

Out of My Way, I'm Becoming a Billionaire Chapter 33

Chapter 33 That Damned Woman Is a Real Troublemaker

“Mr. Safan’s daughter is amazing! She set up a tea booth and gave away free tea. Not only did she manage to use up the old tea leaves, but she also managed to promote the new tea leaves. Plenty of people were asking about it!”

“She didn’t just promote the new tea leaves. She even promoted Green Hill and brought tourists here. Our AirBnB is already fully booked!”

“She’s pretty, kind, and smart! She’s really the Aphrodite of Tea and Mr. Safan Junior!”

When Dimas heard their praises, he smiled.

Truly, she would never stay still.

When the sun set, the tea booth closed its doors.

Harmonia massaged her aching shoulders and returned to the bungalow.

The moment she stepped into the living room, Safan stormed toward her.

“I told you to stay put, you brat! But you never listen to me! You just keep causing me trouble! Do you also cause trouble wherever you go?!”

Ginevra and Hector pulled Safan back.

Even as Safan swung his fist at Harmonia, he was still around thirty meters away from her.

Hector said, “Dad, you even told Uncle Zimmer while we were on our way back that Monia is as kind as you are. Why are you yelling at her now?”

Safan glared at Hector. "You talk too much! Go and wait for me in the study room!"

But Hector was still worried as he stared at Safan's fist and showed no signs of leaving.

Safan glared at him.

When Ginevra saw this, she pulled Safan's hand down.

"Why are you angry when Harmonia did something good in your name? It's not as if those old tea leaves can do anything but sit there in the cold storage and rot away. If it weren't for her, they would have gone to waste!"

Safan huffed and crossed his arms over his chest. He looked angry, and even his mustache twitched.

Hector took the chance to let go of Safan.

He then snuck a thumbs up at Harmonia before he went upstairs.

Harmonia then came to realize that her father was actually pleased with her, but he was simply refusing to be honest.

Safan pointed at Harmonia. "I'm a kind person, so I won't hold you against this. But stay put! I've already spoken to the mayor about this. There will be volunteers in charge of this. You don't have to go to the tea booth tomorrow!"

Then, Safan went to the study room.

Harmonia went over to Ginevra and hugged her. "Mom, Dad is terrifying..."

"I'll make him sleep in the study room tonight."

Harmonia nodded. "You're the best, Mom."

Ginevra smiled in satisfaction. "You're my daughter, alright. You're exactly right. I'm the best."

Right then, thunder roared, and lightning cut through the sky.

Harmonia looked outside. It was dark, and she could see nothing.

“Is it about to rain?” Harmonia was surprised. The weather forecast never mentioned anything about rain tonight!

Ginevra nodded. “Yes. That’s how the weather is like in Green Hill. It changes at random.”

Harmonia then remembered that there were boxes of tea leaves in the tea booth.

If it rained, water was most likely going to leak through the tea booth,

“I’m going to the tea booth for a bit, Mom!”

She ran out of the bungalow.

“Monia!”

Soon, it started pouring.

At that moment, in the study room Hector said, “Dad, Monia didn’t ask for any money when she set up the free tea booth, and she also managed to use up the old tea leaves. She even promoted Green Hill’s tourism industry. This is a good thing. Why intimidate her?”
