

Chapter 553 The First Confrontation

Jennifer's POV:

As the days passed by, it seemed like the children were growing up really fast and they looked different to me every day.

In this strange environment, they were my only comfort.

After a long period of discussion with Anthony, we finally decided to name our daughter Angelina and our son Harry.

"Harry, look at what you've done! You've spilled milk everywhere!" I picked Harry up from the crib and said to the maid, "Bring me a new diaper and a new bib. Harry needs to get changed."

"Okay, Mrs. Jones." The maid handed me what I had asked for almost instantly. Fortunately, I could rely on the maids as they were highly efficient and dependable.

To be honest, being a queen was quite convenient, even though the feeling of being served always made me feel strange and uneasy.

"By the way, what is Anthony doing today?" After I changed Harry's diaper, I decided to allocate some attention towards my current husband.

"Mr. Jones is in a meeting with the elders. He said that he would send someone to inform you after the meeting," the maid replied respectfully.

I nodded in response to show that I knew about the meeting.

In truth, Anthony and I would just hold hands and kiss every so often. We hadn't done anything further because I couldn't completely accept him as my husband in my heart.

I couldn't shake the feeling that Anthony didn't love me. He was in love with Jennifer, who hadn't lost her memories. Not only had I not regained my memories yet, but there was also a big chance that I would never regain them all my life. Could we really live with each other like this?

I didn't have the heart to tell him the truth. After all, Anthony would be devastated. I could see that he really loved me and it made me feel very uneasy.

I was a completely different person from who I was before. My appearance and scent had changed. Did we really have a chance at going back to the way things were in the past?

What was I to do? Anthony was perfect, like an angel sent from heaven. He was the lycan king, strong and powerful, but he was also affectionate. Unfortunately, the better he treated me, the more anxious I felt around him. I couldn't help but think that I wasn't worthy of his love now. After all, I had no recollection of our past.

Every time I heard Anthony talk about what happened between us, I couldn't believe it. Was I really so brave back then?

It sounded like I used to do everything for Anthony, but that wasn't the case now. It filled me with shame and guilt, suffocating me from the inside. Anthony was still holding on to the past I had no memories of. It wasn't fair to him.

"Jennifer, don't let it stress you out. It's not your fault." Eva comforted me.

To be honest, the person I spoke to the most these days wasn't Anthony, but my wolf Eva. I couldn't imagine how hard it would be for me without Eva in my life.

"I know that. You, Anthony, my brother, and almost everyone keeps telling me that, but I... I still feel sad," I murmured to myself as I put Harry back in the crib. Then, I picked up Angelina in my arms and kissed her on the cheek. "Baby, are you hungry? I'll feed you."

I sat on the sofa, cradling Angelia in one arm, and then unhooked my bra to feed her. Luckily, Angelina was a good child and she suckled at my breast gently. As I watched her innocent face, my eyes misted in happiness. Looking at her put my heart at ease almost immediately.

"Despite everything, you're living a good life now, aren't you? Jennifer, you and Anthony are going to rekindle your relationship step by step. Just give it time. Besides, he is the father of your children," Eva said. "I believe that you two are going to fall in love with each other again. Leave the memories of the past behind. If you can fall in love with him once, you can fall in love with him again. Don't forget that you and Anthony are destined to be together."

"I hope so..."

"You should make some desserts for Anthony. It will be lunchtime by the time the meeting ends. You can show him some love by rewarding him with your desserts," Eva suggested.

I thought it was a good idea.

"All right, I'm going to make desserts now." I turned to the maid. "I want to make desserts for Anthony. Where is the kitchen? Can I use it?"

"Of course, you can, Mrs. Jones. Please follow us," one of the maids replied in a hurry.

Jerome's POV:

Ever since the cooperation between werewolves and vampires began, I barely had time for anything else.

I was able to catch up with Skylar recently. After I told her what happened to Jennifer, she begged to come and see Jennifer out of concern, but Aldrich stopped her. I couldn't understand how Skylar felt. In fact, I was quite worried about Jennifer as well, but I couldn't ignore the urgent matter that needed to be taken care of. If we didn't get rid of Night Demon once and for all, no one could live in peace.

After accompanying Anthony to the meeting, I quickly packed up the documents and prepared them to be submitted to the executive officer for record-keeping. However, I didn't expect to be stopped by Anthony before I even walked out of the meeting.

"Jerome, please wait. Are you busy now?" Anthony asked.

I bowed my head to show my respect to Anthony. "Yes, but if you need anything, I'll make some time."

"I want to send you to vampires' territory to look for any clues related to Night Demon with Aldrich." I didn't think Anthony would have such a surprise in store for me.

"What?" I stared blankly at Anthony in disbelief. "I'm going to vampires' territory? Are you sure?"

Anthony burst into laughter. "Look at you! You're so excited. Yes, I am sure. To tell you the truth, it wasn't my idea. It was the vampire king's request. He wants to maintain a cooperative relationship with werewolves. He wants both sides to carry out the investigation on Night Demon. However, he also wants to see you in person."

I understood at once. Skylar had told me that Aldrich wanted to see me.

"Okay, Mr. Jones. When shall I set out? Can I take Godfrey with me?" I couldn't contain my excitement.

"Of course! You may leave at your convenience. Give Skylar my regards when you see her." Anthony smiled. "Tell her not to worry about Jennifer too much. Jennifer is fine. I will take good care of her."

"All right! Thank you, Mr. Jones!"

With the consent of Anthony, I booked the air ticket for that day. After I finished packing up, I took Godfrey to the territory of vampires that night.

Needless to say, I was excited all the way. Oh my God! I was finally going to see Skylar after so many days. I wondered how she was doing now.

I didn't tell Skylar that I was going there because I wanted to surprise her.

