'll take her away."

She no longer believed a single word from Edwin.

The person who stole her child turned out to be someone so close to her.

The left side of Edwin's face swelled due to the slaps. He said with a frown, "Where are you going to take her to? The Mason Estate? The imposter clamors to leave the hospital. No one knows what will happen next. Staying in the manor is the best choice for her, and Mr. Denham won't find out that she is your daughter."

Catelyn lost her temper and head. "I don't need your advice."

"Kitty, I..."

"Give her back to me."

Catelyn looked askance at him. The look in her eyes was unyielding.

Apparently, Catelyn no longer trusted him because he had crossed the line.

Edwin thought about it and came up with a plan. "I've never thought of keeping Puffy to myself. For the sake of their safety, you can keep the three children in the manor. I'll move out. You're mad at me and not Grandma. Let them stay here. Grandma will take care of them."

Catelyn rolled her eyes at Edwin but didn't object.

This was the best solution they could think of.

"Now I understand why Joanne left with Patrick. You don't deserve her! Even if you had to play a trick because someone intended to take her away, what about afterward? You had so many chances to tell me the truth. You're like a brother to me, and I've never doubted you. What did you do? Are you happy to see me holding Puffy while I can't recognize her? You failed to get your happiness and would not see others happy?"

Catelyn shoulder-checked Edwin and rushed out to find Puffy. Edwin was left standing there in a daze.

Expressionless, he looked like a lost soul. No one knew what he was thinking about.

When Catelyn went downstairs, her legs felt weak.

It turned out her daughter had been with her the whole time.

Puffy was Jennie.

She was such a cute girl.

Catelyn went to the nursery. The new nanny was changing diapers for Puffy.

Lying naked on the bed, she neither cried nor fussed.

Puckering her lips, she curiously looked at the world with her dark eyes.

Catelyn's heart melted when she saw that.
