

Overwhelmed 214

Chapter 214 Guiding Candice

Although Candice had never played golf, she was a master of imitation. While the others swung their turns, she watched their movements and postures carefully.

When it was her turn, she stood up and held the club the way that they did.

It seemed and felt good, but there was a huge difference between theory and practice.

Candice swung the club, but to her surprise, the club didn't hit the ball at all. When she drew back the club, she accidentally knocked the ball off the tee.

Feeling embarrassed, Candice pressed her lips together in a thin line and knitted her brows.