

Physician Wife 1751

Chapter 1751: Not Even 14

"Although this incident happened in the Emperor District, the people who did it might not be from Camino."

The president frowned. "What do you mean?"

"They actually came for Nuannuan. That's why the first target of infection was Ning Wenhao. Because they knew that once Ning Wenhao was infected, Nuannuan would definitely save him."

"Nuannuan... Is there anything about her that they might be targeting?" The president looked at Nangong Nuannuan. At this moment, it was no different from looking at a gold shield.

"Actually... Nuannuan is the chairman of the Imperial Phoenix Group."

The president was shocked. Before he could finish, Chi Yang said, "At the same time, she is also the mysterious genius pharmacist from Sab."

"What?"

This time, the president cried out in surprise.

Everyone knew about the mysterious genius pharmacist from Sab. The drugs developed by this pharmacist were selling like crazy worldwide. This was because the drugs she had developed were much better than drugs developed by ordinary pharmaceutical factories in other countries.

For example, drugs that were being sold for 50,000 yuan per vial for various cancers had been made by Angel Pharmaceuticals, a company under the Imperial Phoenix Group. They were all made by that genius pharmacist.

/

However...

"That genius pharmacist suddenly became famous four years ago. Nuannuan, how old were you at that time?"

"Not even 14 years old."

Nangong Nuannuan's reply was very serious, but it made the president sigh endlessly.

He wanted to praise her as a medical genius, but when he thought about how this little girl had already built such an enormous business empire at such a young age, how could he simply describe her as a genius?

"I really didn't expect that the highly sought-after genius pharmacist from Sab and the chairman of the Imperial Phoenix Group that every country's government is fighting over would actually be the daughter of the Nangong family, and the girl soon to be married off to Chi Yang."

She was simply a huge easter egg that had fallen into Camino!

After hearing the President's words, a faint smile appeared on Chi Yang's solemn expression. Meanwhile, the men of the Nangong family started laughing at the president's words.

Xu Ming and Qin Muiyang could only look at this group of people with envious eyes.

They could only blame themselves for not having such an outstanding and beautiful niece or cousin.

Chi Yang quickly changed the topic again.

"I have already reported to you the whole story of Ning Wenhao being shot. The other party probably did not hesitate to shoot Ning Wenhao because they knew that Nuannuan would definitely do her best to save him. And there are not many people who know that Nuannuan is a genius pharmacist, especially in Camino. Very few people know about this."

The president frowned. "So you suspect that this is the work of an overseas force?"

"An overseas force would not have the courage to do such a thing under the emperor's nose. So, I suspect that this is the result of an overseas force colluding with a force in the Emperor District."

The president narrowed his eyes and pondered for a moment before asking, "What do you think?"

Qin Muiyang lowered his head. It was obvious that what they were expecting was not something he could say.

Nangong Shu saw that no one was saying anything, so he was the first to speak up. "After all, there are more and more infected people outside. It's impossible not to save them. But we can't just give in. So, I suggest that the military base step in and get every patient's family member to sign an agreement. Tell them that even if the patient recovers, they must be observed in a centralized observation area for at least half a year. During this half a year, the state will provide living expenses. How about that?"

Chapter 1752: Not As Ugly Recently

However, Chi Yang was the first person to raise an objection.

"If we do that, I'm afraid it will cause public anger."

"But if we release these cured people, the other party will definitely take them away at their first opportunity. Although Nuannuan said it would be very difficult to extract the formula from their bodies, the other party was able even to develop such a perverted genetic tool. Who knows? They might really be able to extract a medicine from these people. What's more, they could be among these sick people."

Nangong Shu's question was also something that the president and Chi Yang did not agree on.

Nuannuan coughed twice and said, "President, my friend is a mechanic from Sab. He likes to research strange things. Recently, he developed a kind of internal tracking device that a magnetic field cannot sense. It can stay in the body for about 15 days. After 15 days, it will slowly be melted by one's blood."

The president and Chi Yang's eyes lit up. The president was about to say something with a smile, but Nuannuan immediately interrupted. "But it's very expensive!"

The president looked at this girl who had been so enthusiastic one moment and was now talking to him seriously about money. He could not help but twitch his lips.

Meanwhile, the corner of Chi Yang's lips could not help but curl up slightly too.

The men of the Nangong family were a little embarrassed.

After all, if they were in such a situation themselves, they would have contributed a lot. After all, they could gain the favor of the president.

However, Nuannuan simply blinked her eyes and used a very pure and clear gaze to talk about vulgar things with the president.

"How much is one?"

"I don't know. I'll have to go back and ask my friend. But President, don't worry. However many you need, no matter the number, I will make him work through the night to get them all to you."

The president nodded and praised. "Yes, good! No wonder Nuannuan is a business mogul! Not bad, not bad!"

"President, you... That is a compliment, right?"

"Hahahaha..."

The president could not help but laugh out loud at Nuannuan's behavior. The tense atmosphere was also alleviated by her seemingly shameless question.

"Yes, yes, yes, I am complimenting you. As the chairman of the Imperial Phoenix Group, you were able to move the headquarters of this large group and many of its branches to Camino and create so much tax revenue for the country. This was the highest of praises. To be able to cooperate with the Imperial Phoenix Group is a win-win. As the president of the Camino, I should specially give Chairman Nangong an award for outstanding entrepreneurs some other day!"

Nangong Nuannuan blinked her eyes. She did not expect to get this kind of old-fashioned but earnestly sweet news in this lifetime. She was delighted in her heart.

Without thinking, she said, "Then I'll wait for the president to send me a brocade flag. When the time comes, I'll definitely hang it at the entrance of our Imperial Phoenix Group."

The president was amused by her words again. He glanced at Chi Yang, whose expression was no longer as serious as before, and said, "No wonder your expressions haven't been as ugly recently."

Chi Yang, "..."

Chapter 1753: Settled

"Then this matter is settled. Nuannuan, you will be in charge of the formula. The entire formula is in your hands alone. If anyone or any organization comes to you to ask for it, you and the people from the military hospital must make them go through the necessary procedures and come directly to me to ask for it."

"Yes, President."

"Yes." Xu Ming and Qin MUYANG immediately responded too.

“As for when to inject the tracking devices into the patient’s body, that will be decided by Nuannuan. Everything else will be handed over to Chi Yang.”

“Yes, President.” Chi Yang nodded.

Hundreds and thousands of patients’ families had already surrounded the main entrance of the hospital. Their expressions were ones of grief and indignation. Some of them even cursed loudly.

“Didn’t you say that this disease wasn’t contagious? Why have so many people been infected at the same time?”

“Last time, you said that Nangong Nuannuan had the medicine, so why didn’t you let her give it out? We’ll pay her however much she wants!”

“Yeah! So many people have been infected with lung disease. Are we just going to leave them be? If the whole country is infected, are we just going to leave everything be?”

“How long has it been? Even though that guy had some ill-gotten gains, it was still half a month ago. What have the people from the military hospital been doing for the past half month? Why haven’t they done further research on the medicine and come up with a better one?”

/

“That’s right! Why didn’t they do more research on it? It’s only now that it’s being brought up again. What’s the point of discussing this?!”

“Doesn’t our country have a powerful Medic Association? Aren’t the people from there all high-level medical talents who are experts and professors hired from all over the world? Why didn’t the hospital ask them to study the medicine that Nangong Nuannuan didn’t know how to develop?”

“Of course! It must be because Nangong Nuannuan wanted to make a huge profit from her medicine, so she was unwilling to give the formula away.”

“She’s so young, yet she’s already so greedy. To be the Nangong family’s eldest daughter... It’s simply a disgrace to her family’s 100-year reputation!”

“To put it bluntly, it’s still the military hospital’s inaction at fault! They treat human lives like they’re worth less than grass!”

“The military hospital has links to the military base. Since the Nangong family is so influential in the matters of the base, of course they want to fight for their own interests.”

“Does fighting for their own interests mean they can disregard the lives of ordinary people like us?”

...

The news of the patient’s death had already spread like wildfire, and it had reached the family members of the patient.

Even though the doctors at the door kept on explaining that the higher-ups were discussing what to do and would definitely give them an explanation by noon that day, the family members still would not let up.

Everyone thought that since this disease had been contracted once before and there had been a suitable drug to cure it the first time, the relevant medical research departments should have immediately taken over this drug's research. With that, they would be able to combine the knowledge of many experts to conduct more in-depth research on this drug. If they had done so from the beginning, then this large-scale outbreak of the disease after half a month's time would not have caught them so unprepared. The hospital was once again reacting, and not responding, to the illness—the same way they had reacted to the first patient.

As people pushed their way inside, the crowd outside squeezed in more when they saw something unusual.

There was a square in front of the fountain by the entrance of the military hospital. By Qin MUYANG's request, they had put up a platform early in the morning to hold a press conference there.

Chapter 1754: Absolutely Not Contagious

This time, in addition to the reporters who had rushed over after hearing the news, there were also reporters from the mainstream media who had been invited early in the morning.

When they saw the person walking toward them, the reporters from the mainstream media were shocked. Their cameras and lenses immediately aimed at the person and began to snap pictures or record videos.

The people outside quickly tried to swarm closer, but many soldiers rushed out to block their path, forcing everyone in a more reasonable position.

Qin MUYANG was the first to go on stage. Standing on the stage, he glanced at the dark mass of people with angry expressions on their faces and said, "Sorry to have kept you waiting. I'm the Director of the military hospital, Qin MUYANG."

Almost as soon as he finished speaking, the people started to make a ruckus. They were afraid that these officials were not aware of the anxiety and rage in everyone's hearts. The words that everyone had previously shouted were all shouted again.

Qin MUYANG and the president, who stood under the stage and was being carefully guarded, listened to the anger of the people. Only afterward did Qin MUYANG say, "I understand your anger. As the director of the military hospital, believe me, I am no less angry than any of you right now. The hospital previously publicly announced that this kind of lung infection was absolutely not contagious. But now, there are so many patients suddenly infected with this disease. Do you want to know why?"

The crowd gradually quieted down. Everyone really wanted to know why. Could it be that there was a hidden reason behind it?

Someone in the crowd shouted impatiently, "Don't tell me you're saying that we'll all be paid for taking part in this large-scale social experiment!"

Qin MUYANG coldly glanced at the person who had shouted. Many of the surrounding special forces soldiers also swept their gazes over to him at the same time, scaring him so much that he immediately admitted defeat and hid in the crowd, not daring to make a sound.

“Since things have escalated to this level, all you families of these patients can also be considered the families of victims. As the military, we have an obligation to tell the truth at all times. Now, please look at the big screen.”

/

As soon as Qin MUYANG finished speaking, the huge screen displayed a video of the patients being gathered into a huge ward the previous night and this morning.

The first to appear on tape were six people. Some of these six were still holding on, while others had already begun to require tubes to help them breathe.

The faces, ages, and work addresses of these six people were displayed beside them.

“As you can see, these six people all have jobs of their own. Although their temporary residences are all in the Emperor District, from the appearances of their work units and the things they do, these six people should have no connection at all.”

The families did not know what Qin MUYANG was trying to say, but everyone agreed with his words. Among the six people, there were white-collar workers, big bosses, second-generation rich people, and unemployed people. Their ages ranged from 18 to 53 years old. At a glance, it was obvious that they were a group of people who would not have much contact with each other.

“But there’s one thing everyone should pay attention to. These six people’s families are not well off, or they themselves are not particularly well off.”

“So what? Is not being well off enough to make one severely ill?” Someone below the stage could not help but shout.

Qin MUYANG held the microphone and said, “Everyone, calm down. At the time, I thought these people were better off. Along with this, our hospital has already studied the illness carefully. It is absolutely not contagious!”

Chapter 1755: Beautiful Blue

“We initially thought that these six people might have had some sort of common contact with another infected person somewhere, and that’s why they got sick. Therefore, our investigators immediately launched an investigation on them.”

When Qin MUYANG spoke, he emphasized that the illness was absolutely not infectious, causing the people listening to him from below to frown deeply.

This was because they did not believe him and were scared that they might become infected as well. That was why they were so panicked and angry.

However, very soon, the video switched to a scene in front of a bar. All kinds of people were walking in and out from the entrance of the bar.

Very soon, the first patient appeared. Half an hour later, the second patient appeared. This continued until the sixth.

They had all gone to the same bar on the same night.

After that, a scene from inside the bar played. Although it was dark and blurry, the faces of the patients were marked with red circles and numbers. Everyone could see that these six people were not at all familiar with each other. After entering the bar, they all sat at their own tables and chatted to their own friends.

Then, a waiter with a blue circle around his head walked to the table with a cocktail in his hand. He placed the cocktail down.

Although no one could hear what he said, they could tell from the people at the table waving at him and thanking him that the cocktail had been a gift.

Not long after, the cocktail was drunk by the patient who had been labeled No. 1.

Then, the waiter used the same method to place a drink down on the tables of Patient No. 2, No. 3... until No. 6. Even after Patient No. 6, he continued onto other people.

Qin MUYANG spoke again. "As you can see, the six patients all drank the cocktails given to them by this person. However, a few other tables were given the drinks also. The occupants of those tables also drank the cocktails, but they did not come to the military hospital."

After that, the camera zoomed in on the other tables of people drinking the cocktails. Then, the heads of these people were marked with green circles.

"After the investigators looked into this situation, we immediately sent out calls for the information of these people. Our SWAT officers immediately found them using the information we had about them. The people who drank cocktails but did not get sick have been brought to the military hospital for examination. They were all the kind of people who did not pay attention to the news, so they figured they had bronchitis or that their smoking was making them cough up yellow phlegm. Their illnesses had already started to get serious, but they had not come to the hospital for treatment."

The people: "..."

The hospital had carried out a detailed investigation on everyone who had come to the hospital today.

After that, the video went through numbering everyone in the group. What made the family members of the patients dumbfounded was that all the infected people had gone to bars several days ago. Even though they went to different bars and met different waiters, they all drank the same kind of beautiful blue cocktail from them.

Everyone could not believe that someone had dared to poison people so openly.

"Everyone saw what just happened. This disease is indeed not an infectious disease. It's one caused by poison. Therefore, everyone can rest assured about getting infected themselves and stop panicking so much.

"Regarding the poisoning, we tried to send people to arrest the criminals immediately, but these criminals had already been killed by some people operating in the shadows.

Several deaths were pictured on-screen.

“The waiter of Bar 1 was killed two days ago outside, in a corner of the city without any surveillance.”

Chapter 1756: Stage

“The gas in the waiter’s house suddenly exploded, and he was killed on the spot. The waiter from the third Bar was poisoned to death after eating pufferfish... because the incident happened so suddenly, the poisoned patients started arriving at the military hospital one after another early this morning. We’ve been investigating since early this morning too, and so far, we’ve only found out a few things.”

Although it did not seem like an infectious disease at the moment, and it had nothing to do with the military hospital, such a terrible poisoning epidemic was still a public security issue.

“What about our relatives?”

“Yeah! Are we supposed to just watch our relatives die?”

“Can’t Miss Nangong use the medicine she already has to save everyone?”

...

The crowd was full of questions, and everyone was excited.

“Everyone!”

Qin MUYANG called out and gestured for everyone to calm down.

“This is no small matter, and this is an extremely terrible incident. After the incident took place, the military hospital immediately reported the incident to the military base’s headquarters. After Mr. President found out about it, he was very angry. He immediately looked into it and held a meeting to deal with this matter. That was why we had to delay this meeting for two hours. The president has something he wants to say to everyone personally.”

Everyone was shocked. They did not expect that such an incident would have alarmed the president so much that he was willing to appear personally.

The family members of the patients were all ordinary people. They usually saw the president on television. When they thought about meeting him in person, the resentment in their hearts mostly dissipated.

After all, if even the president was concerned about this matter, then it would not be casually dealt with.

Many people recognized the two tall and upright figures walking up from below the stage.

One was the president, who could be seen on television every day. The other was the commander-in-chief of the Eagle Special Forces, Chi Yang, who had exposed the mastermind at the entrance of the military hospital just the other day.

Chi Yang accompanied the president to the stage. After the president sat down, he gestured for Chi Yang to sit down as well.

Chi Yang hesitated for a moment before pulling out a chair and sitting beside the president. Although he did not look domineering, everything that was going on was still firmly under his control.

After the president sat down, he said to the family members of the patients, "First of all, what I want to tell everyone is that Nangong Nuannuan, whom you all said was unwilling to hand over the medicine she had worked so hard to develop to save your family members because she wanted to make a huge profit, has already prescribed the medicine to your family members in the infirmary. However, because there are too many people, other doctors don't know how to do it, so the speed of dispensing the medicine will be relatively slow. But I believe that soon, everyone will get their treatment."

The first sentence that the president said to everyone immediately made all the family members of the patients, who were carrying deep grudges, immediately put on their first happy smile in the past few days.

"Fortunately, Mr. President is also paying attention to this matter. Otherwise, I'm afraid that we wouldn't have been able to get the medicine so quickly."

"Exactly! If the president hadn't intervened last time, wouldn't the patient have died? Although they deserved it, it was still a human life!"

"So it's better for the president to step in! Without pressure from the higher-ups, how could they use the medicine?"

A few people below started chattering. The family members of the patient were about to thank Nangong Nuannuan, but when they heard this conversation, they felt contempt in their hearts.

However, it was unknown whether the president had heard the conversation just now or something else, but he said...

Chapter 1757: No Obligation

"Your families have been poisoned, and you are all victims too. The hospital has the obligation to treat those who have been poisoned for free. However, Miss Nangong Nuannuan is not a doctor. She did not and does not have any responsibility or obligation to the previous patient or to your families.

"She is willing to use the medicine that she developed to save your families. That is kindness. It was her right to refuse to give it up at first. There was no right way to do things. To be fair, if this was happening to any of you, and it was one of you who had developed this drug while not being a doctor and not being able to medically research it, so you were not sure if it was safe, would you still take on such a large responsibility of giving it out to the public? If someone dies, whose fault will it be?"

The president's words silenced the few people who were chattering in the crowd. The family members of the patients knew what was at stake, but since this was related to the life and death of their own family members, they could not care less about others.

However, now that Nangong Nuannuan had started saving people, everyone regained their rationality.

"That's why I was a little disappointed when I heard all of you scolding Nangong Nuannuan and even the Nangong family. As your president and the spokesperson of the people, I was a little let down."

The patient's family members, "..."

Alright, they had been wrong.

“I hope that all my people can have faith. Faith is a kind of hope. It is faith that allows us to see the light even when we’re in the dark, at a bad point in our lives, or at a loss. Faith is the hope that remains even when you are suffering from endless setbacks. It is with faith that one can still be merciful and grateful in the toughest times.

“I hope that my people can be wise, too. They will be calm and relaxed when they encounter unexpected things. They will be able to keep their eyes and ears open. Not only will they have the ability to take in information, but they will also have the ability to filter useless or manipulated information out. They will also be able to also control their own emotions.

“Finally, I hope that my people can trust the president they voted for and the military base. Justice will eventually prevail over evil. However, when evil comes, even if we do not have the ability to avoid it, I hope nobody will be led by the nose by the evil forces in the shadows.”

The family members of the patients, “...”

Suddenly, they felt like something was wrong.

It felt like they really had been used as weapons in some social experiment, especially in the case of Nangong Nuannuan.

There had been a mastermind behind everything last time. This time, the mastermind was being so heavy-handed that they were impossible to ignore.

Last time, most of them had looked down on the family members of the patients online. This time, it was their turn to be ridiculed.

The president’s last sentence reminded everyone below that...

“Nangong Nuannuan was the one who developed the antidote. She never said that she wouldn’t save them. She also never said that she would sell the medicine at a high price. So, you guys made such a big ruckus around the military hospital and caused such a big commotion over nothing. You even made it onto the international news. Who does this help?”

This sentence made all the family members of the patients blush.

Chapter 1758: We Can Apologize

“Mr. President, we made a mistake. We can apologize to Miss Nangong Nuannuan.”

“Yes, yes, we will apologize.”

“We will thank her personally. After all, without her, our family members would not have been saved.”

Seeing that the people below working to correct their mistakes... The president nodded. “I am very glad that everyone is aware of their mistakes. But based on what I know about Nangong Nuannuan, she doesn’t really care about what others think of her. She only follows her heart. Therefore, there’s no need to thank her or apologize to her. All you need to do is be truly grateful in your hearts.

“As for the medicine she developed, you all claimed that she was keeping it to herself and not giving it up to a professional drug research organization. Because of this, half a month passed and the medicine still hasn’t been improved. I need to explain this to everyone.

“From the video just now, you all saw that your family members didn’t catch this illness, but were poisoned. The reason why this other party was so bold as to poison people over and over again was to trick Nangong Nuannuan to give up her antidote formula.

“Once Nangong Nuannuan handed over the antidote formula, who would be able to guarantee that some bad people were not waiting in the shadows of the National Drug Administration, ready to snatch it away? Nangong Nuannuan is not only the Miss of the Nangong family, but she is also the fiancée of the chief commander of the Eagle Special Forces, Chi Yang. As a soldier’s wife, how could she hand over such a confidential item so casually?”

The patient’s families, “...” Yes. If it had been them, they would not have dared to take it out so casually.

“However, although she did not hand over the medicine she developed, she took it to the Angel Pharmaceuticals Research Base and conducted in-depth research and improvement on the medicine there alongside some experts. So, who said that the medicine had not had any improvements? And who said that Nangong Nuannuan should hand over the medicine she developed at all costs?”

The patient’s family members, “...”

There was complete silence from this previously-noisy venue. Everyone knew now that not only had their noise not helped, but they had actually added to the chaos.

The president glanced at Chi Yang. He nodded and stood up, pointing at the crowd.

His hand pointed at the crowd. The special forces soldiers who had surrounded the family members of the patients suddenly started to move. They split into five squads and captured around 200 people between them.

The family members of the patients who had not been captured were all stunned. They could only watch as the people who had been by their side talking to their enemies for a long time were captured one by one.

After the shock, their eyes suddenly became clear. At the same time, they looked at the people who had been captured, and fear and dread arose in their hearts. They all maintained a certain distance from these people.

This time, there were more than a thousand family members outside the hospital’s gates. About 200 had been captured, so the proportion was nearly one-fifth of the family members of the patients.

Some of these people had looks of panic in their eyes. Others had been part of society for a long time and knew that they could not show their fear at this moment. Hence, they could only put on a blank expression and keep on asking, “Why did you capture me? What are you doing?”

The president looked at the different expressions of the people who had been caught, and a cold light flashed across his eyes.

Chapter 1759: Watch the Show

“Don’t know why you were arrested? Tell me, who in the ward is your relative?”

“...” A man who had been arrested thought about saying a name he had heard from the crowd before, but he was worried that that patient’s real family would expose him from the crowd. Would his real identity not be exposed then?

The person thought for a moment and swallowed the name on the tip of their tongue.

“I... I am a member of the crowd! I saw that everyone was gathered here, and I heard that their relatives were sick, so I was here to watch the show.”

“Watch the show?” Chi Yang asked coldly.

Being asked a question by Chi Yang’s freezing voice devoid of warmth, the person subconsciously shivered.

“It seems like you won’t tell the truth until you’re backed into a corner. Show everyone what he’s been doing.”

Almost as soon as he finished speaking, the man’s performance from this morning appeared on the big screen.

His voice was very loud because he had used some special methods to boost it, so everyone could hear him clearly. This man had been patiently waiting for the military hospital’s response since the early morning, and he had been inciting the anger of the people around him.

“Wait? Again?! How long do they want us to wait? Until our family members die?!!!

“Nangong Nuannuan developed the drug a long time ago, but she’s now refusing to hand it over. Isn’t that selfish? Since someone has already contracted this disease, she could have been able to share the drug and let staff from other medical research institutions participate in the research. Maybe the drug could have turned into something that could easily treat everyone today! But because of her selfishness, our families have to suffer. Now, she wants us to wait? Wait for what?! For our Families to die? For the military hospital to give us compensation if they die?!

“Make a scene! Make a scene! Everyone make a scene! If we don’t make a scene, the military hospital people will think that we, the patients’ families, are easy to bully!

“Yes, we want to make a scene! If Nangong Nuannuan doesn’t hand over the medicine to the military hospital’s base, we will make a scene! If someone dies, she should be held responsible for it! Our country has the Medic Association, a high-end organization that specializes in researching medicine. Why didn’t she bring the medicine to them to be tested?”

This was the first time anyone was focusing on this person. At the same time, it was also the first time that Chi Yang and the president were hearing it. It was also Nangong Nuannuan’s first time.

Although she was already preparing the medicine, when she heard the words ‘medical school’, she subconsciously thought about Shi Yalin. She thought of how she had been so bold and unreasonable yet had lost all her claws and teeth overnight. The Shi family, who avoided her like she was a snake or scorpion, probably wanted to protect Shi Yalin, who had turned into a vegetable, from her. Quickly, her thoughts turned to KE and King.

Suddenly, inspiration flashed through Nangong Nuannuan's mind. She swiftly grasped it.

All the bacteria in this world were divided into three types—non-cellular, prokaryotic, and eukaryotic. She felt like the thing that was infecting the patient looked familiar, but she did not know where it came from.

However, when she thought about King and the man behind him, she suddenly remembered when some tests were being run on poisonous bugs.

If the bugs on the test subjects' heads were shrunk by 10,000 times, would they not look like an upgraded version of this kind of bacteria?

Chapter 1760: Shi Yalin Slaps Her Brother

The bugs had allowed the experimenters to get ordinary people to match the endurance of those with abilities—and maybe even push them slightly above that level. However, Nuannuan's X-ray vision had allowed her to immediately detect the people who had bugs in their brains and swiftly kill them.

Therefore, the bugs were no longer an effective way for the other party to train their killers.

Hence, they were now using another method to introduce the bug into the body of an ordinary person, attempting to use a similar method to edit a person's genes for improvement.

However, despite their best efforts, an ordinary human body was unable to accept such a thing—one's internal organs would simply rapidly deteriorate.

The other party could not develop a drug to control this organ failure, so Nuannuan was now left with this difficult issue to solve.

After she completed this, was Viper going to find a way to steal her discoveries?

She thought about what the crowd had said—that she should have handed the drug to an organization like the Medic Association. She thought about Shi Yalin, who was currently doing well in the association.

Suddenly, an idea that even she found incredible popped into her head, making her smile.

As she thought about Shi Yalin's sudden recovery from her vegetative state, her mouth curled into a cold smile.

Nuannuan recalled the venomous snake she had seen before she died in her previous life.

She had tied herself to a chair and injected herself with a drug she had been developing herself. It had been to control her special abilities while simultaneously immobilizing all the muscles in her body. When Nuannuan was looking so weak and tired while she was merely sitting, had the smile on her face not looked like Shi Yalin's?

The more Nangong Nuannuan thought about it, the more amused she felt. The corners of her lips rose higher, and her smile grew bigger.

The morning sun shone on her face. She looked so beautiful, but there was also a kind of madness and wickedness about her.

Nuannuan was deep in thought, her hands constantly fidgeting. She was the only one currently in the dispensing room.

The president instructed that only Nangong Nuannuan could handle the medicine, and it was not to be handed over to any medical research base.

Shi Yalin, who was watching the development of the situation from one of the Medic Association's research bases, immediately threw the remote control she was holding when she heard what the president said. The remote hit the ground with a bang as she cursed angrily. "F*ck!"

Shi Yalin stood up angrily and walked toward the door with an almost cannibalistic expression. Just as she opened the door, she saw Shi Zhonglei running over in a panic.

"Little sister, what should we do? They've managed to identify the people we arranged to go undercover. They were able to capture every single one of them."

Shi Yalin did not know how to vent her anger. When she saw Shi Zhonglei rushing over, she raised her hand and slapped him. With a loud smack, she smacked his face and cursed fiercely. "Idiot!"

Shi Zhonglei was stunned by this slap.

He looked at the hand that had just hit him as it lowered. For a few moments, he could not react. Had Shi Yalin really just hit him?

Had his little sister, whom he had doted on since they were young, really just hit her third brother?

One had to know that Shi Yalin's status at home was not much different from Nangong Nuannuan's. The Shi family had very few daughters and very many sons. Only Shi Maude's last child was a girl.

Hence, Shi Yalin had been pampered from a young age. Her older brothers, cousins, and relatives had all taken good care of their younger sister.

Shi Zhonglei was a typical example of someone who really loved his younger sister.
