Chapter 1281

Truth be told, Jeong-seok's every move was within Levi's calculations.

He was originally unable to do anything about the situation.

But now that he had control of The Calamity, he had countless skilled men at his disposal.

Saving Zoey and the rest would be as easy as taking candy from a baby.

Zoey and the rest might appear to be at the mercy of Triple Group, but The Calamity had been closely surveying the entire situation.

At the sign of any real danger, The Calamity's soldiers would move in.

Levi also stationed people to protect Abigail.

However, the news reached him too late, and by that time, Abigail and the rest had already been taken.

Despite this, there was always someone keeping an eye on the situation from the shadows. If Abigail or any of the other women were in actual trouble, experts from The Calamity would rush in.

Levi had everything under control.

This was something Triple Group could never have expected.

Initially, Levi had left the matter to his men in The Calamity.

That was why he was currently in L Nation, having just buried Hades in his hometown.

But after the call from Forlevia, he could not hold himself back any longer.

He decided to take matters into his own hands.

"A hundred and fifty million!"

Bids started flying in from below the stage.

"Two hundred million!"

The audience eyed Forlevia with the gazes of starved beasts.

Not only did they share this kink, but the fact that the one being auctioned off was Levi's daughter made the auction all the more meaningful.

They were all screaming their bids at the top of their lungs.

"Three hundred million!"

"Five hundred million!"

"One billion!"

The wealthy elites outbid each other in a frenzy.

“Let me join in, too. One and a half billion!”

The latest bid came from Jaron, Jackson, and Lucas of the South Hampton Prince Gang

“Levi will come? Little girl, how naive can you get?”

“Your father is dead. How will he come?”

Jeong-seok ripped through Forlevia’s innocent hopes.

Everyone knows Levi’s dead.

But Forlevia obstinately fixed her eyes on Jeong-seok and glared at him. “Shut up! Daddy is still alive! I talked to him on the phone!”

“Just you wait! Daddy will be here before you know it! He’ll kick all your butts!” Forlevia exclaimed ferociously to the people watching.

No one took her seriously.

“Do you teach your child to lie, Zoey? Levi is obviously dead. What’s the point in claiming otherwise?”

Zoey was about to reply when Forlevia cut in, “You idiots! Daddy isn’t dead at all! He’s been tricking you on purpose!”

“What?”

Jeong-seok was stunned by her declaration. Something felt fishy to him.

Zoey glowered at the people around. “Stop talking, Evie. You might scare them! My husband is definitely still alive. He coming after all of you!”

The expressions of the crowd instantly shifted.

A few of them could feel cold sweat dripping down their backs.

The thought of being ambushed at the auction did not cross their mind.

The Calamity had been hiding about, yet we are completely oblivious!

Bam!

Wham!

Several skilled fighters showed up on the stage from nowhere and sent the men guarding Forlevia flying.

“Greetings, Missy.”

Following that, they shielded the little girl flawlessly, leaving not even an inch of opening.

Jeong-seok and the likes were aghast at the sight.

Beads of cold sweat formed on their foreheads.

Their knees started shaking feebly after turning their gazes to the front.

"It's not just me you can't lay a finger on, Mr. Williams, too. You can't bear the consequences should anything befall us. I believe you know how powerful Daelee Group and Noir Group are."

Williams nodded in agreement. "That's right. Let's have a seat and talk it over. We will fulfill your request to the best of our abilities, be it money or crude oil extraction rights. Let's work something out, shall we?"

Jeong-seok added, "Yeah. Let's make a friend of each other. I believe we can work out a deal. No hard feelings, okay?"

"No hard feelings? Are you telling me to forget the fact that you just put my daughter up for auction? Are you a f*cking idiot?" Levi bellowed.

The people present were stunned at his words.

It was their first time hearing Levi use a swear word.

Jeong-seok and Williams were stupefied.

"Finish them off!" Levi turned to leave while carrying his daughter in his arm.

"Greetings, God of War!" the Dragonites shouted in unison.

Levi beamed at them. "I'm no longer the God of War."

"No. You are the only God of war. It's tacit," they responded with a smile.

Forlevia clapped her hands. "Yes! Daddy is the God of War!"

Levi patted her head with a smile on his face.

"Why are you here?" Levi queried without beating around the bush.

"We are here to relay an order," they replied with a stern expression.

"Alright. Talk."

"Sir, the message is simple. You may show yourself to the public, but no one should know that you've recovered. Therefore, you must be in a wheelchair from now on. Also, because of the unusual turns of events recently, some people are wondering if you're alive," he explained.

Levi nodded. "Mm-hmm, I thought so, too."

"It's fine, Mommy. Nothing happened..." Forlevia stammered.

I've promised Daddy to keep it a secret.

But the adults could tell she was hiding something with just a glance.

"Evie, be honest. Tell me what happened," Zoey questioned expressionlessly.

"That's right. It's not good to lie," Emma reiterated.

"I—" Forlevia was in a dilemma. On one end, she wanted to be a good girl. On the other end, she wished to keep the promise with her father.

“Good evening, Ms. Jones, Ms. Lopez. We are the ones who handled the issue tonight.”

A few people came over at that moment.

“Huh?”

Zoey and Emma were equally bewildered.

It doesn't matter even if I'm wheelchair-bound. At least I can finally stay by their side as a living person.

That night, Zoey and Emma prepared a table full of sumptuous meals for him.

Levi kept Forlevia in his arm.

"Daddy, I didn't tell anyone the secret. But Mommy said that I'm not a good girl if I lie," the girl pouted. Her expression clearly showed she was frustrated.

Looking at his cute daughter, Levi answered, "Do you remember what we talk about last night?"

"Yes, I do," Forlevia nodded.

"We need to keep it a secret because what we are doing is a good thing. So, by not telling anyone, Evie is doing a good deed, too. In other words, you are still a good girl." A smile widened on Levi's lips.

Upon hearing that, the girl's mood finally became better and she grinned from ear to ear. "I got it."

The house was filled with warmth and happiness.

After dinner, Zoey said with a smile, "After so long, we can finally gather as a family. Our lives will go back to normal. That's great."

The Garrison clan of Oakland City received firsthand intelligence of Levi's return.

"What? That b*stard can still recover?" Tyrone was visibly disturbed.

If he regains his strength, he'll definitely come looking for us. After all, we did many evil deeds, some of which are unpardonable.

"We have to get rid of him before his complete recovery!" A murderous glint flashed across Tyrone's eyes.

The entire Garrison family came to a complete agreement.

If he restores his health, our family will be wiped out!

"This b*stard is still a disabled man. If we want to kill him, we have to do it now!"

To preserve their honor, they did not make any move against him previously. But the situation had changed. If they didn't end him right away, it would cause them their demise.

The Garrisons were determined to take Levi out because he was nothing but a crippled man at the moment.

There won't be a better time than now!

"What? He? I—" Olivia's face was sullen upon hearing that. Her eyes were about to pop out from their sockets.

Zar was the first to make his appearance.
“What are you doing here?” Zoey became alert as she noticed that man.
“Don’t fret. I’m here to help Mr. Garrison,” Zar said with a smirk.
Levi noted, “Zoey, let me talk to him alone.”
She pondered for a while and went away.
“Mr. Garrison, my intention is simple. I’m here to give you magical medicine to help you recover faster,”
Zar declared openly.
“Hmm?” Levi looked confused.
“It is a gift from my master. This is his special healing medicine, and I’m confident it’ll improve your
