Chapter 1381

Everybody's eyes gleamed fiercely upon hearing Robert's offer.

That is an amazing offer! It is perfect against Levi.

"That's right! We can get Cora to lift the restraining order and allow you to be together with your family again. You can all live under the same roof once more."

"That is definitely something we can promise."

"Think long and hard about it. This medicine won't be of much use to you in your current state, and if you refuse to hand it over, you will never see Zoey and Evie again!"

Everyone spoke endlessly.

Everyone thought that their conditions were unbeatable and that Levi would never reject them.

That was understandable since they thought that he didn't have what it takes to reunite with his family.

To their surprise, Levi rejected their offer right away and said, "There is no need for that. I will go pick them up in three months, and I am not in a hurry."

Levi wanted the Great Family of Westford to protect his wife and daughter for now, so there was he would take them home now when things might get dangerous.

Besides, he could take them home whenever he wanted. As such, it doesn't make sense for him to forgo something so precious just to get what he already had.

Those were something that Meredith and the others never anticipated.

"Since we can't do anything to Zoey and Evie, the only thing we can do is target Levi's mother!" shared Logan as an evil look flashed past his eyes. "All we need is to have his mother under our control. He will definitely hand the medicine over once we do that."

Jennie was quick to agree and said, "You're right! If he doesn't hand it over, I will kill his mother!"

Harry, Meredith, and the others turned to each other.

They were a little hesitant about it.

That was understandable since they knew Emma well, and they weren't really okay with hurting her.

"We have to do this to secure the future of both the Lopez and Black families!"

Harry and Meredith turned and looked into each other's eyes before they decided to go along with it.

"Okay, let's go all out! Everything will be fine as long as Levi hands the medicine over, anyway," said Robert to make himself feel better.

Cora went over excitedly and asked about their trip when she saw them returning.

She instantly learned what had happened after seeing everyone's expression.

Startled by the sound, Judy hurriedly backed away and stared at the bedroom door.

“Come out if you dare!” she yelled.

Boom!

A sudden blast of cold wind hit Judy from behind and sent chills running down her spine.

As she turned around, a large hand swiftly grabbed her by the neck and hoisted her up.

Left dangling in mid-air, Judy found herself unable to retaliate.

With every passing second, she could feel her life slipping away as the grip around her neck tightened.

Flushed and gasping for breath, Judy was starting to lose consciousness when a voice suddenly rang out. “It’s you?”

The grip around Judy’s neck finally loosened, and she crumpled into a heap on the floor, gulping for air.

As she slowly raised her head to meet the gaze of her attacker, Judy got the shock of her life.

Without a moment's hesitation, Thierry contacted the council members of the Great Family of Frostford.

With Thierry personally vouching for Levi, the Great Family of Frostford had no choice but to give in to his request.

After all, they couldn't afford to offend the head of the Great Family of Westford.

Besides, the deaths of Sampson and a few others were inconsequential and not worth pursuing if it meant incurring the wrath of Thierry Langston.

With the matter settled, Thierry got off the phone feeling smug. "No matter how big the problems are, all it takes is one word from me to get them resolved!"

What he said was true.

If one were to have the Great Family of Frostford hot on their heels, there was no way they would be able to dodge the bullet.

Yet all Thierry had to do was say the word.

In his eyes, there was no doubt that the rare genius he had met was strong and worthy of becoming the successor to the Five Dragons of Erudia. However, until he had fully grown into his powers, the Great Family of Frostford could still easily obliterate him.

The guy was actually just like any other ordinary man, except he had made the Great Family of Frostford pay a heavy price with his actions.

Everything that Levi had said was nothing but the truth.

The Great Family of Frostford wouldn't have dared to make a move even if they were only up against North Sky Lord, let alone Levi himself.

Why else have they been lying in ambush for so long?

Thierry was utterly taken aback by Levi's words and his arrogance.

This is absurd!

We admit that you're strong, but not to the extent of keeping the entire Great Family of Frostford at bay!

You may have the potential of becoming one of the Five Dragons of Erudia, but your abilities are still far beneath theirs.

If the Great Family of Frostford wants to kill you, it'd still be as easy as pie!

Thierry held firm to the belief that all prodigies merely had an underlying potential. Anything could still happen to them before they fully uncover their potential. Levi was no exception.

"Mister, you don't seem to have realized your place, have you? Yes, you're strong, but growth takes time. And there's still a lot for you to grow before you can take on the Great Family of Frostford fearlessly!"

What Thierry had in mind was to convince Levi once and for all.

He wanted Levi to be so in awe of the Great Family of Westford that he would join them without hesitation.

That was why Thierry had to bring out his best fighter, George.

Having mastered all of Westford's fighting techniques, George was hands down the strongest Ultimate class warrior in the family for centuries.

Given his abilities, it wouldn't be surprising if he could even surpass the Ultimate class warrior.

To put it simply, George was powerful.

He alone could annihilate armies and destroy nations.

Even if the whole of Erudia came together, they still might not be able to win him. That was the power of an Ultimate class warrior!

Born in a time of war, George had once unleashed so much power that he almost took out an entire country.

No matter how much time had passed since then, no one in the Great Family of Westford would forget his power and contributions.

George was also the reason the Great Family of Westford had so much confidence and bargaining power.

George’s return was something that nobody had expected.

What was even more unexpected was the showing up of the other three great families and the Dragonites.

Everyone soon started talking amongst themselves in hushed tones, “What’s going on?”

“It’s their first move, and they’re already using their trump card?”

“They’ve even brought out their top fighter...”

“What do they plan on doing?”

“George is too strong. One attack from him, and everything might change overnight!”

It wasn’t an exaggeration to say that there were at least a dozen foreign countries who would die to have George as their advisor.

With his immense power, George’s resurgence only attracted more attention from the outside world.

All of Erudia’s eyes were now on North Hampton, eagerly awaiting the events to follow.

Naturally, Thierry was well aware of the attention he had garnered with gathering all his top fighters.

The air was thick with tension as Levi and George locked eyes with each other.

"Mister, since you said you aren't afraid of the Four Great Families, we'll just have to give you a taste of our power!" Thierry bellowed.

"This fight will prove to you that you can never win the Great Family of Westford! And you'll also realize you aren't as powerful as you claim to be! I'm sure you'll want to join our family after this!"

Thierry then turned to George and said, "I'll leave it to you, Master!"

George sized Levi up and mused, "A rare prodigy indeed! I can tell you're worthy of succeeding the Five Dragons of Erudia! Listen here, kid. Become my disciple, and I'll groom you to become as powerful as the Five Dragons!"

What? Taking Levi in as a disciple?

This sudden turn in events was not something Thierry and the others had expected.

Despite that, Thierry still tossed Judy a smug look.

It was as if he wanted to tell her how right he had been all along, that Levi was such a hot commodity that everyone wanted a piece of him.

Judy and the rest remained in shock as they stared at George and Levi.

In his almost two hundred years of life, George had never had a disciple before.

Many people from the Great Family of Westford, including Thierry, had begged George to take them in before. Alas, he rejected every single one of them.

Now, not only did George want to take in a disciple, but he was also the one extending the offer to Levi.

Great Family of Westford got wind of it, chaos

Even though they didn't look like it, every punch that George had landed on Levi had a force of almost a hundred tons.

A single punch was all it took to split mountains and bring down skyscrapers.

What made it even scarier was that George had punched Levi over a thousand times in just a short amount of time.

It was evident that the stronger the fighters were, the more they favored using simple techniques to deal with their enemies.

Just like how there was nothing fancy about George's punches, yet they were also the ones that packed the most power.

After all, he was the top Ultimate class warrior and Great Family of Westford's top fighter.

The crowd continued to gasp in amazement at how terrifyingly powerful George was.

Even the strongest fighters would feel like lambs to the slaughter when up against him.

George was also confident that Levi wouldn't be able to handle his chain of punches. It was only a matter of time before the latter admitted his defeat.

I'm sure he'd even beg me to take him in as my disciple.

All of sudden, a voice rang out.

Chapter 1390

It had been almost a century since George last used the most powerful technique from the Great Family of Westford.

That was because he had had no chance or reason to use it until Levi came along.

As he slowly raised his right hand, countless cyclones started circling on top of his palm.

George had gotten so powerful that he could easily manipulate the elements.

Whether it was wind, fire, water, or electricity, he could control them and turn them into means of attack.

What was even more frightening was how these cyclones slowly morphed into various small secret weapons.

In the blink of an eye, George had filled the entire space with them.

The weapons were so densely packed they surrounded Levi from every angle and every direction. From the looks of it, there was absolutely no room for escape.

The Tang Sect was part of the Great Family of Westford, and their strongest suit was in secret weapons and traps.

With someone as powerful as George, he had long since combined his martial arts with his knowledge of secret weapons.

Secret weapons made from air currents were far deadlier than those made from metal or even bullets.

As such, it wouldn't be an exaggeration to say that with just this technique alone, George could kill over a hundred thousand people on any battlefield.

It was precisely because of this that George was said to be able to take down entire countries in one fell swoop.
