Wait... Why are the Garrisons kneeling?

The Black, Lopez, and Zachs families too?

Levi was right in the middle when Zoey entered.

It seemed like everyone related to Levi and Forlevia was being punished.

Zoey dashed toward Levi and cried out. "What's the big deal? It's just a surname! We'll just change to another family name if everyone is so serious about it!"

Levi smiled looking at his frantic wife. "Calm down, Zoey. No one can interfere with our decision."

Upon that, everyone exchanged uncomfortable glances.

It was true that no one would dare to stand up against Levi.

On the contrary, they genuinely hoped Forlevia could take the Garrisons' family name.

Hence, they figured Zoey must have misunderstood the situation.

“Stop bullying Daddy! He’ll beat you guys up!” Forlevia glared at the adults and shouted.

She knew why everyone revered Levi back there.

If these people continued provoking Levi, she was sure he would beat them to a pulp.

“Well, it’s not like your daddy can do anything to us. Watch me.”

Before Shaun could push Levi away, North Sky Lord grabbed his hand and shoved him away.

Shaun stumbled backward before falling to the ground.

“Don’t think you can get away just because you have a bodyguard. You’ll die if you meet someone more powerful one day,” Shaun bellowed in anger.

“Yeah. Your bodyguard won’t save you forever.”

The lot repulsed Levi to the bones.

He ruined everything for them. They were here to meet key figures in the country, but they almost lost their lives because of Levi.

Given their hatred toward him, they would have given him a good beating if not for Zoey.

“We’re so dead...”

The three families refused to believe what their eyes saw.

Teneb’s car was parked further away from the manor before he came down.

Immediately, masked men in black attire carrying ancient daggers appeared before the crowd.

The Calamity!

What are they doing here?

Meredith snapped her fingers when she saw those men in black. “So she’s the master of The Calamity?”

“It must be, else the prominent families won’t even come to pay homage.”

“So it turns out they’re not here for Levi. They’re here because of The Calamity.”

“Should we just give him the God of War’s title?”

“What about Winsor then? Everyone thinks he’s the God of War. What will happen if we just give that title to Levi?”

“Yeah, right. What should we do then? It’s not like we can ask the two to fight each other for the title.”

There was a heated debate about this issue in Erudia.

The leaders deliberated over the idea and considered it from all angles.

After all, this was no easy decision.

“You know what? We can just give him a new title. He has done way more for the country than the God of War. We should just give him a higher title.”

This idea sat well with everybody, and all eyes were on the speaker.

“What title should we bestow upon him then?”

“Make him king!” someone exclaimed.

Everyone stared at one another awkwardly.

The Dragonites were way too truthful.

They pointed out without reservation that the Crown King was way better than Winsor.

Winsor had always thought of himself as second to none.

He conjectured that the person to be sworn in must be from the Four Great Families.

“We’ll see you at the coronation ceremony.”

With that said, the Dragonites left.

Gloom settled over Winsor’s face after they went off.

He was having a great time enjoying all the respect from people after he was made the God of War.

The news about the Crown King came out of nowhere and put him in distress.

On the other side, Levi was pleasantly surprised when he found out he would be the Crown King.

He initially thought he would only be made God of War again, but it turned out that they wanted to raise him to a higher stature.

This meant he would have more armies under him.

“Yeah, kids really believe everything adults say. This is not good for them,” Emma agreed.

She did not want her granddaughter to go around telling people her father was the Crown King.

People might think she was a liar and ostracize her.

“Alright, alright,” Levi said, nodding his head.

He had to admit that knowing too much would not be good for Forlevia. It would only put her in danger, so it would be wise for him to keep his identity a secret.

After all, this was what the Dragonites told him to do too.

Although Levi had made tremendous achievements in tearing his enemies down, he knew this was just the end of the beginning.

There was still a greater threat at the back of his head.

He was fully aware that there were still insiders within the system that he needed to pin down.

Also, he had not solved the mystery behind Blood King Palace’s reemergence.

“What?”

Both Zoey and Emma were taken aback.

It took them a while to come back to their senses.

“What do you mean? Why are you going over tomorrow?” Zoey asked in surprise.

Don’t tell me he’s the Crown King.

No way.

Levi was with us all this while.

He has done nothing to win this title.

Zoey and Emma looked at each other in confusion.

Right then, Zoey figured he must have wanted to watch the ceremony on the spot.

Even if Levi was already not the God of War, he still loved the country dearly.

"Mm? Why is he here?" Winsor scowled.

"I have no idea. Perhaps he's here to witness the ceremony," Zar answered.

"Okay. Where is he? Let's go to him."

Under Zar's lead, the crowd came to Levi.

At the sight of Levi, Winsor sighed. "You used to be undefeatable, but you're now useless. Did you take the medicine I gave you back then? I hope you'll regain your strength and return to your prime so we can battle against each other. If you win, you'll keep your God of War title."

Winsor might've said that, but he was certain Levi wouldn't win.

Bolgun explained, "Boss wishes you a speedy recovery. As for the battle, he'll defeat you for sure. Even The Calamity had been defeated by him."

Bolgun was saying that Levi could recover, but there was no way he'd get to defeat Winsor.

Levi replied calmly, "No need. You can keep the rank for yourself."

"What a chicken."

"He can't help it. Look how weak he is now. It must've been a tremendous blow to him. He's devastated and lost the will to fight on."

“Boss, I don’t think he’s brave enough to battle you!”

When they started scanning the crowd for Levi’s figure, Azure Dragon and the others were doing the same.

Where is Levi? Why did he disappear without warning?

The seats were almost filled up, but Levi was still nowhere to be seen.

It could only mean one thing—Levi wasn't invited!

They hurriedly scanned the guest list and didn't see Levi's name there.

He isn't invited! Then how did he come in? Didn't anyone stop him? Where is he now?

"Forget it. We should focus on the ceremony."

Everyone promptly turned their attention back to the ceremony.

Right now, the preparations were done, and the whole ceremony would be broadcasted live on TV.

Meanwhile, in North Hampton, Zoey and her family were waiting for the ceremony to begin in front of the TV.

Hundreds of Dragonites were guarding the Coronation Stage—the symbol and glory of Erudia.

Finally, the Coronation Stage, which had been sealed off in this century, was revealed to the public. There were only a few people who could achieve this feat, especially being inaugurated as Crown King.

“Today, we have opened the Coronation Stage to inaugurate the Crown King.”

“Let us welcome the three tokens!”

Shortly after, the three tokens were brought onto the Coronation Stage.

There was one ring, one mask, and one sword.

The ring’s name was Dragon Ring, and there was a magnificent dragon’s head on the gold ring.

The gold mask was known as the Dragon Mask as it had a dragon carved on it.

Lastly, the Dragon Sword, with the shadow of a dragon etched on it, was revealed.

The three tokens had been kept in the National Treasury for hundreds of years, as only those who were inaugurated had the privilege of owning them.

At long last, the tokens were revealed to the public.
