Chapter 1341

“The agreement was a piece of classified information, and even your previous title did not have the authority to access it! You’re only able to access it now with your Crown King title,” West Sky Lord explained.

Levi sighed. “My intention was to uncover the influences that ran deep in Erudia so that we could identify the possible risks involved. I did not expect to ruin such an important agreement!”

It was something that he had not anticipated either.

Now, I’m going to be the black sheep.

Only God knows what will be the consequences that follow.

West Sky Lord shook her head. “Master, this has nothing to do with you. I doubt that the Four Great Families were even that eager to keep the peace. They’re just blaming it on you so that they wouldn’t have to bear with the responsibilities.”

“Right, they’re just using me as an excuse so that they do not need to be bound by the agreement. Now I’m the one to be blamed for everything! Anyway, I’ve made the decision to bear with the consequences of my actions.”

Levi threw a look at West Sky Lord, and she disappeared in a jiffy.

It was because Minka had arrived.

Levi’s connection to the Calamity had to be reduced to a minimum with Minka around.

After all, she was not someone to be taken lightly. The woman was sharp enough to pick up on the traces of any communication.

Cora did have the capacity to say such a thing, seeing that Minka and Winsor, both of which came from the Four Great Families had managed to attain the ranks of God of War, despite them only holding menial positions in the Four Great Families.

So, Cora had no reason to fear Levi, especially since she was in the upper echelons of the Four Great Families.

Minka was even someone whom she had paid no heed to.

“Yes, they’re such bullies! The woman has chided Zoey’s social status of being no match for Levi’s! Moreover, that Levi is only a wheelchair-bound cripple. How is Zoey not a good match for him?”

“Mother, now that you’re back, Zoey finally has someone she can depend on. Now, I’d like to see who is not a good match for whom?”

Zoey was afraid that the matter would spiral out of control and hurriedly said, “Grandma, we’re just having a minor spat, it’s really nothing.”

Cora’s face turned grim.

“If the lad was still the God of War, then the Great Family of Westford would still have spared him some courtesy. However, now that he’s nothing, why would I accommodate his crudeness?”

Right then, Forlevia said, “Daddy is the Crown King, who’s much more powerful than the God of War!”

“What good has that Levi taught Forlevia? She’s full of lies!” Aaron reprimanded.

Having just accelerated their family status, the Lopez family had not gotten the chance to showcase their newfound power.

They thought it was the best chance to give Levi a piece of their minds.

"I'm not going," Zoey said, determined to stay home with Forlevia.

Still mad at Levi, she did not wish to see him.

Meanwhile, at the manor, the Lopez family showed up not long after the doctors from the Great Family of Southford left.

"Stop right there. Announce yourselves! This is private property, and no trespassing is allowed!"

The guards that Minka had arranged blocked the path of the Lopez family.

“How dare you!”

The few fighters flanking Cora sent the guard flying, and they entered the manor forcefully.

“What’s the matter?”

Minka and Levi came out after they heard the commotion.

Cora’s domineering aura stumped even Levi.

This is Zoey’s grandmother?

How is Harry deserving of her then?

The truth was, Cora was a rebel and did not fancy being bound by the rules of the Great Family of Westford. Hence, she left the family on her own accord and fell in love with Harry.

“Yes, that’s right! We have to teach this brat a good lesson!”

“Otherwise, he might think that we’re just pushovers!”

The Lopez family was in high spirits after their social status had been elevated off the ground.

“At least I don’t want to see him still sitting around. This scoundrel only deserves to grovel at my feet!” Cora sneered.

Just when the fighters flanking her were about to launch their attacks, Minka and the others bellowed, “How dare you!”

They stood in front of Levi to guard him.

“Young lady, are you sure you want to go up against me? You’re also one of the Four Great Families. According to the rules, you actually have to pay respects to me by getting down to your knees!” Cora snapped.

“Who knew that Zoey had a background like that?”

“The old woman is the sister of the current leader of the Great Family of Westford! She can totally speak for the Westfords!” Minka exclaimed.

Levi was stumped by Cora’s identity as well.

“Enyo, it seems like there’s no need for you to stay any longer by my side since the doctors from the Southford were at a loss about my condition either,” Levi said to Minka, seizing the chance that presented itself.

Nonetheless, Minka was still on the fence. “But your body’s condition improved, right?”

“Yes, that’s right. My body has been healing but the progress is slower. I think it’s because there are still remnants of the Blood King Palace poison in my body. I’m afraid it will be impossible for my body to recover if I do not rid my body completely of it!” Levi said.

Actually, the poison had long been eliminated from his body.

He just wanted Minka to find out more about the poison so that he could pinpoint the culprit who betrayed Erudia.

As expected, Minka said, “Sure, I will personally investigate more about the Blood King Palace poison. I wish you a speedy recovery! That being said, I’m still going to be in charge of your safety. My guards will protect you from any impending harm.”

Forlevia understood what was going on.

Even though she did not understand how powerful the Great Family of Westford was, she knew that her father's Crown King would be more than worthy.

Oblivious to the fact, Zoey could only smile helplessly at her daughter's naivety.

She thought that the little girl would be bawling for her father, but her daughter had become the one to comfort her instead.

The other members of the Lopez family merely looked at Forlevia and did not wish to burst her bubble.

To their understanding, it was impossible that Levi would be able to see them both again in his lifetime.

The Great Family of Westford's entrance into the scene meant that the Lopez family was on the highway to prosperity.

The elevated status meant that the Lopez was joining the ranks of noble families in North Hampton and even in the whole Northern region.

Being the younger sister to the leader of the Great Family of Westford, Cora exercised great influence.

Nobody in their right minds would dare to mess with her.

The man in the black dragon mask, Kuro Dragon, smiled contently after listening to the others.

However, the man still felt the need to remind his people, "All of you have to be careful not to leave any trails that might lead back to us. There won't be enough lives to pay Erudia if they find out about how we've betrayed Erudia by plotting with people overseas who wished harm upon Erudia."

"That's a given. I've resented Erudia for a long time. Exposing myself to be caught will be the last thing I want to do. I am still waiting for the time when I can witness the downfall of Erudia with my very own eyes..."

Another man chimed in, "I have not avenged myself. Why would I leave any trail to be caught?"

"They're accusing me of being Erudia's traitor? I'd like to show them how I'm going to avenge myself!"

The group of men expressed their unanimous dissent and exasperation toward Erudia right then.

It was as if Erudia had done irreparable damage to them.

"All right, get ready, all of you," Kuro Dragon ordered.

His lips curled into a smirk, pleased at the sight.

Even though they relented, it did not mean that they were wholeheartedly on board with the arrangement.

The God of War was indeed impressive on the battlefield and had managed to win countless battles.

But this time it was different. They were not on a battlefield!

The escort team consisted of sixteen people, and Levi would add one more count to the team, making it seventeen.

The squad members knew for sure that their opponents and themselves consisted of skilled fighters, and they were positive that the fight would be over in a blink of an eye.

Is it really necessary for him to command us then? It's not like we're an army comprising of hundreds and thousands of soldiers!

They could not help but think that Levi's presence was going to be a burden to them.

What was more, the man was actually a cripple who was wheelchair-bound.

After the leader for the Dragonites exited, the de facto leader for the escort mission and the leader of the Dragon squad, Drakon, voiced out, "God of War, I have to admit that I once revered you, but everyone knows that now you're just a cripple. How are you going to ensure that the escort mission is a success then?"

The leader of the Phoenix squad chided, "Yes, we're going to end up watching your back. Your presence will only serve to distract us!"

Similarly, Panthera, the leader for the Tiger squad was peeved with the arrangement as well, and berated, "Besides, do they have no confidence in our abilities? Even though we seldom go on missions like these, have we ever failed them?"

"That's right, we've gone on hundreds of missions for over a decade, and never once have we failed!" started to protest as

"He had once been our idol, but now he's only a burden to us all!" Phenix chided angrily.

Lenix sighed. "How good would it be if he were healthy? He was the God of War, after all, and towered over hundreds of countries in his heyday."

"It sure as hell does not seem possible right now. Look at him taking a nap right in the middle of a mission! Does he think he's on a getaway trip or something?"

The others did not look favorably upon him.

In the meantime, Levi fell into deep slumber with Forlevia in mind.

It was raining heavily when he woke up, and the man was oblivious to the distance they had traveled.

Thunder rumbled as lightning tore through the sky.

Sudden roars of thunder made Levi jolt awake.

He was dreaming about Zoey and Forlevia being abducted by someone.

The man jolted awake from the bad dream as the thunder boomed.

The Phoenix squad broke into a chuckle at the sight.

His words came as a surprise to everyone else.

Levi had not spoken a word ever since he came into the car.

However, when the mission was seemingly coming to an end, the man spoke up.

They found it absurd, to say the least.

Phenix threw him another disdainful look and mocked Levi. "God of War, do you not understand the report that came back just now?"

"Drakon has informed us that the one zone ahead of us is clear, and there is no danger nor ambush ahead. What should we look out for then, exactly?"

Levi merely smiled at Phenix's doubtful look and asked, "Who is in charge of the convoy today?"

“Drakon, why?” Lenix asked.

“Stop the convoy and summon Drakon! I have something to say to him!” Levi ordered.

Phenix’s voice became dangerously low. “Are you... ordering us?”

“What does it sound like? The Dragonites have sent me here to command all of you. Need I remind you that the lot of you are supposed to listen to me?” Levi retorted.
