Chapter 1351

“Levi, didn’t you say that this route was dangerous? We’ve gone through it safely. Where’s the danger?”

“Are you still insisting that we listen to you? Have you gone nuts?”

Phenix and the others chided the man.

The Wolf squad and over ten covert sentries broke into a fit of laughter.

“Did he take us for fools? The routes ahead are well within our control. There is no danger!”

“Were you just trying to make your presence known? You’ve contributed nothing to this mission!”

“So, do you still think that your suggestion is viable?” Drakon and the others asked.

Levi nodded his head. “Yes, I believe that there is a problem with this route. That’s why I suggested a change a route a while back.”

“I can’t believe how delusional he is! Let’s just dump him here, and let him wheel himself back to the city!” Drakon was about to burst from the boiling rage.

“Yes, I second that.”

The others harbored the same thought.

Levi was essentially challenging their judgement.

“Forget it. As long as we’ve completed our mission. There’s no need to squabble over minor matters.”

The four squads deeply regretted their decision to make light of Levi's warning.
The enemies' attack had caught them off-guard, and they sustained heavy damage.
The Wolf squad and the covert sentries had sustained the most damage.
Only then did everyone understand why Levi was dispatched here by the Dragonites.
Despite Levi's physical incapacitation, his mind was still as sharp as ever. He was nothing short of a brilliant military strategist.
Right then, Phenix and the others felt their faces burning with shame.
They had been humiliating Levi just seconds ago, only to experience the truth of his predictions.
Regret was, however, a useless emotion in the face of battle.
"Protect the cargo! We can't lose it!"
Drakon and Panthera rushed forward to take on the enemies.
"How are the injuries?" Drakon asked.

“Four men in the Wolf squad suffered mild injuries, and the covert sentries lost four out of twelve men. The other eight sentries are injured as well,” Salem replied.

Mikael’s three companions laughed and added, “Don’t think of pulling any tricks up your sleeves! Resistance is futile! We can kill you all easily before your reinforcements arrive.”

“Be a good boy and hand us the goods. We’re not out for blood.”

They had expected it to be an easy fight.

“Over my dead body! Trying to steal our cargo? You must be joking!” Drakon scoffed.

Panthera roared, “That’s right! If you want to take our cargo, you’ll have to go through us.”

The sixteen men in the four squads had mentally prepared themselves for a fight to the death despite realizing that they were no match for their enemies.

It would be too late when the reinforcements finally arrived. Their cargo might be gone by then.

It was a moment of extreme danger.

Lenix complained. “We should’ve listened to Levi’s warning! None of this would’ve happened if we changed our route!”

“He guessed correctly. But how could his guess be anything but pure luck?” Phenix grumbled.

“If Levi was so confident, he should’ve insisted on us changing routes! He relented to our decision in the end! He wasn’t sure as well!”

“It’s all Levi’s fault that we took so much damage.”

Complaints abounded that instant.

The Four Devils and their masked underlings were about to leave when a voice cut through the battle-worn forest.

"Huh? Who's there?" Mikael was puzzled.

They stopped walking and turned in the direction of the car.

Disgust and anger flashed through the eyes of the incapacitated squad members.

Why are you stirring up a fuss now? Do you have a death wish or something? Our enemies are leaving already. Did you want to turn yourself into some war hero by giving them your life?

"Dumb*ass!"

"You got that right!"

Drakon and his men grumbled furiously.

Someone then flung open the car door, revealing a wheelchair-bound Levi.

Mikael was shocked. "Y-you? I've seen you before!"

"You're Levi Garrison, the God of War!" Horatio exclaimed.

Levi merely smirked.

Exactly as I expected. I managed to track down Erudia's most infamous criminals.

It was unwise to underestimate the Four Devils, even if Levi had been at his prime.
They would not be listed as the most wanted criminals in Erudia otherwise.
Their army of masked underlings posed a significant threat as well.
It seemed like an impossible matchup.
Levi’s death was but a foregone conclusion.
Drakon and his men felt nothing but hopelessness at the situation.
At the same time, they blamed themselves for their own incompetence.

Levi announced, "I'll give you two choices. First, you can kneel and surrender that briefcase. If not, I'll kill you and take the briefcase myself! Take your pick. If I were you, I'd go with option one."

His words came as a shocker, given that he was the obvious underdog in this fight.

His audacity at making his enemies choose their fate made him seem like a madman.

Even Drakon and his men could not help but be dumbfounded at Levi's behavior.

The Sword Tyrant lifted a broadsword weighing close to half a thousand pounds and brought it down upon the car Levi had been in earlier.

The Mass Murderer used his iron fists as well. Between the two of them, the car had become a mangled mess of metal.

The Venomous Lord and the Evil Genius did not strike this round.

At the same time, Levi stood his ground and clashed against Brett's iron fists.

Crack!

The force sent shudders up Brett's arms and into his whole body.

"Argh!"

In the next instant, Brett was sent flying, blood gushing from his mouth.

The force from Levi's punch had obliterated his insides and had him landing roughly on the ground in a lifeless heap.

Upon that, the Sword Tyrant immediately swung his broadsword at Levi, who blocked his attack with his bare arms.

Clang!

The broadsword had been deflected just like that.

The crowd held their breaths at the utterly horrifying scene.

"We won't tell you anything."

"Erudia is bound for destruction. You'll all be dead!"

The Venomous Lord and the Evil Genius smiled evilly as they secretly chewed on the poisonous pill they had each hidden in their mouths.

Barely a minute later, they vomited blood, and their eyes rolled back in their heads.

It was an ugly death.

They had chosen to take their own lives instead of exposing their leader.

"Damn it!" Levi pounded the ground in frustration.

Poisons and gadgetry were the most unpredictable foes.

If they had set their minds to death, it was almost impossible to stop them.

Levi then approached Drakon and the surviving squad members on the ground.

Their faces were painted with awe and disbelief.

Drakon apologized to Levi immediately. "We were wrong to treat you that way! But couldn't you show your hand earlier? Why did you strike after we were injured?"

The man who had spoken wore a Kuro Dragon mask, masking his features entirely.

His anger was, however, palpable.

“Impossible! The Dragonites may be strong, but they’re no match for the Four Devils! How could they fail?” The crowd was perplexed.

The man in the Kuro Dragon mask said, “I heard that they arranged for the Crown King to escort the entourage.”

“What? The Crown King?”

“I’ll give this to them. I didn’t expect the Dragonites to have the Crown King escort their precious cargo. Only they would’ve thought of such a plan!”

Kuro Dragon sighed. "I didn't expect it either. He must be insanely strong if he defeated the Four Devils. Luckily we didn't leave any evidence behind."

"Sir, Prince William of Zarin wants to know if we got the drug."

"Tell him we failed," Kuro Dragon replied darkly.

The royalty's reply came quickly. "Prince William said we can get what we want if we impress him with other means."

"How about the deaths of a few people?" Kuro Dragon asked.

"Huh? Who?"

The crowd was curious.

Melanie's orders caused a hubbub in the Lopez family residence.

A horde of people rushed out, supporting Cora in their midst.

Several ultimate class and God class warriors from the Great Family of Westford flanked Cora as well.

"Levi Garrison! You have the gall showing up here to meet Evie! Have you no respect for the restraining order?"

"You're looking for trouble!"

Henry and Fabian were vocal about their disdain for Levi.

"We need to teach him a lesson. He was lucky Enyo was here the last time around. Let's see how he plans on escaping this time!"

In no time, Shaun had his men surround Levi and North Sky Lord to stop them from escaping.

Aaron scoffed and said, "I heard you're back for Zoey now that Enyo is gone."

Caitlyn added, "Levi's always been shrewd. He must be back to gain Zoey's favor because of the Lopez family's immense power."
